OPIMUM.

The decision of the Supreme Court relative to the opium law of 1886, declaring that "the mere possession of opium is not an offence punishable by any law now in force," will naturally be followed by an increased amount of opium smoking, and a consequent increase of demoral-ization. Native Hawaiians and other nationalities will probably be more affected by the Court's finding than the Chinese; for the latter were supposed to possess the right, subject to certain conditions, to have and to use opium, while the former were debarred from its possession, and consequently its use. For this our law makers are to blame, and not our judges. The former make the laws, and the latter administer them. It was the plain duty of the judges to arrive at the decision which they gave. There was no other course open to them. The whole matter is so plain that the ordinary reader, without legal training or legal knowledge, cannot read the opium law of 1886 and come to any other conclusion. If the framers of the law had had either the sense or the learning to qualify them for the duties of the position to which they had been elected by wooden constituencies, they could not have made such a discreditable blunder.
Having been pitch-forked into that position, they would have accomplished less mischief if nature had been kind enough to have endowed them with just enough common sense to accept sound advice when it was offered them, and let alone what was beyond the reach of their comprehension. The opium habit is a curse wherever it is practised, and the tendency of advancement everywhere is to curtail it. Here in the Hawaiian Islands, we take a backward move, and adopt measures to foster and encourage it.
Years ago the country had experience of legalized opium, and men of observation then saw its injurious effect, and the same men saw the improved condition of things under subsequent prohibition. In spite of this experience, the last Legislature removed the tabu, and again opened the floodgates of degradation and destruction, and in the attempt to retain some restriction, made a shameful mess of the whole business. Gradually the country is beginning to feel and realize the evil which the press of Honolulu over and over again pointed out as the inevitable result of taro-patch legislation.

Another earthquake shock has been experienced in the Rivers.

A DIALOGUE AROUND THE DOCKS.

