ARMY MUSIC.

HOW AN ARMY COOK WAS CHARMED BY A REGIMENTAL BAND.

A Monster Band at a Grand Review—Kilpatrick in Charge of a Regular Virginia Breakdown—The First Sheet.

(St. Louis Republic.)
Mr. Lloyd Harris, of St. Louis, contributes the following from a rather extensive collection of war papers already published: Many of the veterans of the Army of the Potomac remember the splendid band of the Fourteenth Brooklyn Cavalry. Whenever they appeared in their gay uniform and started one of their inspiring tunes the effect on all the colored servants was electrical. One day while we were encamped back of the Arlington our house table cook had started with our coffee pot in his hand from an open fire toward the tent where Hoot and the Plumpers and I were waiting his arrival. Just at the moment the Fourteenth band struck up "Dixie" as they were passing by, and a wondrous effect, still holding the coffee-pot, completely entranced by the music, and never stopped until the tent had ended and he was half a mile from the tent. On his return he looked very foolish and ventured: "Captain, we never heard such music as dat in ole Virginia."

The same band united with several others and made a monster band at McClellan's grand review; 100 silver instruments, thirty tenors and ten bass drums, all under one leader, formed the brightest feature of the grandest review ever witnessed in this country.

On our way to Fredericksburg, in 1862, we had encamped for a day, and late in the afternoon our attention was attracted by the music of a band in a grove only half a mile away, who kept playing one lively air for so long a time that some of us proposed to go over and see what the fun was about. At this time Kilpatrick was lieutenant colonel of the Harris' light cavalry, afterward called the "Black Legion" or "Kilpatrick's thieves." When we reached the grove a very funny sight greeted us. The band was still playing, but nearly exhausted. Kilpatrick, elevated by standing on a barrel head, was shouting directions to about fifty darky men, women and children, old and young, who were dancing a breakdown in the true Virginia style, the sweat pouring off from their foreheads. The leader appealed to Kilpatrick in behalf of his wild-broke band, but in vain. "Kil!" shouted back. "Play till you wear the darkies out," then yelled to the darkies, "Keep it up, boys and girls, you will beat the band here."

Aye, there stood the man who was afterward celebrated in history, Gen. Kilpatrick, the raider, prompting the most amusing dance ever witnessed. No modern minstrel troupe has ever equaled it. His officers were just as busy as he was, and one of them passed around the hat, to which the spectators responded liberally. Just as the band blew a last and dismal blast Kilpatrick threw the contents of his hat among the contrabands. Such a scene; down on all four, scrambling, pushing, and screaming, until the last silver piece had been secured. Kilpatrick, standing from the barrel, and in his ever genial manner shook hands with us, saying: "Gentlemen of the Sixth, I am glad to see you. You will excuse this little party, for it is my office that we have such a man, and the same time give active employment to the contrabands."

The Iron brigade in crossing the Rappahannock River to participate in the battle of Fredericksburg were hit by a first-class band from the army and one of the regiments, the Twenty-fourth Maine, who were to receive their first baptism under fire, were marching in front of the old Sixth veterans, color flying, the band playing "Hail Columbia, Happy Land," when, amid the sun appeal, the fog lifted and the train guns of half a dozen rebel batteries opened their work of destruction. The band, which had landed in the middle of the band and scattered them right and left. Those who survived beat a hasty retreat to the sheltering bank of the river, and brave Col. Mowbray kept his gallant regiment "well in hand" shouting, "Steady, men, those Wilson men are watching you." I do not remember of ever seeing that band in any of the hard-fought battles their regiment afterward participated in.

Only a Coward Nor Nor-West.
[Orig. Ger. Couly, in National Tribune.]
We had in the Twenty-third Ohio (Hayes' regiment) a quaint old character—an entitled musician—whose name I would not mention for anything. Just before the battle of South Mountain he came to me and asked me to step aside with him a moment. I did so, and he said: "My God, Major, I can't play any more. I did not know it. I thought I could help the country, and though I was past 45, and used to be, I enlisted. Now I have found that I can't go the night. I can't make it. If you should kill me I shall be disgraced, and all the folks at home will know it. I can never hold my head up again if I try to go into this fight. Can't you do something for me? Give me something to do that ain't fighting and I'll do anything. Oh, for God's sake, major, think of something and save me from the disgrace!"

The poor fellow was half frantic in his earnestness. I thought a moment and said: "A—, do you think you could carry water for the men while they are fighting? It is going to be an awful hot day, and a canteen of fresh water will be about the greatest luxury the man could have. I would like you carry water for them?" "Oh, yes! Thank you, major." Well, now, in the thickest of that fight, where the regiment lost within a night, I can't make it that went into action, old A— would come to the front loaded down with canteens, delivering them, and taking up the empty cans along the line. Between bayonet charges he would be seen, lunging the ground like a long-log brother, under such a storm of minie ball as did not seem to leave any unoccupied space in the air. Old A— would prance down the line delivering canteens to the passing men without any more care of fear than the bravest man in the army, until his last canteen of water was gone, then he would give a wild yell and bolt for the rear as if the devil was "ter him."

