THE CABLE FRANCHISE IS FRIENDLY TO HAWAII

COLONEL SPAULDING'S VIEWS ON THE IMPORTANT QUESTION.

Does Not Think Congress Will Act During Extra Session—Enormous Opposition Against the Project.

"I come back to Hawaii with very little information regarding the cable situation which you do not already know. My efforts are still directed toward the laying of a cable across the Pacific and touching the Hawaiian islands. My contract for an exclusive franchise with this Government will expire the first of May if the Government wishes it to."

Thus spoke Col. Z. S. Spaulding, the owner of the Mokee sugar plantation, in his room at the Hawaiian hotel this morning. Col. Spaulding arrived on the Rio de Janeiro and he will remain in Hawaii for some little time. It has been over two years since he visited his plantation on Kauai.

"I passed through Washington while en route to Honolulu," continued Col. Spaulding, "and while there learned, to my own satisfaction that the present session of Congress is purely a session for tariff. I was told that neither the cable or other questions will receive any consideration at this Congress. However, I have introduced two cable bills, one in each branch of Congress, the others having elapsed by reason of the expiration of the last Congress. My bills were brought in early, they being among the first hundred measures to be introduced. I think that this is pretty good considering the fact that between 5000 and 6000 bills will be placed on the files."

"Have you any encouraging information to reveal to this Government pertaining to the cable?" was inquired of Col. Spaulding.

"I am afraid not. I shall meet President Dole and his Cabinet should an invitation be extended me and give out what information I have at hand."

"Will you make application for a renewal of your contract with this Government?"

"The term of my contract will expire providing this Government chooses it. I have already notified the President that if my efforts have not been satisfactory, that I would be perfectly willing to acquiesce."

"This is a small country," the Colonel continued, "and the success of the cable measure depends almost entirely upon what action the United States will take in the matter. What is asked of this Government in restricting competition in cable lines is legitimate and proper. Half of the lines at present in the Atlantic are losing money and when a cable line ceases to pay it ceases to be a business proposition. Undue competition is worse than no competition at all."

"There is enormous opposition to the laying of a cable across the Pacific ocean. This opposition is made up of corporations which have lines in the Atlantic and other corporations and trusts which do not want to have the Pacific cable laid until absolutely necessary and then they want the privilege of laying the cable themselves."

"About the other companies desiring to lay the Pacific cable I have very little to say. When Mr. Serimegeour, who has a 99-years' contract with the Western Union Telegraph company, says that his company will lay the cable for the public good, some distrust must be placed on this statement because of the corporations with which he is allied."

"I would also add that some of the reports sent out from the Hawaiian Islands regarding the cable and published in the press of the United States has been very harmful. The people down here in Hawaii who want a cable had better do more work and less talking."

ATTORNEY GENERAL SMITH AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

The Audience With President McKinley—It Lasted Twenty Minutes and Was Devoted to Hawaiian Affairs.

Attorney General William O. Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Smith, returned to the city this morning on the Rio Janeiro after an absence of nearly three months in the United States. Mrs. Smith visited friends and relatives in Oakland, while Mr. Smith went to Washington to look into Hawaiian affairs at the National capital.

The Attorney General is highly pleased with things as he found them at Washington and he comes back to report the most favorable views to President Dole and his Cabinet. While there are some matters which will be withheld from the public for the time being Mr. Smith brings back information on vital questions which he cheerfully gave to a Star reporter this morning.

"The tariff is the all-absorbing matter just now," said Mr. Smith. "The special session of Congress is a tariff session and was called by President McKinley expressly for this purpose. The bill passed the House and has gone to the Senate, where I believe it will remain for two or three months at least. The Wilson and McKinley tariff bills lingered in this branch of Congress for about four months, you remember."

"The present determination is not to allow any other legislation at the present session. The cable matters, as well as all other questions, have been cast aside. However, there are a good many members of Congress who say that the present Congress will take up other matters after a little."

"Annexation of these islands to the United States is talked of in Washington. The time that it will be taken up and the manner of its treatment by Congress now depends very largely upon the plan adopted by the Administration and I am fully justified in saying that the Administration is friendly to Hawaii."

"By appointment Minister Hatch and myself called on President McKinley at the Executive building, and, although engrossed with pressing matters of state and office seekers, the interview was quite extended and was devoted exclusively to the matter of the political relation of the islands to the United States. Without quoting anything which he said, it is proper for me to say that his attitude toward Hawaii is extremely friendly."

Mr. Smith says that ex-Queen Liliuokalani and Captain Julius A. Palmer are still in Washington. They are not hurting the cause of annexation a particle.

Lorin A. Thurston will remain in Washington until the special session of Congress adjourns. General Hartwell plans to leave for home shortly, probably early next month. Mr. Hatch and Mr. Hastings are in good health and are doing much for Hawaii and its interests.

VICTORY FOR TRUST.

TOLEDO, O., April 9.—In the Arbuckle-Woolson injunction suit the Circuit Court today overruled the plaintiff's motion for a new trial and granted fifty days in which to file a bill of exceptions. The Common Pleas Court some time ago dissolved the injunction to restrain the defendants from cutting prices on coffee.

FOSTER MAY NOT GO.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Ex-Secretary J. W. Foster, who had an interview this morning with Secretary Sherman and the President, was asked whether he was to go to Turkey. He replied that he had supposed the declaration of the Sultan to create an embassy in Washington made it impracticable for the President to nominate him as Ambassador, and that he had abandoned any expectation he may have entertained about going to Constantinople.

The creation of a special envoy by act of Congress, he said, was an unusual proceeding, only warranted by great emergencies.

THE ASIATIC INFLUENCE SOLID FOR ANNEXATION

THURSTON THINKS IT MAY BECOME SUPREME.

Dilemma Presented to People of Hawaii—Growing Power of the East—Ex-Minister Favors Territory.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—"There are but two futures before Hawaii," said Lorin A. Thurston, ex-Minister to the United States from the island, who is here in charge of the annexation propaganda. "The islands must be annexed to the United States, or Asiatic influence will become supreme. We do not fear any forcible invasion by the Japanese, nor do we fear the forcible possession of the islands by any European country. If we are not to be annexed to the United States the rapid increase of the Asiatic population will swamp up within a few years. This is inevitable from our commercial conditions. The planters are the controlling influence on the islands. If Hawaii is to remain outside of the United States and be subjected to the possibility of high protective duties on her commodities the planters must necessarily protect themselves by employing the cheapest of cheap labor."