"Say, Ned, had you the luck to join in the mazy waltz that took place the other night at the Grand Duke's place?"
"Not I," says Ned, "I worn't that for two good solid reasons. The first is, I didn't get an invite, and the next is, I don't assimilate with the Horse Marines and the naval presence. The fact is, I don't go a cent on dancing a hornpipe these times, the thermometer at 90 degrees and the whole 'cabozium' tainted with so much red tape. I don't feel quite so skittish as I did thirty years ago, when I was a-whaling in the Okotseh Sea, and the thermometer about 20 degrees below zero. I leave all that kind of business to those naval ducks who took lessons in their early days from a French dancing master, instead of shinning up to the royal mast-head with a slush pot slung around their neck with a rope yarn."
"Well, I tell you what it is, Ned," said his more favored companion, "you missed a good thing. To see Grizley and his partner, with Sam Yon 'know Sam Goody-Goody, of course, and his brunette, trying to chase through a quadrille, was a sight that was good for sore eyes.
But that worn't all. The best of the fun was when our nautical swells essayed to take a turn round the room in the latest Parisian style to the tune of Strauss' 'Blue Danube.' (Berger was a giving it to them hot and strong, in order to see what they were made of). Well, the Admiral took so many turns in to himself, that he couldn't straighten up when he stopped." A Savant, (that's one of those fellows who attend those kind of things regularly, and pretend to know all about it), sitting next to me said, "Why, bless me, why does he not take a turn round the other way, and thereby counteract the effect of the rotary motion in which he has just been indulging?" Says I, "young man, you mustn't be surprised at anything these days. The Admiral, as they call him, may be a good looking fellow in his own estimation, but he don't know enough to get out of his own way. I saw him the other day trying to show one of those ere Cadet boys how to take the turns out of a new coil of rope, alongside the naval dugout, but the result was, he got the coil into such a confused entanglement, that he finally had to haul out his jack-knife and cut it up in short lengths. Just at this moment, Joe came along and asked him, what he was doing. Says the Admiral to Joe, with an air of indifference, knowing that the Paymaster knew nothing about nautical economy, says he,
"Why, don't you see I am cutting this rope up for reef-points for the main sky-sail."
"I see," says Joe, moving along with a know-all-about-it kind of a nod.
Ned chips in here something to to this effect: "You commenced to spin a yarn about the hop, and now you are sheering off on another tack altogether."
"Beg pardon," said Ned's companion, "do resume the original subject, let me tell you something about the supper that followed the jig. The whole ship's company had white kids on, and the youngsters, not thinking it worth while to take them off whilst eating, proceeded to dissect a tough old rooster that was planted between them. Not wishing to make any bones about it, one of them took a hold of one leg, and the other hold of a wing, and tore the bird to pieces in grand style, adding that fingers were made before knives and forks.
Feeling like taking a little pot to lubricate their throats, they inserted their gloved digits into the pot bowl, and felt happy. The visitors smiled, of course, and began to wonder what kind of society they were in. But enough about the ball and its surroundings, let's go back to the ship." By this time Ned and his chum had reached the Pacific Mail dock, when Ned's eagle eye caught sight of three large boats on the wharf, partly covered with an old sail. Says Ned, "Why, I am blest if here ain't three of somebody's racing crafts.
Surely it cannot be that they are going to break them up."
"Break them up?" chimed in his friend, "not they indeed. That would be extravagance in the extreme. The boats are going to be put into practical use. That 16-foot barge is for the special use of the Admiral when he makes an official landing at Apia. The other one alongside the barge, is to be handed over to Ned, the Ambassador, for his private use, and the smaller one is only to be used in cases of emergency."
"It's all very well," says Ned, "to have a barge, a cutter, and a 6-oared racing rig, but what's the vendor going to do without a boat to his name?"
"Why, Ned, I gave you credit for knowing a thing or two about how things are done nowadays, in order to carry out the strictest rules of economy in every department. Don't you see, you greenhorn, that the owner never won a race with any of those boats and wishing to get rid of them, he embraced the opportunity of selling them cheap, and with the proceeds thereof he can buy a new lot of boats of the latest improved model. Nothing like economy."
At this moment the conversation was interrupted by two or three old sails coming along, each one chipping in his ear, and venturing an opinion on the new rig of the old hooker.
Says one of them, casting his weather eye up aloft, "Jack, blow me tight if this isn't the queerest looking hooker that ever I seed; why just look at her rig. It's neither ship-shape nor Bristol fashion. She's neither bark-rigged, nor barkentine, but the darnedest specimen of a hermaphrodite Dutch galley-yacht.
She's probably what they call one of Parnell's Irish men-of-war." Ned being every inch a sailor, took the whole business in at a glance.
He twigged a criss-cross kind of an arrangement between the fore and main mast that reminded him of a see-saw puzzle. He ultimately solved the mystery by discovering that the main brace led forward, instead of aft; there being plenty of space about the main mast to lead them aft. This broke him all up, and turning on his heel, and stumbling over the sleeping-sentinel, he and his dancing critic were about to leave the scene, when the sun-down bugle sounded, a signal to haul down the flags. Ned caught sight of the admiral's pennant, or as it is commonly called "the whip." Says Ned, "by thunder that's a whip and no mistake. It has got enough bunting in it for half a dozen whips.

But I suppose it's all right. The nucleus of the navy must have some distinguishing feature about her, or she might be mistaken for a fishing boat. By the way, when they were hauling down the ensign, I caught sight of a pair of canvas pants suspended from the outer end of the sparker boom. This struck me as hardly being according to "Cocker," and would not be considered the O. K. thing aboard an American or a British man-of-war, still when I reflected for a moment, my views were somewhat modified, remembering that Miletote, in the postscript of his letter of advice, had asked for two or three pairs of pantaloons to be thrown in with the next official visit. Probably this was one of the pairs being dried before being stowed away."
Turning homeward, these two old barnacles made an appointment to be on the wharf the day she sails, and take in the whole situation.
"S'Long Ned," said his friend, "I must go and have a lomilomi. I've got a back-ache with taking in that little survey."
"By-by," says Ned, "I am just going to call on Tewks as I pass up the Esplanade and see what he has to say about all this tomfoolery."

PRECIOUS LACE.

Pope Leo's famous collection of laces has received an important addition. Some wealthy Catholics at Venice have presented to him a set of lace which they have caused to be executed at the lace schools of Burano. The design is copied from the from the famous Rezzonico set which was made for Clement XIII by the Venetian nuns, and which now forms part of the treasure of the house of Savoy, and is occasionally worn by Queen Margaret. The schools of Burano have three times re-produced the pattern of this historic lace, one copy being in the Kensington Museum, one in the possession of the Duchess of Hamilton and the third in that of the wife of W. W. Astor, late American Minister at Rome.
The copy destined for Leo XIII cost $240 a yard.

