FLEET HAS STARTED FOR HONOLULU

MORE TROOPS TO BE SENT TO HONOLULU

By J. A. BRECKONS.
(Special Correspondence of The Star.)
WASHINGTON, November 14.—As previously indicated by cable, at least one regiment of field artillery and another of infantry may be ordered to Hawaii in the immediate future, and those who are keeping tab on the War Department say the order may be looked for any day. Troubles in the Far East and the general condition of unrest prevailing in China, it is said, has caused the state department to see the necessity for placing a considerable body of troops at Hawaii. It is known that a number of serious conferences have been held between officials of the State and War Departments within the last few days, and that the order for the immediate departure of a considerable military force to Hawaii may be issued forthwith.

The departure of General Murray on the transport Thomas sailing from San Francisco November 6th, for the ostensible purpose of inspecting the new Department of Hawaii, is regarded as really a visit to finally determine the expediency of sending the additional troops there at once. It is believed here that upon his report will depend the early movement of the troops, and that unless local Hawaiian conditions unknown here warrant delay, the General will favor the increased garrison without any.

CHINESE HOLD FLAG-RAISING

If Chinatown in Honolulu figured as a material factor in the revolution coming to its climax in China, then a cablegram hence would be due at the republican headquarters in Peking, or wherever the chief headquarters be, saying:
"Honolulu is solid for the revolution."
So anybody would say who looked down King street at noon today, and saw the sidewalk on both sides overflowing into the carriage way with people of the Flowery Kingdom, horn or descended, cheering wildly amidst a dense cloud of blue smoke, while overhead, also on both sides, from many flagpoles flew the ensign made for the expected Flowery Republic.
One of these flags, a size larger than any of the others, was flying—after 12 o'clock struck—over the clubhouse of the United Chinese Society. Beneath it on the balcony a crowd of the best people of the Celestial colony cheered lustily, their huzzas being echoed by thousands of throats from the ground below.
A terrific banging and crackling of bombs and firecrackers was kept up all along the street for several blocks. There were 50,000 crackers to explode, so it may be believed there was some noise.
It was the raising of the republican flag on the building mentioned, for the first time, which was the occasion for the demonstration. This was resolved on at a meeting last night and the flag went up at noon sharp.
As if history was repeating itself, this flag-raising was directly across King street from the spot where the late Tim Murray had organized, through the Annexation Club, a great flag-raising of the Stars and Stripes—the biggest flag and the highest pole Honolulu knew figuring in the ceremony—in the stirring days of the P. G.

William Yap Kwai Fong, secretary of the U. C. S.—he who made the neatest speech at the Hands-Around-the-Pacific banquet to Percy Hunter—had the honor of hauling the halliards whereby the republican ensign of China rose to the sky. The lifting of the ball by the banner was the signal for the fulminating and fuliginous salute and the roiling plaudits of the multitude.
Besides Mr. Fong the entire executive committee of the society was assembled on the balcony. Those present included such well known Chinese business men as Young Kong Tat, Loo Joo, L. Koon Chan, Chang Chow, C. Akana, Chung Pak Sun, Cho Kan Sun and many others.
It was expected to keep up the demonstration, if only desultory, all the afternoon and have it culminate in the great muster at Ala Park for the torchlight procession at six o'clock.

Professor Thompson Finds Wrigglers Are Breeding in Oil Barrel

Editor Star: Mosquitoes are joking. Mosquitoes have a sense of humor that we have been overlooking. Mosquitoes are adapting themselves to conditions, hence they are evolutionizing—may even be the coming race.
While oiling breeding places three weeks ago, I noticed that wrigglers did not die promptly under the crude oil used by the city inspectors as they do under kerosene. In fact, I found wrigglers that appeared to be as vigorous after twenty-four hours under the oil as they were before the oil was applied.
Then some of our teachers found wrigglers living in the catch basins along our roads. These roads had just been oiled and there was a good coating of oil over the water. These things set me to wondering and to experimenting. I got wrigglers in a glass jar and covered the water with crude oil. Three days later they were still alive and vigorous, and I threw them out, thinking there was something wrong with the experiment. For days afterwards I failed to find other wrigglers or to get the mother mosquitoes to deposit eggs in a breeding place I had prepared for her.
Last week I succeeded in getting eggs and now have a fine colony of wrigglers to use in experiments.
But this morning the joke appeared. We had several barrels of crude oil left over from oiling our tennis court.

ONE MURDER, TWO SUICIDES, AND A FATAL ACCIDENT, IN TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

A wave of crime, suicide and accident has swept Oahu during the past twenty-four hours, a murder, two suicides and a probably fatal accident having been recorded.
Yesterday afternoon a Japanese laborer murdered a countrywoman in a canefield near Waialua.
From telephone reports it appears that the murderer quit his work in the morning and went in search of a former mistress who was employed by the plantation and who was working in the fields.
He found her eating lunch with another woman and attacked her with a long-bladed knife. Her companion ran away screaming, and spread the news of the deed.
A posse was organized but no trace of the murderer could be found.
Murderer Hanged Himself.
Deputy Sheriff Oscar Cox telephoned Sheriff Jarrett this morning that the body of the Japanese murderer had been found this morning hanging from a tree near the scene of the tragedy. The culprit had committed suicide.
Sheriff Jarrett will proceed to Waialua this afternoon to conduct an investigation of the affair.
Another Suicide.
Frank B. Smith, well known locally, and living at 1919 Aloha lane, shot himself yesterday in an outburst near his home, a revolver being the weapon used.

No one seems to have heard the report of the gun and the act was only discovered when the daughter of the deceased returned from work in the afternoon. Mrs. Smith and an elder son were at work when the shooting took place, having left the house early in the morning.
Deceased left a note in the house stating that the cause of the deed would be found in another place, though just what was meant by that is uncertain.
Smith was a bookkeeper by profession and also did some collecting.
His suicide is attributed to despondency, for he has been in indifferent health for a long time past and has been unable lately to find regular employment.
He leaves two sons, a daughter and a widow. He had made his home in Honolulu for the past twenty-five years.
The inquest will be held at 7:30 p. m. today.
Fell Down Hold.
This morning about 9:30, H. Quinn, a seventeen-year-old apprentice aboard the British steamship Beckenham, met with an accident which is "Your Honor is as much bound by the rules of this court as the humblest litigant and cannot set aside a rule to accommodate the deputy of the attorney general," Mills declared.