"There is nothing between Hawaii and the United States now but a mere treaty, which can be abrogated at any time by Act of Congress. Once in the United States, the planters could afford to pay American rates of wages, because their products would not have to pass through the custom house. So long as they are at the mercy of changing political conditions in the United States they must continue to employ cheap labor. The result will be that, unless annexation comes speedily, the islands will be overwhelmed with Asiatics, who, in the natural course of events, must sooner or later assume control."

"We do not ask for admission as a State, nor do we want it. Annexation on such terms would be particularly disastrous to Hawaii and would give to America an undesirable State. If annexation is to come at all it should be on the basis established in the case of Florida and Louisiana, or on the lines originally laid down for the Northwest Territory."

The islands could be acceptably managed by an appointive Governor, with an advisory council. The islands need not have as much legislative power as is now granted to the organized territories of the United States. We would be perfectly willing to accept the conditions usually imposed upon organized territories, and they would, in fact, be the very best for Hawaii for years to come."

"On the other hand, for the reasons I have indicated, absolute political union with the United States must come at once, or it will be too late to put a stop to cheap Asiatic labor. With annexation we can support hundreds of thousands of prosperous citizens and develop the islands enormously. Without it, American interests there will soon have to be abandoned."

DAVITT ON HAWAII.

CHICAGO, April 7.—Michael Davitt, the Irish leader, who is in Chicago on his way to California, said in an interview today: "I think the conduct of this country in the matter of the Hawaiian islands has been most reprehensible. It should, by all means, annex the islands. The people, with the exception of the Japanese part of the population, desire it, and it is shameful that it has not been done."

STEPHEN H. PHILLIPS.

Death of a Man Once Prominent in Hawaii.

A telegram from Salem, Mass., dated April 8th, announces the death of Stephen H. Phillips at his home in that city. During the sixties the late Mr. Phillips was a prominent figure in Honolulu, and occupied the position of Attorney General under Kamehameha V. Upon the death of the latter he returned to his home in the States. He was a well trained lawyer, a ripe scholar and an excellent speaker, and did some of the best work of his life in these islands. He was seventy-four years of age at his death and left the islands twenty-six years ago.

VALUES NOT TO BE BEATEN.

There are no better values to be found on the islands than at L. B. Kerr's. For bedspreads and curtains we lead the way. Likewise for hosiery, gloves and ribbons. These are positive facts. What are you going to do about it?

THE ADMINISTRATION STRONGLY FAVORS THE SCHEME.

Spaulding's Resolution Sanctioned by President McKinley Before Presentation to the House.

Spaulding's Resolution Sanctioned by President McKinley Before Presentation to the House.

CHICAGO, April 8.—The Chicago Chronicle's Washington correspondent sends the following: "The Administration is heartily in sympathy with the scheme to annex the Hawaiian islands. The movement will be pushed with vigor as soon as the tariff bill is out of the way. The President will send a special message to Congress on the subject, if necessary, but it is believed when Congress takes the matter up it will be speedily settled to the satisfaction of the annexationists without any special interference on the part of the Executive."

Minister Hatch and Attorney General Smith, representing the Hawaiian Government, have been actively at work during the past thirty days cultivating annexation sentiment. They have held frequent conferences with President McKinley, Secretary Sherman, Speaker Reed and the members of the Foreign Affairs Committees of both houses of Congress. They urge that annexation is necessary to save the islands from Japanese domination.

The plan agreed upon for annexation is similar to that followed in the case of Texas. The independence of Texas, like that of Hawaii, was secured mainly through the assistance of citizens of the United States. The movement for the annexation of Texas first took definite shape in the Congress of the United States. A resolution providing for annexation passed Congress in 1845. The President of the Texas Republic immediately called a convention which accepted the resolutions and adopted a constitution which was satisfactory to the authorities in this country and annexation followed.

The plan to be observed in regard to Hawaii is embodied in a resolution which was presented in the House March 29th by Spaulding, of Michigan. It is an exact copy of the resolution which was used in the Texas case, except that the word "Hawaii" is inserted wherever the word "Texas" occurred in the original resolution. The first section of Spaulding's resolution provides that Congress consents "that the territory properly included within and rightfully belonging to the Government of Hawaii, and commonly known as the Sandwich Islands, may be erected into a new State to be called the State of Hawaii, with a republican form of Government to be adopted by the people of Hawaii by deputies, in convention assembled, with the consent of the existing Government; in order that the same may be admitted as one of the States of this Union."

It is provided in the second section that the "consent of Congress is given upon the following conditions and with the following guarantees, to-wit: First, said State to be formed subject to the adjustment by this Government of all questions of boundary or jurisdiction that may arise with other Governments or former Governments of Hawaii; and the constitution thereof, with the proper evidence of its adoption by the people of the Government of Hawaii, shall be transmitted to the President of the United States, to be laid before Congress for its final action on or before the 1st day of January, 1898. Second, said State when admitted into the Union, after ceding to the United States all public edifices and all property and means pertaining to the public defense belonging to the Government of Hawaii, shall retain all public funds, debts, taxes and dues of every kind which may belong to or be due and owing said Government, and shall also retain all vacant and unappropriated lands lying within its limits."

Section 3 provides: "That if the President of the United States shall deem it advisable, instead of proceeding to submit the foregoing resolution to the Government of Hawaii as an overture on the part of the United States for admission, to negotiate with that Government."

When the Spaulding resolution was introduced it attracted little attention, but it has since developed that the resolution had been submitted to and received the sanction of the President before it was offered. It is predicted that the resolution will go through both houses practically without opposition.

WALKER AND HIS RIFLE

THE CONTRACTOR ATTEMPTS TO KILL JOHN EMMELUTH.

The Ball Went Wide of the Mark and Lodged in Timber—Cowardly Attempt to Slay a Citizen.

About 8 o'clock this morning Thomas Walker, the brick contractor, fired a shot from behind the stone wall, near the east gate of the Arlington grounds on King streets, into the third story of the Emmeluth building now in the course of construction on the opposite side of the street. The shot was intended for John Emmeluth, so it is claimed, and Walker is now held at the police station on the charge of assault with intention to kill.

The trouble between Emmeluth and Walker seems to have been the outgrowth of a brick contract on the building, which Walker holds.

Walker had a rifle belonging to the Government, he being a member of Capt. Murrays' company. After firing the shot he emerged from behind the wall, the smoke still issuing from the barrel. He walked through the new building dropped his gun in the back yard and then walked to the police station.

The bullet went through the window sash and lodged in some timbers. It came within about 4 feet of Emmeluth. Tommy Cummins, a brother-in-law of Walker, was standing on the stage back of Emmeluth and might of had a narrow escape. The bullet struck near where two carpenters were working.

It is said that Walker has been drinking of late.

WELL SATISFIED.