A BIG FUSS FOR NOTHING.

A large number of people gathered in front of Hamilton Johnson's store this noon. Those on the outer circle of the crowd pushed hard to get into the building. The number of people was continually increasing, and while the excitement was in its height a thrilling cry was heard from within. The pressure of the crowd then became greater and greater, until the maddened mass of humanity, like a huge wave, burst through the door-way, and on getting in the store discovered a pig being taken from a box by a Portuguese, under the careful direction of Mr. Congdon.

THE HAWAIIAN JOCKEY CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Hawaiian Jockey Club was held at the Hawaiian Hotel last evening. A new set of racing rules and regulations was adopted. The committee appointed to prepare a programme for the June races presented a draft which was read to the meeting. Two new members were elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, His Majesty; Vice-President, Frank S. Pratt, Esq.; Secretary, C. O. Berger, Esq.; Treasurer, J. G. Spencer, Esq.; Executive Committee, Colonels Z. S. Spalding and Chas. H. Judd and Captain John H. Brown.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT IN BANCO.

Yesterday afternoon the Supreme Court rendered its decision in the case of the The King versus Young Tang. The defendant had been found guilty in the Police Court of Honolulu of "having opium unlawfully in his possession." An appeal was taken to the Supreme Court on points of law, and Mr. J. T. Dare, his attorney, moved for the defendant's discharge on the grounds—first, that the Crown has not proven its charge of unlawful possession of opium; second, that the possession of opium under the law of 1886 is not a crime; and, third, that the Act of 1886 is unconstitutional and therefore void and of no effect. The Court, for reasons specified, overrules the first point. The second point is sustained, and the Court, "with much regret," says "that the mere possession of opium is not an offence punishable by any law now in force." With regard to the third point, after enlarging somewhat upon "the duty of the Court where questions involving the constitutionality of a law are presented," the Court adopts "the principle which prevails in other Courts, that the Court will not pass upon a constitutional question and declare a statute to be invalid, unless a decision upon that very point becomes necessary to the determination of the cause." And as it is found "that the defendant in this case cannot be punished by any law now in force for the offence of which he is charged," "the question whether this law is in conflict with the Constitution becomes immaterial," and is not therefore passed upon. The judgment of the lower Court was reversed, and the defendant discharged.

ROADS AND LAKES.

The state of the roads to-day present a strong contrast to their condition during the past few weeks. Not that there has been any improvement, beyond what nature has effected, as the authorities have done nothing as usual, but the change consists of the blinding and stifling dust being laid for a while, and mud and pools of water having taken its place. There seems to be no happy medium between the two buggers, dust and mud, and of the latter we have now a surfeit. Were it only mud that we had to contend against, it might be considered supererogatory to growl, but we are surrounded on all sides by pools of water, and without wading ankle-deep, eye, even knee-deep in some places it is impossible to walk the streets. Take Alakea street for instance. The water comes down with a rush from Punchbowl, but finding no outlet when it reaches Queen street, it rests there and forms a lake extending from King to Queen. The drain made two or three years ago, is blocked up, and consequently useless. Dozens of other places in a similar condition might be pointed out, but it is unnecessary. Such a state of things is a standing disgrace to those who have charge of the grading and drainage of our streets.

POLICE COURT.

A DRUNKARD'S WARNING.

TUESDAY, April 26th.

The criminal business in the Police Court this morning, consisted of two drunks only, one a white man, and the other an elderly native. The former is known as a violent and four-mouthed person when under the influence of liquor, and on this particular trait in his character, His Honor delivered a severe reprimand to the victim, interspersing it with words of good advice. In conclusion, he said that on this occasion he would inflict a fine of $5 only, but in case the accused appeared before him again on a similar charge, he would feel it his duty to put him under bonds—to not use any such language as he was alleged to have done yesterday.

THE INVENTOR OF THE BRENNAN TORPEDO.