This motion and a supplemental answer filed just before 1 p. m., are to be argued, if the judge will take them up at 10 a. m. on Thursday next.
Dr. Currie, who leaves for other parts this afternoon, was, by agreement of parties, examined. He testified that the respondents had

The matter of injunction proceedings brought by Harry T. Mills against the banana cutters came up in the circuit court this morning before Judge Whitney.
There were a number of witnesses on hand, including Mr. Goodale, from Waialua.
Deputy Attorney General Sutton filed a motion with the court and asked that it be heard at once, Mills sprang the rules of court, which provide forty-eight hours' notice of any motion or similar proceedings, and objected to the court going out of the regular course of procedure in order to accommodate the other side.
He stated that the respondents had

KEWALO LOTS ALL INSPECTED

Yesterday afternoon the Board of Health officials completed the task of condemning the Kewalo lots, and all that remains now is to ascertain the names of the various owners, and to notify them that the work of filling in the low-lying lands must start at once.
The Attorney General has the numbers of the lots condemned and he will find out from the tax office and other sources, the names of the property owners.
Portions of the big Bishop and Ward estates will have to be filled in, and there are many other lots to be worked on. The Superintendent of Public Works said this morning that he was waiting for word from the health board. As soon as he is notified that any owner has neglected to fill in his lot, the Superintendent will let contracts to do the necessary work. The owners will have, in the long run, to pay for the filling in.
The numbers of the lots that were condemned yesterday are as follows: 139, 138, 137, 136, 135, 134, 133, 132, 81, 84, 85, 86, 91, 92, 94, 95, 96, 117, 112, 114, 115.
The lots are all marked on the maps and the Attorney General finds out the owners' names from other sources.

SICK NATIONAL GUARDSMAN AT KALIHI BEING WATCHED

It was announced this morning by Governor Frear that a member of the National Guard, at present on duty at the Kalihi yellow fever infected district, is laid up in bed with what may be dengue or the more deadly disease.
The man is isolated in a mosquito-proof bed, and he is being closely watched.
"The guard was taken ill at one o'clock yesterday afternoon," said the governor. "He never said anything about the matter, and stayed on duty till six o'clock in the evening. The doctors saw him last night. There were three medical men in attendance, namely: Drs. Blue, Pratt and Moore. The patient's temperature was high yesterday, but is lower today. His pulse and temperature fluctuate together, and when one is high the other is the same.
"It is possible, in fact likely, that the disease is dengue. In the earlier stages of mild forms of yellow fever it is almost impossible to tell the difference between yellow fever and dengue.
"The patient has been on guard at

Mayor-Elect Rolph Getting Into Step For His Big Work--Another Waterloo For Union Labor--M'Carthy's Effrontery

By ERNEST N. SMITH.
(Special Correspondence of The Star.)
SAN FRANCISCO, November 15.—San Francisco has two mayors at the present time. One official mayor—who in a good deal of a joke, and the coming mayor, Rolph, who has already established offices, and begun to gather the newly elected officials about him to prepare his organization to get into step the very day they actually and officially take hold of the municipal offices.
For Rolph is a man who does things, and generally does them right. Though elected he doesn't take office until January 8th next. He won't get paid a cent for the work he is undertaking now, yet he has already rented his offices and moved in, taking the rooms in the Merchants' Exchange formerly occupied by the Panama-Pacific Fair Company before they moved into a whole building of their own.
As Rolph explained it, "until January 8th next this will be my private office; after that date this same room will be the mayor's office until the new temporary city hall is ready." And

Empaneling a Jury For Cederlof Murder Trial

The trial of John A. McMahon, who is charged with the murder, on September 28 last, of Alexander N. Cederlof at Lohobua, was begun in the United States district court at ten o'clock this morning. Twelve jurors were passed for cause by the prosecution, but at twelve o'clock, when court adjourned until two o'clock, only one had been passed for cause by the defense. Present prospects are that at least all of today and probably most of tomorrow will be taken up with the selection of a jury. The case has attracted wide notoriety through the newspaper accounts of the killing at the time it occurred, and it is somewhat difficult to obtain twelve men who at present have no opinion regarding the guilt or innocence of the prisoner who are not for some other reason disqualified.
It is evident that the trial is going to develop into one of the hardest legal battles that has ever been fought out in Hawaii. The prize in the game is a man's life, the forfeit, his death. Upon the decision of the twelve men who shall ultimately be selected to pass upon the evidence and return a verdict will, in all probability, depend whether Sergeant John A. McMahon shall walk out of the court room a free man or shall go from the tribunal either to the death cell and the hangman's noose or to imprisonment for life.
The staging of the play—for it is more or less of a play, only one man being in the position of regarding it merely vitally—was not especially elaborate. The courtroom filled up with venturers, smokers, joking and laughing. The attorneys at their tables scanned the possible jurymen inquiringly, made rapid notes with their pencils, laughed and joked with one another and the newspaper men.
By and by a little woman dressed in a white shirtwaist and black skirt, wearing a wire-brimmed hat, her face

CONTEST RECORD CONTINUES TO GROW

The records of a number of contestants have grown materially since the count of Saturday, although their relative places in the list remain the same. Miss Arnold still holds the lead by strong majority, and even increased it by several thousand. She is awfully confident of getting the $750 cash first prize offered, but a number of the other candidates have by no means conceded it to her as yet. Fred Turrill, who holds third place, declares that he has not really got started yet, and that in the next two months he will have something to show that will make all present records look like thirty cents.

The votes of Maui and Hawaii mailed on the 18th, will not reach the Star office until tomorrow. It is expected that several contestants from these Islands will substantially increase their records.

It is still not too late to enter as a candidate for the splendid prizes which the Star is offering for subscriptions, and this fact is realized by a number of new workers whose names have just been sent in. The contest is not more than a third over, and even the best workers have not more than made a fair start.

Miss Malanie Coleman, is one of the new workers. She is a teacher in the Kohala Girls' School, and has many friends on all parts of the Big Island. She will doubtless be a formidable opponent not only to the contestants of Hawaii, but to the Honolulu candidates as well.

A report reached this office this morning to the effect that one of the Honolulu workers had nearly 100,000 votes pledged which he expects to turn in later. Of course the management of the contest cannot prevent any contest from securing promises from friends and holding them till they see fit to turn in the subscriptions. But THE STAR is not a party to any concealment in the standing of workers, and under the rules of the contest will be obliged to refuse credit for subscriptions bearing date prior to the 18th of November, when all votes secured were called for by the first general count. From time to time other general counts will be called for, and it will be imperative that all subscriptions received up to these dates announced be turned in.

NATION LOSES GREAT DOCTOR

Dr. Rupert Blue, chief of the sanitary and mosquito campaign, was very shocked to hear of the death of Surgeon General Wyman. When seen this morning Dr. Blue paid a high tribute to the deceased medical officer.

"In the death of Surgeon General Wyman," said Dr. Blue, "the world has lost one of its greatest leaders in medicine. Surgeon Wyman built up the magnificent Federal quarantine system, which has never allowed diseases of epidemic character to enter the United States.

"Wyman was the father of the movement for international sanitation, aiming especially to clean up the Mexican Gulf ports of yellow fever.

"He established a sanitary bureau of Pan-American Republics at Washington, Mexico and Central America went into the movement, Vera Cruz having been cleared of yellow fever. In domestic sanitation the late chief was a leader and his loss will be felt all over the world.

"I feel that I have lost a friend indeed, and the whole world will mourn the death of Surgeon General Wyman."

BLONDES GETTING SCARCER.

Scientists are taking a gloomy view of the future of the blonde. Not only are fair people becoming fewer, but, if this is not a paradox, they are also becoming darker. The future promises to bring us nothing more interesting than the "whitey browns" of humanity.

To preserve our blondes is scientifically possible, but their continuance would make an end to the progress of civilization. All or nearly all the conditions of modern life tend to encourage brunettes. Before many decades have passed there will probably be only rare examples of women who are divinely fair, and their position may not be as enviable as the charitable are inclined to expect.—Lady's Pictorial.

