Leprosy Curable

This Declaration Comes From Specialists at Baltimore.

"Leprosy Now Curable" is the heading of the following article in Popular Mechanics by Leonard K. Hirschberg, A. B., M. D., Johns Hopkins University:

That leprosy can be cured is announced from the Johns Hopkins University Clinics by Prof. W. Williams Lord, one of the most conservative dermatologists in the United States, who, with Dr. T. Caspar Gilchrist, is in charge of the work of Johns Hopkins University in the prosecution of investigations of diseases of the skin. Dr. Lord has given close attention to the study of practically every case of leprosy that has appeared in Baltimore since 1890. Like many other scientists he has given much of his time to the investigation of this dread malady. A method of cure or prevention has been sought for thousands of years and yet the disease remained an unconquered plague.

About 1895 a woman afflicted with leprosy was admitted to the Johns Hopkins Hospital where she remained until her death several years later. The careful examination of the tissues of this patient and subsequent experiments upon the few lepers who since came under his care finally led to the rejection of a number of inefficient modes of treatment and the development of an entirely new method by which all later cases have been successfully treated.

Leprosy manifests itself first in peculiar discolorations of the skin. Odd spots are found that are iridescent, sensitive and painful. In these areas and at other points, quickly noticed by specialists, the multitude of microscopic lepra bacilli thrive and spread. Dr. Lord's method of curing the disease, which has been adopted in the Hawaiian Islands, is said to be extremely simple. Ordinary carbonic-acid gas, compressed into a solid pencil, an accepted method for removing warts and recognized for many years in the treatment of less serious skin troubles, is utilized to remove the more malignant malady. Although this "snow" pencil itself is no novelty, it remained for the Baltimore physicians to extend its field of use. It is made by allowing a thin spray of carbonic-acid gas, previously compressed into liquid form, to escape into a felt bag where the carbonic acid is deposited as a fine hoar frost or snow, while a thermometer held there will register about 100 deg. Fahr. below zero. The deposit of frost or snow is then made into a solid pencil which is placed within a hard rubber tube. Pressed, a bit at a time from the tube and placed upon the skin, it has somewhat the same effect as radium, but in this instance it is the extreme cold that destroys the diseased tissues and germs and thus cures the trouble; for, as it melts, the temperature about the infected zone falls to a very low degree of temperature.

Besides this local treatment the cure includes a cleansing of the patient's system by internal administration of chaulmoogra oil.

At the Makawao Union Church on Sunday at 11 o'clock the annual Children's service of the Sunday School will be held. This service promises to be one of unusual interest. The public are cordially invited to be present.

The Latest In Sports

What the Wrestlers, Boxers and Baseball Artists Are Doing.

It is safe to say that the labors of the recording angel will be considerably lessened and the temper of motorists considerably improved by a new invention which has just come on the market.

One of the most irritating occurrences of motoring is to get out in a sudden shower and fumble with the curtains of a car. Usually the curtains are up just about the time the shower is over, and then it takes just as long to get them out of the way. The woman who can sit in the car during this operation and smile, with the rain taking all the style out of her clothes and all the curl out of her hair, has unquestionably the disposition of a saint.

A Chicago man has just patented what he calls Jiffy curtains, and they are well named, for, as the inventor himself says, you can start adjusting them when you see a rain-drop about to fall and have them up and the car inclosed before the drop hits the ground. The R-C-H Corporation of Detroit is the first to secure this latest innovation, and all R-C-H cars are now equipped.

Jiffy curtains slide in the pockets at the top of the car and also slide backward with the top. They are strung on non-rustible steel cables and can be entirely adjusted without leaving the car. Paneled mica lookouts run the whole length of the curtain, so that the view of the occupants is not interfered with. Jiffy curtains have been in successful operation on many Chicago cars, and many of the more progressive manufacturers are arranging to make them part of their regular equipment for the coming year's models.

