TO INCREASE MAIL SERVICE.
Postal Authorities Invite New Routes To the Coast.

The postal department is inviting the establishment of regular mail routes between Honolulu and other places on the Pacific Coast besides San Francisco. In the last pamphlet advertisement published by the department, bids are invited for a three weeks service between Honolulu and any United States port on the Pacific Coast. The bid for the local boat between here and San Francisco has been awarded to the Mariposa people.

In addition to these routes, several new routes have been arranged by Assistant Superintendent of Railway Mail Service G. W. Carr. One of these routes is from Kahuku to Heeia, a distance of 26.69 miles. The others are for the other islands and are, in the main, changes of some of the old routes. All of these contracts will be for four years, from July 1, 1902 to June 30, 1906. Bids must be sent in to Mr. Carr by December 3 of the present year, and the awards will be announced on or before February 1, 1902.

PREFERRED THE CASH.
Comte Henry de la Vaulx, hero of the approaching balloon voyage across the Mediterranean, is also the hero of an amusing episode, says a Paris dispatch. He got a friend to present him at the Elysee palace, with a view to obtaining a subscription toward the expenses of his expedition. M. Loubet cheerily concluded the interview by asking, "Will you have a cigaret?" A friend saved the situation by remarking, "Yes, Mr. President, he will have a cigaret but would rather have 25 louis." M. Loubet acted on the hint.

DIED.
BALDWIN—At Hamakua, Maui, October 16, 1901, Leslie Alexander Baldwin, son of H. A. Baldwin, Age, three years and five months.

CROWD AT THE CIRCUS.
Various Feats Were Well Performed And Greatly Enjoyed.

There was a large crowd at Bernard and Coy's circus last night and the entertainment was greatly enjoyed. One of the special features of the show is the work of the "trained animals" of Professor Bernard. The horses perform some of the best tricks to be seen in a big circus and the intelligence shown by the dogs is astonishing. The animals showed the most careful training and several of their tricks will rank with the best of animal performers.

La Petite Ethel gave an exciting exhibition of bareback riding on the little pony, while the stunts done by Gus St. Leon and Miss Daisy St. Leon on the larger animals was good.
The St. Leon sisters appeared on the trapeze and performed some daring feats. The clowns were, as usual, quite funny. There was tumbling work introduced and it pleased the audience.
The show concluded with the amusing skit entitled "I'm a married man myself," in which Frank Beverly and Miss Edith Danvers appeared. Beverly, as the intoxicated husband, was capital, his work being quite realistic.

BRITISH MAILS.
American railroads, by demonstrating that they can transport the British mails from Australia to London so fast as to cut down by seven days the time required by the Suez route, have secured the mail contract from the Imperial government.—Springfield Republican.

AN EXCEPTION.
It is reported that Joaquin Miller is in danger of getting rich from the mere accident of taking several hundred acres of prairie land in part payment for a lecture—these acres proving to be in an oil region, Dear old Joaquin! Let us hope it's true, for one rich poet would be a break in the monopoly.—Springfield Republican.

ADJUTANT GENERAL.
The choice of an adjutant-general of the British army to succeed Sir Evelyn Wood falls upon Gen. Killy-Kenny, who was conspicuous and successful under Lord Roberts during the first year of the Boer war. The post of adjutant-general is important and powerful and has been occupied by Britain's most capable and distinguished soldiers.—Springfield Republican.

JOAN OF ARC.
At last Douremy is to have a monument to Joan of Arc, who made the little village famous by her birth. The Maid is one of the few historic figures on whose noble purity there is no stain, and it is well that the president of the French republic should visit the town and take part in the unveiling, or, as they call it in France, the inauguration, of the statue.—Springfield Republican.

EARNING THEIR FEE.
Recently an Indianapolis jury brought in a verdict of guilty against a woman charged with profanity and then paid the fine imposed upon her themselves. At first it was supposed that they were influenced by gallantry, until it was revealed that their own fees for service in the jury box depended upon a conviction. For superlative nerve that jury is entitled to the blue ribbon.

CALL FOR A CONSCRIPTION, RADICAL TONE OF MILITARY JOURNALS.

The situation in South Africa is causing much discussion in England. Yearnery are Not Re-Enlisting.

LONDON, October 4.—Frank advocacy of conscription is the feature of the latest issue of the British military journals. They state that the situation in South Africa has become so grave that only a return to the principle involved in the militia law can place a sufficient number of troops at Lord Kitchener's disposal and avert an imperial calamity.

"Perhaps the government will redeem its past feebleness by taking the only step that meets the case—putting in force the only form of conscription that will be accepted in England. The same journal deplores the state of things in Cape Colony, admitting that large numbers of the colonial Dutch are joining the enemy and that practically the entire population in invaded districts is giving assistance of various kinds to the invaders. It says: 'In 1899 ministers thought that the war would end in 1901 they think peace can be secured by proclamations. These miscalculations have been paid for in the devastation of South Africa, rivers of blood and millions of treasure. Nevertheless the nation still refuses to learn its lesson, perhaps because it is not bitter enough. Do we intend to wait for an awakening that may come too late?'"