Morning Cable Report

CITY OF MEXICO, November 21.—War orders have been issued for the mobilization of 25,000 troops along the United States border for the prevention of any efforts which may be made in the north for another revolutionary movement.

It was the anniversary yesterday of the commencement of the revolt under General Francisco Madero, now president, and the day was celebrated generally throughout the country.

EL PASO, Tex., November 21.—Word has been received here that two troops of the Fourth Cavalry have been ordered at once to proceed to the Mexican border on patrol duty and to prevent the violation of the neutrality laws.

WASHINGTON, November 20.—General Duncan, in command of the United States troops on the Mexican border, has been ordered to enforce the neutrality laws vigorously.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., November 20.—General Bernardo Reyes today denied that he had violated the neutrality laws and was released upon bond of $10,000.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., November 20.—The revolutionists are agitating revolt, and the situation is serious.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—All diplomatic relations between Persia and Russia have been severed and the situation is asserted to be serious and a clash of arms hardly to be averted. Persia has appealed to the powers against Russian aggressiveness, requesting that all controversies between the two countries be submitted to The Hague tribunal.

The Russian demands on Persia are that it apologize and pay a heavy indemnity in connection with the seizure of property of the deposed Shah's brothers.

Unless these demands are complied with at once it is stated that Russia threatens to seize the provinces of Gililan and Mazindran.

HAKU, Trans-Caucasia, November 21.—A troop steamer left this port yesterday for the Persian border transporting a full regiment of Russian infantry with their field equipment.

TOKIO, November 20.—A summary of the various reports received today from Chinese sources indicates the early abdication of the Emperor through the action of the Regent. Hourly the situation for the throne grows more desperate and it appears that now there exists practically no hope for preserving the Manchu dynasty in power.

WASHINGTON, November 21.—Surgeon General Walter Wyman, chief of the United States Health and Marine Hospital Service, died in this city yesterday from the effects of a carbolic ole.

Records of Annual Walking Competitions On Kalakaua Avenue

The fourth annual Kalakaua Avenue walking race set for the 17th inst. is attracting considerable attention among local pedestrians and a large entry is looked for.

The first race was held on January 17, 1909, and was won by Dick Sullivan, his time being 15:35.

The second race was held on December 19 of the same year, Sullivan again winning, this time in 15:10.

The records of the three past races follow:

HEALANIS WILL GIVE LOCAL HITS

"The Banana and Its Enemies" will be the title of one of the songs to be rendered at the Healanis minstrel entertainment at the Opera House December 7 and 9. It will be strictly local in its application and will undoubtedly create amusement, as it has been adapted by a well known writer from a popular song. In addition to the songs of local character there will be numerous jokes.

Mr. Cunha will have another rehearsal with his thirty-five members of the company at the Opera House at half past seven this evening. As the boys are enthusiastic he has no thought of a fall down in any part of the show, so it is bound to be the biggest success the Healanis Club has ever pulled off. From a promotion standpoint, the members feel, it is as worthy of support as the trans-Pacific yacht race, the difference being that the Healanis will give something better in return for the money paid for tickets.

STARS WILL MAKE DEBUT

A game of baseball will be played on Sunday morning on the Atkinson Park diamond between the Hawaiian Star nine and a team made up of the employees of Lewers & Cooke. The game will start at nine o'clock. There will be a series of the best two out of three games.

This will be the first appearance of the famous Star nine this year and their work will be watched with a great deal of interest. This team has only lost two or three games during the past four seasons and it was their all-round playing which left them the undisputed champions of the newspaper league, the terms of the other local papers disbanding rather than face certain defeat at the hands of the invincible Stars.

Lewers & Cooke's nine will furnish the Stars with a little practise on Sunday and will whet the latter's appetite for more prestigious prey. Wow!

NOVEL LONDON SPEED TRAP NETS LARGE SUMS FROM UNWARY AUTOISTS

Exchange: At Barton-on-Trent on Tuesday ten motorists were summoned for driving at a speed dangerous to the public, fines being imposed as follows: Ivor Worrell, Tennyal road, Harborne, Birmingham, £1 and £1 10s costs; John Howard Cooper, Tamworth street, Lichfield, £1 and £1 12s 6s costs; William Percy Webb, Birmingham road, Lichfield, £1 and £1 10s costs; Thomas Stanley, Corporation Cottages, Exning road (previous conviction), £2 and £1 12s costs; Sidney Griffiths, Rushe Hall, Dunningham, Wolverhampton, £1 and £1 12s costs; William B. Harris, Len Crescent, Leabrook road, Birmingham (six previous convictions), £3 and £2 10s costs; Thomas W. Blimfield, Balsall, Heath road, Birmingham (previous conviction), £2 and £1 17s costs; Frederick Parkes, Phoenix Works, Aston Brook street, Birmingham, £1 and £1 13s; Alfred C. Lach, Blyth street, Ladywood, Birmingham, 10s, and £1 12s costs; Richard L. Moore, Thames View, Woodline avenue, Kingston-on-Thames, £1 and £1 9s costs.

W. H. Broton, who prosecuted, said the apparatus used was very simple, and actually impossible to go wrong. It was fixed up in court, and could be viewed by the magistrates or the defendants if they so desired. It consisted of two wires between a couple of batteries, and the line was fixed over the section covered by the cars, in these cases a quarter of a mile in length. An officer was stationed at each end, as as a car arrived a button was pressed twice, which rang a bell at the other end, giving the second police officer notice that the car was about to enter into the section. As soon as the motor actually passed the officer the button was pressed once, and at the same time he started his stop watch. The man at the other end also started his watch simultaneously, and when the motorist arrived he pressed a button, and both watches were stopped. So well had the electrical apparatus worked that 750 had never varied more than two-fifths of a second, and sometimes only one-fifth. The benefit of all this was given to the defendant. No proceedings had been taken where the speed was less than twenty-five and one-half miles per hour. The piece of road was known as Barton Turns, and with the exception of two of them, all the motorists were coming from Lichfield. He would like to state that although there was a law restricting motorists to a certain speed, the police in that county winked their eyes at the rate traveled, except when it was dangerous to the public. There was a danger signal on each side of the bridge, one sixty-two and the other sixty-seven yards away, so that the defendant had a clear warning. These traps were never laid except where there were several complaints from residents in the particular locality. The county did not wish to stand in the way of persons rightly using motor cars, every facility being offered them.

LOOKS LIKE STAR BATTLE

For many angles the biggest prize fight that has taken place in England in years will be that between Jim Driscoll, English featherweight champion, and Owen Moran. It is to be held December 2, at Birmingham, Moran's native city, and preparations are being made for the battle upon much the same scale as for a world's championship affair in the state. And in respect at least the two will be very much alike. Exchanges say the men in charge of the Driscoll-Moran affair are having tickets printed that are the exact replica of those for the Johnson-Jeffries mill. Nothing of that sort has ever been seen in England. There will be accommodations for something over 17,000, and the price scale of seats will run all the way from five shillings to five guineas, the latter being, of course, the price for the choicest box and ringside seats. The building itself will be 260 feet long by just about one-half that width. Although the boxers are to make weight the affair is not for any title. Driscoll has already gone into active training. The featherweight champion is, as usual, at Cardiff, while Owen Moran is quartered at Malvern.