For seventeen years the greatest height cleared in the running high jump that was known to the athletic world consisted of M. J. Sweeney's record of 6 feet 5 5/8 inches, established on Manhattan field, New York. Almost every season since 1895, when Sweeney startled the enthusiasts with his sensational jump, reports from various meetings have included many results in the neighborhood of 6 feet or better. In later years W. B. Page, from the University of Pennsylvania, made a college record of 6 feet 4 inches. This was the nearest approach to Sweeney's record until Dad Moulton, already jubilant in the pole-vault mark of Lee Scott, offered George Horine, a Stanford student, as a candidate for the world's high-jump record.

Reports from the cardinal campus proved that Horine was a six-footer any time he competed, which feature of local athletics was soon presented to the community in Horine's leap of 6 feet 4 inches last spring, when he equaled Page's mark.

Startled in the anticipation of Horine some day surpassing Sweeney's record, a realization of the height to be cleared by the Stanford boy in his aspiration offered a tendency to discourage the thought. The apparently impossible height suggested for a new record is not realized until the bar, raised over the average man, is observed. When Horine succeeded in breaking Sweeney's mark with a leap of 6 feet 6 1/8 inches a few weeks ago, the conclusion was that another decade would pass before the Stanford boy's fame would be erased from the record-book.

Fight Growing Bitter.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Taft continues to win in the contests. Six delegates at large, 16 from Louisiana, six from Arizona, and two from California have been seated. A bitter fight was made by Heeney, leader of the California delegation, on the question whether California law, or national law should be supported in making the primaries call Gov. Johnson was before the contest committee. He said he would not submit his title to property to the thief who steals it. The California contests are based on mythical allegations. Heeney characterized the conditions in Kentucky as similar to those in California during the time of Reuf. Senator Bradley will lead the Taft forces in the convention, and former Chief Justice Gear the Roosevelt men. The fight between the factions is fast reaching a crisis.

In the Stanford-California dual meet, Horine came through with the greatest result of the athletic season, 6 feet 7 inches. To measure his height, it was necessary for the officials to have the aid of a bench in order that the field judges could witness the correct mark. With the cross-bar placed half a foot over the head of a six-foot man, some idea of the wonderful height to which Horine raises himself is presented. In this manner only is a correct comparison offered. As Horine's style is free and with little run, it is practically a spring from the ground. Imagine an individual jumping over the head of the ordinary man, or picture Horine jumping higher than it is possible to measure without the aid of a ladder.

At the meeting of the License Commissioners Friday morning a formal protest was entered by District Attorney Case against the issuance of a license to John Medeiros, of Paia, on the ground that he had been selling to minors. No decision was reached, and the meeting was adjourned till June 15th.

Hana News.

The Democratic Campaign Party blew in last Saturday and received a grand sent off. It has been so long since the people have had an opportunity to hear a political speech that the village turned out en masse. They will speak at Keanae Sunday, Monday at Pauwela, and Tuesday at Maliko, reaching Wailuku to attend the Union meeting on Wednesday at 10 A. M. Mr. Link McCandless was accompanied by the following speakers: Keawe-haku, Paulo Hokii and Thomas Clark.

After a two weeks draught Hana is at last blessed with showers. Kipahulu has been very short on water also and like Hana had to shut down for a couple of days.

Supervisors Peeved.

The Honolulu Board of Supervisors, under the leadership of Eben Low have attacked the promotion committee for selecting Walter G. Smith as a lecturer to do promotion work on the mainland. That dog eating polynesian editorial still rankles.

Chamber of Commerce

Holds Monthly Meeting and Important Business is Transacted.

The Chamber of Commerce met in the County Clerk's office Thursday afternoon. Reporting on the progress of the fruit fly campaign Mr. J. N. S. Williams told the Chamber of attending a talk on the fruit fly by Prof. Wilcox in Honolulu. Mr. Wilcox said the fight against the fly was hopeless unless a parasite was found.

A motion was passed that Rule 15 be changed in so far as it concerned Maui, and that such fruits as bananas, pineapples, and Alligator pears be not excluded. Also to allow such vegetables to come in as was found by the Board of Agriculture and Forestry, not to be easily affected.

A communication was read from the Hilo Board of Trade inviting the Chamber to be the guest of Hilo Organization some time in September. A like invitation has been issued to the Honolulu civic organizations, and the object is to have the commercial bodies from the different islands get together and form a territorial Chamber of Commerce. This proposal was unanimously endorsed by the local organization.

