CAMPBELL ESTATE

Judge Gear gave a lengthy decision yesterday afternoon in the matter of the estate of the late James Campbell, ordering the executor to file amended account to date and setting hearing on amended account and petition for final distribution for June 23. The decision reads, in part, as follows:

"The will is rather strange in some of its provisions and is a striking example of the extent to which, under the present Territorial laws, a testator may tie up a vast estate for a long period. It ties up the principal of the estate until a possible period of twenty years after the death of all the living children of the testator, and gives no part of the vast estate to any living child, the income alone being disposed of. Such wills are not favored in law and it would be well if laws were passed here as in New York and some other States where two lives in being is the limit of time during which the fee may be suspended, or such as the laws of California, prohibiting a trust to convey."

"While it seems from the will, and I must so hold, that the executor as such had no authority to pay out this money to Mrs. Parker, still it seems to me that the will gives Mrs. Parker her one-third of the net income of the realty from the time of the testator's death and not only from the time of the trustee taking possession of the estate."

Concerning the payment of $35,920.51 to Princess Kawanaokoa, testator's daughter, the decision shows that, instead of the Princess having been paid too much, as shown by the supplemental report of Mr. Cecil Brown and found by the master to be the sum of $13,753.94, she is entitled to more than she received by $11,933.67, making a difference in her favor of $25,587.61."

Miss Alice Campbell and the Princess, being of age, are in the same position as Mrs. Parker as far as their interest in the net income is concerned.

BOYS' BRIGADE ATHLETICS.

The annual field day of Boys' Brigade will be held this afternoon at Kapiolani Park commencing at 1:30 o'clock. The contesting teams will be from the Kapalama and Kakaako clubs. A very close contest is expected. Following are the officers of the Palms club, those of Kakaako not yet having been appointed: Captain Coles, Lieut. M. Serfa and E. Desha, Serge. Wm. Desha, Wm. Miles and King. The drill for the banner will come first and then the track and field events will occur.

The latter includes a 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, quarter mile, half mile and mile runs, pole vaults, shot put, running high jump and broad jump. First place counts five points, second place three points and third place one point.

The officials for the sports are Messrs. Theo. Richards, Henry Judd, Fred Young, Charles Fraxter, Jesse Woods and G. J. Austin.

THE IMMIGRATION ITEM.

It is an open question whether the attitude of Speaker Buckley on the immigration question is not a logical conclusion of the "tariff bazaar" raised by those honest in their condemnation of his conduct. Though the speaker specifically stated that he had no objection to new comers.

Mature deliberation however could not inspire speaker Buckley with the confidence that his attitude on the immigration question as evidenced by his speech of Friday afternoon placed a weapon in the hands of the enemies of the Hawaiian race rather than discriminating them. If there is one thing by which Hawaiians as a class have profited in the course of the century it is the protective tariffs made against the native Hawaiian. Many of these gentlemen have come to the islands prepared to witness the Hawaiian American as he is represented when they see his shoulder with him.

Despite occasional surface contradictions fair play is a definite American sentiment. The American people believe in equality under the law, the inalienable rights of all men to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Though sometimes prejudiced as viewed by outsiders they have no real sympathy with prejudice and invariably work out of this yet if they have the temporary misfortune to get into it.

Attention of our country which islands the most liberal form of government possible, that American born and American by adoption should have equal opportunity. This confidence in the standards of Hawaii's citizenship service responsibility to work in our immediate side of the country.

This paper is not ready to believe that speaker Buckley and his associates will claim that a higher and better development of this Territory does not demand immigration. The presence of the native simply shows that prospect for all classes follows in the wake of our national development. The same principle holds true in the case of the United States, and it must be admitted that the most desirable development must flourish without the immigrant.

Much is said of the unscientific immigrant, but the discussion of Friday suggests that some of our Representative have lost sight of the all important detail that the United States Congress has placed in the hands of the representatives of the people the right of admitting immigrants and therefore the power to define the character of the immigration. The individual or the corporation is no longer free to admit the class of workers that shall be sought. It is now for the people as a whole to determine from what section of the world the immigrant shall come.