PRETORIA, September 29.—A pamphlet has been published here under Lord Kitchener's authority containing a notice of the permanent banishment of several Boer leaders since September 15, and also a long letter from Acting President Schalk Burger, received September 8, Lord Kitchener promises to send the Schalk-Burger letter to the imperial government, which he says reciprocates the Boer statesman's desire for peace.

Lord Kitchener then proceeds to explain that the responsibility for the war rests with the burghers, whose invasion of unprotected British territory opened the saddest page in South African history. He quotes a letter from a member of the Cape Colony assembly, declaring that "the aim drive the English from South Africa."

In conclusion Lord Kitchener declares that, having annexed the two republics to Great Britain, he cannot break faith with the people who have shown loyalty to the new regime, and so far as clemency to Cape rebels is concerned, this is the prerogative of the ruler, which must be exercised with unfettered discretion.

A proclamation has been issued providing for the sale of properties of burghers still in the field, in accordance with the terms of Lord Kitchener's previous proclamation.

RURAL DELIVERY, How it Can Be Secured by Any Community. In order to introduce rural free delivery on a new route, a petition showing the desire of the persons along the line for the new service. This paper is then forwarded to the representative in Congress from the district in which the route will be located, or to one of the senators from the state, for his recommendation. If it is deemed practicable to start the service as desired, a special agent of the Post Office Department is sent to lay out a route and make a survey. His report may and must show that at least 100 families can be made accessible to the delivery. It also shows the character of the roads and the agent impresses upon the persons interested that the route must be made passable summer and winter.

THE BURDEN OF YEARS, They say that the biggest Galapagos tortoise now in Bronx park, New York city, is at least 400 years old, and so must have been living when Columbus died. Dr. Hornaday of the New York zoological society trusts his faith on Walter Rothschild of London, who has a tortoise which he says is much older than that, and Rothschild has made tortoises his special study, so that he is recognized as an expert. It is not so important as if the tortoise could talk. Four centuries make a long period, but without a voice, of what consequence are they? Now with a tree four centuries old the case is different. Its vitality and significance is far beyond those of a sluggish reptile, which signifies that life is not always higher in the animal than in the vegetable kingdom.—Springfield Republican.

CAME NEAR DYING, "For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cantaloupes, says M. E. Lovelace, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely. I went to sleep and did not awake for eight hours. On awakening a few hours ago I felt so gratified that the first work I do on going to the office is to write to the manufacturers of this remedy and offer them my grateful thanks and say, 'God bless you and the splendid medicine you make.'" This remedy is for sale by all dealers, Benson, Smith & Co., general agents, Hawaiian Islands.

PREPARATION

Before the next meeting of the Legislature it was shown yesterday that both voters and non-voters, in fact that all who had interests here, of necessity should familiarize themselves with the subject of the revision of the taxes and the division of the Territory into counties, with the adequate and proper government of the same. In the matter of the taxes there has been provision made for a committee, which committee should go to work and from time to time let the results of its work be known. The revision and readjustment of the taxes should be no Star Chamber affair, no secret meeting business, but should be clear and full so that citizens should themselves have a clear comprehension of what will be proposed, before the matter goes before the Legislature.

Taxation is something that every one from the lowliest upward is interested in. It is true that taxes at times bear unjustly upon some and are too light upon others. This charge is an old one. It was the cause of endless trouble and struggle in the small republics of Greece. It was the cause of similar troubles in the early Roman Republic, and it was the glaring scandal of the later Republic and the whole period of the Empire. The villainous system of taxation under the French Monarchy was at the root of the French Revolution, it was at the root of the overthrow of Charles I which led him to a scaffold as it later did Louis XVI of France and thousands upon thousands of the best and noblest blood of France. Taxation was at the root of the War of Independence, and served to bring about the birth of the mightiest power the world has yet seen.

We have before us plenty of lessons upon how taxation ought not to be done. This is a matter which has occupied the brightest intellects of both theoretical and practical men for years. Every now and again some one comes forward with a universal panacea. It is not wise to rush at once into any particular system, but it is wise to carefully consider every system and to see whether it will suit our conditions, and whether it may require modifications before being adopted. There is plenty of work for the good citizen to do in this direction. If this work is not done we shall be going into the next session unprepared. We may cry out against the system offered, but we shall have nothing but make shifts to offer in its place. We are citizens of a free Territory. We have the management of our own affairs, and the price we have to pay for so managing them that they shall be satisfactory, is to look after them ourselves and not delegate the duty to other and frequently incompetent hands.

Then there is the question of municipality. At the last session of the Legislature the municipal acts of the contending parties never got beyond the embryo stage. Both were framed for only one city, Honolulu. This The Star believes to be a mistake. The municipal act should be general and not special. Cities having reached a certain stage of development should be able to organize at once under the general act and should not have to wait for special legislation in their case, legislation which might be blocked by jealousy or greed. This is the tendency of municipal legislation on the mainland, and wherever it has been followed out it has proved thoroughly satisfactory.

