MANIFEST DESTINY

Whatever delay there may be in getting annexation, it is plain that restoration in Hawaii is quite as dead as it is in Brazil and Mexico. Don Pedro's dynasty is now discredited, Maximilian's no more extinct than the dynasty of Lillookalani on these islands.

Restoration is manifestly a dead issue and those who seek, after this, to make it a living one will merely galvanize a corpse. If there were any statesmen in the Royalist party they would, ere this, have begun to lead their native adherents out of the graveyard to the high and sunlit ground where there is room and way for the Hawaiian race to adapt itself to the new order of things.

ANNEXATION CLUB MEMBER-SHIP.

In his San Francisco interview Claus Spreckels said that the Annexation Club only numbers 150 men. This is a story which Nordhoff had previously told, but Mr. Spreckels gives as his authority the name of a youth who had been discharged "by request" from the Provisional forces and from his business position in an Annexationist counting room.

It would be a work of supererogation to tell Hawaiians how reckless and mendacious is this tale of depleted annexation membership; but for the benefit of American readers of the STAR we merely wish to say that the story came about in the fact that between 150 and 200 young men belonging to the Club got together one rainy night, at a few hour's notice, to serenade the departing United States Minister, Mr. Stevens. No one was present from the other Islands; no one came in from districts outside of Honolulu; the great majority of the party in this city preferred to stay within doors, avoiding the mud and downpour.

The Victoria disaster frightened the men on board the Monterey, and 56 of them deserted at Portland, alleging that the vessel was not safe. The United States cruiser Charleston, now at Norfolk Navy Yard, will leave for the Pacific on the 15th.

BY AUTHORITY.

REGULATION OF THE BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE AND FORESTRY.

It is the purpose of the Board of Agriculture and Forestry to regulate the importation of live stock and other animals from the Islands of Oahu to the other Islands, the Bureau of Agriculture and Forestry hereby publishes the following Regulations.

Sec. 1. From and after the 1st day of August, 1893, it shall be unlawful for any vessel, to receive on board and carry from Honolulu to any other port or landing on the Island of Oahu, any live stock or animal of any kind, except as herein provided.

Sec. 2. All live stock and animals brought to Oahu from any foreign country, and intended to be transported to any of the other Islands, may be received by sea, through vessels provided such animals or birds have been inspected and passed in accordance with an Act entitled "An Act Relating to the Suppression of Plant Diseases, Blight and Insect Pests," approved July 10th, 1892, and a certificate to that effect obtained.

Sec. 3. Any person violating any of the provisions of this Regulation will be liable to a fine of not to exceed One Hundred Dollars as provided by Section 4 of said Act.

Water Notice. Owing to the drought and scarcity of water, the residents above Judd Street are requested to collect their water before 8 o'clock A.M.

SALE OF LEASE OF CROWN LAND IN NORTH KONA, ISLAND OF HAWAII. By order of the Commissioner of Crown Lands, Mr. James E. Morgan will sell at public auction, at his salesrooms, on THURSDAY, August 10th next, at 12 o'clock noon, the lease of that tract of land situate at North Kona, Island of Hawaii, known as the Ahupuaa of Pauwakaawa and containing 40,000 acres, more or less.

THE shrewdness of the Carnot Government in diverting the minds of the French people to foreign affairs is proved by the fact that all disturbances in Paris have ceased. It was a device of the first and second Empires to turn the fury of the French mob into vigorous patriotism by a martial policy abroad, and the plan often worked to advantage.

JUST AS ROWDIES

Blows Exchanged in the English Commons.

LONDON, July 27.—There was a regular riot in the House of Commons to-night, the scenes there enacted being unprecedented in parliamentary history.

Ten o'clock this evening was the hour set for the closure of the debate of the committee on the home-rule bill.

The early part of the evening was tame enough, the time being occupied by obscure members. At 9:45 Joseph Chamberlain arose to deliver the final broadside of the opposition.