L. B. Kerr says that last week's business was highly satisfactory, both from a buyer's and seller's standpoint. The coming week he will offer as many, if not more of the same large variety. At the end of the ad he says: "Don't fail to grasp this opportunity. Chances like this don't come every day. Come early and make sure."

TO BE RETIRED.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Rear Admiral Francis M. Ramsay, holding the most important office in the naval service, that of Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, will be retired on account of age tomorrow.

COST HIM FIVE.

When the Monowai arrived off the City, says a late Call, Hawaiian Consul Wilder had a boat off to meet her, seeking his mail from Honolulu. He was anxious to secure it and his haste cost him $5. The boat hailed the steamer and asked for the Consul's mail. It was thrown over, but landed in the water, and it cost him just five to have the papers fished up for him.

SAN FRANCISCO POLICE.

Patrick Crowley surrendered the office of Chief of the San Francisco Police Department on the 9th inst., and retired to private life. I. W. Lees, his successor, after having taken the oath of office and filed the required bond, assumed his new position, and at once set about arranging his affairs. Ben Bohan has been made chief of the detective forces.

THE JAPANESE QUESTION

CHIEF JUSTICE JUDD ON RECENT EXPULSION OF IMMIGRANTS. Interview With the Head of the Supreme Court—Talks on the Islands and Their Various Industries.

A. F. Judd, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the Republic of Hawaii, is at the Occidental with his wife, en route to the Eastern States on a visit, says a late Examiner.

"I do not think we will have any trouble with the Japanese Government, because Hawaii recently sent home 400 Japanese. They were refused a landing because they did not comply with our immigration laws, which are a close copy of those of the United States, prohibiting paupers, insane, diseased and other undesirable people from landing.

"The annexation spirit at the islands is very strong. In fact, it is generally and strongly desired that the islands may soon become a part of the United States. Times are very good with us. The sugar crop was large, and prices good. Coffee will soon be raised extensively on the islands, and, next to sugar, will be our chief industry.

TALK ABOUT HAWKS.
 THESE FIERCE BUT GRACEFUL BIRDS AND THEIR PREY.

In the Middle Ages a Species of Hawk Called "Noble Falcons" Were Trained Hunters—The Several Kinds and Their Methods of Attack—Can Catch Ducks.

Back in the middle ages, before the discovery of gunpowder, hunting with the aid of the falcon was as common as it now is with guns and dogs. The bird fanciers of those days named a certain group of hawks the "noble falcons." These comprised the long winged hawks, which take their quarry while it is in motion, never approaching it stealthily, but always making a dash for a chance to sweep downward upon the prey.

To the naturalist there are few sights of more absorbing interest than to watch one of these noble falcons while pursuing a chosen victim. Yet it is anything but an easy task to keep an eye upon it, in case it extends its search for a meal over a large extent of country. If, however, the falcon is hunting through an open valley, the naturalist, mounted on a tall tree or building, has a favorable opportunity to watch it, especially if aided by a powerful field-glass. Every motion of the bird may thus be seen to advantage, except perhaps its sudden downward dash when its quarry is discovered.

The smallest of our winged fauna, the tiny "dicky birds," as our English friends call them, the sparrows, wrens and tiny fly catchers, spend the handsome and active sparrow hawk as their most inveterate foe. Almost thrushlike in size, color and easy flight—when not in a hurry—this smallest of the noble falcons is not easily detected until seen at close quarters, but he is almost as sure of his victim as are his larger relatives.

The pigeon hawk, a size larger than the sparrow hawk, is equally swift, ferocious and death dealing. Still more dreaded perhaps by the smaller birds is the sharp-shinned hawk, its larger cousin, the cooper's hawk, is an active hunter of more sizable prey, such as the wild and tame pigeons, half grown barnyard fowls, doves, quails and grouse.

There is really little chance to escape from the onset of these two formidable hunters. Like a swift winged fate, they seldom come but to kill, and the anxious mother bird knows not which of her flock will be taken. These hawks, when not posing aloft, fly silently through the woods, or low over the open fields and thickets, and their presence is seldom suspected until they are right upon their prey. Then comes a swift stroke, a clutch of the long, keen talons, and the "kill" is instantaneous as that of a rifle bullet.

As the undisputed leader of the noble falcons, the very prince of these robber barons of the air, we may name the peregrine falcon, better known in our country as the duck hawk. This dreaded hunter sights a flock, or a single bird, flying so high as to preclude its possible return to the ground before he can reach it. He then actually flies downward, adding the tremendous impetus of his wings to the force of gravity, and thus attaining a speed that the eye can hardly follow.

As he nears the earth he sets his wings, and, without checking his speed, alters by a short curve the direction of his flight from the vertical to the horizontal. Thus sweeping along parallel to the earth, with a speed that the observer compares with that of a cannon ball, he overtakes the ill fated duck—itsself one of the swiftest of fliers—and, with one stroke of its terrible talons, deals the paralyzing blow.

If the duck falls in the water, the hawk, unless unusually hungry, seldom cares to regain it; if on land, he descends to the feast, feeding only on certain choice morsels, and leaving the rest to a less fastidious appetite. Indeed most of the falcons eat only certain portions of their prey, and, as a rule, these are by no means such as human epicures regard as the choicest tidbits.

In regard to the food of the noble falcons, the department of agriculture at Washington, through the labors of the observers attached to the division of ornithology and mammalogy, has made some interesting reports. Among the contents of falcons' stomachs have been found the remains of quails, snipes, woodcock, grouse, ducks, various finches, and even—though in rare instances—swallows and swifts, with now and then king birds and purple martins.

That these two last mentioned, known as exceptionally swift fliers and inveterate hawk fighters, should fall the victims of hawks may be accounted for only in one of two ways—they were either surprised, while at rest by the sudden dash of the falcon, or they were taken when young, before they had attained full power of flight. No hawk or eagle, however swift of wing, could overtake in full flight such darters as the swallow, the chimney swift, or the king bird.

The hawks proper, forming a different group from the falcons, are for the most part shorter winged, and therefore slower and more clumsy. These include the red tail, the broad winged, the red shouldered, Swainson's hawk and others. They are seldom quick enough to capture birds, or even mice, and must content themselves mainly with snakes, toads and the less active of the lizards, together with the larger insects and spiders. Two of this group may be mentioned as exceptions to this remark—the posthawk and the marsh hawk. The last is an especially active bird, as it must be to capture its prey, which consists chiefly of field mice, plovers, snipes and even, at times, wild ducks.—S. Frank Aaron in Philadelphia Times.

Sulphume!