Taking into consideration all the necessities for progressive development, some thought should be given to the fact that they are working under a magnificent opportunity by failure to accept the privilege available under Federal law.

Unhappily, outside the legislative halls suggests that the vote of Friday was influenced more by a lack of confidence in the probable opinion of the position of Immigration Agent than by opposition to the principle involved in the appropriation. If this in the real sense the House will be wise to deal with the direct issue than allow the record to stand in the present form. It is a legislative privilege to make such conditions on the satisfaction of immigrants as may be deemed best. It is a common legislative privilege to enact a privilege given by the Executive government on the basis that the interests are not wanted.

REVENUE OFFICER'S TOUR.

Hilo, June 12.—W. P. Trahan, revenue collector, was in Hilo a few days this week on his confidential official tour around the island. Mr. Trahan was accompanied by Mr. George H. Hooe, who is taking an outing tour around the island. Mr. Trahan says that his observations show no perceptible increase in the illicit sale of liquor in the islands. The revenue collector has been special inspectors than ever before.

Coming to the fact that Judge Wilcox is in all the cases on the police court, Saturday this morning will be the last day until Monday.

IRISHING SAILOR

CASE DISMISSED

The dimly lit but for the light of the ship's lanterns, the sailor was brought before United States Commissioner E. A. Dwyer this morning for examination in relation to his alleged assault on Julia Robinson, the Irish woman of the same ship. Hearty and stout looking, the sailor was brought to the court by United States Marshal Henry Tom Johnson in charge yesterday.

The captain of the ship alleged that the sailor had been drinking and had been in a state of intoxication when he assaulted the woman. The sailor, however, claimed that he was sober and that the woman had provoked him. The case was set for trial on Monday.

The sailor's attorney argued that the woman had provoked him and that he was not responsible for the assault. The court, however, found the sailor guilty and sentenced him to a term of imprisonment.

The court's decision was met with surprise by the sailor's friends, who claimed that the woman had been the aggressor. They argued that the sailor had acted in self-defense.

The case has caused a stir in the community, with many people taking sides. Some believe the sailor is innocent, while others believe he is guilty. The court's decision is expected to be appealed.

The sailor's attorney has filed a writ of habeas corpus, arguing that the sailor's detention is illegal. The court has granted the writ, and the sailor has been released.

The sailor's attorney has also filed a motion for a new trial, arguing that the evidence was insufficient to convict the sailor. The court has denied the motion.

A PROFANE REFRAIN

It was the eve of the 11th of June. The moon was shining brightly and the shadows were lazily watching their lethargic time in the breeze. The people of Honolulu, or at least those who believe in social hours, had retired for the night. Along the route of the city's main thoroughfare were closed and the people were fast held in the arms of Morpheus.

In the seclusion of the Senator's house, a group of wandering spirits, whose idea of society had been somewhat jaded out of their senses by the early evening. They engaged in a game of cards and then a bright thought struck one of the players. The one "Up the tower" was launched forth for the benefit of the sleeping folk below.

The last wall was just finished away with the first one of a tremor on the 11th of June. Under the hammer of fate had been cast on its way as a comet for a few bits of stray silver, which something happened.

The window of an open store room was lit with a flash and a figure in white came out in plain view. Then came the noise of the door and the sound of a few bits of stray silver, which something happened.

Books, Bookish People and Things

We get no good by being ungenerous even to a book. E. B. Browning.

"An April Day, 1775." A poem recited at Concord at the celebration of the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the Concord fight, April 19. By Edward Waldo Emerson, M. D., Riverside Press, Cambridge. From the author.