Chamberlain got no further, for with his half-finished reference to Herod there came from the Nationalists such a roar of indignation as has not been heard in the Commons since the time of Parnell.

Then everybody started for the front bench. The Unionists shouted "Gag." Others struggled in the aisles or between the benches with Radical, Liberal or Irish antagonists.

Somebody smashed Tim Healey's high hat over his eyes, and as soon as Tim got it off he jumped into the aisle in fighting posture just as Hanbury was trying to get past.

Colonel Sanderson emerged first from the crowd of fighters, holding a bunch of keys to his black eye.

Chairman Mellor sent for Speaker Peel, and when that gentleman arrived several Conservatives pointed to Gladstone and exclaimed, "There sits the author of it all."

Absolute quietness was restored as Speaker Peel, stern and dignified, took the chair. Gibbs made a complaint about Chamberlain being called "Judas" by O'Connor.

Gladstone said that he regretted that neither his eyes nor his ears enabled him to give a very clear account of the affair.

Speaker Peel decided that the expression alleged to have been used was the original cause of the disorder.

O'Connor then apologized to the Speaker if any words he had used had contributed to bring about "this most regrettable state of affairs."

The speaker said the apology was simple, and hoped the House would not be provoked to business by a matter to do justice to its traditions. This was received with cheer, but as soon as they had subsided the speaker Anderson arose and recanted exactly how Eugene Casey, an anti-Farmerite, had hit him in the eye. Two Harbinger shouted that he saw Sanderson hit several members before Casey struck him.

The speaker began again and another riot was threatened, but the speaker succeeded in subduing it. Then Mr. McJannet took the chair and the various remaining clauses of the home rule bill were read. When the committee rose and chairman Mellor reported to Speaker Peck the home rule bill as amended in the committee there was a grand outburst of cheering and hats were waved for Gladstone.

Leaves, July 31.—In the Commons to-night Hunter (Liberal) asked if the assault committed on Thursday evening were to be allowed to pass without punishment being inflicted upon the offenders and also what action would be taken if he moved for a committee of investigation. Gladstone said he would answer to-morrow.

Fisher (Conservative), who started the fight, arose and expressed deep regret at the part he took. He thought that Logan had intended to assault him or Carson. Logan emphatically denied his intention to commit an assault, and deeply regretted being concerned in the affair.

Gladstone said the explanation was satisfactory and he hoped the matter would be allowed to drop.

Balfour and McCarthy also expressed satisfaction, but McCarthy protested against the idea that the row was due to the Irishmen.

TRUTH ABOUT HAWAII.

The testimony of Mr. William Brewster Oleson, as printed in the Boston newspapers, regarding the condition existing in Hawaii, is given with an evident fairness that should command the attention of the American people. Mr. Oleson, who is on a visit to Boston, is a prominent resident of Honolulu, and principal of the Kamehameha Manual Training School. His sympathies and his professional associations are with the intelligent natives, and there can be no doubt that he represents their sentiments honestly and correctly. Mr. Oleson disposes briefly of false reports in relation to the Provisional Government of Hawaii. That Government, he declares, is in a stable financial condition, and all the departments are moving along with great efficiency. "But," he adds, "there is one element which creates uncertainty in business and in other matters. Any assurance of a stable Government there for the future, under the direction of the United States, would be received by nine-tenths of the people with the utmost satisfaction."

Mr. Oleson shows why the civilized Hawaiians, as well as foreign residents, found the native monarchy insupportable. The record of the monarchy, since Kalakaua came upon the throne in 1875, has been one of corruption and antagonism to a regular and legitimate administration of affairs. Kalakaua became so despotic that the people rose en masse and demanded a Constitution. It was hoped that the Constitution then secured would preserve the independence of the Hawaiian Government, and yet afford to the property and industrial interests of the country the stability and support that were necessary. But although the people secured a new Constitution they did not get a new Kalakaua, and the King continued to the end of his reign to intrigue and conspire to avoid his obligations under that Constitution, and to interfere with the functions of the Legislature. After his death and the accession of Liliuokalani the same course was pursued by her, culminating in her effort to carry things back to where they were before Kalakaua had granted the new Constitution of 1887. Then came her deposition and the establishment of the Provisional Government, which proposed the annexation of Hawaii to the United States.