The curative properties of sulphur have been known for ages, but owing to the crudeness of the drug, its use to a greater or less degree has been restricted. The leading chemists of the world have labored for years endeavoring to liquify sulphur in order that suffering humanity might be benefitted. By the aid of electricity this grave obstacle has been overcome.

Liquified

The old fashioned way of taking sulphur with molasses as a spring medicine has been done away with.

This wonderful discovery has furnished us with a preparation that is pleasant to take and positive in its effect.

Everyone is familiar with the name "sulphur," and generally understand that as a blood purifier and skin cure it has no equal.

Sulphur.

Sulphume is not a patent medicine, but simply sulphur rendered liquid by the aid of electricity.

Testimonials from men of such prominence as Dr. W. S. Fowler, Chicago's noted Physician; Nelson A. Miles, General of the United States Army; Rev. J. Hennis, and a score of others, certainly could not have been obtained unless the preparation was meritorious.

SLANDER.

It is marvelous how people will manufacture ill natured and baseless stories about their neighbors and how readily the best of people will swallow and circulate them. The charge of gossiping is chiefly brought against women, and it is true that the fair sex is prone to chatter over the peccadilloes of sinners, but the male old woman is perhaps a more inveterate gossip than any member of the fairer sisterhood.

Much gossip is harmless, and though it does no good, still it does very little harm, except to the minds of those who retail it. Whether Mrs. Smith is extravagant and uses butter where dripping would do, or Mrs. Jones is penurious and uses only one egg when she ought to use four in her cakes, is no great matter. Of course in either case it is Mrs. Smith's or Mrs. Jones' own business and not that of anyone else. Moreover no one is obliged to eat Mrs. Jones' cake. Such things as these are the minor subjects of gossip, and, while not elevating in tone, are practically innocent.

That the islands, being small, are full of such stuff is perhaps not to be wondered. Cut off from the rest of the world for a fortnight or so at a time, like all small communities, they fall upon one another's foibles tooth and nail and enjoy the process.

But there is a far more serious side to gossip. This is slanderous gossip. In no way are people of this class more ready to err than when dealing with the reputation of women. And none are more bitter in commenting upon and in industriously circulating such slanders than those who are known as good women. Without investigation, without thought as to the probability of the charge, it is bandied from mouth to mouth, ever growing as it advances, till it assumes proportions that the originator never dreamed of.

This kind of gossip is outrageous and the law should be so framed that the person injured could have redress both criminally and in the civil courts as strictly as the law allows like redress for printed libel. The effect of such a law would be to close the mouths of many scandal mongers, and to make people who repeat scandalous stories very circumspect as to what they retailed.

Quite recently two cases of this kind have been investigated by those who were the victims of such gossip. In the one case (that of a young lady) she was on the point of losing her position, the stories having been most persistently circulated against her by a fellow worker. Careful investigation proved the accusations to be absolutely false in every particular and the young lady's place was saved. She was entirely exonerated and the fact that she was exonerated was duly recorded. Here was a case where such vicious gossip nearly prevented an honest, hard working young woman from obtaining her livelihood, and it was a case in which a number of people were seriously prejudiced against the unfortunate victim.

In the other case a most scandalous charge was circulated against a young man. His friends took it up and endeavored to trace it to its source. But to each person spoken to, it was always, so and so told me. In this case there was no question of losing position, the charge was at once disbelieved. But it is outrageous that such things can be circulated and no punishment can be inflicted upon those who sometimes heedlessly, more frequently maliciously, retail the filth and noisomeness born of prurient minds.

The average man or woman depends upon the good name and the good character he or she bears. The bread they earn by their skill or their labor can only be earned as long as that good name is retained. To take away that good name or to strive to undermine it, when there is no ground work for the story which is put in circulation is one of the most dastardly things that can be done, and the person who passes on such a tale is almost as criminal as the one who invented it. A strict law of slander would make life considerably more worth living. In former days the laws of the duel kept slander in its proper place, but dueling has gone out and slander now raises its vicious head unmolested.

BROAD EDUCATION.

A contemporary is exercised because so many of our young men take a course at the universities and seems to think that a knowledge of the classics unfits a man for practical life. In point of fact the courses at the universities include a great deal more than Greek and Latin, and without going through a technical scientific course, there is always a scientific side to the classical course and very few men leave the university without a good knowledge of the sciences. The university degree has not prevented three gentlemen, born on the islands, from becoming foremost in the ranks of planters, and a classical education has not spoiled some half dozen or more from attending practically to the management of their own ranches. One classical scholar the writer can remember, who used to do his own ploughing. He is now a wealthy man.

Professor Alexander is a university graduate and under him have been trained a large number of island boys as surveyors. If any one meets those young men when at work on Molokai, or the wilds of Hawaii or Maui, he will decidedly say that they do not belong to the "white shirted" profession. They work hard, have to live roughly and have an excellent scientific knowledge and training.

We have, moreover, those who have been scientifically trained, who have left the flowery paths of science and have entered the "white shirted" walk of the merchant, which, according to the views expressed, must seem a sad waste of talent. Yet because these gentlemen have had a technical education they make none the worse merchants.

The fact is, the broader you make a man's education, the better man you make of him. To confine to classics makes a classic prig, and to confine to science makes a scientific prig. After all, what is done at the universities and technical colleges is to train the brain. That once trained it is capable of taking hold of any honest kind of labor or business and carrying it out in a proper and successful manner. Our island boys show this.

The presence of the U. S. S. Philadelphia in these waters is eminently satisfactory. It shows that the McKinley Administration consider the islands as of such importance that one of the highest officers of the Navy should be stationed here and that the United States should be represented by one of its finest vessels. The presence of the Philadelphia is proof positive of the interest the Republican Government takes in the islands and of its intention to make its influence understood by all other powers. As to what Admiral Beardslee's sealed orders may contain, the future will develop.

The latest news from the Greek and Turkish border is that 1000 Greeks have crossed into Turkish territory and that fighting has commenced. It seems, however, that these are irregular troops which it was impossible for the Greek Commander to hold in hand. But the situation is so strained that even an unauthorized outbreak may plunge the countries into war. It was a chance shot which commenced the battle of Navarino, that ended in the destruction of the Ottoman fleet.

The necessity of closer political union with the United States, through annexation of the islands, is becoming more and more patent to the political leaders of the Great Republic. The main point is, how shall it be brought about. The probability is that the islands will be taken in on the basis established originally for Florida and Louisiana. The quiet assimilation of the islands by Asiatics is a thing that the United States will not brook and a firm grasp must be taken at once to stop it.

Not a Matter of Health.