Following is the official invitation from the Hilo Board of Trade:

The Board of Directors believing that the present time is favorable for inaugurating a 'get together' policy among the various commercial and representative organizations of the Hawaiian Islands, and because they recognize the great benefits to be derived from the pursuance of such a policy, recommend to the members of the Board of Trade of Hilo that they take the initial step in this direction:

FIRSTLY—By issuing an invitation to the members of the following organizations—the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, the Merchant's Association of Honolulu, the Maui Chamber of Commerce, the Kohala Civic League, and the Kona Improvement Association—to visit Hilo upon a date during the present year which will be mutually convenient to all.

SECONDLY—By requesting an expression of opinion from the above named organizations upon the following proposals:

That each organization shall appoint a certain number of delegates to a conference to be held at the same time to consider matters of mutual interest, such as:

(a) The desirability of holding an annual conference visiting each of the islands in turn.

(b) Proposals for a closer and more effective working union between the various organizations.

(c) And any other subjects which may be introduced with the consent of a majority of the delegates.

H. B. ELLIOT,
President.
E. W. DEYO,
Secretary.

Appropriate Flag Day exercises were held at the Wailuku Public School on Friday June 14th, when almost three hundred pupils marched to the front step of the building, and gave their patriotic exercises, and saluted the flag. In connection with this, a short program was rendered, which consisted of patriotic songs by the different grades, a solo by Miss Scholtz, and chorus by selected pupils. A few visitors were present.

Baseball Flourishing

Great Crowd at Games Last Sunday Show Enthusiasm.

Maui seems to have gone wild over baseball this year, and each Sunday the crowds are getting larger and larger, and if this keeps up the grand stand will have to be enlarged. The autos overflowed the new space last Sunday and were spread out in right field.

The first game was between the Kahului and the Japanese team. The Kahului looked to have the best of it before the game but they were outclassed. Meyers again demonstrated that he has got over his wildness, and with Dutro holding him better than in previous games, he was simply invincible. He struck out fourteen men again Sunday, making a total of 38 in three games, and the lone tally made by Kahului was on errors, not an earned run being scored off him. All batters look alike to him this year.

McCaulay for Kahului gives one the impression of always having a lot in reserve, but he showed poorly last Sunday in comparison. Still Kahului has a good team, and are bound to be a factor in the series. The score was 7 to 1.

The second game between Paia and the Stars was a repetition of the first. Burns was sent in to pitch for Paia, and his offerings were pounded to all corners of the field, but the fielding behind him was yellow, and his catcher was away off in his throwing. Rocha was substituted, but the Stars kept on scoring. When the Paia's next take the field they will likely show a greatly strengthened lineup.

For the Stars, they all shone, as Barron said they would. Their batting and fielding was fast and sure, especially the outfield. Bal pitched a heady game, and George Cummings seemed to know just what to call for in the pitches. The Stars won by a score of 12 to 1. The umpire had his eyes open at all times, and called a Kahului man out at the plate after he had made the circuit, for cutting the bags. This has been done on several occasions this season, but it will take a smart one to get away with it after this.

The games next Sunday is between the Kahului and Camp One at 1:30, and the Stars and the Japs at 3:30. This latter game should be a corker and it will doubtless resolve itself into a pitcher's battle.

Board of Supervisors Meet.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Supervisors was begun Wednesday.

The matter of opening the road from the Hana wharf to the School house was referred to the supervisor from that district, as was also the matter of negotiating with Mr. Omsted for the purchase of land for the road.

The board instructed the clerk to request the district overseer of Makawao not to make important changes in the branches of the Kula pipe line without first conferring with the supervisor from that district.

A petition was received from the International Longshoremen's Association asking that the laborers on the county roads be paid $1.50 per day.

The High Cost of Living.

IT CERTAINLY costs more to live well than to eke out a scanty existence, and that the world over mankind is determined to live more comfortably than hitherto and is finding the means to do it is the most cheering phenomenon of modern civilization.

Consul James E. Dunning of Havre, France, makes an illuminating report on this subject as it presents itself to him in his consular district. The French are the most thrifty of white peoples and have always been accustomed to skimp and save money.