The Press was the first newspaper to indicate editorially the danger that, if the United States failed to accept the splendid opportunity, Japan might annex the Islands. This suggestion is attacked by Cleveland organs and inspired dispatches from Washington, but it is apparent that Hawaiian opinion on this phase of the annexation question is in accord with the views of the Press. Mr. Oleson says that "if the United States were out of the way, the Hawaiian Islands would fall a prey to Japan much more easily than to England. Japan is an ambitious power in the Pacific and would not hesitate, if the opportunity offered, to get into entangling complications there with the United States if thereby it could see its way to getting possession of the Hawaiian Islands."

It is manifest that the highest motives of policy and self interest, as well as of honorable obligation to the people of Hawaii, demand that the plan of annexation should be carried out and the present condition of affairs, so unjust to the Hawaiians and damaging to the prestige of the United States, brought to a termination.—New York Press.

Aim at the Drake

And you are bound to hit some of the ducks. This is precisely the same with Wampole's Tasteless Preparation OF Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption, Hits the Mark, too, and it most effectually breaks up Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects, actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchial troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod Liver Oil, but not every one is able to take it.

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION removes the nauseous objection and actually makes Cod Liver Oil palatable.

AN EARLY BURGLARY.

E. R. HENDRY LOSES A WATCH AND CHAIN.

And the Burglar Loses His Umbrella, Shoes and Hat and Probably His Liberty.

About 2 P. M. this morning E. R. Hendry, who resides at the corner of Kinau and Pensacola streets, happened to be restless, and in turning over to fix his pillows in a more comfortable position, saw in the dim light someone standing at the half-open door of the room. At first he thought it was his wife and called to her, but as the intruder vanished he was satisfied that it was a burglar, and jumping out of the bed, made after him, calling to his wife, who was sleeping in an adjoining room, that there was a burglar in the house. The latter had escaped, however, before Mr. Hendry could reach him, evidently through a French window leading into one of the parlors, and which stood opposite the bedroom door. Mr. Hendry usually has a pistol in his room, but last night it happened to be in his wife's room. Procuring this weapon and a light Mr. Hendry searched the front veranda for traces of his early and unwelcome visitor. On the steps leading from the veranda to the ground he found a pair of shoes, an umbrella and a hat which the burglar had deposited before entering the house through the French window on the veranda. On the left-hand railing of the steps Mr. Hendry met with something more familiar to him in the shape of his own coat and vest. The burglar had searched those and taken the contents of the pockets, consisting of letters, memoranda and a gold watch and chain. Thinking the burglar might still be around the house and waiting for a chance to get his shoes, Mr. Hendry emptied his revolver at some trees and shrubs about which the burglar might be lurking.

Reloading his weapon Mr. Hendry then went to the telephone at the rear of the house and tried to notify the police but could get no answer for some minutes. While there he heard his wife scream, and on running to where she was found that the burglar had come around the side of the house, evidently looking for his shoes, which had been carried into the house. Mr. Hendry then took a few more shots at the place where the burglar ought to be, and made a second attempt to notify the police by telephone, which was finally successful. The burglar's shoes are of a peculiar make and shape and have been identified by several parties this morning, and the police are now looking for the owner. Mr. Hendry has no doubt that when he first saw the burglar he was making a second visit to the room, probably for the contents of his pants' pockets.

STEAMERS GALORE.

The Gaelic, Oceanic and Australia In-Scenes at the Dock.