A cablegram from London states that £30,000 had been proposed as part of a vote of £110,000, to be given to Captain Brennan for his torpedo rights. The story of the invention is remarkable, and quite as authentic as that of Watt and the tea-kettle. Mr. Brennan, who is just thirty years of age, when a mere youth, was in a Melbourne engine-fitting shop. Sitting at home one evening, he amused himself with pulling at the cotton on a reel of thread on the table, and was struck by noticing that the more he pulled the further the reel rolled away. At that time torpedoes were the rage, owing to the execution they had done during the Russo-Turkish war. The Whitehead torpedo was then the principal arm of the kind, and the only fault found with it was that it would move in but one direction, so that the prey was able, if warned in time, to escape by changing its course. The case was that of the wild beast, which, failing in its first attack, tried no more. Experiments were being made to get more command over it. The young Melbourneite, like other men in the engineering way, had thought of this, and what a reward would meet the successful inventor, and the motion of the reel gave him a clue which he patiently worked upon. Mr. Brennan found a scientific supporter in Professor Kernot, of Melbourne University, and financial backers in Mr. Calvert, a Melbourne printer, and his brother, Mr. Samuel Calvert, the well-known Little Collins-street engraver. The two brothers found the money to make working models. After a good deal of pressure, Sir G. Berry, then at the head of the Victorian Ministry, was persuaded to find Government money for trial, which proved so satisfactory that the Cabinet recommended it to the Imperial War Office. The friends of the clever young inventor had to dance attendance on the little great men to obtain a show for the Australian inventor. The invention was then taken up by Mr. Millar, the railway contractor, who found the necessary funds for Mr. Brennan to go to England, to endeavour to get the British War Office to adopt the torpedo. Mr. Brennan must have had a big fight with the do-nothings of Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., for years have elapsed since the Victorian youth went home, and yet the torpedo was only adopted a few days since. However, perseverance has been rewarded.

THE PAPAL REVENUE.

A foreign diplomatist accredited to Rome gives the following account of the present Pope's income and what he does with it. The Pontifical revenue is derived from three separate sources. The first is the interest of an enormous sum left by Pope Pius IX to the Papal Treasury, which interest produces some $600,000. The capital of this is invested in English Government funds. Contrary to what some persons might imagine, Leo XIII is a great speculator, and subscribes to all the Italian loans. When the latter sells out and invests the profits in English consols. To the revenue left by Pius IX must be added a sum almost equal in amount furnished by the Peter's Pence fund, which, however, has fallen off of late years. This constitutes the ordinary budget of the Holy See as distinguished from the extraordinary budget. The latter is derived from a third source, and is supplied by the receipts of the Apostolic Chancery. The collation of titles of nobility, decorations, blessings in artibus mortis, altar privileges, private chapels, ecclesiastical titles—such are a few of the items which go to make up the extraordinary budget. It amounts to an average of $500,000 per annum, and serves to make up the private purse of the Sovereign Pontiff, and on which he relies to exercise his generosity. It will be observed that the private budget of the Pope is thus derived, in a great measure, from the satisfaction of human vanity. The ordinary budget of the Holy See, which, as stated above, amounts to $1,200,000 per annum, is distributed by the major domo of the Vatican among the Cardinals residing in Rome—about $5,000 a year each—the prelates of the Papal court, the secretaries, the nuncios, the Pontifical body-guards, etc.

It is denied that Leo XIII is avaricious. On the contrary, no Pope ever gave more, his Holiness keeping nothing for himself. As for his table, it resembles that of a poor country curate. His clothes cost him nothing, being supplied by the faithful from all parts of the world, and he scarcely keeps a penny to enrich even his own family. The dowry he gave to his favorite nephew, the handsome Camille Pecci, did not reach $20,000, while as for the presents he gave the bride, they were of the poorest kind. On the other hand, he spends a great deal in raising the prestige of his court, in creating schools, relieving the poor and maintaining the Catholic press. He gives large subsidies to papers which support his policy, but they must be entirely subservient to him.

As yet he has not touched a penny of the annual allowance of $600,000 accorded to the Vatican under the law of Papal Guarantees, passed when Victor Emanuel took possession of Rome. The annual income has gone on accumulating throughout all these seventeen years, and now reaches an enormous sum. The Italian bishops and clergy are paid by the Italian government since the death of Pius IX.—[N. Y. Mail and Express.

BISMARCK POWERFUL, BUT UNHAPPY.