That we need municipal government in Honolulu most men will agree. The subject has been discussed and argued long before annexation took place, or the independent Republic was established. It was a question for debate in the time of the Monarchy. It is as well that the city charter was not framed at that time. It would not have been suitable at the present time, and it would have been a precedent for special charters which is a thing to be avoided. Special charters really date back to Monarchy. The Monarch conferred rights in return for favors received. What the true republican believes in is no conferring of anything, but the right to claim without favor of Monarch, or Legislature, or any other power. Having reached a certain stage of development, there should be no hesitation, no asking, it should legally come as a Roman boy assumed the toga virilis of right, or a young man of modern times is emancipated from legal paternal control when he comes of age. It is right not favor that a developed community should claim. That is the true essence of Americanism.

There is plenty of work cut out for us in these vital directions if we will only give attention to them. These are matters of the utmost importance to ourselves and to our children who are to follow us. It is a great deal better to lay foundations for the future than to be wasting our time bickering over this office and over that, criticising not because there is cause for criticism, but simply using the method as a weapon to attempt to break an opponent whether right or wrong. Politics is not a still hunt for place. If place comes it is the duty of a citizen, if he feels himself capable, to accept it even with all the disadvantages inherently attached. But the man who is a deliberate place hunter is by no means a good citizen. What we want here are citizens of the Roosevelt type, men who have never shirked a responsibility, men who though rising high never sought office, and men whose hands and souls are clean as they were when they first entered this mundane sphere.

RECORDS

The records of births, marriages and deaths in the past of this Territory are highly unsatisfactory. Within the last few decades the records of marriages have been properly kept, but there was a time not more than ten or twelve years ago when they had not been properly written up and indexed. This work was undertaken at that time and it was then discovered that several, even of the city clergymen of prominence, had failed to make report to the authorities, though so required by law with a penalty attached. In one case, if memory serves correctly a minister was over eight years behind in his report. Of course he had his church register to appeal to and the matter was straightened out.

The records of births simply do not exist. Even for Honolulu it has been found impossible for the Board of Health authorities to enforce the law, and the consequence is that no one has any idea of whether the population of the city is increasing or decreasing on these lines. Any statistics put forth on this line are utterly unreliable. The death statistics of the city are now reliable, but we have no data whatever to base statistics of either births or deaths outside of Honolulu.

There is another error liable to creep in with regard to marriages. A search through the records of the agents to grant marriage licenses, and the discovery of such a license is by no means evidence conclusive that a marriage took place. Sometimes a license is obtained and never used. This was the case with the man who murdered his sweetheart and then committed suicide at Waiaina the other day. He got a license but he was never married, and it was because he did not use it that he committed the crime. Other instances of the non-use of licenses have occurred.

When our system is decentralized and each county keeps its own records we may hope to have a better system of registering such matters. Meanwhile such records as are still in existence, however imperfect they may be, should be carefully collected and preserved. The writer has seen such records kicking about the floor of a native hut, and a large number of such books were for many years kept in the drawer of a wooden counter in one of our government offices, and the drawer not even locked. Is it any wonder that old records are difficult to find or verify?

EGGS AS FOOD.

In a recent bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, interesting and valuable facts are given in regard to the food value of eggs, their digestibility and the best methods of cooking them. Experiments in the digestibility of eggs show that hard-boiled and fried eggs required three and one-half hours for digestion, soft-boiled eggs required three hours, roasted eggs two and one-quarter hours, raw eggs, not whipped, two hours, and raw eggs, whipped, one and one-half hours. It has also been established that from 53 to 97 per cent. of an egg that is eaten is digested.

According to Leslie's Weekly the following methods of preparing soft-cooked and medium-cooked eggs have been found to give uniform results in laboratory tests at the University of Illinois: Using a granite-ware stewpan of one quart capacity, one pint of water was heated over a gas flame; when the water boiled the gas was turned off and an egg which had been kept in a refrigerator was dropped into the water. Without disturbing the vessel it was covered closely and the egg allowed to remain in the water six minutes. It was then soft cooked. As shown by tests, when the egg was dropped into the water the temperature fell almost at once to 185 degrees Fahrenheit, and then slowly to 170-175 degrees Fahrenheit. If the egg remained in the water eight minutes it was medium cooked. In this case the temperature of the water at the end of the cooking period had fallen to 162-164 degrees.

The Porto Ricans seem to be likely to emulate our Japanese population in the matter of crimes of violence. Naturally we are not getting the very best class of Porto Ricans as laborers, and among those which arrive there may after all be only a few would be criminals. If these are removed, the remainder may prove very peaceable. It does not frame that way at present.