They were discussing the construction of a new gown.
"From a hygienic point of view and merely as a matter of health," suggested the dressmaker, "I think it should be made"
The haughty beauty stopped her by a gesture.
"Hygienic point of view!" she exclaimed. "Matter of health! What has that to do with it? When I want health, I will go to a doctor. When I want style, I come to you. We will now eliminate all absurdities and discuss this purely from a common sense standpoint. Will it be fashionable and becoming?"—Chicago Post.

Two years ago R. J. Warren, a druggist at Pleasant Brook, N. Y., bought a small supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sums up the result as follows: "At that time the goods were unknown in this section; today Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a household word." It is the same in hundreds of communities. Where ever the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy become known the people will have nothing else. For sale by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., agents for H. I.

National Feed Box.

This box is a perfect device for slow feeding in the stable or on the road. It is a boon to the horse, in that it cures him of the habit of bolting, slobbering and scattering his food, and to the owner in that it saves from 25 to 35 per cent in feed bills, and prevents doctors bills for indigestion, colic, and other stomach troubles. It feeds all kinds of grain, corn in the ear, chopped feed, or bran mash.

This box is made of steel, and is practically indestructible. The follower slides on a Malleable Iron Rod riveted to the box.

A feature is the ease with which it can be cleaned. It is perfectly odorless and healthy, light and portable. The owners and drivers of the fastest horses in the world use and approve of it, as well as the heads of many Fire and Police Departments.

No stable should be without it, as it pays for itself in a few weeks.

Anyone who has traveled in Japan, China or the East Indies knows that there is no more palatable dish prepared than curry and rice, or the many other ways in which it is brought into use by residents of those countries.

The demand is so great that inferior preparations are placed on the market and sold to the uninitiated as the real article.

ALMOST A MIRACLE

THE RESTORATION TO HEALTH OF A PROMINENT MAN.

Worn Out by Exposure and Broken Down in Health He Was in Misery for Months.

From the News, Clarksburg, W. Va. In the interest of common humanity, your reporter has the honor to send you an interesting and profitable interview with one of Harrison County's most highly esteemed citizens, concerning his narrow and miraculous escape from death. The person referred to is Mr. Floyd E. Barnett, of Jarvisville, West Virginia, who is well known throughout Harrison County and other sections of the State.

Mr. Barnett's narrative is as follows: "I live at Jarvisville, West Virginia, was born and raised there, and am thirty-nine years of age. I am a farmer by occupation, and the exposure and hardships incident to this life finally overcame a strong constitution, and in the month of May, 1894, I was seized with what the medical fraternity pronounced sciatic rheumatism.

"The disease was first felt in the hip and soon became severely painful. Within a short time the whole lower extremity was affected and became terribly swollen, and at times the pain which was almost unbearable, extended up into the shoulder. I consulted the best physicians and specialists in the country, some of whom treated me some time, but to no successful purpose. I used various patent medicines and liniments of wide recommendation but none of them gave relief. I worried along this way for some months, being unable to work, and at times unable to move. I became restless at night and could not sleep. The disease seemed to affect my heart and it was utterly impossible to lie on my left side on account of the seriousness of the pain at the heart.

"My condition seemed a hopeless one and I was much discouraged, when by chance I happened to read an account in the Wheeling Independent of the wonderful cure of a person afflicted like myself, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had effected. This was some time in the month of December. I immediately procured a box and began to use them. A change commenced at once.

"I continued to take the pills, until I felt entirely cured. Today I am a well and sound man. The pills not only cured my rheumatism but drove that troublesome pain from my heart as well. For more than a year I have not been troubled in the slightest with either malady, or any other for that matter. I am a strong man and perform as much manual labor as any farmer."

Mr. Barnett is a man highly respected for veracity. His statements are corroborated by his neighbors, and his recovery is ascribed to the use of Dr. Williams' Pills. As he talked to your reporter he showed every sign of being a man in excellent health and only too glad to tell the simple story of how his life was saved by the use of the pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not looked upon as a patent medicine, but rather as a prescription. They have been used as such in general practice for many years, and their success in curing various afflictions without any other medicines was so great that they were prepared in quantities, and placed within the reach of everyone. An analysis of their properties shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, and the tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

The ship H. F. Glade left Bremen on the 4th, bound for this port.

The Wrestler arrived at Port Angeles from Honolulu on the 5th.

The four cruisers now in naval row take up a considerable portion of the harbor.

The big American ship Kenilworth left San Francisco for Honolulu on the 3rd. She will load sugar for New York.

The Kauai arrived from Kauai ports this morning with 7101 bags of sugar. She reports fine weather. No news from Lihue.

Purser Bendell, Chief Engineer Craig and Chief Officer Graham, all of the Monowai, will be transferred to the Moana, the new Union steamship.

The bark Alden Besse sailed for Honolulu on the 4th, with a very large cargo and seven passengers. Capt. Potter is accompanied by his wife, who will make the round trip.

The Pacific Mail steamship Rio de Janeiro arrived from San Francisco this morning after a pleasant run of 6 days 17 hours. She is loaded down to her Plimsol mark with freight for the Orient, and can only take on a little coal here. The Rio will sail for Yokohama at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The Royal Mail steamship Warrimoo, Capt. White, arrived off the harbor about 3:30 o'clock this morning and was docked at sunrise. She left Victoria at 3 p. m. on the 9th, and experienced fine weather all the way down. The Warrimoo brings 80 tons of cargo for this port and takes on coal here. She will sail at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the Colonies.

SALINAS SUGAR FACTORY.

SANTA CRUZ, April 7.—Superintendent Waters of the Watsonville Sugar factory is expected from the East this week, when about 200 men will be put to work on the extension of the Pajaro Valley Narrow Gauge Railroad to the Salinas Sugar Factory site and in preparing land for the erection of the factory.

DID NOT WANT THE SICK.

Editor Star:—Sir—In your paper you stated that Capt. Sakata, of S. S. Kinai Maru, when he applied to custom house for the necessary paper for his vessel before here departure, expressed his willingness to take on board and ship all the rejected immigrants now in the quarantine, including those who were sick. On behalf of Capt. Sakata, who is quarantined on board of his vessel, ever since his arrival and inasmuch as his alleged statement was made through me, I wish to state that the captain never declared his willingness to take the sick men back to Japan. He told Mr. McStocker, through me, that he was ready to take all rejected back to Japan, if the authorities here commanded him to do so. Of course, there is no alternative to offer but to submit to it, unless he wants to be prosecuted. With this knowledge Capt. Sakata, through me, expressed his readiness to take all the rejected back to Japan, but, of course, under protest.

This is the fact, but let me tell you, that Capt. Sakata never alluded to the sick men either to Mr. McStocker or any other person in the custom house.