Yesterday was a red letter day in the history of Honolulu shipping. For one thing it marked the arrival of three large ocean going vessels, and there was an unusual amount of activity along the entire water front besides. During the morning a number of local steamers departed on their respective routes with heavy cargoes and large passenger lists. The Gaelic and Oceanic arrived from Orient and Occident, and the Australia came in prematurely. The arrival of the latter boat from San Francisco shortly after the noon hour, nearly a day ahead of time, furnished an interesting theme for discussion, and many conjectures were indulged in as to the cause of her extraordinary fast time. Some knowing individual started the rumor that a new United States Minister was aboard, and that the vessel was ordered to reach here before the departure of Minister Blount by the Gaelic. The Australia left San Francisco one day later than the Oceanic, and an attempt was made to overtake the latter before she arrived at this port. This was the sole reason why the Australia docked many hours before her schedule time.

In the afternoon an immense throng of people gathered at the Pacific Mail dock to witness the departure of the Gaelic, and to pay their respects to Minister Blount, who had taken passage by that vessel. Long before the hour announced for the vessel to sail a steady stream of curious humanity could be seen wending their way toward the water front. The Royalists endeavored to make some capital out of Minister Blount's departure, and to that end the national band took up a prominent position on the wharf at an early hour during the afternoon. The Hawaiian band was also on hand, and appropriate music was discoursed alternately by the musicians.

A number of Americans boarded the steamer and bade Minister Blount and his wife farewell and quietly returned to their homes. As was to be expected, the Royalists had gathered there to the extent of their limited number and indulged in a great deal of talk concerning upon the Minister's departure. Mr. and Mrs. Blount received many beautiful floral offerings, their cabin being almost filled with choice varieties. Just as the steamer began moving from the wharf the irrepressible and ubiquitous half-caste, John E. Bush, mounted an improvised barrel and delivered a short harangue in Hawaiian, which was followed by a weak three cheers from the Royalist contingent present. With the sounds of Royalist tongues ringing upon his ears, thus departed the man who is supposed to carry the destiny of Hawaii in his inside vest pocket. The Oceanic, which was the second vessel to arrive, did not dock but remained outside.

POLICE MATTERS.

A Number of Minor Cases Heard and Disposed of.

J. R. Souza for heedless driving was reprimanded and discharged at the request of the prosecution by Judge Foster this morning. Pinau and Reilly, for fighting on Nuuanu street yesterday, were fined $1 each and costs. Keeki was tried for assault and battery on a drunken countryman. The testimony showing that all hands and the cook in the affray were drunk, the Court found him not guilty. Young Kee for peddling cakes without a license was fined $2 and costs. Four drunks paid fines ranging from $2 to $5 and $1 each for costs. Three Chinese pleaded guilty to violating the gaming laws and were fined $7 each and costs, and three others were discharged.

More About Koebele.

Professor Koebele, who will probably come to these Islands for the purpose of exterminating our blight and insect pests, has scored another triumph in California. A San Francisco exchange says: "Professor Koebele has the credit of having introduced an insect of much value in Oreus chalybeus, which wages war on the red and black scale pest with much vigor. It is at work in the Kercheval orchard at Los Angeles, and is reported to have a fine appetite, first for the young scale with soft shells and then for the older and tougher specimens, which it attacks from beneath the shell. Secretary Lelong of the State Board of Horticulture has been notified by the Superintendents that they have faith in the Oreus chalybeus, and that in a few years it will eradicate the red and black scales. Many old lemon trees, which were badly diseased, are now thrifty and vigorous."

Sale of Government Leases.

The ten years' lease of the lands in North Kohala, Hawaii, known as the Kohala Pili lands, was sold by the Interior office at noon to-day to the estate of James Wood for the upset price of $250 per annum. The lands aggregate 7973 acres. The lease of 224 acres, comprising the Government lands of Awaiu, Haena, Kapunapuna and Kapaai, at Kohala, Hawaii, for ten years, was sold to Dr. J. Wight for $200 per year, the upset price being $50.

Circuit Court Notes.

In the appeal case of Kaia, convicted in the District Court of selling liquor without a license, Judge Whiting this morning instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. The appeal case of Kinilau, convicted in the District Court of assault and battery, is on trial before Judge Cooper this afternoon. Judge Whiting is still occupied with the Poor trial, which will likely last over to-morrow.