The bout is to be refereed by Eugene Corri, and Corri's very innocence in the ring will give it any tone it might otherwise lack through being staged outside of London and the National Sporting Club. Mr. Corri, by the way, is recovering from a very serious accident sustained week before last while spending a week-end with friends at Dalwich. In stepping out, as he believed, from one of the rooms upon the lawn, he mistook the French window and fell a distance of fifteen feet into the area below, and since then has been confined to his bed most of the time.

YALE'S SWELL NEW STADIUM

The stadium which Yale proposes to build will be the largest in the world. According to the preliminary plans the structure will hold 70,000 persons, or twice the number of the Harvard stadium. Unfortunately it will be impossible to commence work earlier than next summer, so that the arena will not be complete before 1912. Next year's Yale-Harvard game, therefore, will be played on the old Yale field. This will mean that next year each Yale graduate will be limited to one ticket, instead of two, as this year and three in previous years.

BLACK CHAMP FREE MASON

Anything to do with boxing or relating to a boxer causes a commotion among the "good people." For instance, Jack Johnson's recent indication as a Free Mason at Dundee has raised a ripple in Scottish Masonic circles. Press dispatches relate that the Marquis of Tullibardine, as head of the grand lodge of Scotland, presiding at a solemn meeting to consider the case, ordered that the provincial grand lodge of Forfarshire be requested to investigate all the circumstances.

It is stated that everything connected with the nomination and installation of Johnson was carried out in proper form, the only irregularities being a hurried summoning of the meeting and a subsequent changing of the hour of assembly to suit Johnson's convenience. The lodge members' attitude toward the grand lodge is defiant, it being said that Johnson, though colored, is every bit as good a man and as good a Mason as any Scotsman, and that he cannot be expelled anyway, although he might be prevented from advancing in the mysteries of the craft.

SPORTDRIFT

Roy Kenny, the boxer, is reported to be ill in Sydney.

Bud Mars and Captain Baldwin have offered to make two fights each day of the eight days' Manila carnival for $8000.

Football among freshmen has been made compulsory at the University of Wisconsin.

The Y. M. C. A. round-up will take place on Saturday night.

Sam Hop is getting into fine shape for the walking race on the 17th inst. and will make a good try for the special prize offered for the first Chinese contestant to finish.

MAN AND HORSE RACE.

At Dublin yesterday a large crowd witnessed a ten-mile race on a grass track between Michael Moran's trotting mare Kathleen and P. Pagan, the pedestrian.

Pagan received eighteen minutes' allowance and covered three miles one furlong in that time. He was caught 700 yards from the tape and beaten by 300 yards in 58 minutes 35 seconds.—London Daily Mail.

A FORTIFIED JAMAICA.

There is no more need of regarding the creation of a British fortified naval base at Jamaica as an unfriendly act towards the United States, due to American fort-building at the Atlantic end of the Panama canal, than there was of Great Britain regarding the fortification of Oahu as a hostile move towards Canada. Where a power has a large commerce to protect she naturally builds a naval base convenient to it, if she has a location; and as the Panama canal will concentrate a part of British commerce on a route near Jamaica, what more natural than that the British government should make that island a secure place for maritime refuge and a safe place for naval gathering?

While it is very likely that Great Britain and the United States will never fight again, there is nothing certain about eventualities. A wise power makes ready for the unexpected. And in line with that, no one can say that the canal will always stay in American hands. Take a hypothetical case! Suppose the canal were captured from us by a great naval and military power which aims at maritime rivalry with England! In that case, but for a fortified Jamaica, Great Britain would be put at a disadvantage and might have to take second place among her own West Indian possessions.

These are considerations which justify the British in turning Jamaica into another Malta. America has nothing to fear from this policy and there are many who will look upon it as an additional safeguard to the Monroe doctrine which is only questioned by England's rivals and which, since it was invented by Lord Canning, has been more than once been cheerfully recognized by the British government.

THE CHINESE REORGANIZATION.

The first steps towards parliamentary government in China were taken four years ago after a travelling commission had reported on the political systems in vogue in Europe and Japan. The National Assembly, a merely advisory body, was opened by the Prince Regent last October. It was the purpose to withhold the power of initiative from the Assembly for seven years, but agitation for a shorter interval led to a reduction of the limit to four years. Last Christmas an imperial edict directed the constitutional bureau to draw up provisions for a cabinet, but not until the verge of the present uprising was a full organic law provided and a cabinet chosen, of which Yuan Shih Kai is now premier.

Yuan played fast and loose with the political leadership after the revolution began, and his acceptance now is a surprise to those who regard him as a mere opportunist. It seems to have convinced many that he has had private assurances of European support in the last extremity, else he would not have taken up with the otherwise losing side. It is of course possible, however, that he has allied himself with the Manchus in order to betray it and that, in the end, he will be found among the reorganizers.

So far, five governments exist in China and it may prove impossible to get them together under one republican form. There is none of that homogeneity which is the binding power of free states. Each province has a dialect of its own. The upper classes and the lower ones speak differing tongues or differing forms of the same tongue. There are few means of intercommunication; there is no common news service. The people are only groups of cousins, not loyal sons of a common mother country. If one republic can be made from such material and hang together it will be the miracle of modern politics.

THE SANITARY COURSES.

No one will particularly care if lilies are cut down as but few of them are grown and their cup-like flowers hold water as the up-and-down, absorbent banana stalks do not. No doubt householders who have lilies will destroy them without putting the task up to the authorities. A hint is given that commercial bananas will follow, but there is a belief in some official circles that the spray which Dr. Blue said would be sufficient will be used instead of the hatchet. Soggy gutters ought to go anyhow.

What is needed and waited for and what the people are supporting in theory and are eager to sustain in fact, is the attack on the large breeding places, the swamps and marsh farms. These are where mosquitoes grow "in millions," as the health men said the other day. It isn't the case of one wriggler to every five hundred plants, but of five hundred wrigglers to every square inch of stagnant water; and so long as small results are sought instead of large ones the people are naturally impatient. To cut down shrubs around a quagmire and leave the quagmire strikes them as misdirected energy in a good cause.

A HISTORICAL FIND.

The societies of the American Revolution will be interested in learning that copies have been made of the muster rolls of the American Tories and that these will be added to the society archives. There are 22,000 names on the rolls, many of which may show applicants for membership in the Revolutionary societies, who have traditions that their forefathers fought in the Revolution but cannot prove it by the patriot muster rolls, on which side those worthies really warred. Many an American descends from a Tory and has been brought up in the belief that his forebear was one of the ragged continentals instead.