The fence of the future, I last a life time will be trees and wire. The trees set at proper distances will serve for posts, for shade and for ornament.

THE DAILY Honolulu Press Will be for sale Daily at the Following Places: J. M. OAT, J. & Co., Merchant street...

TO-DAY'S ENGAGEMENT. Circus to-night at 8 P. M. Prayer meeting at the churches 7:30 P. M.

LOCAL NEWS. Skating as usual to-night. The Opera was well attended last evening.

Honolulu Rifle's caps were to be seen on the streets last night. Our Paul Neumann is a "brick," that's what they say in "Frisco."

Queen Kapiolani and suite left by yesterday's steamer for Waimanalo. No 6 maceration mill at the Honolulu Iron Works is well under way.

The programme was excellently rendered by the Band at the last performance. San Francisco boasts of a "glorious climate," but Honolulu can beat it "all hollow" when it comes to potato.

The regatta on the 16th of November will be a surprise to the public. The programme will be published soon. H. R. H. Liliuokalani and suite attended the circus last evening.

Last night the steamer Planter took two trash elevators and cane carriers, one each for the Hanamaulu and Lihue plantations. Mr. Tommie Krouse will take charge of the Saratoga House this morning.

The people of Waimea are circulating a petition to the Minister of the Interior to rebuild the bridge over the Waimea river, Kauai. The case of G. Cabralo vs. M. M. Taylor and L. A. Andrews came up in the Civil Court yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon while the prisoners were shoveling out the debt on Merchant street which they owe the Government, one Chinaman performed a surgical operation upon the nose of a fellow convict by striking him just below the eyes with a shovel.

Yesterday afternoon two little native boys gave a public exhibition on Fort street in front of Goo Kim's store. They were engaged in mauling each other in the true Sullivanian style.

A Chinese fruit vendor, who frequents this vicinity of Hotel and Alakea streets, was detected the other morning taking some articles from a clothes line, after he had made his usual per cent on vegetables.

From the frequency of runaways of carriage horses in town of late, it is a natural conclusion to assume that many, if not the bulk, of such animals at present in use in Honolulu are unfit to be allowed to be driven.

Mr. Thrower of the Farini opera troupe will be given a benefit next Friday night at Music Hall. The benefit has been tendered by several gentlemen and others, who appreciate good music and will doubtless be as well received by those who understand as the previous concerts given by foreign troupes have not been understood by the Honolulu public.

It is stated that a great many vehicles come to grief on account of the bad condition of the Manoa Valley road. As the residents of the valley pay their full share of taxes it seems that some of the money should be expended on this much used thoroughfare.

Mr. J. D. Arnold a member of the G. W. De Long Post and an artisan well-borner of this Kingdom, sent to his comrade R. J. Green a photograph of the portable works for well-boring, being an apparatus erected by the Queensland Government under the direction of Mr. Arnold.

Signor A. Farini sang by request "Infeliche" instead of "Der Wanderer" and was loudly applauded and recalled but bowed himself off owing to the delicacy of his throat which is still sore.

The opera. A large and appreciative audience assembled at Music Hall last evening to listen to the sweet strains of Signor Farini's Opera Company. The quartette by Regollette was sung in the best of style and was recalled. The aria from Maritana sung by Miss Amy was sweetly performed and loudly applauded.

Signor A. Farini sang by request "Infeliche" instead of "Der Wanderer" and was loudly applauded and recalled but bowed himself off owing to the delicacy of his throat which is still sore.

The adultery case of Captain Tripp is still remanded on account of the lawyers being engaged in the Supreme Court—the case will be doubtless continued until the public have interest in it.

It is stated that a number of petty thefts are being perpetrated in this town. May we be permitted to enquire where our police are—when they are not asleep you know the mos quitos are very bad.

Since 1879 each of the feet of one of our esteemed citizens has grown two sizes longer. He is now obliged to wear number 12. We know of no recent evidence so convincing as this that the climate of the Hawaiian Islands stimulates so much growth.

A horse attached to a buggy took fright at a passing wagon on Fort street yesterday afternoon. In the wagon were a lady and two small girls. Had it not been for the presence of mind of a native policeman, we might have been compelled to chronicle a sad catastrophe.

There was quite a merry time at the circus the other night when the fellow who wore the coats and played drunk was handed in by a policeman. The poor clown had a lonesome time of it all to himself, while another of the rig boys was sent to haul in the policeman and bring the 'orse man back.