KAHUKU NOTES.

EDITOR STAR: ABOUT the communication which appeared in the STAR of August 2d, I never thought that Kaleiwahea was a leper, but those who live in the same place would always have it that he was one, and not being an M. D. I did not like to dispute the fact with them. Be that as it may, I always knew he went armed because he thought he would not get fair treatment if taken, having escaped from the leper receiving station.

What I would like to see is a Grand Jury in this district. Honolulu people would soon have their eyes opened as to affairs here. As it is, no one will say anything because they are afraid of some influence that could be brought to bear against them. I am sure some of the opium joints and whiskey rings would be broken up here, if not the Grand Jury would want to know why, and why everyone that sells swipes in Honolulu is arrested while the Chinese storekeepers in the villages can sell any kind of r. t. gut without being interf. red with, and opium as well. It is a well-known fact that not one of the Chinese stores in this district would keep open a month if they could not sell opium and gin. They can sell merchandise cheaper than the stores that do not have the opium and gin, and the latter have no protection. Who is going to put a stop to this? There is here in this district a little girl about six years old, I think, who is a s. n. o. k. opium. Who is going to arrest those who are giving it to her? The policeman admits that when he wants to arrest any of these evil-doers they know it before he can get there. How is that, and who tells them?

I saw Kaleiwahea yesterday at his house and told him what was in the papers about him and the stand I took against him for not obeying the laws, and he said that all his troubles originated about a half-white horse which he caught and made the owner pay a fine for letting him run on forbidden land, and he said that it was that man who gave his name to the Board of Health as a leper.

PUUKAPU CROWN LANDS

SURVEYED AND PRE-EMPTED ALREADY.

Fifty-three Homesteads Eagerly Taken Up by Native and Other Pre-Emptors.

Commissioner of Crown Lands C. P. Iaukea is feeling good over the news received from Hawaii this morning regarding the Puukapu tract at Waimea. Letters received by the Kinau from Surveyor A. B. Lohenstein and others state that the survey of the tract has been fully completed and each lot already pre-empted. The Puukapu tract contains 1000 acres, lately reserved by the Crown Lands Commissioners from the lease to the Parker estate, and was at one time covered with a dense growth of timber. This has nearly all been cleared off, leaving the land in prime condition for any agricultural purpose. The tract has been subdivided into fifty-three ten and twenty acre lots, and the residents of Waimea have been quick to avail themselves of the opportunity given them by the Government of obtaining some choice land for their future homes. No better showing of the value of this land can be made than the fact that every one of the lots has already been pre-empted, and with three or four exceptions, by natives. The property is situated in the center of the northern part of Hawaii, midway between Kawahae and Hamakua, and on the Government road leading from Waimea to Hauakua. Title deeds will be made out to the pre-emptors as soon as the new act in relation to Crown lands shall be passed. The list of the pre-emptors may be seen at the office of the Commissioner of Crown Lands by the editors of the Holomua or anyone interested.

OUR INSECT PESTS.