The story about the royalist rolls is interesting. As told by the librarian of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, Dr. C. E. Godfrey of Trenton heard of the existence of the rolls in Canada, where it appears they were carried after the Revolution by the muster master, General Edward Winslow. The owner was an Episcopal rector in a small village. Doctor Godfrey got Governor Stokes, of New Jersey, interested, and armed with letters from him and several other prominent persons in official life he went to Canada and saw the owner. The latter would have nothing to do with the matter. Then, in despair, Doctor Godfrey got a letter of introduction from Bishop Scarborough of New Jersey, testifying to his good faith and his standing. The Canadian clergyman at once melted, and permitted the copying of the rolls; and, more than that, even permitted Doctor Godfrey to take them away with him.

"At the last meeting of the Council," says the librarian, "it appropriated the money, which will be between $2000 and $2500 for the purpose of having the copies made."

"The rolls include the loyalist troops raised in every province from Canada to Florida during the Revolution. While we are mainly interested in those in Pennsylvania and her immediate neighborhood, we are having the whole muster rolls copied. The result will be about thirty volumes, although when they are printed the compass will probably be considerably less. The reason there are so many is due to the fact that the British muster rolls were made semi-monthly. These papers include the names of officers, non-commissioned officers and privates. In Pennsylvania there were raised seven regiments of loyalist troops. They were called regiments, but there were comparatively few to a regiment. There were two regiments of light dragoons from Bucks county, two from Philadelphia and two from Chester. Then there was one regiment from Philadelphia, known as the Roman Catholic Regiment.

"The dragoons from the three counties were organized under Lieutenant Colonel Watson into a squadron, the captain of the Philadelphia Dragoons being Captain Richard Hovenden, of the Chester County Dragoons, Captain James, and of the Bucks County Dragoons, Captain Thomas Sanford.

"The collection will be the most important contribution to the history of the Revolution we have yet had, and will open up an entirely new vista, giving the names of many Tories, who heretofore have been unknown as such, the published lists of Tories having been almost entirely composed of the names of merchants who sided with the King in those times."

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

I don't care what the weather is—let all kinds be invented! Let zephyrs zeph or blizzards bliz, I shall be contented! All kinds have their peculiar joys to please the soulful native; naught atmospheric e'er annoys the man appreciative. When BE GAY atmospheric e'er annoys the man appreciative. When ANYHOW joys sun-shine is on file I find it most entrancing; I kick my heels and run a mile and do some song-and-dancing. When rain is pouring from the eaves, in endless torrents flowing, I watch the wet and sodden leaves, and say: "The wheat is growing!" This plan of thinking of the wheat when days are soaked and soggy, brings consolation full and sweet—just try it when you're goggy. When winter days are stark and dour, I seek my chimney corner, and read "Nick Carter" by the hour, "Old Sleuth" and "Johnny Horner." When earthquakes jar this footstool loose, or cloudbursts swamp the cities, I put my photograph in use, and grind out playful ditties. All weather is the same to me, and each day is a dinger; I'm happy as a bumble bee that has a patent stinger.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

ADJUTANT KLUGE—Yes, I am still with the job on the mosquito campaign. I don't know when I will be returning to my regular position.

L. L. McCANDLESS—The banana order has destroyed one-eighth of the food supply of Oahu. To say that nine-tenths or one-tenth of the people like it is an affront to common sense.

W. T. POPE—One teacher is supposed to look after thirty-five children and no more. Should there be thirty-six children in a class, some people would perhaps like an extra teacher for the one unit.

B. F. DILLINGHAM—Leaving out the question of the danger of yellow fever, I consider the present mosquito war to be of the greatest importance. In other words, it will be worth $10,000,000 to Honolulu should the present effort result in the extermination of the mosquito.

DR. BLUE—It is easy to tell the different species of mosquito wrigglers. They all assume different positions in water; some hang perpendicular, while others assume an angle of forty-five degrees. Still others, on account of their short "siphons," lie horizontal in the liquid.

SUPERVISOR KRUGER—I don't like the way the citizens' committee is acting with us. We never bargained for cleaning up a street of the mosquito campaign garbage only to have the same street piled up again with more right away. I am going to speak to Chairman Dillingham about this. On Sunday we had 120 men out cleaning up and the committee fell down loading the scows. It is too much to expect, anyway, that the road and regular garbage equipment should be placed indefinitely at the disposal of the citizens' committee, to go over and over the same routes as long as the gangs choose to turn out new rubbish. This is like riding a free horse to death.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ONE IN 1000 IN BANANAS. Editor Star: As statements made by entomologists to the Anti-Mosquito Campaign committee have been suppressed, passed over as of only academic value or denied, and the advice of entomologists is no longer requested, I beg to be allowed to make a few statements as to entomological facts.

It is easy to see that no entomologist has been consulted by the publicity portion of the committee, or so many mistakes would not have been made. Yesterday Dr. Hobby, before the Teachers' Association, stated that there was still doubt whether the early experiments with mosquitoes and yellow fever in the West Indies were made with S. catopus or S. scutellaris. The following are facts up to 1910, and I have seen no statement since then to upset them.

The geographical distribution of S. scutellaris is as follows: British India, Upper Burma, Siam, Penang, Perak, Selangor, Singapore, Christmas Island, Ambioina, North Borneo, Sarawak, Celebes, New Guinea, China, Hongkong, Formosa, Japan, Philippine Islands, Fiji, Pitcairn Island, Seychelles, Mauritius and Hawaii.

This we see that this species is confined to the West and South Pacific, and certain portions of the Indian ocean, and is not known in the West Indies. There can therefore be no doubt as to which of these two mosquitoes were used in the early experiments.

Again, Dr. Hobby stated that in those days the difference between these mosquitoes was not recognized. I must point out that S. scutellaris was described by Walker in 1859; Culex fasciata in 1805, by Fabricius, and the same insect was redescribed by Meigen in 1818, under the name of Culex catopus. These dates are years before the experiments in the West Indies.

Again, Dr. Hobby sneered at the efforts of entomologists to find S. catopus in the mountains, saying that it only existed in the town, forgetting that the first recorded specimens of this species in the Hawaiian Islands was taken, in 1892, by Dr. Perkins, fifteen hundred feet up in the Kaala mountains.

The statement that "There is no physical or scientific reason" to believe that S. scutellaris can or cannot carry yellow fever would be rash if made by one who had made a deep study of the physiology of the insect and had not actually experimented to that the new building on upper Market street will be ready before next February or March.

The election of last week has left the laboring element rather dazed, so completely and effectively have the labor officials been voted out of office. There is scarcely a man-jack left anywhere, Andrew Gallagher being the only supervisor of strong labor tendencies and he is one of the really big men in the labor world, one who is generally respected wherever he is known. One of the ironies of the campaign was the elimination of Michael Casey from office. He fell far below the required number of votes to put him in the running for supervisor, yet a few short years ago he was one of the strongest men in San Francisco. Casey is a typical example of the shrewd Irishman who gained popularity by which he lifted himself into power, but who was not shrewd enough not to misuse the power vested in him. He tried to run affairs with too high a hand and has suffered the penalty.

Casey came into prominence some years ago when he led the teamsters' strike in San Francisco and gave the employers and citizens a fight that they will not soon forget. A born organizer he fought well, and so effectively that he gained the admiration of even his enemies, and in the reorganization of city government after the Schmitz-Ruel regime he was given prominent positions in the city government and finally became head of the Public Works Department. Had he attended to business he would probably have been as strong as ever, but he turned his energies into political activities of a low order and has been thrown over by the men who formerly voted for him.

