Other authorities say that one should always lie on the back, but there are excellent reasons why this is not wise. The weight of the head, arms and contents rests upon the spine, which often affects the nerves. Some severe cases of insomnia have been cured by the habit of sleeping on the face. This is easier to do than sleeping on the right side, and it is for this reason claimed that the position is more favorable to digestion without effort. This is important, as all of the best functions of the stomach should have a certain amount of rest, and in no way is this as easily attainable as during the hours of sleep.

Fence Wire, Galvanized or plain Black annealed—Four Point Galvanized Black Wire. So much complaint has been made of the quality of Fence Wire brought into this market, that, after tests covering the past five years, we have selected a make of Fence Wire peculiarly adapted to this climate, and which has proved superior to any other. Users of this make of wire endorse its value.

REMARKABLE DREAMS.

Promissions of the Death of a Bute City Woman and Her Sister.

A short time ago Mrs. Thomas J. Jeffries of Bute City, Kansas, was killed as a railroad crossing while out driving. Many of the friends of the deceased lady now recall a prominent incident of her approaching death and in the manner she met it. Only a few days before her death she called on several of her neighbors and told them she had had a peculiar feeling of impending danger, and that she knew she would soon die.

Her friends tried to persuade her that there was nothing to fear from such a sentiment and urged her to dismiss the matter from her mind. She would not be dissuaded, however, and requested the friends whom she was talking to to accompany her to the railroad crossing. She also named certain of her neighbors whom she desired to prepare her body for burial. At the same time she expressed a wish that no other person be permitted to touch her body. In fact she made all suggestions for her funeral and the care of the child she would have had.

A day or two before the fatal accident Mrs. Jeffries was out buggy riding with a party. During the drive they had occasion to cross a railroad track. A train was approaching from the distance, and although so far away that there was no danger the lady thought the accident so readily expected was about to overtake her and nearly fainted in consequence. When all danger had passed, her attention was called to the evident absurdity of her fears, but she simply maintained that the time had not yet arrived, and that sooner or later her presentiment would prove true.

As a further evidence of the lady's strange power to forecast and receive promissions of impending calamities, it is related by one of her friends that some time ago she had a visit from a neighbor, who was passing her door. She asked some one as to whose funeral it was. The answer, as she heard it, is her dream, that she had seen a dead person, was her sister. Mrs. Jeffries felt that the dream portended something unfortunate, but was hardly prepared for the telegram which she received next day telling of the death of her sister, which occurred at her home in the east.

Mrs. Jeffries was the last of a family of children. A brother, who was also killed in an accident several years ago, and it is related that by the same strange gift she had a premonition of his death.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Last of His Race.

Important officials sometimes forget that there are persons who can afford to disregard their importance. A poor old nobleman was traveling through the rural districts of Sweden. One day he stopped his carriage at a country tavern and called out in an impetuous tone:

"Horses, landstrol! Horses at once!"

"I am very much pleased to inform you that you will have to wait over an hour before fresh horses can be brought up," replied the landstroler calmly.

"How!" violently exclaimed the nobleman. "This to me! My man, I demand horses immediately!"

"Then observing the fresh, sleek looking ones which were being led up to another carriage, he continued:

"For whom are those horses?"

"They were ordered for this gentleman," replied the landstroler, pointing to a tall, slim individual a few paces distant.

"I say, my man," called out the nobleman, "will you let me have those horses if I pay you a liberal bonus?"

"No," answered the slim man. "I intend to use them myself."

"Nay, you are not aware who I am, and I have the low thoroughly agitated and irate nobleman. "I am, sir, Field Marshal Baron George Sparre, the last and only one of my race."

"I am very glad to hear that," said the slim man, stepping into his carriage. "It would be a terrible thing to think that there might be more of you coming. I am inclined to think that your race will be a foot race."

The slim man was the king of Sweden.—Youth's Companion.

Position During Sleep.

Almost every one has a favorite position during sleep, and no end of theories and beliefs have been advanced on the subject of the proper position, location and general condition for that sleep "that knits up the ravell'd sleeve of care." Many physicians maintain that one should cultivate the habit of sleeping on the right side, especially if one has indulged in a full meal late in the evening. The food makes its way from the stomach on the right side, and it is for this reason claimed that the position is more favorable to digestion without effort. This is important, as all of the best functions of the stomach should have a certain amount of rest, and in no way is this as easily attainable as during the hours of sleep.

A Gift That May Be Acquired.

Any woman who wishes to be successful in social success should cultivate the gift of remembering faces and names. A little attention at the time, a little care to fix an individual by name and feature in the memory, will bring its successful reward. While some lucky people possess the faculty naturally, and others are so wonderfully deficient in this respect, still it can be cultivated, so that study will supply the lack of memory, and the social aspirant may assume a virtue though she have it not.—New York Tribune.

Francis Makes Friends.

Richard had handed that fellow in pocket-book he had just dropped, and he didn't so much as thank me. There's not much encouragement to be had.

Harry—Oh, don't be discouraged at the very outset. It will come so easy after awhile that you will be willing to be honest for nothing.—Boston Transcript.