Yachting is evidently going to be one of our standard sports and the recent shake up in yachting circles is likely to do a great deal of good. The schemes for a house boat or land quarters in Pearl Harbor seem well under way, and the yachts will rendezvous on those calm waters on Saturday night. But yachting should be more adventurous than this mere sail to Pearl Harbor and back. It should be carried into harder seas. Commodore Hobron showed some months ago that it was quite a possible feat to sail to Lahaina and back. The circuit of this Island presents an excellent opportunity for a yachtsman. There is grand scenery to be gazed at, and there are several pleasant harbors to put in for the night, as at Waiaina, Waimea, Kahana, and the grand bay of Koolau. There can be great expansion in yachting.

JAPAN AND EMIGRATION

D. W. STEVENS DEFINES HER ATTITUDE.

The Land of the Cherry-blossom is Prosperous—A Splendid Rice Crop and Good Silk Production.

D. W. Stevens, advisor to the Japanese Legation at Washington who arrived over in Honolulu and will go to the coast by the Gaelic.

"I have remained over simply to keep in touch with Japanese interests here," he said this morning. "There is nothing special to call for my consideration. But the Japanese government has a great many subjects here and these involve many interests with which the foreign office has to keep in touch. The opportunity offering to stop over and keep in touch with these interests, I took advantage of it, and that is the only reason I am here."

"Japan is in a very prosperous condition. When I left the prospects were bright for one of the largest rice crops ever harvested, and as rice is one of the great staples, that of itself would go far toward making the country prosperous. The raw silk production, another staple, is very promising which makes another element of prosperity. "Japan in its industrial aspect is in need of more ready capital than is at present available, but that need is being met, though not as rapidly as it is needed to keep up with the development of industries. But there is a vast amount of capital invested in industries, in railroads for instance, which are paying, and paying handsomely, and foreign capital is coming in. Some months ago the failure of four small banks in Osaka was heralded all over the world as a crisis, but there is a vast amount of capital invested in industries, in railroads for instance, which are paying, and paying handsomely, and foreign capital is coming in. Some months ago the failure of four small banks in Osaka was heralded all over the world as a crisis, but there is a vast amount of capital invested in industries, in railroads for instance, which are paying, and paying handsomely, and foreign capital is coming in. Some months ago the failure of four small banks in Osaka was heralded all over the world as a crisis, but there is a vast amount of capital invested in industries, in railroads for instance, which are paying, and paying handsomely, and foreign capital is coming in."

"No, the visit of Marquis Ito to the United States has no political significance. Marquis Ito's health is bad, and his physicians ordered him to take a rest long before he did. But it seemed impossible for him to go away at that time. Marquis Ito has been such a commanding figure in Japan for so many years, and has been of such service to his country, that his slightest act is invested with some supposed significance. He has recently been put at the head of a new party, or rather a combination of parties, but as yet the party has not particularly shown its purpose in action. In fact it has not as yet had any opportunity. The coming session of parliament which will meet in November is the last session of this parliament. It would be hard to say just what the attitude of this new party is, at least in terms that would be understood by those not thoroughly familiar with Japanese politics. It is hardly an opposition party, because Marquis Ito is in perfect harmony with the present cabinet. It might be termed a constitutional party. The head of the present government is a very popular man, and one who has shown first class ability. He is one of the younger generation of Japanese statesmen."

"In regard to the renewed emigration from Japan to Hawaii, the government permits sixty men to emigrate on one steamer with their wives and families, and relatives dependent upon them. This does not include persons who have been to Hawaii before and have returned. These may return here whenever they wish. The regulations on the part of the government, and for the protection of the emigrants themselves, in the past many Japanese have left their country to go elsewhere without any knowledge of conditions where they were going, and without any idea that women could then support themselves, and they have become charges on the consular agencies. The government wants simply to know that the emigrants are going where it is likely that they can obtain employment and are fitted to meet the requirements of the government. It is also the policy of the government to prevent any emigrants going out as contract laborers to countries whose laws prohibit contract immigration."

SAYS LIGHTS WERE WRONG

HOW BLANCHE AND ELLA, AND ADA COLLIDED.

Captain Kaaina of Former Boat Says Port Light of Ada was on Starboard Side.

The Blanche and Ella arrived in port this morning from Kauai, some what the worse for her encounter with the schooner Ada, last Monday night. According to the statements of Captain Kaaina, the collision between the two schooners was due to a mistake in placing the side lights on the Ada. Captain Charles Gaiter of the Ada is not here to give his version of the accident, however, so the cause can not be positively determined until his explanation of the affair shall have been received.

Captain Kaaina says that the collision occurred about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning off Kilauea Point, Kauai and not off Nawiliwili as was reported yesterday. There was a moderate easterly breeze. The Ada was running to the south while the Blanche and Ella was beating toward the northeast. The first intimation that the crew of the Blanche and Ella had of any impending danger was when a Japanese sailor called to the second mate that a red light off the vessel's port bow, was moving toward them.