Letter from Professor Riley, the Washington Entomologist. The following letter has been received by Commissioner Marsden of the Bureau of Agriculture from Professor Riley, the Government entomologist attached to the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., and one of the best-known scientists in the United States: DEAR SIR: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of recent date, transmitting specimens of a scale insect which is threatening serious damage to your citrus and other fruit trees occurring on the Hawaiian Islands. The specimens which you send are of extreme interest, and I regret that I am unable to give you any definite information concerning them. The species is entirely new to me, and has never been recorded as a fruit pest before, so far as I can find. It belongs to the genus Rhizococcus. If you will have the kindness to send me further material, transmitting living specimens in position upon the twigs, you will enable me to study the different forms to the best advantage, and I shall then describe the new species and give it a definite name. The species of the genus Rhizococcus, as a general thing, are not noted as seriously destructive in this country, with the possible exception of R. arcania, which lives upon the Norfolk Island pine. We, therefore, know little or nothing concerning their natural enemies, and there is probably little to hope for in the way of securing a predaceous or parasitic insect which will rid you of the pest. You will probably, therefore, have to confine your remedial work to the application of insecticide washes or the adoption of the hydrocyanic acid gas treatment. I enclose for your information a copy of Farmers' Bulletin No. 7 of this department, which gives in formation concerning the different spraying mixtures, and also send you by accompanying mail a copy of Bulletin No. 23, which gives, on pages 20 to 27, a full account of the gas treatment. This latter treatment is coming into general use in California against the red scale (Aspidiotus aurantii), and if your crops warrant the expense, you will probably find it worth while to adopt it. I am very glad to receive these specimens from you and hope that you will not fail to send in other material. I should be most glad, in fact, to correspond with you on the subject of the injurious insects of your island and to receive specimens from you at any time. Yours very truly, C. V. RILEY, Entomologist.

High Caste Chinese Damsels.

Among the retinue of the new Chinese Minister to the United States, who passed through on the Gaelic yesterday, were his wife and four of his grown-up daughters. These high-caste damsels are the very pink of perfection of the Pekin four hundred, and will doubtless cut considerable of a dash in Washington social circles. The Chinese Minister to the United States is also Minister to Peru, which means that he represents the Celestial Government throughout North and South America. Some of the staff will therefore go to Lima, while others will remain in San Francisco.

A CRUEL COMMANDER

Charges Against Captain Ludlow of the Mohican.

Commander Nicol Ludlow of the Sea Ranger is in trouble with the authorities at Washington, and it is predicted that he will be called home to answer some very serious charges made against him by I. H. Bartlett & Sons of New Bedford. If the charges are substantiated it is possible that the commander of the Mohican may be degraded to retirement, for a time at least, and some one with brains and a larger flow of humanity in his breast, besides a regard for the reputation of the United States on the high seas, will be put in his place.

Bartlett & Sons were the owners of the whaling bark Sea Ranger, which was wrecked early this year on Kyak Islands. It has always been understood that our revenue cutters have been sent north to look after the interests of American shipping, as well as to protect the rights of Uncle Sam in the sealing waters, but evidently Captain Ludlow does not take this view of his mission in the northern sea. The revenue cutter Bear has always been the standby of the whalers in the Arctic, and Captain Healy, gruff as he may be under some circumstances, was always the friend of the whaler. When Captain Tuttle, now in charge of the revenue boat at this port, was in the Rusk, the men who risked their lives in quest of oil and bone felt safe when he was near. His vessel was a hospital for the sick and a fort for the oppressed. Captain Ludlow has apparently different ideas of the duties of a sailor to his fellow man.

Captain Foley was in charge of the Sea Ranger when she was wrecked and it is he who makes the complaint against the commander of the Mohican. At Sitka, according to him, he refused to supply to the shipwrecked men the very necessities of life until he was sure where the money to pay for them was to come from. At Kyak Island the crew was picked up by the steamer Crescent City which took them down to Sitka. Here Captain Foley made his report to the custom-house and applied to the collector of the port for aid. But it is said to the disgrace of this glorious republic, there were no provisions or money there to be given out. The collector told Captain Foley that he had barely enough to take care of himself and his assistants, and no provision had been made by the Government for shipwrecked sailors or for any other emergency that might arise. At that time there were five American war vessels in port and Foley was referred to Captain Ludlow as the commander of the fleet. It was his place to care for shipwrecked crews, for that was one of the duties of the revenue cutters in the far North.

The result of Captain Foley's interview with Ludlow has been laid before the Treasury Department at Washington, and if published will make very interesting reading. He tells his tale of trouble in a pathetic and earnest manner that carries conviction with it, and those who heard him here denounce the action of Commander Ludlow in vigorous terms.