Dr. Emerson is the only son of Ralph Waldo Emerson. He practised medicine for several years in Concord and Boston, then took up art as an avocation and now lectures in the Boston Art School. The Bulletin Bookman today received from him a beautiful picture entitled "New Hampshire Hills and Pines in Winter." However, Dr. Emerson finds time to write not only poems like the one under consideration, but prose words. "Emerson in Concord" has just been issued, and the author has been chosen to edit for Houghton, Mifflin & Co. their "Centenary Edition" of Emerson's complete works.

"An April Day" is a patriotic poem, although it begins with an invocation to April: "Daughter of Heaven and Earth, fairest of nymphs, April! Down from the Zodiac's belt, down through the glittering vault Swept by the wandering airs on radiant road thou comest, Down to our withered Earth, bleak hillside and frozen acre, Where the murmuring children of man long for the balm of thy smile, Long for the balm of thy tears." The following lines are beautiful and apply to our own mountains in some of their varied aspects: "Ah! thou art with us, April, thou of the cloud-blue mantle, Trailing along the hilltop the purple fringe of the rain." "And the brook in an emerald band comes wandering down from the upland. Life spreads toward the frozen Pale, life calls to the sleeping creature. The blood of the maple burns in the roddy tips of the miller's willow, And the cowslip pines her gold in heaps in the alder meadow, Where the turtle guards the brook in the golden riveted armor." Then in the midst of all the beauty of Nature around— "A dark day dawned on the brave New England people. See the brooding of the quiet night All day they have wrangled of night and right; Now all is still again. And a child's voice whispers that all's not well; And Wrong! Wrong! Wrong! her iron tongue Cries to her sons from the town-house bell. Now the horse-hoofs beat on the River Road, And the gray old Colonel gallops in, Beyond the bridge, on the bare hillside.

Now stands the farmer's stern array. Then a voice spake in every heart: "Will ye look death in the eye today? And the men of Middlesex answered, 'Yes!' 'Now fire, soldiers, for God's sake—Fire!' And the firelocks answered with tongue of flame, A cry to the Nations—'Lift up your eyes!' 'The morning cometh; Awake! Awake!' This will call to mind the fathers' verse engraved on French's statue of the Minute-Man in Concord—'The embattled farmers stood And fired the shot heard around the world.' Of this same memorable April, E. E. Hale wrote in different strain:— "In the hazy twilight, at the coming of night, I crowded three buckshot and one bullet down. 'Twas my last charge of lead, and I aimed her, and said: 'Good luck to you Lobsters in old Boston town.' 'In a barn at Milk Row, Ephraim Bates and Monroe. And Baker and Abram and I made bed; We had high-y sore feet, and we'd nothing to eat, But we'd driven the Red Coats; and Amos, he said: 'It's the first time,' said he, 'that it's happened to me To march to the sea by this road where we've come; But confound this whole day but we'd all of us say We'd rather have spent it this way than to home.' To the Cooled-Off of later days, a verse from Dr. Emerson's Envoy may be suggestive:— "And we, the Sons, does no transmit ted fire Lighten our day? Ne'er let Despondence whelm us in its mire. The Fathers—what were they?"

"The Isle of Content and Other Waifs of Thought." By George F. Butler, M. D.; 6 1/2 x 9 1/2 in. Illustrated, 142 pp. The Erudite Press, Concord, Mass. From the author.

To begin with, the book is exquisitely printed in clear type on the best of deckle-edged paper, bound in chaste gray and tastefully illustrated. Typographically it is a book for the parlor table.

The frontispiece is a picture of a charming young girl out for a "May-Day Walk"—the only daughter of the author, who dedicates his book to her, "because of my regard for her, therefore 'The Isle of Content' is offered to the public with the hope that the reader will experience as much pleasure in the perusal of these 'Reflections' as I found in the writing."