Such an occurrence was unusual and, for a few minutes, neither Captain Kaaina nor his crew could understand how a red light could be moving toward them. Had it been a green light, the men would have understood, for a vessel to have been moving toward them, must have displayed a green light on her starboard side, must of necessity, been next to the Blanche and Ella. According to the statements of Captain Kaaina, the crew on the Ada made a mistake in hanging the side lights and instead of putting the green light on the starboard side, they put it on the port side and made a corresponding

THE HEALTHY WOMAN.

Aside from form or features, she has an attractiveness all her own. The bloom on her cheek, the elasticity in her step, the ring of her voice, her enjoyment of life—all these are magnets which draw others to her side. Wonderful and valuable as it is, health is not so difficult a thing to obtain as some discouraged ones think. Most of the troubles of women arise from impure blood, impaired nutrition, low vitality and general debility. Modern science furnishes the most successful of remedies for these conditions—namely

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION.

It is palatable as honey and contains the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. Taken before meals it improves the appetite, makes fat, restores vitality, enriches the blood and cures those weaknesses peculiar to the sex, which are the seat of their troubles. It is a blessing to Tired Wives, Nursing Mothers and Girls growing into womanhood. It colors the pale faces and rounds out the hollow chests. In a word, it nourishes and develops the entire body, and brings happy surprises to feeble, hopeless and discouraged sufferers. Dr. E. J. Boyes says: "I have found it a preparation of great merit. In a recent case a patient gained nearly twenty pounds in two months' treatment, in which it was the principal remedial agent." It is the typical medicinal success of our age, for time has proved our claims are supported by results, and a remedy which acts in harmony with nature's own efforts and processes. Effective from the first dose. "Never disappoints." Sold by chemists everywhere.

BOYD AND THE DOCTORS

THE JURY ROOM GETS A BIG CLEANING.

Superintendent Will Again Discuss the Asylum Rock-Crusher With the Board of Health.

The jury room in the Judiciary building received a lot of attention this morning, as a result of the kicks about its condition. Captain Green, head janitor, was on hand early with a force of men and water and soap were vigorously applied. "Marshal Ney" stood without and smiled as his enemy worked, until the door was shut and the trouble went on inside unobserved. The noises inside indicated that the floor was being liberally scrubbed.

Superintendent Boyd and Green paid a visit to the building yesterday, to make an inspection. Ney was on hand then too, and he did not hesitate to take advantage of the opportunity to deride Green's services as a head janitor, with the result that the two met had a noisy altercation. Ney has been getting down early and doing cleaning on his own account, he says, and he declared that such work is not a part of his duties.

The building generally will be a subject of discussion this afternoon by the Board of Health, which may make a recommendation to the Superintendent of Public Works on the subject. Sanitary Officer Tracy is said to be preparing a report which will advise that the old matting be torn up and destroyed, as it is so filthy with the expectations of several years' attendance at the Judiciary building that it cannot be cleaned. If it is taken up there will be a big job in carting away the dirt that has collected under it.

The rock-crusher will be another subject between the Board and the Superintendent. Boyd is to attend the meeting this afternoon for another conference on the subject. So far the doctors and the Superintendent have not been able to suggest any compromise, but it is hoped that a further discussion of the subject will bring about a satisfactory basis of settlement.

OLD OFFENDER CAUGHT.
T. Aukai alias Komallili was arrested today by Detective David Kaapa on a charge of larceny in the second degree. The prisoner is accused of stealing $9 from a Japanese store at the corner of Nuuanu and Wylie streets last Monday.

The S. S. Alameda is due Saturday morning from San Francisco. The vessel may arrive here tomorrow evening however, as she has just come off the ways and her bottom is clean, in addition to her having new engines.

A Life Saved

Sixteen Months of Awful Suffering

Impure blood is always dangerous.
Just as soon as you begin to feel weak and languid, nervous and depressed, you are in danger. Make your blood pure and your nerves strong at once.
Mt. Thomas H. Cashel, of Dripstone, New South Wales, Australia, sends us this letter, with his photograph was suddenly taken very ill and for three weeks was delirious nearly all the time, and my life was despaired of. The doctors said it was blood poisoning. For many long weeks I suffered the most frightful agony. The poisoning all settled in one limb. I then went to Sydney Hospital, where dead pieces of bone were taken from my leg. But I grew weaker and weaker, until I could hardly raise my head. I then left the hospital, believing I must surely die. Then my people bought me a bottle of

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

It did me good at once. In all I used fifteen bottles. Without doubt it saved my life, even after sixteen months of suffering.

Take Ayer's Pills with the Sarsaparilla.

HOW BROOKLYN FOUGHT

THE BATTLE DESCRIBED BY LIEUTENANT DOTY.

He Directed the Handling of Some of The Guns Against the Viscaya—Chase of The Colon.

WASHINGTON, October 10.—The story of how the Brooklyn fought in the battle of Santiago was thus vividly told today by Lieut. James J. Doty, who was an officer on the Brooklyn during the battle.