The awning poles which flap at the ends of the canvass screens which fend the sunlight on Nuuanu and Hotel streets ought at least to be tied so as to hold them in position. Day before yesterday one of these swinging poles struck a wayfarer over the eye as he was passing along the street and sent him home with a beautiful Mansard roof over his eye.

The circus last night was a success, as usual, there was a large audience present but not so large as the night before. The new programme which was so well performed last night was not in any way an improvement upon the excellent performance of the night before, because the troupe makes it a point not to vary the programme so as to disappoint the public or raise full blown expectations for the future.

They say that a few people in Honolulu are trusted with the characters of others; that the end of the Hawaiian Government will either be bankruptcy or annexation; that the Attorney General is looking much better, politically, since his trip to the coast; that the best people in the world are not those who make the claim themselves; that the sun-burned faces of the boys on Monday mornings is a dead give-away on the Sunday shooting racket; that the ducks should be allowed to keep the Sabbath, if the boys do not; that the meretricious time of all the year is midnight; that the Hawaiian political circus must do both ground and lofty tumbling if they wish to fool the people; that the "most unkindest cut of all" was given the King by his own ministers; that the string of the Government's purse means better times in official circles; that the sermons preached by Pastor Cruzar are as good as those preached by Talmage; that the end of the opium string found in the harbor a short time ago would have led to marble halls if it had been followed up; that Deputy Marshall Dayton never takes boat rides for nothing; that the Government officials ought to get up a crew and enter the coming races against the Honolulu; that in this instance at least they would have a chance to win; that the most people can expect in the coming elections will be a chance to express their indignation; that the most fun of the gay boys consists in finding out whether they have had fun or not; and that the end of official promise is the breath that blows it out.

The quartette by Regollette was sung in the best of style and was recalled. The aria from Maritana sung by Miss Amy was sweetly performed and loudly applauded.

has yet been given, and it is very possible that if the troupe had the time before them they would be able to prove that either they have been slandered or the people of Honolulu have been mistaken as to their merits.

Z. K.—Yes, we presume Mr. Tripp will be retained in his position until the people mob him. The Best.—Yes, we suppose you are, but you will please let us know in the sweet after-a-while-as-it-were-so-to-speak.

Come In.—Yes, we think you had better not; if the hack drivers can't give you a red-headed answer then the police had not better try. Come One.—Yes, the King street Bridge is in a fearful condition. If you ever go out that way you will take a tumble.

ASTOR HOUSE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA!! A Sure Remedy. Properly Cooked Food. An Ounce of Prevention Better than a Pound of Cure. One great evil of this city is a certain finendishness displayed by restaurant keepers in the manner in which they slap victuals together and throw the same at their customers. Worse for far than a certain Nevada Eating House where a tramp was in the act of walking out without paying. The irate cashier violently seized a pie crust, took deadly aim, and brought down the unfortunate free luncher, badly cut about the head. The Grand Jury afterwards held the cashier to answer for assault with a deadly weapon. Take for instance a Honolulu Hash Factory doughnut when cooled off. A leaden bullet is no where in comparison; then again some of the HOT CAKES would prove unworkable for mending old shoes and will stretch further than any rubber band ever made. From all such, etc., deliver us. The above named instances of cooking depravity are much to be deplored. A recent change in the Proprietorship of the ASTOR HOUSE (at all times famous for good grub) enables the management to greatly facilitate the suppression of such villainous systems of careless cooking which tend in such a marked degree to destroy the Human Digestive organs. Upon all occasions it will be found a real luxury to step into our Dining Parlors (no flies) and there partake of a savory meal cooked by our Champion Chef. Every morning Boarders and Transient customers may order German Pancake, Tender Loin, Porterhouse, or Sirloin Steak, with or without onions, Prime Ham and fresh eggs Royal Breakfast Bacon, Fish every day, Rib Mutton Chop (none but the best of material used.) The midday bill of fare as published on the Bulletin Board is something that everybody should read and inwardly digest. For supper we supply in addition to the substantial goods, Sponge cake, Ice cream, Jellies, Fruit, and various other dainties. Some of our would-be competitors are surprised to know how we can sell 21 meal tickets for $4.50. And in our elegantly appointed private dining room only charge 35 cent for meal. The secret may easily be given away; the ASTOR HOUSE is centrally located and doing a large Transient cash trade. Meals at all hours produces a constant flow of ready money, thereby enabling us to go out to the market and buy at reduced rates for cash. Our patrons receive the full benefit of this superior system of dealing. All who have not yet experienced the luxury of eating at the Astor House can now come right in and be made welcome at the oldest established Dining Rooms in the Hawaiian Kingdom. 35-1 110.

TEMPERED GLASS.