Probably the habit of saving will remain, but there is also a determination to live better than heretofore. To live better and still save one must have a larger income. To get the larger income one must get better wages or better profits. That means higher prices for labor and its products, and there you are. The increased cost of living results from a universal determination to live better.

Consul Dunning says that until recently the French people have been content to adhere to their old standard of life. During the last five years they have shown not only the determination to increase the class standards of living, but the ambition which is so common in America to struggle to rise into the better-paid classes.

The masses of the people are beginning to want "musical instruments, electric lights, ornamental furniture, labor-saving kitchen appliances, illustrated periodicals, modern bathrooms, patented food in packages and the many other characteristic American adjuncts."

Consul Dunning says that the evidence is plain that the increased cost of living in France is the result of the betterment of living and that this is now generally recognized, so that "the remedies so far suggested by the French themselves practically imply an acceptance of this cause."

Unfortunately for the French, their cost of living does not yet equal our cost of living, because in our happy and prosperous country our standard is much higher and we are able to maintain it.

During the present political campaign, the democrats have attacked the administration, and put forth the claim that it is responsible for the high cost of American living.

That is to say that it is responsible for the prosperity which makes high living possible.

The most ardent republican would hardly dare claim this. The republicans are mostly sane individuals who know it is the energy of the people and the productiveness of the land which makes us prosperous.

If the action of the Republican national committee is as raw a steal as it looks to be on the face of the cable news from Chicago, then look out for trouble at the polls. You can fool all the people part of the time, and you can fool part of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time.

Another automobile accident occurred this week, and of course it was a Japanese who got hit. If these accidents are all the fault of the auto drivers, as some people would try to make you believe, it is mighty strange that someone besides the poor Jap don't get hit once in a while.

The invitation from the Hilo Board of Trade to the Maui Chamber of Commerce, and to the Mercantile bodies in Honolulu, is sure to meet with unanimous approval, and reflects the true spirit of progress.

Why Is Justice Blind.

(By E. V. Wilcox, in Crossroads.)

Far too long has the goddess of justice been blind, While she holds the balance aloft.

Is a pound of flesh and a pound of gold

Quite the same to her blinded eyes?

Can she test the mere weight of a counterpoise

In a life all moldy with sin?

Can she measure the blood and the pain of toil

In the brazen scales of the law?

Shall her ears be free to hear the boast,

And her eyes not see the leer

Of the man who knows that justice is blind,

While he tosses his dress in the pan?

As if worth were measured by gravity,

Or agony balanced with gold.

Or a pound were always a pound whether one

Of ten millions or one of two.

Could all values be tested by rules and machines,

And measured by yardsticks and scales,

The relative worth of men would appear

To be matter for laughter and tears.

And the goddess of justice would need no eyes,

Nor delicate sense of ear

Could she measure the soul of the depth of love,

Or the temper of sympathy?

Homer's Odyssey.

The management of the Orpheum, Wailuku, will present to the people of Maui both films and vaudeville from Ye Liberty Theatre, Honolulu, commencing Saturday, June 15th. They will show "Homer's Odyssey." This story picture of the ten-year Trojan war which took two solid years to produce, cost $200,000, and is the classic masterpiece of all the world's literature. Also a celebrated magician who's slight-of-hand tricks are as mystifying as they are entertaining. Saturday, June 15. Prices, 20c., 30c., and 50c.

Bostonians Coming.

The Juvenile Bostonians, who have been playing at the Liberty Theatre in Honolulu will, in all likelihood be seen here, according to a letter received from J. C. Cohen, who has them under contract. The Bostonians have received unstinted praise both from the Honolulu press and public.

Mrs. Sumers, Miss Grace Gilmore, and Miss Helen Smith were passengers on the Claudine this morning.

On Friday evening, June 7th, Alexander Workers Home was the scene of a pleasant gathering of twenty-seven from the Japanese Girls Home, which is in charge of Mrs. S. Kanda. They were accompanied by few of their friends which made a total of thirty-three present. Japanese and American games were entered into with much earnestness. Japanese music by Mr. Ito, and the phonograph formed the musical program. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and tea, completed the pleasure of the evening.