The amusing part of the ousting of McCarthy is his brazen effrontery in claiming that the people were fighting Union Labor rather than McCarthy, when as a matter of fact Ralph would not have run up the vote he got had not the Union Labor vote in greater part repudiated McCarthy and his followers. McCarthy in an attempt to maintain his position in labor councils claims that he sacrificed himself for Union Labor and its principals, intimating that he could have been elected had he accepted the propositions capital made to him, but he preferred to go down to defeat rather than sacrifice his principals. Union Labor, at least the best elements of it, repudiated McCarthy, preferring a new city government to the labor government as expressed in McCarthy. And it is a fairly safe prophecy to make that Union Labor as a whole will be better looked after, that the laboring man will be more prosperous under the Ralph administration than he ever was with McCarthy in the saddle.

There was a conference in the Governor's office this morning, with regard to the Punchbowl tract. The new streets have been determined upon and the next step is to lay out the blocks. Owing to the varied assortment of all kinds of shaped lots, that at present exist, the laying out of the new blocks will be a slow undertaking.

Dr. Donald H. Currie, who leaves for the mainland this afternoon, called on Governor Frear this morning to say farewell. The well known medico was presented with a gold watch yesterday by the Citizens' Committee. The timepiece was presented as a token of esteem and appreciation of the work done by Dr. Currie, during his administration of the mosquito campaign.

A man said to be a relative of Senator Cullon of Illinois has been held in the San Francisco jail for five years without legal warrant, as all the papers in his case were destroyed in the great fire of 1906.

If all breeding places are to be abolished then every tree or plant that is capable of holding half an ounce of water will have to be eradicated; this will include algaroba, royal palm, and many other beautiful trees and plants. Entomologists have insisted that this campaign is not one of three months' activity, and then we have finished with mosquitoes, for mosquitoes have never been utterly exterminated over any large area. If we could entirely exterminate mosquitoes we could also do the same with insects troubling our crops, but all we hope to do in these cases is to reduce their numbers. By properly directed efforts, and a system of continuous efforts we can reduce our chances of yellow fever (even if S. scutellaris is capable of carrying it), and other diseases, and also make life in Honolulu more comfortable.

Our thanks are due to all those whose efforts are directed to this end, whether they be doctors, entomologists, or non-scientific residents.

SOCIETY

OVER THE TEACUPS. By Meg Negley.

It is said of the French that they have manners but not manna. Perhaps it may be said of the American that they have virtue but not grace. A story is told of a French lady who was a lady and a maid par excellence at the same time. In the old days she was a French woman in the world, the Frenchman abroad like a woman, from the little strip of dry land and pushed the lady into the water. This woman, or potential chaperon, was beyond criticism, but his mother.

In contrast to that was the action of an American in a street car. The trolley was crowded. A woman entered laden with packages. Neither hand was free to hold on. The attendant, who seemed most implacably with every jerk of the car. The man was holding his teeth and making most unpleasant noises in the process of holding them closed to his satisfaction. When he saw the woman, he took a sudden interest in her vacant seat, grabbed a strap and continued his operations with the toothpick. He was an example of virtue without grace.

This is a trait characteristic of the American. Nearly every family owns to some member who does his duty. But, oh, how ungraciously he does it! He would die before he would sell in his duty, but with what set teeth and grim face he performs it. One would almost rather have it undone, than face daily such a countenance in the doing of it.

The man who so kindly but ungraciously gave his seat to the sort who will pay his wife's bills uncomplacably, but never tell her he loves her nor buy her a bunch of flowers or a box of bonbons. He will slave for her year in and out but she may have all the material comforts, but he will never do any of the little graceful things that are the flowers of life.

There is many such a really dutiful daughter in homes. She would not for the world be neglected in her duties to her parents, but she goes about all the little offices of duty with the grim sense of duty so covering with its key look all selfishness and fuss, that she brings little joy into her parents' lives, even with all her dutiful ministrations.

Virtue is good, but without grace is still better. We do not do less good by doing it gracefully, but rather the more. To clothe the good in a beautiful form is to make it all the more impressive. Even Nature teaches us this truth. The roses are so fragrant, so beautiful and delicious, but they do it by way of a glow of blossoms that are more the less beautiful because in due time they will fall into decay.

One need not, in order to produce the fruit of good deeds be barren of beauty in the doing of it. The manner of the Frenchman is charming. The heart of the American is all right. But for perfection, one wants the beautiful manner and the good deed. Virtue and grace need to go together to make the most beauty in life.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE TEACHERS

Yesterday afternoon the annual meeting of the Teachers' Association was held in the Royal school. Dr. Rupert Blue attended the meeting and made some interesting remarks on the method of exterminating mosquitoes.

"If the children are taught from infancy what to do in order to fight the mosquito, a great deal would be accomplished toward ridding Hawaii of these pests," said Dr. Blue.

W. T. Pope, superintendent of public instruction, assured those present that the teachers were doing their part in the campaign. They were studying the latest methods in hygiene and sanitation, also imparting all they know to the children, and the instruction was bearing fruit.

Ex-Governor George R. Carter and Dr. Marshall also spoke on the subject.

The annual election resulted in Miss Ziegler becoming president of the Territorial School Teachers' Association for the ensuing year. Mrs. F. W. Carter was elected vice president and Miss Benn of the Normal school, secretary and treasurer.

THE THEATERS

MUSICAL COMEDY COMPANY IN THE "FLYING DUTCHMAN."

More plot and less comedy than any of the previous plays is what may be said of the "Flying Dutchman," which was the offering of the Hughes Musical Comedy Company at the Bijou last night.

The scene is laid at the Republican Central Club, where placards are posted conspicuously asking for votes for Dicky Davis, Hanawaki and Charley Aehl, which lent local color to the play which centered around efforts of the Dutchman and his Hebrew friend at finding their lost sons. After being floored by an adventuresome and buying wine, or rather being forced to buy wine as liberally as if

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
Absolutely Pure
The only baking powder made from Royal Grape Dream of Tartar
No Alum, No Lime Phosphate

It were water, and going through some funny situations, they find the son, but then the question is whose son it is—the Dutchman's or the Hebrew's.

The musical part of the program made up for what was lacking in comedy. The comedians Le Blanc and Stanhope were good and their eccentric dancing and instrumental selections as entertaining as they were unique. What they had to do they did it well. Miss Edwards, in the role of the adventuresome, played her part acceptably, and her song, "My Honey Man," was quite a hit. Mr. Leonard wasn't in very good voice last night, but was well supported by the chorus.

A little less singing and more gauding by this clever dancer would be an improvement. Miss Guy in her "Oceanic Roll" song repeated her former success, with the able assistance of the chorus in the form of eight able sailor boys. This little woman is a great favorite.

C. C. Lydston as the jockey and the waiter, and incidentally the lost son, had quite a lot to do and did it well. His rich baritone voice was heard to advantage in his rendition of the "Ideal of My Heart."