RESULTS ATTAINED BY A PREDEN MANUFACTURER. The Toughening Process of De la Bastie and Its Failure—Mr. Frederick Siemens' Methods—Hardened Glass by Simple Processes.

When a piece of ordinary glassware is blown or cast in a mold the subsequent cooling process does not equally affect all its parts and surfaces, and its molecules are consequently thrown into a state of tension or strain. The brittle quality resulting from this condition has become a popular synonym for weakness and unrollability, and it has long been the most formidable obstacle to a proper development of the glass manufacturing industry.

In their search for this new material the glassmakers have not been entirely unsuccessful, although the result of their labors up to this time is shown only by a few fragmentary wares, which have hardly attracted public notice. The way to success is difficult, and new chemical compounds, independent of present manufacturing processes, may be required before the desired end is attained.

The toughening process of De la Bastie, which promised so much ten years ago, has dropped into abeyance, and nothing useful is anticipated from it in the future. It consisted simply in heating the glass and plunging it immediately into hot oil. The articles thus toughened were always liable to break spontaneously into fragments; but, generally speaking, unless broken very soon they would last a long time.

But this process presents many difficulties. It is not adapted to all forms of glass manufacture, and the percentage of loss by breakage is very large. The cause of the breakage is inherent in the operation itself, which consists in subjecting the glass to its surface instead of in proportion to their bulk, and thus induces a molecular strain likely at any time to cause complete rupture. This commercial objection, together with the difficult and uncertain character of the process, has prevented De la Bastie's method from producing a sensible impression upon the glass manufacturing process of the world.

But if De la Bastie has failed in attaining his object, he has at least pointed the way through which others are to reach the prize. Six years ago Frederick Siemens, then already established reputation as a practical scientist and man of affairs, began at his Dresden glass-works the production by original processes of a new kind of glass, which he prefers to call it, hardened glass. The value of his output for the first year was $3,000, and there has been a steady annual increase until last year it amounted to over $85,000.

Mr. Siemens describes his method at length in a paper which he recently read before the London Society of Arts. This includes three distinct processes—press-hardening, casting, and hard-tempering—and all three are based upon the principle of absolutely uniform heating and cooling. This means simply that at any given instant in the processes of heating and cooling every portion of the article shall be of the same temperature. The devices to secure this end are varied according to the various shapes to be treated. In practice it has been found somewhat difficult to attain the required theoretical perfection, but this is not a matter of so much importance, since technical skill will follow upon experience.

Mr. Siemens seems to have hit upon the right path, which, in the matter of producing tempered glass, is the principal consideration. His work for products: hardened glass already furnish flat or bent material in plate or sheet glass, decorated sheets of any desired design, enamelled glass of a very superior quality, bottles, lamp-chimneys and other hollow ware. A new department is now almost in readiness for the production of railway ties, mantels, architectural designs in various styles, floor-heating pipes, and other large castings. All the articles are from four to eight times as strong as ordinary glass. They are so hard that they cannot be cut with a diamond, nor will they split when slightly fractured. The Siemens hardened glass, in fact, appears to occupy the same relation to ordinary glass that steel now bears to iron.

The processes employed by Mr. Siemens are really simple, the difficulty lies in hearing their proper application. Flat or bent articles are press-hardened by being squeezed tightly, while in an almost molten condition, between two heavy plates of metal. The molting and cooling is done by a hardier and tougher the glass. Castings are made in molds which have the same conductivity as glass, and in every mold each exterior point is at the same distance from the surface of the mold. Hard-tempering is effected by inclosing the heated article in a casing of sheet-iron, equivalent at all points on its surface, and cooling both together. This latter process is applicable only to glass of thin and moderate thickness. The articles treated by it are three times as strong as ordinary glass, and have found much favor among buyers.

Press-hardened glass has been adopted for most of the great ironclads of the British navy, where the concussion of heavy gun-shots common glass, but produces no effect upon the improved article. The strongest lights of Dresden and Berlin are protected by hardened glass, and are proof against any but the heaviest missiles, the breaking being now but one-tenth what they formerly were. Mr. Siemens showed by experimental pieces of common sheet-glass broke when a cricket ball was dropped upon them from an average height of two feet, while a blow from a height of from five to five and one-half feet was required to break the tempered glass.

Growth of Cereals. (Arkansas Traveler.) From careful researches in Russia, Kowalewski has found that cereals grow faster in the north than in the south. For instance, oats and spring wheat take 135 days and barley 110 days to ripen about the southern province of Kherson, and only 92 and 98 days at Arkhangelsk in the north. The intermediate regions show intermediate differences. The cause is the greater length of the daily exposure to sunlight in the high latitudes, which more than compensates for the difference in temperature in favor of the southern regions. In each latitude the growth of cereals is more rapid in the eastern parts of Russia than in the western, the land near the coast having less sunshine than that in the continent's interior.