The Chancellor's irritability makes him a hard man to get along with, especially for his subordinates. M. Busch relates that he, one evening in 1877, heard Bismarck complain very bitterly of his lot in life. His career, he said, had given very little satisfaction to himself personally and won him very few friends; he had not added to the happiness of himself, of his family, or of any one. One of those who heard him say this suggested that he had made a great nation happy. "Yes," he replied, "but how many other nations have I rendered unhappy? But for me three great wars would never have taken place; 80,000 men would not have been killed in battle; fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and wives would not have been plunged into misery. I have settled all that with my conscience and with my Creator, but I have reaped very little, if any, happiness from all that I have done; the only thing it has yielded me are various anxieties and griefs."

Late Foreign News.

The Lady Lamson arrived from San Francisco yesterday afternoon, bringing two or three papers of two days later date, which reached the 'Advertiser.' Following are among the most interesting items:— The drought continues in Texas. Great and widespread misery and ruin prevail. Earthquakes are frequent in Vermont.

James G. Blaine, who has been ill of bronchitis and pneumonia at Fort Gibson, is improving, according to a St. Louis dispatch.

The Socialist meeting in Hyde Park on the 9th terminated in a collision with the police. Nine Socialists were arrested, including leader Williams.

The London 'Daily News' believes that Balfour and Lord Dunraven are drafting a scheme for local self-government for Ireland. It is proposed to submit it to the Parliament at the next session.

The Governor of Maruf in Kilat, in the Ghilsei district, Afghanistan, was killed by a Ghilsei while going to the assistance of the Candahar troops engaged in suppressing the Ghilsei rebellion. It is reported the Governor's force was massacred.

Unfounded reports are current at Peshawar to the effect that the Ameer of Afghanistan is dead and that Kela has fallen, and that Cabul and Candahar are in danger. The bridge over the Willamette river, connecting East and West Portland, has been finished. The Ecclesiastic bill is likely to cause trouble, according to a Berlin dispatch of the 9th, but Bismarck is disposed to make great concessions to conciliate the party of the Center.

Vienna, April 10th.—A correspondent of the 'Post' says a report is current to the effect that another attempt to murder the Czar was made on the Marsok road, in St. Petersburg, last Wednesday. A student and a woman were arrested who were carrying bombs under their plaids.

London, April 10th.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to the 'Daily News' says: The most alarming reports respecting the Czar have been in circulation here. One rumor was to the effect that a mine had been discovered under the Imperial Palace at Gatchina, but it is learned on the best authority that this report is untrue. It was also said that no arrests were made at Gatchina, as was reported. On Wednesday, when the Czar was driving to Gatchina Station, a man and a woman were seized at the corner of Nevski Prospect and the Great Morskai, ten minutes before the Czar's carriage passed. Another person tried to present a petition as the Czar passed, but was arrested before he could reach the carriage. It has not yet been ascertained positively whether or not the persons arrested had any criminal intentions. The Czar was in perfect health and in excellent spirits.

Vienna and Berlin telegrams confirm the foregoing, and state that the culprits stood upon the steps of an uninhabited house and carried bombs under their plaids. It is supposed that the petitioner was an accomplice of the other two, and did not know that the latter had been arrested. The Czar knew nothing of the arrests. He sat beside the Zarina, and kept bowing to the populace. They were returning to Gatchina from the Winter Palace, where they had been receiving the Japanese Prince.

The 'Times' St. Petersburg correspondent confirms the statement that a number of arrests were made there on Wednesday, on the occasion of the visit of the Czar, but says he is unable to confirm the report that a fresh attempt had been made on the Czar's life.

WHO IS MOTHER SEIGEL?

She is a lady who, by the merest accident, has made a most valuable discovery, and she is selling the world-wide remedy in all over the country, and everybody is talking about her and asking and she tells them to read the thousands of letters, something like the following from Mr. Perkins:

WHAT IS MOTHER SEIGEL'S REPUTATION?

A WONDERFUL TESTIMONIAL.
"Give P. L. and Y. Ealing, W., Jan. 2, 1885.

"Your medicine must be the most wonderful for curing my experience of more than twenty years. I never knew any proprietary or patent medicine in such universal favor and demand. It is simply extraordinary, and if I were to send you an account of every statement made to me in its favor, you would have to publish a separate book to contain my testimonials alone.

(Signed) "THOMAS J. PERKINS"
And then people ask—

WHAT DOES MOTHER SEIGEL DO?

GIVES RELIEF TO ANCE.
"39, Bloomfield-road, Plumstead,
Jan. 2, 1885.