The following was the musical program:
Opening chorus, typewriters.
"I've Got Your Number," Miss Guy and Mr. Lydston.
"Oceanic Roll," Miss Edwards and chorus.
"My Honey Man," Miss Edwards and chorus.
Solo, "The Ideal of My Heart," Mr. Lydston.
"The Band Boys," LeBlanc and Stanhope.
"Yankle Doodle Girl," Mr. Leonard and chorus.
Finale, chorus.

The Empire.
The Empire had three vaudeville acts last night—Madame Lloyd, the operatic singer; Clair and Clinton, the sketch team, and Veulette and Old, the mystical pair, made it a very interesting program. They were all well received by the large audience, as there was variety enough to please all. The pictures showed comedy and pathos and wound up a very strong bill.

Mayor Fern's veto of the resolution taking money from the county road districts for the Nuuanu avenue work will be voted on by the supervisors tonight. Governor W. F. Frear delivered an interesting and instructive address in Cooke Hall, Y. M. C. A., last evening on the subject of "Religion in Business."

County Engineer Gera is quoted as saying the Kahului bridge can be rebuilt for $1500 instead of $8000 as Supervisor Low said its mere repairing would cost. Don't fail to see the handsome leather handbags and purses for ladies at Hawaiian News Co. These were ordered specially for the holidays and have just been opened. There will be a reception at Kaula-keolan Children's Hospital on Saturday next from 1:30 to 5 o'clock, in observance of the second anniversary of the institution. In its two years the hospital has proved that it came into existence to fill one of the greatest needs of Honolulu. There will probably be a meeting of the Land Board on Friday afternoon. There are a few minor matters to be attended to. Land Commissioner Judd this morning said that he thought a meeting would be called for Friday. A couple of applications for small lots of land are to hand, and these will be decided upon at the meeting.

ONE MURDER, TWO SUICIDES

likely to prove fatal. The vessel is lying at the Inter-island coal wharf and Quincy was putting on a hatch. He stepped on a beam which tilted with him and precipitated him to the bottom of the hold, a distance of about thirty feet. Word was sent to the police station and the patrol wagon was sent to convey the injured man to the hospital. Examination showed that both his legs and his collar-bone were broken and that his skull was fractured. At last reports he was still alive but was not expected to recover. Quincy is a native of England and has been with the Beckenham for two and a half years. Nearly Drowned. On Sunday night a Korean employed as a watchman on the railroad wharf in some way fell into the water. His cries for help resulted in his being pulled out by the crew of the Lurline, which steamer was lying close by. The man was pretty nearly all in when rescued and was taken to the Queen's Hospital. He has almost entirely recovered from the effects of his impromptu bath.

FIFTH AVENUE WORK ADDITION

Mr. Ellsworth, contractor with Waiwale, Kaimuki and Palolo Improvement Club for opening Fifth avenue with a ten-foot wide roadway a distance of 600 feet from Waiwale road, has put the work through in shape acceptable to City and County Engineer Gera, who considers it a good job for the money, $500, granted to the club by the supervisors. As the road ends, however, in a pile of rock forty feet wide at a cross street on the map, it is proposed that the supervisors authorize an extension of the contract, which is at the rate of eighty cents a running foot, to carry the road across the cross street mentioned and for sixty feet along the latter toward Sixth avenue. This would be a matter of only eighty dollars, while opening a serviceable road to several lots, and Chairman Dwight of the road committee will probably bring in a resolution tonight to appropriate the money. Supervisor Low is looking into the question of doing something for Ninth avenue, Kaimuki, on which there are several rather fine houses beyond the block from Waiwale road which is the only part of the thoroughfare as yet passable for vehicles.

MORE TROOPS

ing for the construction of barracks. The plan of the War Department, in the event the order is issued, is to quarter the additional troops in tents. It is urged that this plan would give the troops additional tactical experience, as the tent quarters would force them to maintain practically campaign equipment. Maneuvers consisting of forced marches overlaid, it is pointed out, would serve to season the troops and put them in good training and fit for the war game. The ideal climatic conditions of Hawaii makes the plan agreeable to both officers and men. Hawaii's strategic location is being more and more urged as a reason for making it the base for a large number of troops, and in military circles the opinion is growing that ultimately the War Department will quarter there at least four regiments of infantry, a regiment of cavalry, a regiment of field artillery, and the necessary tactical and auxiliary troops.

CHINESE TORCH PARADE TONIGHT

This evening the Chinese revolution supporters and sympathizers in Honolulu will hold a street parade, with two bands of music, torches and other modes of demonstration. Starting from Aala Park at six o'clock the procession will march on Beretania, River, Hotel, Nuuanu, Pauahi and River streets, then on Beretania, Liliha and King streets back to the park. There will be three marshals, namely: Young Kwong Yat, manager of Kwong Chong Lang Company; Cha Wah Kwok, editor of the Liberty News; and C. K. Ai, manager of City Mill Company. At a meeting last night the United Chinese Society adopted the Chinese republican flag as its ensign.

CLEAN-UP WORK COMING ON WELL

Dr. Blue and his force are doing good work in the cleanup campaign, and today 733 men are employed on the job. Twenty-five extra men were put to work this morning. Five, who were relieved from duty in apana 3, have been laid off. No kicks have been registered so far, and only information is sought nowadays. This afternoon Fred L. Waldron, Adjutant Kluge and Senator Chillingworth will visit some more banana plantations. In every case where the trees are to be cut down, a value is set on them by the appraisers, and then the work is some ahead with.

One banana grower at Waikiki is debating whether he will remove his house or allow his bananas to be cut down. "It might be cheaper to move the shack," is the way he sums the situation up. There were a few men hanging around the headquarters of Dr. Blue this morning. Every day some men turn up hoping to obtain employment. Dr. Marshall is working with Dr. Blue, and Adjutant Kluge is still on the job. P. Pereira has filed a claim for $300, as he values his five hundred trees at that amount. "Everything is running smoothly," remarked Dr. Blue this morning, "and the hauling of the banana trees and rubbish is going along all right."

Settlement With Supervisors. With regard to the complaint of Supervisor Kruger, in a little interview today, Chairman W. F. Dillingham of the citizens' committee said at noon today: "The supervisors and the lieutenants are going to work out a scheme for the cleaning up of the town, whereby the working over of the same ground a second time will be avoided. Notice will be given to residents of different sections to get their staff out once for all, so far as the special cleaning is concerned. Every day more volunteers are coming in for the furnishing of teams for another clean-up next Sunday. Whether to have this extra clean-up will not be decided until Friday."

Lee Hoy, an employee of Perkins' photograph gallery, who for many months has been under arrest on one federal charge or another, was freed from custody this morning. United States District Attorney Breckons moving that the charge against him, that of having committed bigamy, be dismissed. Lee Hoy was at first hauled up as having some knowledge of the operations of the opium smugglers. He insisted, though, that he knew nothing about them, and stuck to his denial. Shortly afterward he was arrested for violation of the Edmunds act. This charge was later dismissed, as he had married the woman, and then he was arrested on a charge of bigamy, the government claiming that when he married here he had another wife in China. That was several months ago, but, although the case was several times set for trial, it was always postponed. Finally, this morning, his attorney, Lorrin Andrews, insisted that it be disposed of. United States District Attorney Breckons then stated to the court that a short time ago he learned from a Chinaman recently returned from the Coast that the wife whom it was claimed the defendant had in that country had died about a year and a half previously. He, therefore, moved that the charge be dismissed and the prisoner discharged from custody. The motion was granted.