Foley says that he went to Ludlow and explained the situation to him, and asked for food and shelter for himself and men. The commander responded saying that he could have anything he paid for. Foley told him that neither he nor his men had a dollar in the world, having lost everything in the wreck. Ludlow, he says, replied that an order on his owners would be satisfactory, and Foley said that he had no power to give an order.

"I am no longer captain of the Sea Ranger," said Captain Foley in his simple and earnest manner. "My ship is gone and I have no claim upon my owners. If I give a draft upon them they may dishonor it, as they would have the right to do."

But Ludlow was obdurate. He promised to send the men back to San Francisco, from where they shipped, if Foley would sign drafts on Bartlett & Sons to the amount of $1200. This the skipper of the lost Sea Ranger refused to do, and then he asked in the name of humanity for food. The men were housed on the Crescent City, whose captain kindly cared for them. He could shelter them, but could not afford to feed them. This, he said, and rightly too, was the business of the United States vessels. Foley appealed again to Commander Ludlow for food, and he finally succeeded in getting rations for the crew by signing a draft for $35.

The Crescent City's sailing time came, however, and the men were perforce thrown on the beach. Captain Foley then made another appeal for food and shelter.

"Not another biscuit," said Ludlow.

"Why, I would give a biscuit to a dog, if he were starving," said Foley. Captain Ludlow might have done so, too, but he would not give any to the starving men.

"Suppose these men, maddened by hunger, start in to loot your stores, and possibly resort to murder to fill their stomachs?" suggested Captain Foley.

"I cannot help that," replied Ludlow.

The City of Tripka arrived at Sitka on her regular trip, and Captain Wallace offered a passage to Fort Townsend to Captain Foley and the officers, which was gladly accepted.

Captain Nicol Ludlow was formerly in charge of the light-house district of this coast, and in running his office he was always arbitrary, and was generally looked upon as a silly martinet, who seemed to have the impression that the world was a little too small for him. He was more exclusive in relation to the business of his office than the President of the United States. When asked for the happenings in his department he was as stiff as a wooden god, and his speech was articulated with difficulty when he endeavored to reply that whatever was necessary for the public to know he would publish, and it was useless to question him further. The result was that it was necessary to go elsewhere to find out what the public should really know, and the findings were sometimes interesting enough to draw the dignified and strutting Ludlow out of his shell. Because the information did not come through his office he always made a vigorous denial of its truth, but his report in answer to the queries of the Light-house Department at Washington was clothed in a very different tone. These inquiries kept him busy, and he had been left a little longer on the top floor of the Appraisers' building some good sense might have forced itself through his skull, but the Washington authorities found a man better adapted to the duties and requirements of the office, so Captain Ludlow was sent away on the Mohican.

The story of Captain Foley is a sad commentary on the American navy and the revenue service. It is a tough morsel for the average American to swallow, particularly when we have a thousand instances at hand of the reverse treatment by England's navy to English seamen in distress. Every other Government but ours seems to take care of its own, and it is about time that the people stood up for a declaration of their rights.—S. F. Post.

Aim at the Drake

And you are bound to hit some of the ducks. This is precisely the same with

Wampole's Tasteless Preparation

OF Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption, Hits the Mark, too, and it most effectually breaks up Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects, actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchial troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod Liver Oil, but not every one is able to take it.

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION

removes the nauseous objection and actually makes Cod Liver Oil palatable.

Sample copies mailed to any address. A limited number of advertisements inserted at reasonable rates.

The Hawaiian Annual now in its Nineteenth year, and acknowledged not only as the best authority on all information pertaining to the islands that residents should know and strangers invariably ask, but the only reference book of Hawaiian statistics, and annual recorder of current and reminiscence events. There are homes probably in this land in which it is unknown, except by name, and there are numerous friends abroad to whom this publication would afford untold satisfaction for the fund of reliable information it imparts in its one hundred and fifty or more pages, with nothing of the "Guide Book" gush about it. Price per copy to any address in these islands, 75 cents; or mailed to any address in the Postal Union for 85 cents each.