The Gymnasium Committee met this week and transacted some important business in connection with the institution. Several new magazines have been ordered for the lounging room of the Gymnasium, so that the members will have an opportunity to get at some of the best reading of the day. Life, The National Geographic Magazine, World's Work, Harper's Weekly, the newspapers will be on the racks. O. J. Whitehead, a member of the committee very generously donated The Saturday Evening Post to the Gymnasium.

Got a Cheap Shave.

I was being shaved at my favorite barber shop on Newspaper row when a stranger who was evidently short of change walked in and asked the boss if he would shave one side of his face for a nickel. The boss thought it a pretty good joke and answered in the affirmative, bidding the stranger to take a seat for a moment or so. A moment later the boss bid the stranger to take his place in the chair. After the latter had been prepared the boss asked "Which side?" "The outside," was the stranger's reply, and all hands in the shop had a mighty good laugh on the boss, who took the joke good naturedly and gave the visitor a first class shave.—Boston Post.

A Bad Shot.

A knife thrower who was performing in a music hall had a particularly attractive assistant, whose duty it was to lean with outstretched arms against a soft pine board. This board was surrounded with electric lights, which accentuated her beauty. The knife thrower would then station himself a few feet distant and hurl knife after knife at the board. These knives would just graze the skin and plunge with a thud into the board and remain quivering. It was a thrilling act, and when the last knife was thrown the young woman would be so closely hemmed in by knives that they had to be drawn out before she could free herself.

One night the pretty assistant was taken ill, and the performer's wife was drafted for the work. She was far from pretty. In fact, she was distinctly homely. She walked out on to the stage, and when she reclined against the board the pitiless lights threw into relief her crooked features, unshapely limbs and general unattractiveness. The knife thrower took deliberate aim, and a knife flashed across the room and sank into the board by her head. Just as the knife struck a small boy up in the gallery shouted with a yell: "Good heavens, 'e missed 'er!"

A Rather Convincing Reply.

"Some years ago," said Mr. William P. Farrell of San Francisco. "I was making a pilgrimage to the land of my ancestors, and many times, even in the most out of the way corners of Erin, I was given proof of the quick wit of the Celt. On one occasion a fellow whom I had employed in a small town in Galway on some slight personal service persisted in addressing me as 'My lord.' I didn't like the title a little bit, and finally I called him down rather warmly. "Don't you call me my lord another time," I said. "I am simply an ordinary Irishman like yourself." "Ah, your honor," said the rascal, with an irresistible grin, "that can't be true. There never was an ordinary Irishman."—Baltimore American.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—It is possible the Pacific Mail may put in a bid for the sugar trade, and a special steamer be run between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Decisions For Taft.

CHICAGO, June 8.—The National Committee is weighing party rules against the presidential primary laws, and Roosevelt is getting the worst of the decisions. Taft gets all the Alabama delegates. The contests in the States of California, Oregon and North Dakota are involved in the question. Sergeant-at-Arms Stone has asked for police enough to prevent a rough house in the convention.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Knox has issued a warning to Cubans. He has put the army and navy in the East on a war footing, pending entrance to the island if there are further outbreaks.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Supreme Court has decided the Commerce Court can not supplant the inter State Commerce commission.

Honolulu News.

HONOLULU, June 12.—The Star and Bulletin have combined under one management. Farrington will be at the head of the business department. The editor will be either Riley Allen or Leigh Irvine of San Francisco. The Atherton estate will control the policy of the combination paper, and no liquor ads will be taken. The present Star building will be the office of the combination.

The Hilo railroad will build twelve cottages at the volcano. The railroad will be extended to the crater in the near future.

A Case of Identity

An Officer of the Cuban War Who Died Comes to Life

By EUGENE WHITING

The Spanish-American war was ended, and the troops had been removed from Santiago on transports. A few invalids remained who were too ill to travel, under the care of Surgeon Edward Ferguson, who stayed behind for the purpose of caring for them and settling up the affairs of the medical department of the army. A gunboat under command of Ensign White of the navy had been ordered to remain for the purpose of bringing away those who needed transportation when everything had been cleaned up, when those who were to die had died, and those who were to get well were able to be carried aboard ship.