"I fired the left gun first and Halligan shortly afterward fired the right one.
Then we began to load the guns again.
It was necessary then after loading the guns a second time to turn the turret directly toward our ship was apparently shutting the enemy out by turning with a starboard helm. Immediately after firing that left gun the second time the order was to man the starboard battery. I got out of the turret through the roof, that being the most convenient way of getting out, and crossed over the starboard turret.

"As I was going into the starboard turret I had an opportunity to see the Spanish ships. They were then a little on our starboard beam. As soon as I had charge of the controller, which upper part of the turret I saw the Colon. I swung the turret around on to the starboard bow. In the meantime some of our forward guns had fired. The volume of smoke was so great that it must have come from one of the eight-inch guns of the forward turret, and I was obliged to shut out seeing the enemy. While the guns were in this position Mr. Mason, our executive officer, passed down the starboard gangway, calling 'sharp on the starboard quarter.' The interval of time from the time the guns were on the starboard quarter I think must have been ten minutes.

"I swung the guns around to the starboard quarter and then we picked up the enemy. The range at which I fired, to the best of my memory, was about 1400 yards, and from then on it was a constant fire, training the guns until we finally got them on the starboard beam. The range increased up to 2000 yards, and during the run, after being parallel with the Spanish ships, the range varied from about 2300 to 1800 yards. I think when the Viscaya went ashore the range was then about 1800 yards. Immediately before she turned in she made a sheer with her starboard helm, apparently coming toward us, and then immediately put her helm around the other way and went ashore.

PURSUIT OF THE COLON.
"From then on it was a chase after the Colon. At the time the Viscaya went ashore the Colon, by working up inside of the other Spanish ships, had secured a very long lead. I should say she was at least five or six miles, perhaps more, on our starboard bow, well in shore. The order was given to cease firing and to come out of the turrets and take a 'spell' during the chase of the Colon. The Oregon, during the chase and while we were on the top of the turret, was directed to try her thirteen-inch guns in the chase, which she did, and the shots fell short. In a little while they were tried again and came a little closer."

Admiral Dewey—Directed by whom?
"By Commander Schley, sir, by wigwag signal, as I remember it."
Admiral Dewey—You saw that signal?
"Yes, sir; I saw the signal being made."
Admiral Benham—Did you read the signal?
"I did not, but I understood what it was, and, if I am not mistaken, it was McCleary, an ensign we had on board, who made the signal himself."

"Shortly after this the forward turret and starboard turret of the Brooklyn were directed to load the guns with armor-piercing shells. The forward turret was directed to fire the first two shots, which it did. The shots fell short.
Then I was directed to fire, and I fired at a range, as I now recall, of 9500 yards. We tried both guns at that range. Those shots fell short. We loaded again in the starboard turret, and I increased the range to 6700 yards, and fired the right gun. It went a little to the right of the Colon, as near as I could judge, but the range was very good. The Colon very shortly after that went ashore. We steamed up to her and proceeded to get out a cutter for Captain Cook to go over and receive her surrender."

Captain Lemly began his cross-examination by asking the witness whether he was as sure of the position and actions of the Brooklyn as he had been of the way the Brooklyn had been turned on the day of the Santiago battle.
The witness replied that he was more certain. He repeated his statement made yesterday that he had made the entry in the log that the vessel had turned with a starboard helm when in fact it had turned with a port helm.
He said he did not consult with anyone except Commander Sharp before he changed the entry.

The question was then asked by Hanna and traversed the same ground gone over by Captain Lemly in the examination in chief. Hanna cross-examined the witness regarding his testimony bearing upon the firing of Santiago, asking him first as to the direction in which the Spanish ships were headed as they came out of the mouth of the harbor.

"They were coming right toward us," the witness replied. "In column, almost directly on our starboard bow.
They had not then begun to turn."
"Were they firing at you then?" asked Mr. Hanna.

"They were certainly firing in our direction," was the response. The witness said that after that the firing was from both sides of the bows of the enemy's vessels.

"How sure," asked Hanna, "do you feel of your recollection as to the way they were headed at that time?"

"That is one of the things that most firmly impressed itself on my mind." Lieutenant Doty said he had made his observations of the battle through the peer hole from the sliding head, and again related how the enemy had been cut off from his vision by the smoke of one of the Brooklyn's big guns.
The cross-examination upon these incidents was in progress when the court took its midday recess for luncheon.

The afternoon session began with inquiries concerning the wig-wag signal to the Oregon from the Brooklyn to fire her thirteen-inch gun. The witness said that he was sure he had seen the signal made but that he was unable to find an entry of the signal in the ship's log.

Captain Lemly asked what efforts had been made by the flying squadron to discover the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet while the squadron lay off Cleofuegos before the arrival of Captain Mc-Cleary.

The witness replied that there had been no effort except in making inquiries of the captain of the British sloop Adina.

THE BROOKLYN MANEUVERING.
"Captain Lemly then asked a number of questions. The first of these related to an explanation of what the witness meant by 'starboard' when he said he thought that just after the beginning of the battle on July 3 there was a probability of a meeting.