Dr. Butler is a very busy man, medical superintendent of the Alma Sanitarium, Professor of Medicine in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, editor of a medical magazine, and the author of a book on medicine now used as a text-book in nearly all the medical schools of the United States. But, fortunately for a considerable number of lay readers, he has found time to go outside of purely medical subjects, and we have in these gathered "Reflections," first written for his magazine, a collection of pleasing essays. In them may be found sentiment, pathos and humor. Naturally, the author is a keen observer of life, and he touches upon the weaknesses of men (as in "The Doctrine of the Tick of the Clock," "Reveries of December," and "Precious Letters" remind one of "In Marvel" somewhat. Dr. Butler is what we should call in stock-phrase "an omnivorous reader." He has read, digested, assimilated and become permeated with the best sayings of other men. Unconsciously he absorbs and subsequently uses all that he reads in books or letters, all that he sees, hears or dreams. So while he may not startle by originality, he will please, and like John Fiske and other men of his unusual sort, serve up debatable dishes. "What's The Use" rather startled The Bulletin Bookman, who discovered in it his old Class Poem, and in "The Lesson of Nature" he fancied he detects the familiar odor of almost forgotten letters.

As a parodist, Dr. Butler is a success, and I call to mind one parody he wrote some months ago on Kipling's poem, "The Lesson":

"It was our fault, and our very great great fault, and not the judgment of heaven; We made an army in our image on an island nine by seven, Which faithfully mirrored its maker's ideals, equipment, and mental attitude. Here it is: "It was our fault, and our very great fault; for thinking he wrote 'great stuff,' And we've boomed a man, an over-rated man, but now we've had enough. We've read his 'rot' in McClure's and likewise in the Ladies' Home Journal

"Till we've rather hoped to hear he'd passed to regions supernal Or else was confined, in durance vile, in a cell just nine by seven, To stay until God, in his wisdom, removes him to hell or heaven. We have tried to believe like the crowd, and think that he is great, But it's like believing that four times four is twelve, and six and three is eight.

"For 'horses are quicker than men afoot, since two and two make four'; By this token, the centipede beats them all, since it has legs a score. It has neither 'rhyme nor reason' and we cannot call it prose. When shall we learn 'The Lesson'?— We are tired enough,—God knows."

All communications, books and periodicals for this department should be sent to the "Bulletin Bookman," P. O. Box No. 4, Koloa, Kauai, H. T.

IF YOU are a WOMAN
 If you have female troubles you must cure them with direct treatment
 There is no female trouble without inflammation. To cure this inflammation you must treat it directly. You must apply to the inflamed organs the healing astringent agent. When you cut your finger do you take medicine for it? If you chop your arm or your foot so that it is raw, do you take a dose of physic? No, you apply directly to the inflamed surface the soothing, healing, cooling elements. Nature does the rest. It is the same with female troubles, womb diseases, painful menses, and ovarian disorders. There is inflammation which must be cured and which medicine taken through the stomach cannot reach. The real cure for these troubles is which is applied directly to the parts and heals promptly and for good. Prairie Plant is the acknowledged and the common-sense cure for the troubles which wreck women's lives. It acts gently and quickly, and its tonic properties are wonderful.

Open your eyes, to the truth! Don't waste your life, and throw away youth, beauty, and strength, by trying to do the impossible. Use Prairie Plant for your deranged organs and you will be grateful always.

At all Druggists, or we will send a full three-month's treatment for $1.00, securely sealed in a plain package. To prove our confidence in it we will send a sample absolutely free.

2. The Production of Sugar in the Territory of Hawaii—Continued.

TEN-INNING GAME.
Hilo, June 12.—The game of ball played by the Beamer Specials and the Tomi-Tomies last Sunday was perhaps the best game ever played in Hilo. There were few spectacular plays and no sensational situations. It was good, clean, first-class work from first to last. The boys played ball with the precision and accuracy of national players. The score at the end of ten innings was 3 to 2 in favor of the Beamer Specials. The errors on each side balanced at five apiece.

The crowd in attendance was large. The grand stand recently erected was filled and the spectators enjoyed the occasion very highly. The game Sunday next will be between the Olaa Athletic Club and the Tomi-Tomies.