"I find the sale of your medicine increases every year, and everyone speaks well of them that tries them. I know a lady that attended the Female Hospital in Soho-square for some months, with pains in back and side and bilious, and could take no food, but got no benefit from any of the medicines they gave her. Before she had taken all the contents of one bottle of your Syrup she felt relief and is now quite well.

(Signed) "W. K. BAKER."
THE EFFECT WAS MARVELOUS.

"Medical Hall, Bangor, Jan. 5, 1885.
"I have been constantly speaking very highly of Seigel's Syrup. There is a case of a young married lady in Anglesey who had been suffering from stomach asthma for a long period, who had consulted some of the best physicians of the day, but without deriving any benefit. She was daily getting worse, but at last a friend persuaded her to try Seigel's Syrup. She procured a bottle, and the effect was marvelous; she rapidly improved, and now she is as strong and healthy as ever she has been.

(Signed) "H. LLOYD-JONES."
WHAT IS MOTHER SEIGEL GOOD FOR?

DOES NOT RESTORE THE DEAD, BUT SAVES THE LIVING.

Mr. J. W. SAYALL, of Dunmow, Essex, writes—September 8-4:—"I introduced your medicines into Dunmow almost as soon as they were brought out in London. I sold in the first eighteen months' worth. I have known many grand cases of permanent cures; and, as yet, no case of failure. Nothing stands in my way, Mother Seigel's Syrup holds its own ground. I believe it a good medicine—it will not restore the dead to life, but it appears to save the living from dying."

A CASE OF GRAVEL CURED.

"Fetham, Jan. 6, 1885.
"It has always given me pleasure to recommend your medicines to my customers, and the results of their use have invariably been most satisfactory. I could furnish you many testimonials. One case just now occurs to my mind. A constable of the police force of T. of London, S. W., where I for many years had a shop, was a patient of mine, suffering from a bad attack of gravel. He was persuaded to try Mother Seigel's Syrup. He purchased a bottle at my shop, and by the time he had taken half of it he reported himself to me as quite cured. The effect was simply miraculous.

(Signed) "J. D. FLORENCE." IS MOTHER SEIGEL RELIABLE?

World respectable chemists write like the following if not?

A SURGICAL OPERATION AVERTED.

"Fitchburg, Dec. 1884.
"Mr. EDWARD CORNELL, Chemist, writes: "Your medicine maintains a steady sale in this district, and is well established in general favor. I know an old man, over seventy, who some three or four years ago was advised to submit to the operation for stone. He certainly was suffering from one distressing symptom, and could scarcely walk. Instead of taking that advice he tried Seigel's Syrup, with the result that after one bottle, he could walk about fairly well, and, having taken three or four 25-cent bottles, he was completely cured. He is still about hale and hearty for his years. If any of the symptoms of the old trouble come on, he takes a few doses of the Syrup, and all is well again."

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT MOTHER SEIGEL.

AN EXPERIENCE OF FORTY YEARS.

"Coham, Hunts, Jan. 2, 1885.
"My customers, over a wide country district, are not very demonstrative, and I have no written testimonials to send; but verbal admiration of your medicine is in the ascendant, and my experience of forty years assures me that no preparation has so rapidly acquired a popularity, and so firmly maintained its reputation as Mother Seigel's Syrup.

(Signed) "THOMAS H. BAKER."

TUESDAY, APRIL 26, 1887.

REVOLT IN BULGARIA.

A Reuter's telegram from Rusechuk states that twelve non-commissioned officers of the Sapper Corps who were convicted of participation in the recent revolt were on March 12 degraded. Several associations founded with the object of promoting and sustaining the independence of Bulgaria have issued proclamations condemning the rebels as traitors to their country, and calling upon the people to follow the example of the citizens of Rusechuk in the event of any fresh disorders.

The Prefect of Rusechuk has caused to be placarded about the town a notice declaring the reports of foreign subjects being in danger of massacre are the false inventions of malevolent persons. The sum of 240 napoleons was found on the body of Capt. Krestoff, the leader of the revolt at Silistria. A few days before the rising he had deposited in the bank $1000 (Turkish), which he withdrew immediately after the outbreak. He was known to be a poor man. Lieutenant Filoff, who was one of the principal leaders of the rising at Rusechuk, has died of his wounds.