"I thought," responded the witness,
"that the ships were coming right toward us. I thought they would get into us, and I thought we would have a run-up as they were about 1400 yards distant."
Judge Advocate—Do you mean that the course of the Brooklyn took her across the Spanish line and that the probability mentioned so as to make a turn to avoid that?

"That is what I mean."
"What orders were given by signal from the Brooklyn to the fleet during the action of July 3?"

"I do not know, except what I have already testified to about the wig-wag."
"You have stated that while you were on top of the starboard turret it looked very much as though there was going to be a general melee or mix-up with the Spanish ships. I want you to give as nearly as possible the relative positions of the vessels, Spanish and American, to the Brooklyn at the time you refer to."

"At the time I referred to the Spanish ships were in column, standing right toward us and about a point on our starboard bow."
By the Court—"What direction did the Spanish ships take immediately after clearing the entrance of the harbor?"

"The first one must have been southwest. They steamed right toward us; that is, when I first saw them they were on our starboard bow."
After Lieutenant Doty was excused Lieutenant-Commander Clifford J.
Bunch, who had made the large chart of the positions of the vessels of the American squadron while off Santiago was called to identify those charts and to state the date upon which they were prepared.

ALPHABETICAL ABUSE.
The prosecuting attorney in a lawsuit had asked especially indignantly at the defendant, whom he characterized as an "abandoned, baneful, cynical, diabolic, execrable, felonious, greedy, hateful, irresponsible, jaundiced, knavish, lazy, meddlesome, noxious, outrageous and profligate rascal."

"The learned counsel on the other side," said the attorney for the defendant, when he rose to reply "should have put his adjectives in a hat and shaken them up a little before using. You must have noticed, gentlemen of the jury, that they were in regular alphabetical order. This shows that he selected them from a dictionary, beginning with 'a.' He stopped at 'p,' but in his manner of reproducing them he has given us the 'cue' as to how he got them."

This turned the laugh against the other lawyer, and he lost the case.—

DISHONORED NAMES.
Ralph Waldo Emerson is in jail at Newburg, N. Y., for robbing the mails.
This seems to be regarded as a case of degeneracy, but as George Washington, John Quincy Adams and Abraham Lincoln are frequently in the criminal list, perhaps too much stress should not be laid upon the name. The Emerson name is not at all uncommon. This Ralph Waldo has been assistant postmaster for several months at Cold Spring, Putnam county, and is only 22 years old. Poor fool—he loses his life too early.—Springfield Republican.

HE LIKED THE JUICE.
"By the way, Marv, what did your father say about the brandied peaches we gave him?" "He said that he very much appreciated the spirit in which they were sent."—Montreal Star.

SMALL FARMING IN CUBA

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS SINCE THE WAR.

Americans Who Have Gone in There Are Making Money and Have Excitingly Bright Prospects Ahead.

It is one of the common mistakes that Cuba is good to raise only sugar and tobacco. Leaving out the culture of fruits which is going to take front rank in its agricultural industry in the near future, there is yet a further variation in production. Guines is the district of small farms and small farming. They raise crops not only for local consumption, but for export to the United States. No section of the island gives a better chance to study the prospects and the conditions of small farming.

Before the insurrection brought such great destruction, the Guines district was one of the most prosperous parts of the island. It has been coming up rather slowly because, with so large a proportion of small farms destroyed and with their owners dead or heavily in debt, speedy recuperation was not possible. The foreclosure of mortgages which has begun still bears heavily on some unfortunate landowners, but this is one of the inevitable results of the war which no authority of government could entirely relieve. Nevertheless, in spite of the grip of the Spanish money lender, many of the original owners of the small farms or their heirs seem to be keeping their property or a part of it. Their burdens are heavy, yet encouragement is given that with a good season or two these will be lightened.

The Guines district is not given over entirely to small farming, for half the country is covered with canefields, and there are several large centrales, or sugar mills, which did not have to be rebuilt. Among these are the Providencia, one of the largest in Havana province, which also operates a small refinery; the Amistad, Nombre de Dios and other smaller estates. All of these have raised fair crops this year, which have brought an average price, and thus the gradual revival of the sugar industry has had other agricultural pursuits. The cane planted insures a crop at least one-fourth larger next season, and this will be an additional aid toward recuperation.

The Guines district differs from other parts of the island in that it does not depend on nature alone for its fertility. Irrigation enabled it to become the market garden of Havana, and to export a considerable surplus crop of onions, potatoes and other vegetables to the United States. It is claimed that a good part of the Bermuda onions, instead of coming from Bermuda, come from Guines. By means of irrigation the district is enabled to market two crops of both potatoes and onions annually, in addition to other products which are raised for the island consumption.