Now, the Santiago campaign was something to be heartily sick of, and after it was over to be left in the cursed place to clean up was worse yet. Ensign White was a bad selection for the purpose, for his fiancée was waiting for him to come home to marry her, and he was in a terrible hurry to accommodate her. He had taken care of everything there was to do, and nothing remained except to bring home those left in hospital. Calling on Surgeon Ferguson, he asked him the condition of things in his department.

"There are two men who can't live twenty-four hours. As soon as they are dead we can get out of this beastly country and go home."

"Are you sure they're both going to die?" asked White.

"They've both got the fever, and I can't see any chance for either of them. There's Lieutenant Berkeley of the 4th New Jersey as good as dead. The other one is Sergeant Moore of the 4th Massachusetts. He's not quite so bad as Berkeley, but there's no show for him."

"I say, old man," said White thoughtfully, "we're both anxious to go home. Now, you wouldn't mind having things ready to bury these fellows, would you, just as soon as they are dead?"

Ferguson shrugged his shoulders and made no reply, but silence gives consent, and White knew that when the invalids' souls had left their bodies there would be no necessity for wasting time as to the interment.

The gunboat had steam up, ready for departure, and Surgeon Ferguson was busy over some papers, while his striker was packing his belongings. A hospital steward came into his tent and said:

"Doctor, one of those cases is dead, and the other has disappeared."

The surgeon uttered an exclamation of impatience. He had expected to get off within an hour, and here was a complication that might cause no end of delay.

"How the dickens can a man at the point of death disappear?" he asked impatiently.

"Don't know."

"You go hunt for him and let me know which man has died. I suppose it is Berkeley. White is crazy to be off, and if I'm not on hand at the minute I'm afraid he'll go without me."

Half an hour later the steward came back and reported that the missing man had not been found and the dead man was Berkeley. Ferguson was so sure that Berkeley would not live that he did not question the man in the matter, especially as he was about stepping into an ambulance to take him to the shore, where a boat was waiting for him to put him on board the ship. He told the steward to see that the lieutenant had a decent burial and made a mental note to put the deceased's name down on the dead list as soon as he boarded the gunboat.

All these persons were young. Ferguson was an assistant surgeon, holding only the grade of first lieutenant. White was but an ensign, graduated a few days before the breaking out of the war at the Naval academy. Berkeley, who was reported dead, was but twenty-three years old and the hospital steward not much his senior. To the youth of the persons concerned is due the want of care in the matter that has been mentioned. Youngsters are not to be trusted as older officers, who would not have been likely to hurry away from the duties committed to their care, leaving one sick man roaming no one knew where and another to be buried without making sure as to who he was.

From the time that Surgeon Ferguson entered the name of Lieutenant Berkeley on his death roll he thought no more of him. He worried about Sergeant Moore, whose disappearance the hospital steward had reported, fearing that, since the man had been in his charge, something might turn up to bring out his failure to remain in Cuba and discover what had become of him. But as for Berkeley, he was safe underground and could not in anyway stir up the army regulations against the doctor.

Five years after the Spanish-American war a party of young persons was making merry together at Fort Monroe. One of the young ladies, Miss Julia Hulet, was receiving some attention from a young officer, Captain John Foster, who had been promoted from the ranks, or, rather, Captain Foster, was offering his attentions, which Miss Hulet was chary of accepting.

Since it was near the hour for dress parade, one of the party proposed that they go into the fort and see the ceremony. As they moved along a gentleman joined Miss Hulet, who seemed very much pleased to meet him. She introduced him to her friends as Mr. Berkeley.

On hearing the name Captain Foster looked fixedly upon Berkeley as though trying to recall some memory concerning him. From the moment of the latter's arrival he devoted himself to Miss Hulet, who received his attentions graciously, evidently to the annoyance of Captain Foster. The Spanish-American war was mentioned, and Berkeley spoke of having participated in the affair.

"Beg your pardon, Mr. Berkeley," Foster spoke up; "with what corps did you serve in Cuba?"