The Sofia correspondent of the Times telegraphs that MM. Karaveloff, Tzanov, and Nikiforoff have been released on bail, the first named under sureties of 15,000fr., and the other two of 10,000fr. each. Mr. Karaveloff's complicity in the late insurrections is no longer doubtful, and these events have thrown a strong light on his conduct and that of M. Nikiforoff in the plot against Prince Alexander. M. Karaveloff has shown himself to be a deep and crafty traitor, and he inspires even more repulsion than M. Zankoff, for he pretended to be very good friends with some members of the Government. Among the letters of Banderoff which have been seized is one which states explicitly that the Russian Government was promoting the projected revolution, and it designates the dragoman of the Russian Consulate at Widdin as the confidential agent with whom the conspirators were to communicate.

A Bucharest telegram states that there have been some heartrending scenes at the Russian Legation. The widows of rebels killed or executed at Rusechuk have come to implore M. Hitrovo to give them money. Many had crying children with them. These wretched people are quite destitute, and they excite everybody's compassion.

The Russian Captain Bollmann, who is at Bucharest, is fast recovering from his wound. A bullet passed through the flesh of his left shoulder, and killed a man behind him. Some further arrests are reported from Rusechuk. Public opinion in the town continues much excited against the Russians, and it has now become quite clear that all that can come to the Regency will be from the army.

Intelligence received at Vienna from Odessa states that Captain Banderoff, Majors Grueff and Ivanhoff, and the widow of Major Kardschuk, who was executed at Rusechuk, have arrived there, and met with a sympathetic reception from the local Slav Society.

It is stated in well-informed circles in Vienna that no Note has been addressed by the Russian Government to the Powers protesting against the recent executions at Rusechuk, and that Russia has taken no further diplomatic steps since the despatch of instructions to her representatives abroad to ask the European Cabinets to exercise a moderating influence at Sofia.

An authentic account of the recent revolts in Bulgaria is sent from Sofia to the Political Correspondence. The Bulgarian Government knew of the intended movement several months before it took place, and of all the proceedings of the Revolutionary Committee in Bucharest. The Committee sent circulars to all the officers of the Bulgarian garrisons, urging them to revolt. Banderoff signed all these letters, which promised rapid advancement to those who helped, and threatened with death all who remained loyal to the Regency. Most of the letters contained several hundred roubles, and some of the officers were invited to join the Revolutionary Committee at Bucharest, where they could live at the Committee's expense until the plot was carried out. Most of the letters were sent by those who received them to the War Minister, who paid them into the public treasury. Some of the letters were shortly published. They are said to show that the Russian Minister at Bucharest paid all the expense of the revolt, and gave passports and letters of recommendation to Odessa officers. Private persons kept the Regency so well informed of all this that it knew of the Silistrian commander's secret meetings with Banderoff, it knew of Ozounoff's correspondence with the Committee at Bucharest, and even had one of his letters. A telegraph official having sent to Sofia news of the revolt in Silistria on the 28th ult., the Government gave orders to the commanders of Varna, Schuula, Rasgrad, and Rusechuk to march there. They reached Silistria on March 2. The rebel commander was warned of their approach, and bidding his soldiers adieu, prepared to take flight to the Romania frontier close by. His soldiers, however, finding themselves deserted, fired at him and killed him. The details of the revolt in Rusechuk confirm the reports published from the first.

Contrary to all expectations, says the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News, the recent executions in Bulgaria seem to have improved the political situation in the Balkans. No doubt the Russian Government feels that the Regents are more resolved than ever not to accede to its demands. Russian prestige has already suffered so much in the Balkans during the last year, that one false step more might compromise it for ever. The semi-official article in the Journal de St. Petersburg respecting the executions, which concluded with the threatening words, "Patience has its limit, and these limits have been passed," was greeted with much enthusiasm, and every one expected that the Government would immediately take decisive measures.

Now it has become evident that the article was simply an indication of annoyance and an admission of incapacity to undo what had been already done. The Russian Jingoism are exasperated, and reproach the Government for its weakness and cowardice. Reports were circulated that the Pan-Slavists intended to organize an anti-Governmental demonstration—a dangerous game under autocratic rule. It now seems that the demonstration is to take the apparently innocent, but yet significant form, of a collection for the relatives of the executed "martyrs," as the traitorous Bulgarian officers are called here. It was in the same way that in 1876 the agitation commenced which in the following year led to the last Eastern war.