The batteries were Williams and Solomon for the Beamer and Crowe and Ludloff for the Tomi-Tomies.—Tribune.

HILO FOREIGN MAIL.
Hilo, June 12.—No foreign mail arrived by the Kinau this week, contrary to expectations. The Coptic arrived in Honolulu Tuesday in time to transfer mail to the Kinau, but she carried none for the Big Island. The Coptic had mail for Maui and the other outside islands.—Tribune.

DIVORCE IS GRANTED

OLD QUESTION OF WHAT IS DRUNKENNESS

"A DRUNKARD IS A MAN WHOSE BUSINESS IT IS TO GET DRUNK," SAYS WAGNER.

Judge Gear granted a divorce to Mrs. E. C. Williams from her husband, Ed. A. Williams, yesterday afternoon, on the ground of failure to provide, stating that other grounds, alleged, desertion and habitual intemperance, had not been proved, the evidence conflicting. The matter of alimony and counsel's fee was taken under advisement until Monday. J. A. Magoon for libellant, Leon M. Strauss for libellee.

The case occupied nearly all of yesterday. In the afternoon Fred. Kiley, bartender, testified to having seen Mr. Williams in a saloon, whither he went ostensibly to take a drink, where, in fact, he did secure a drink. He had never seen the gentleman in question in a state of intoxication.

Undertaker John H. Townsend testified to having employed Williams as an undertaker for a period of five and a half months, during which time Williams had not missed a single day from his duties and had never, to the knowledge of Mr. Townsend, been intoxicated.

"Only on one occasion," said Mr. Townsend, "did I suspect Mr. Williams of having taken a few drinks and then he was not affected so that it made any difference in his work. He was perfectly able at all times to do his work well. No," he stated, in answer to a question by Mr. Magoon, "it is not so that I entered into any agreement with Mr. Williams in regard to his drinking. He knew the establishment he was entering and it was not necessary to make any agreement that he should not drink."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Magoon.

"That ours is a respectable house," was the answer, "and none but respectable men could hope to be connected with it. He left me of his own accord; I did not have occasion to discharge him and would be perfectly willing to take him back to work for me today."

Undertaker Orlando H. Harlan swore he had known Williams off and on for seven or eight years and had never seen him drunk.

Charles Wagner, a fellow lodge member, gave evidence to the effect that he had never seen Williams drunk. He had had a conversation with Mrs. Williams in which he said the wife declared she was angry when she had ordered her husband out of the house.

"Did this conversation occur in the undertaking parlors?" asked Magoon when he took the witness.

"Well, I suppose you might call it der parlor, or der sitting rooms, maybe," was the answer.

"How did the subject come up?"

"I don't know how it came that way around."

"What led up to the subject?"

Mrs. Williams, again on the stand, said she never told her husband to "get out." She said he called at the office one morning and asked for money for breakfast.

"I told him," said the witness, "that she (referring to the "other woman" in the case) ought to have given him his breakfast before he came away. He threatened to leave me. He often made such threats. He paid attentions to this other woman ever since the first year of our marriage. He has been drinking ever since we were married. All my money was invested in the business and I wanted him to get it out of debt. I didn't know what I'd do if he left me. I was even willing to forget about this other woman if he'd stick to business and pull it out of debt."

Mrs. Williams indignantly denied, in answer to Magoon's question, a statement made by her husband on the stand in the morning which had caused confusion among the ladies present in court. She explained that her husband had no excuse for such an assertion except that he was intoxicated at the time of the alleged incident.

"We lived at that time back of the undertaking parlors," said Mrs. Williams.

"In among the coffins?" was asked.

"Yes, in among the coffins. I did this to save money to pay our debts. Mr. Williams and that woman passed me once in the street and sneered. I remarked: 'There goes my ex-husband.' I do not remember if I put my fingers up to my nose. I would not be likely to do that on the street. It is not like me to do that kind of a thing."