"The 4th New Jersey infantry."

"There was a Lieutenant Berkeley of that regiment, but he died in Cuba."

"I was the only Lieutenant Berkeley in the regiment," replied the other.

"and I did not die in Cuba." The words were spoken sharply since Foster had implied that Berkeley was passing under false colors.

"I'm sorry to differ from you as to Lieutenant Berkeley's death," said Foster insultingly. "I know for a fact that Lieutenant Berkeley of the 4th New Jersey died in Cuba. The reason I know it is that I came home with the last departures from Santiago, and Surgeon Ferguson, who was with us, spoke of Berkeley's death, regretting that he was unable to remain in Cuba to attend to the officer's burial."

"I will call upon you tomorrow," replied the man who claimed to be Berkeley, "and will convince you that Mr. Berkeley is alive and very much in evidence."

This ended any further reference to the matter at the time, but there was not a person in the party who did not think about it intently. Miss Hulet was the one principally affected by it, and during the time the party were witnessing the parade she showed by her manner that she took sides with Mr. Berkeley, being especially gracious to him and cool to Captain Foster.

After the parade was finished and the party were walking toward the hotels Berkeley stopped to speak to an officer whom he had met in Cuba.

"Who is this Captain Foster?" asked Berkeley.

"He was a hospital steward during the war. After it was over, through influence at Washington, he received an appointment as lieutenant in the regular army. He has recently been promoted to be captain."

That was enough for Berkeley. The same evening when a party were gathered in the principal hotel, Foster and Berkeley being present, Berkeley said:

"Captain Foster, do you remember going into a ward in a hospital in Santiago where two men were supposed to be suffering with fever?"

Foster started, but made no reply.

"I had been in that ward at the point of death, but in the gray of the morning the fever left me, and I craved water. I got up to go for it. Where I went I don't know, but a few days later I found myself in a Cuban hut, not knowing how I got there. I learned long afterward that a hospital steward had reported me dead and that the other man, a sergeant in a cot beside me, had been buried under my name."

"After my return to the north it became necessary to prove my identity, which I did to the satisfaction of a court. But I believe that to the present day I am on the rolls of the dead of the army at Santiago."

While Mr. Berkeley was making this statement Miss Hulet kept her eyes fixed on Captain Foster. When Berkeley finished Foster stammered something about an "unlikely story," then turned and began to talk incoherently with one of the young ladies of the party. Miss Hulet, with a look of contempt at him, walked away with Berkeley.

Thus ended an episode due to the hurry of two officers to get away from a benighted land, one of whom was eager to meet his fiancée and the other to avoid being left behind. The third man—the hospital steward—was doubtless too lazy to make certain as to the identity of a dead man.

Nevertheless the saying "murder will out" is true in less important matters. The story that has been given here was repeated in the army, and Foster was finally called to account for a delinquency of several years before. Surgeon Ferguson was involved, and both officers after an investigation were reprimanded.

Maui Racing Association.

A special meeting of the Maui Racing Association was held on last Tuesday night at which time a number of new members were elected to membership their names being as follows: D. H. Case, Esq., Hon. William Henning, Messrs. H. Gooding Field, William Chillingworth, J. A. Aheong, and John Medeiros. After the election the matter of the reinstatement of Domingo Ferreira as a jockey on the Maui race track came up and the objection to any action being taken was so strong that the matter was not given any consideration whatever. It is quite evident that if ever an attempt is made to again take up the matter of his reinstatement that most of the substantial members of the Association will resign rather than even consider such a step.

Owing to the large attendance that is expected at the races the Executive Committee are instructed to enlarge the accommodation for seating the visitors.

Death From Appendicitis.

Fred Logie, time keeper for the Kahului railroad, died at the Maluhani hospital, Monday evening, June 3rd, following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Logie was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, and came to the islands from Vancouver about six months ago, and immediately became connected with the railroad. He was well liked by both his employers and fellow employees, as was shown by the deep interest taken by them during his illness. The sisters at the hospital also did everything in their power for the young man, in their endeavor to make him forget that he was far from home and friends.

Enquiry For Missing Man.