Yours truly,

C. SHIOZAWA, At Agency of Kinai Maru, Honolulu, April 17, 1897.

SIGNS OF SPRING.

With Spring comes the ever welcome Bock Beer. By the Miuwera the Criterion saloon received a large consignment of the celebrated Bock Beer brewed by the Seattle Brewing and Malting Company.

LETTER FROM MR. SMITH.

To Whom It May Concern:

In consequence of certain damaging rumors concerning me which have lately been circulated, I applied to Marshal Brown for an investigation. The Marshal reported as follows: "Marshal's Office.

Honolulu, H. I., April 16, 1897. S. M. Ballou, Esq., Attorney for Armstrong Smith, Honolulu, H. I.

Dear Sir:—I wish to state that after investigating as far as possible the criminal charges against Mr. Armstrong Smith I find the same to be mere rumors without foundation or facts upon which to base the same, and am strongly convinced that such charges are wholly untrue, and that Mr. Smith has been most unjustly accused of an offense of which he is entirely innocent.

Yours truly,

A. M. BROWN, Marshal of Republic of Hawaii.

As I have been informed by my lawyer that there is no redress for this slander by either a criminal or a civil suit, and as there is no law that can help me to trace the rumor to its source, I hereby publicly state that I shall in the future, without any further investigation whatever, consider anyone who repeats this slander, maliciously or otherwise, as equal in guilt to the person who started the same and I hereby warn anyone who REPEATS it that he does so at his peril.

ARMSTRONG SMITH.

Merit Talks

"Merit talks" the intrinsic value of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Merit in medicine means the power to cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses actual and unequalled curative power and therefore it has true merit. When you buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, and take it according to directions, to purify your blood, or cure any of the many blood diseases, you are morally certain to receive benefit. The power to cure is there. You are not trying an experiment. It will make your blood pure, rich and nourishing, and thus drive out the germs of disease, strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Severe Case of Dyspepsia

"I suffered from dyspepsia 20 years. I had a feeling as though there was a lump in my stomach. I did not dare to eat meat or warm bread, very few vegetables, for fear of the great distress food caused me. I experienced relief right after commencing to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. My appetite increased, I gained in general health and strength. I can eat almost anything now without discomfort. Although I had been an invalid for twenty years, I can truthfully say that I am better than for a long time. I never weighed so much in my life." MRS. EMILY F. GENTLEMEN:—In reply to your inquiry as to how the Ideal Roof Paint you sold me lasted; I would say that I painted the roof of my house 12 months ago with your Red Ideal Roof Paint, and I find it is as fresh and bright in appearance today as when first applied; looking as well as others lately painted with other paints. I am more than satisfied.

J. G. ROTHWELL.

Have you a leaky gutter? If you have, make it perfectly clean and dry, apply a good coat of No. 3 P. and B. Paint over the leaky spots; then take a piece of stout Manila paper, or a piece of common cotton cloth, paint it well on both sides; lay it over the first coat, giving the whole a final coat, and there will be no more leak there. Or if the whole gutter is bad, make it clean and dry, and apply a paste of P. & B. Paint and Portland Cement.

THE FOXY DUCHESS.

HOW SHE GOT A WILLY BOY'S HUNDRED DOLLARS.

Chimmie Fadden Demonstrates That His Life Partner is a Wonder—She Does a Turn as Yvette Guilbert and Then "Does" the Chapple, With Chimmie's Aid.

"But that wasn't what I was going to tell you about. It was about de amateur vaudville show we give at our place in de country for de benefit of de Pepsin Cooking school what is for 't' teach de poor folks how 't' cook terrapin in old wine and 't' lings like fat. Miss Fannie is de president of de club, and Mr. Paul is de boss of de classes. You'd never be tired 't' see Mr. Paul showing de swell loidies of de class how 't' twist de cork onto a bottle widout letting it pop, which, he says, is de most usefulest 't'ing in de world 't' do, and it can only be learned by showin' wid a fresh bottle for each one of de class.

"Well, dey said dat we'd have 't' give a benefit for de Pepsin Cooking school, and all de swell mugs near has a fit wantin' 't' do dere turns at de show. Every mug taut he would make Albert Chevallier look like 't' cent, and all de woin says dey would do a Carmenita turn, except de wily widdy, who says dat she would do a Yvette Guilbert turn. My, you'd never be tired if you'd see how slick dat made de duchess. She said de widdy was having pipe dreams and dat if she had a chance she'd show de swells dat she was herself a good ringer for her friend Yvette.

"Honest, 't'ings do come our way so much dat I wonder we hasn't broke our necks doggin' 'em. On de very afternoon of de show de widdy sends word dat she'd twisted her ankle and couldn't do her turn. "Miss Fannie near has a fit, 'cause all de tickets was sold for five plunks every rattle out of de box, and it was de Yvette turn what had made most of de talk and excitement. De duchess she chases over 't' Mr. Paul's house, where I was givin' him a boxing exercise, and she says she would do de turn if he could fix it so as Miss Fannie wouldn't tumble. Mr. Paul taut a while, and den he says it is dead easy, only dat de duchess would have to wear a dinky veil over her face what would not let de audience tumble who she was.

"Well, dis is what he done: When it comes time for de Yvette turn, he goes out on de stage we had in de music room and says dat, owing 't' de disposition of de widdy, dey was compelled 't' make good wid a professional, who was Mad'm'selle Uta-na-ma, kinder taking a fall out of de last name. Like he didn't quite know it. Say, you'd never be tired 't' hear de way dat duchess goll done dat turn! She didn't do a 't'ing 't' dat and'ence but kill 'em dead. Nobody but Miss Fannie tumbled 't' who she was, and Mr. Paul squared it wid Miss Fannie all right.

"I knowed dat dere was some odder game de duchess would work and dat it would mean boodle, but I never taut even she would have de nerve to do what she done. Dere was a nice little willy boy behind de curtains what was de treasurer of de game and had all de long green de tickets and fetched in. He goes up 't' de duchess and says he's tickled near 't' dent' wid her turn, and she jollies him till he didn't know wedder he was in Westchester county or Hoboken. All of a sudden she says 't' me, 'Me man,' says she, 'I believe you is 't' drive me 't' de station.'

"Yes, lady,' says I, wonderin' what 't'ell, but takin' de cue all right, all right. "Who shall I collect me pay from?' she says, lookin' sweet at de willy boy. "How much is it?' he asks. "Say, you'd never be tired! Dat goll never so much as swallows hard as she says. 'Usual me terms is two hundred, but you has made de evening so charmin' one hundred will do—'I'll donate de odder hundred 't' de charity!' De willy boy digs into his jeans and flashes up five double saw-bucks, which de duchess had just put in her pocket when Miss Fannie comes along and says, 'Hortense,' she says 't' de duchess, 'Hortense, take off your makeup at once, for you'll be wanted 't' help de ladies in de cloakroom.'