The irrigation ditches have not been restored to their former condition, but enough is seen of the system to demonstrate its value in a country where the rainy season of four or five months is supposed to furnish sufficient moisture for the year. Guines, by means of irrigation, has had the advantage over the other parts of the island in that it could alternate the crops with greater regularity, and was not affected by the occasional droughts which occur often enough to demonstrate that the rains in Cuba are not perennial or perpetual. The soil is both of the rich black loam and of the red earth, which is sometimes called mulatto land. It is good for sugar as well as for fruits and vegetables, but it does not produce the tobacco leaf of the quality or quantity sufficient to make this cultivation profitable.

The Spanish laws governing irrigation are said to be very good ones. They protect all parties in interest, and afford a sufficient guarantee for the investment of capital. Before the insurrection various English and American syndicates were reported to be projecting extensive systems of irrigation. Since peace came these reports have been revived but like most enterprises which are dependent on American capital, the realization comes very slowly. Yet in time the object lesson which Guines has given of the value of irrigation is certain to be taken advantage of, either by cooperation among the land-owners themselves or by corporations with outside capital.

In the days before the war and insurrection the possession of a caballeria of land with a few oxen anywhere in the Guines territory constituted what would be called in the state a well-to-do farmer. A caballeria of land and one third acre, yet in its productive value it would pass for the quarter section of 160 acres on a western prairie. The farm houses and outbuildings as in all parts of rural Cuba, are simple and inexpensive. The conditions of life, except for the oppression and corruption of the Spanish officials, were not difficult to meet. Sometimes a caballeria would be sold for $5,000 or thereabouts, but it was difficult to put any fixed price on the small holding, which was valuable enough to secure more than one advance from the bogadero, or storekeeper, who usually was the money lender. In spite of 18 or 20 per cent interest, compounded annually, the productiveness of the soil was great enough to stand off the foreclosure for a long time and the small farmers with their debts hanging over them managed to get along about as the great planters did with their enormous obligations. Because of the distress and poverty caused by insurrections, some of the land has to be sold at a sacrifice and it is cheaper than before the war, yet now it is to be had for a song. A caballeria under cultivation, while it may be bought comparatively cheap, still fetches a price not far below that of the old farm in the United States.

A number of Americans have come into the district in a small way, and are doing fairly well. One group of them has made an arrangement with the railroad company to give them warehouse facilities, while others are operating on their own account. Just after the war was signed a number of Americans jumped into Cuban farming as they called it, and selected the Guines country for the scene of their activities. A few of them leased lands, while to others were given the use of tracts of some of the large planters substantially for nothing. Few of these early comers made a success. The trouble was that they knew little of farming and had no capital of their own. When they were liquidated on the potato market in New York and when too much rain spoiled part of the crop they were at the end of their resources. Others who came in later and who had some capital are doing better, and are greatly encouraged at the prospects which the Guines district offers.

THE APPEAL CRITICIZED.

Judge Gear Defines the Rights of Auctioneers.

Judge Gear filed a written decision yesterday in the case of J. F. Morgan against Mrs. F. C. Bettlers, a suit for $3.25 on account of goods alleged to have been sold six months ago to Mrs. Bettlers. It contained the following: "The defendant became liable to pay the amount bid upon the fall of the hammer announcing that she was a bidder, there being no contention that the sale was illegal or invalid in any manner. "Defendant's counsel contends that an auctioneer cannot maintain an action for the purchase price, but is forced to retain the goods and sell the property over again, and hold the prior purchaser for the difference in price with costs of sale, and that this action is exclusive and the auctioneer's sole remedy. "The Court is surprised that such a contention has been made, for the law is well settled that an auctioneer may maintain an action for either the purchase price of the goods sold by him, or if a purchaser does not comply with the terms of the sale, the vendor may, after giving him reasonable notice, resell the property at public auction, and a purchaser who, without legal justification, had failed to take the property resold to him, will be liable to the vendor for the difference between the price of sale and any proceeds of sale. "The appeal is entirely without merit. While the court recognizes the fact that a large sum of money in order to give parties a right to trial or to their appeal, the Court also feels that this action is one which should not have been appealed and that time has been unnecessarily wasted. "The Court thinks the law to be well settled that an auctioneer is entitled to recover on account of the amount bid, and the Court suggests that there should be a provision of statute, if there is not one now, allowing a penalty to be imposed where frivolous appeals are taken for the purpose of discouraging such appeals. "Judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, three dollars and twenty-five cents, with interest, costs and attorneys' commission."

HERBERT SPENCER'S WORK.

Herbert Spencer celebrated his eighty-first birthday recently. It is understood that he does not intend to revise any of his works. He has completed a two-volume autobiography, which is already partly printed, but will not be published during his lifetime. Despite the admiration of people all over the world, the philosophical works have not been remunerative.

WHAT "BARRELS" WILL DO.

The man who went through the Niagara rapids can now appreciate the excitement of the political campaign who wonders whether his barrel is going to stand the strain.—Washington Star.

A GOOD THING.

Because economical women have found out that to have their simple, everyday wash skirts made by high priced dressmakers is rank extravagance.