An enquiry comes to the Maui Lodge of masons from the lodge at Wyandotte, Michigan, making enquiry for a man by the name of Frank Anthony Crossen. He was known to be in Honolulu in April, and was supposed to have come to Maui about May 1st, since which time nothing has been heard from him. He is five feet, five inches in height, weighs about 175 lbs., complexion very dark. Appearance French. Birthmark, right ear scalloped. Any information regarding the missing man will be communicated to his friends at once, if given to the MAUI NEWS.

Two Prisoners Create Stir in Court-room, and Amuse Spectators.

"What's the trouble in there?" asked the Police Judge turning his head suddenly toward the dock.

"It's those two colored men charged with disturbing the peace," answered the Sheriff. "They seem to be afraid of each other."

"Dis heah fellah's done bin tryin' tuh swat me all de mawnin', Judge," said Elmer Simpson, thrusting his head between the bars of the cage. "He done swatted me befo' an' now he's jest plain' tuh swat me agin," Simpson's lips trembled.

"Judge, he's a liar!" cried Zack Hughson from the other corner of the dock. "Ah's bin tryin' tuh avoid 'dat niggah eber since Ah's bin cooped up wif him, an' he's done bin tryin' tuh aidge closah like Ah ax de putection ob dis heah Cote."

"What is this case, anyway?" asked the magistrate.

"I arrested them in a little tailor shop last night," said Policeman Brown. "They were fighting; that's all I know about it."

"Bring them both out here."

"Keep him off, he's gwine tuh swat me!" cried Elmer, as the policeman let out the defendants.

"He's liable tuh take a sneak an' uppahcut me," insisted Zack.

"Stand between them," ordered the Judge. "They'll frighten each other to death."

"What were you two fighting about?"

"Ah didn' fight," replied Elmer. "Ah done stubbed mah toe an' fust Ah know, Mistah Hughson flahed up an' let bof fists out, an' now Ah kin seasily see 'count ob my eyes bein' knocked cen."

"Ah didn' tack him, Judge," protested Hughson. "He jes' fell all ovah me, Judge, like a lion er a tighah, an' Ah jes' scrambled tuh putect mahsef. Ah reckon Ah'd be daid now ef de officah didn' come in de nick ob time. Ah shorely do, Judge."

"This is a remarkable case. What else do you know about it, Simpson?"

"Ah knows Ah's a cabinet makah, sah," said Simpson, "an' Mistah Hughson he's a tullah, sah, yas, sah, an' Ah makes a showcase fo' him, yas, sah, an' whain Ah axes him fo' de price he lows he'll gub me a suit ob clothes instid. Now, Ah doan want no suit ob clothes, Ah doan'. Ah got a fambly, Judge, and chillun. Dey cyant eat clothes, kin dey? So Ah argifies wif him an' den Ah stubs mah toe an' Ah no soonah stub mah toe whain he slams me an' like tuh teah mah face plumb off. Yas, sah, ets loose now."

"Dat was a bum job, Judge!" exclaimed Hughson. "Et looks mo' like a wash biler den a showcase, eenyhow. Mistah Simpson ain't tellin' how he done comes in my sto' at night an' scowls aroun' an' fumbles wif he razzor pocket an' hollahs, 'Yo' fo'k ovah, yo' heah me talkin'?' Den he jumps at me an' Ah got a weak haht. 'Cose Ah grapped wif him. Ah reckon yo'd grap wif him yo'sef, Judge, ef he come at yo' grittin' his teef an' growlin' like a tighah-cat."

"Judge, de way dese folks is laughin'," said Simpson, pointing to the hysterical habitues, "is shorely plain dey all realize dat Mistah Simpson is a bohn liah. He's a liah ebery time he opens his trap. Eenybody kin see dat. Wy he's waitin' fo' tuh swat me right heah befo' yore face. He lets on dat he's got a weak haht. Ah ain't let on n' flin' bout how Ah got nervous postulation."

"Don't either one of you go and drop dead around here," warned the Judge.

"Ah'll pay him tain dollahs jes' tuh get rid ob him," said Hughson. "Make him write a check out heah," said Simpson.

"Write out that check and give t' to him and then both of you clear out of here," said the Judge.