"De willy boy gasps, but I gives him a wink, and Miss Fannie says 't' him: 'My maid did well, did she not? You must not tell de secret behind de scenes and let de odder know who she is.' "De willy boy was a pretty good sport at dat, for he brass and says, 'I assure you, Mrs. Burton, I'll say nothing about my experience here,' says he. "And sure he didn't."

"He made good de hundred, and me an de duchess is in town today puttin' something in de bank. "Say, what do you 't'ink of dat goll? You'd never be tired!"—Edward W. Townsend in New York Journal.

His Alibi.

Lawyer—I'll defend you, Sambo, in this bigamy case, but what defense have you? Sambo—I kin prove an alibi. Lawyer—An alibi? How will you prove it? Sambo—By two odder wives what I hab.—Adams Freeman.

LEWERS & COOKE.

What is the Matter With G. & J.?

nothing, we should judge, when almost every customer we have for a wheel wants the same fitted with this great tire, and when other makers of high grade bicycles do their best to imitate it.

Read this. We copied it from a letter picked up on Fort street, the original of which we can show you:

"The XXXXXXXX tires which are going forward on your esteemed order have the corrugated tread, and their appearance is very similar to the G. & J., and we believe that with little effort you will be able to place them on a good footing, especially as the fabric and rubber are intended for warm climates, and we feel sure will last as long as the G. & J. tires."

That shows you the standard. Other makers are trying to get something that "will last as long as the G. & J.," and own up that they are making them with the same corrugated tread, to make their "appearance very similar."

The genuine G. & J. tire made by Gormally & Jeffery is to be had only at the Rambler Agency, and the Rambler wheels, that every prefers to ride nowadays, are equipped with this great tire.

We are the Rambler people. We sell the G. & J. tire.

ONE THOUGHT THAT PASSED.

Out from the silence came a presence grand, Standing one instant clear before my sight. Trembling, I seized my pen, and, dazed by light, Essayed with faithful but unequal hand To give obedience to the command. Which said, as unto John of Patmos, "Write!" Even as I strove, the shining thing took flight And left me with its fullness all unspanned. Abashed and fallen from my exalted mood, I saw the outline of a thought which has No touch of the divinity that sued For human utterance, but found, alas, Only an accent blundering and rude— A jarring discord struck on sounding brass. —Annie L. Muzzy in Youth's Companion.

HERO AND HEROINE.

"Oh, dear! I wish I could be a heroine myself," pouted Rose Pemberton, tossing aside the novel which she had just finished with a deep sigh of discontent. "I'm pretty enough, I'm sure," casting an appreciative glance at the mirror opposite, in which her plump face and curling golden hair were pleasingly reflected, "but nothing ever happens—nothing ever will happen either so far as I can see—that has the least bit of romance in it. Just this same old humdrum life. I'm tired and sick of it. If something startling would only occur! If I could even fall desperately in love with some one!"

Here the low, discontented murmur of Rose's voice ceased, and a faint blush crept into her pretty cheeks as her thoughts drifted away toward a certain "some one" who had never formed a part of that humdrum life of which she had so often and so bitterly complained. Rose had numberless admirers, as the prettiest girl in the village almost will have, and she could recall an almost equal number of flirtations which had served to brighten the monotony of her village life. But they were tame affairs. Her heart had never been really interested for a moment.

As for the grand passion, Rose knew nothing of it save in her day dreams and in the pages of her favorite novels. She had laughed at her would be lovers and declared her conviction that there is no such thing as love in real life.

But of late pretty Rose had secretly begun to entertain a somewhat different opinion on that subject.

A handsome, intellectual face and a pair of laughing brown eyes were the three causes of her change of heart. Yet their owner seemed in no haste to enroll himself on the list of her admirers. Indeed, Rose knew him only by sight, for Wilbur Severance was a stranger in the village. She had seen him in church two or three times, and occasionally on the street, but he had never sought an introduction to the belle of the place, and beyond a passing glance of admiration had not evinced any special notice of her attractions.

Perhaps that was the very thing which had awakened Rose's interest in him. At all events, she often caught herself dreaming of those handsome brown eyes and wondering what she should say if Mr. Severance were ever to tell her the story of love which she had so often heard from other lips.

But there was little danger of that apparently. Rose bit her lip in chagrin as that thought forced itself upon her, even while she was contemplating her graceful image in the mirror, and catching up her wide brimmed garden hat she suddenly quitted the room and the house, and went hurrying down the path with a kind of desperate determination in her heart to get away from the dullness of everyday existence and wring an adventure of some sort from the unwilling hands of fate.

"I'll go down to the river," she said after a moment of indecision at the gate, "and if I can find a boat I'll row about in the most dangerous places I can find. And I hope something will happen. But it won't," she added sarcastically, "unless I upset the boat on purpose."

Turning into the winding road that led out of the village, she soon came to the river and found a fragile shell of a boat dancing at anchor on the waves, as if left there by fate for her especial use.

Rose unfastened the chain and was soon shooting swiftly down the stream, keeping time with her oars to her own restless thoughts.

All at once a sound, breaking the stillness of the scene, drew her attention to the shore, and with that glance Rose's heart gave a mad bound and then seemed to stop beating, for there on the bank, only a few feet distant, busily arranging a pile of fishing tackle, sat the hero of her present thoughts—the handsome stranger with the laughing brown eyes.

And they were quietly laughing at her now, Rose thought, as a blush of confusion dyed her cheeks.

The sudden start she gave jostled one of the oars out of her grasp, and, reaching to recover it, the "something" which she had so recklessly wished for happened, for the next instant, to her disgust, she found herself overboard and floundering about in the water, looking as a little like her ideal heroine as could well be imagined.

Mr. Severance hastened at once to her rescue, and when he had brought her, pale and exhausted, to the shore, Rose, glancing shyly upward, saw those brown eyes, no longer laughing at her, but full of a grave anxiety that thrilled her heart.

"I am not at all injured," she said, replying to that look, "and I hope my boat isn't, for I must try my luck with it again by starting home at once."

"But your strength is quite exhausted," he said decidedly, as she rose slowly to her feet. "I shall row you back to the point from which you started, and then, if you will permit me, I shall accompany you to your home. I really think it unsafe for you to go alone," he added, seeing the tide of crimson that swept back suddenly to her white cheeks.

Rose offered but faint objections, and thus began the acquaintance which was destined to prove so eventful to both.

And Rose was happy. It was just in the flush of her happiness that Rose met at a village hotel, whose landlady's daughter was one of her friends, a lady who had come there hoping to regain her lost health.

Pale and delicate, but still very lovely, was Caryl Stewart, and very soon she and the village belle were fast friends.

"My physicians say that my ailment is consumption," said Caryl Stewart one day, smiling a slow, sad smile that went straight to Rose's heart, "but I know better than they, Rose, I know that I am dying of a broken heart. Some day I will tell you. You will come in again tomorrow!" she questioned, lifting her dark eyes with a wistful look.

"Oh, yes," returned Rose, with a bright smile. "I will come in any day—every day, Miss Stewart."

She was thinking of that conversation when Wilbur Severance came to see her later in the evening.

But she could not remain melancholy long in his presence now, particularly as he had come for the express purpose of asking for her hand and heart.

Rose had often pictured this moment to herself, and she had honestly resolved to be all sweetness and sincerity to this man, whom she loved with all her soul.

But—how it was she could never tell—somehow her old willful spirit of coquetry seemed to take possession of her all in a moment, and she laughed, teased and evaded her lover's questioning with a persistent willfulness that amazed herself.

"I will answer you tomorrow evening," was the reply which he finally coaxed from her sunny lips. "I must have a little time to reflect upon so dreadfully serious a matter, Mr. Severance."

But there was that in the happy, laughing blue eyes that belied the willful lips, and Wilbur Severance went away with a cheerful heart in spite of all.

The following day Rose paid her promised visit to Miss Stewart, and it was then that the invalid made her a confidant.

Caryl Stewart had been betrothed, when scarcely more than a child, to a youth but little older than herself.

The arrangement had been made entirely by the parents of the two.

But as they grew older, with a better understanding of the situation, Caryl realized that her whole heart was involved in the matter, while her fiancé proved indifferent and finally rebelled outright against the bonds which he had no part in creating.

In her pride Caryl had granted him his freedom, though she broke her own heart by doing it.

Other suitors she had had, but she would never love again to her dying day.

"And that will not be far off," she ended pathetically, "unless I can win his love. And I don't quite despair of doing that yet, Rose, away from all rivals and free from the businesslike fetters that once prejudiced him against me—more than all when he realizes at last that his love and only that can save my life. Do you think, dear little Rose, that my hope of yet winning him is such a wild one, after all?"

"No, indeed, I do not, Miss Stewart," she earnestly replied. "I don't think he could help but learn to love you did he know all the truth. If he could be here to see you!"

"He is here, and I have met him several times, though he doesn't know the mad hope that brought me here—as yet. I have merely told him that I came here for my health. I think you know him also, Rose," she added slowly, watching the girl's face from beneath her long, dark lashes. "His name is Wilbur Severance."

"Wilbur Severance?"

One moment Rose's little hand was pressed tightly over her heart, and her very breathing seemed to cease.

Then she spoke, almost in her usual steady tones.

"Yes, I know Mr. Severance. We are quite good friends," she said. "And I think he will come back to you yet, Miss Stewart. Indeed I am—am almost sure he will."

And rising quickly she murmured a few parting words, then touching her cold lips lightly to Caryl Stewart's brow, hastened from the room.

"Oh, why didn't I tell him 'Yes' at once last night when I loved him so!" cried Rose in anguish of heart as she hurried home. "Then it would all have been settled and nothing could have changed it, but now!"

Her resolve was already taken, and when Wilbur called that night, she gave him his answer promptly enough. It was "No."

"You cannot mean, Rose, that you have deliberately intended to deceive me!" he cried. "Surely no woman under heaven could have a heart so hard and false as that! Do not trifle this time, Rose. Whatever your answer is now, it must be your final one."

"It is final," she answered steadily. "I shall regret the loss of your friendship, but I can never be your wife, Mr. Severance. That is my deliberate, final answer."

"And I hurled back the lie in the teeth of all those who tried to warn me against you for what you are—a soulless coquette," he said with a bitter laugh. "I might have saved my happiness, but I would not, and—well, I deserve my fate for being such a fool."

He turned on his heel to go, but Rose stepped quietly before him.

She held a small basket of fruit and flowers in her hand.

"I should like to ask you to do me one little favor," she said coldly, not seeming to have noticed his bitter words. "I have a friend at the hotel which you will pass as you go home. She is ill—very ill indeed—and wish to send her these. I presented, but as I could not go myself, I must ask you to take them for me—and this note," she added, offering it. "Don't refuse, please; she will be so disappointed. And if you will kindly take them up to her parlor yourself—I never trust these things to the careless servants there. It is the only service I shall ask of you," she added, with a half pleading little smile as she saw him hesitate.

Of course he had no choice but to accept the trifling task, and with a cold, distant bow he took both basket and note from her hand and went his way.

And when the door had closed behind him, Rose sank back into her chair and sobbed until her heart was ready to burst.

"I have sent him to her, and surely she can find some way to win him back again," she moaned as she thought of the desolation she had brought upon her own happiness.

How long she sat there weeping Rose never knew. But ages after, so it seemed, a step sounded beside her, and Wilbur's own voice was tenderly calling her name.

"Look up, my Rose, and let me tell you what has happened," he was saying sadly, yet with a deep undertone of joy in his loving voice. "I executed your errand, and before I could leave Caryl in some way made me understand the state of her feelings toward me. You know the whole story, Rose, so I need not repeat it. Then, in my pity for her and my bitter anger toward you, I was weak enough to offer to renew that old engagement. I need not tell you that she eagerly accepted, and then, in her joy or the agitation of the moment, she fell to coughing severely and ruptured a blood vessel. Yes—in answer to Rose's horrified cry—she is dead now, my darling, but not before she had made me understand the sacrifice you tried to make for her. She knew that you loved me, Rose. And now I shall not ask you for that answer, dear. I shall take it thus," and he kissed her quivering lips.

"My love—my heroine!" he heaved proudly.

Rose had never once thought of it in that light. But no one now ever hears from her sweet lips that old time, foolish wish.

"Oh, if I could be a heroine!"—Dublin World.

Delicate Dishes.

If you get your money's worth you get your money back. We do not sell goods that are not worth the money. We buy right. That's the first thing. You buy right when you buy from us.

Lots of good things to eat on the Rutenbeck, and they came to us. From us they go to you at the lowest prices you ever heard of. Copeland's English Peas are a delicacy not often found in this market. We have a stock of them, and they have proven to be the finest ever sold in Honolulu.

English packers also put up another delicacy for the table: Cod's Roe. These fried in cracker or bread crumbs cannot be detected from the fresh article and they make a delicious entree. The price of the goods is nothing compared with the quality.