BULING REPEATED Judge Clemons this morning rendered a decision in the Mitsunaga case. Following his ruling of yesterday in the Kuehimotobara case he dismissed the demurrer filed by Attorney A. L. C. Atkinson. The demurrer was based on the same grounds as the motion to dismiss in the Kuehimotobara case, namely, that the alleged offense having been committed on a military reservation, the Federal court did not have jurisdiction. Judge Clemons, in the Mitsunaga case, ruled that the court does have jurisdiction in such cases, so the overruling of the demurrer in the Mitsunaga case naturally followed.

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS OF THE HONOLULU CHURCHES

Editor Star: The layman's missionary movement placed some statistics of Honolulu churches in a prominent place in the Y. M. C. A. a few weeks ago, which were rather suggestive. The statistics gave the number of members of seven different denominations, the church expenses, home missions, foreign missions and per capita donations of each denomination. These figures are from the tabulated data they seem, for some of these denominations receive aid from missionary societies which would show a different ratio in church finances.

These figures are from the tabulated statement hung in the Y. M. C. A. hall during the layman's conference. A little extra figuring and one may get the per capita expenses of each denomination, and in five instances out of seven the per capita expense of each congregation. The Portuguese Protestant church contributes $5.55 per capita for church expenses, and the Hawaiian churches of three congregations $5.82 per capita. The Episcopal church, with five congregations, comes next with an expense of $8.52 per capita. It costs the Methodists $11.55 and Central Union $14.35 per capita. The Christian church spends $18.75 and the Lutheran $35.29 per capita.

There are regular church expenses, not including any donations to either home or foreign missionary societies. The Portuguese Protestants manage to run their church on $514 a year, and the Methodists require $1702. The Christian church, with a membership of ten less than the Methodists, requires $2625, and the Lutherans, with twenty more members than the Methodist church, require $6900. The Episcopal church, with its five congregations and a membership of 1086, requires $9255, while the Hawaiians, with three congregations and 1152 members, require but $6723, and Central Union, with fifty-six members less than the five congregations of the Episcopal churches, uses $14,782. According to the figures presented at that time, thirteen congregations, having a combined membership of 3,826, contribute $41,623 for church expenses, $36,411 for home missions, $8,570.93 for foreign missions. Of the total amount paid for foreign missions, Central Union church pays $7,655, or a little more than 85 per cent. The Protestant Christian churches contribute $87,014.53 each year in connection with Christian work, $78,043 for work in this country, church expenses and home missions, or $29.29 per capita.

Another figure given out by the layman's movement was that to evangelize the world within this generation would require $2.50 per year from every Christian in the world. Suppose Christian Hawaii should use the money it expends on itself for one year for the evangelization of people who know nothing of Christianity? At the rate given by experts of the layman's movement, 31,217 heathens might become Christians, or eight heathens for each church member. Isn't it strange that a community which has had Christianity for such a long time, where practically every man, woman and child on the islands has heard of Christianity and could practice it if he wished; where schools, kindergartens, hospitals, asylums and so many institutions are open to all classes of people; where Sunday schools are filled with children and grand-children of Christians, that we require so much assistance to keep ourselves going.

Someone suggested that the amount spent on keeping this Christian community going for a generation would, if wisely expended in foreign lands, convert a large proportion of the heathen world. It won't do to shut up shop just yet. X. Y. Z.

MONEY FOR SCHOOL LIBRARIES IS BEING CAREFULLY EXPENDED

It will not be long now till all the public schools of the Territory are sent their allotments of books for their libraries. The books comprise all sorts of volumes, and, while fiction is not forgotten, most of the subjects dealt with are elements of geology, elementary lessons in zoology, geography and other interesting matter. The distribution of the sum of money apportioned to each county, among the several schools of that county, is based on the following: A primary pupil, one unit; a grammar pupil, two units, and a High or Normal school pupil, four units. The sum of thirty-six hundred dollars is available for school library books, and over twenty thousand pupils will reap pleasure and instruction from the volumes. In all school libraries some books which are helpful to the teachers in carrying out the required course of study are to be found. Such works as Constock's Manual for Study of Insects, Tarr & McMurray's Geography, Le Comte's Elements of Geology, Classic Myths and other books are to be found on the shelves at the schools. Inspector Gibson left for Hawaii this morning in the Mauna Kea. He will inspect the schools of Hamakua and be away about a week.

WEEDING OUT ORDER. An order has been received from Washington to General Macomb repeating a former one, which directs him to report to the division commander the names of all officers, both under his command and on detached duty in the Department of Hawaii, who are unfit for field service. It is thought to have some bearing on the matter of sending troops to China.

PLUCKY GIRL RESCUES EIGHT MEN FROM BURNING DREDGE

Miss Annie Martin, known to seafaring men the world over and to all who have entered the port of Savannah by sea as the Waving Girl, because of the fact that she salutes every incoming and outgoing vessel that comes to this port with a waving lantern or a waving handkerchief, is the heroine of Savannah today because of her splendid work yesterday in rescuing men who were on board Dredge 15, belonging to P. Sanford Ross, which burned to the water about eight miles from Savannah, says a recent press dispatch from Savannah, Ga.

One man, Eugene Augusta, a Porto Rican, lost his life in the fire, but the thirty-one others were saved, and eight of these owe their lives to Miss Martin, who rescued them on a pontoon which they had cut away from the dredge and upon which they were being carried rapidly to sea when she went to them in a launch and, getting a line attached to the pontoon, towed it back to her home at Tybee light.

After rescuing these men Miss Martin, aided by her brother, saved the others from the marsh where they had climbed, reaching it by the pipe line that led from the dredge.

Crew of All Nations.
The crew of thirty-two men included Americans, Swedes, Norwegians, Spaniards, Porto Ricans and Greeks, few of whom speak English. Two Savannah boys, however, Carl Olson and John Brennan, were aboard. Olson, like the others, escaped barely with his life in his underclothing, having hastily snatched up a blanket from his bunk before jumping to the small pontoon, from which he and seven men were rescued by the Waving Girl.

First Assistant Engineer John J. Douglas testifies to the heroism displayed by the Waving Girl. He says they were thankful indeed when they saw her steering the launch toward them as they were sinking in the marsh. "You can just give her all the credit," said Mr. Douglas. "She is a brave girl and had it not been for her goodness knows what would have happened to us.

Launch Made Two Trips.
"There was a mad scramble when the boat reached us and they would have all piled in the launch and probably sunk her if I had not ordered them back and made them get in one at a time until a boatload was ready. It took two trips to get us all out of the marsh."

Miss Martin had just got up and dressed to wave a farewell to the schooner William Quinn, which was going out of the harbor. She had just completed dressing when the glare from the burning dredge attracted her. Without waiting for her brother, she hastily embarked in the launch and went to the rescue. Her brother joined her after she had captured the pontoon.

Known to Washingtonians.
Washingtonians who have made the trip from Baltimore to Savannah by sea will recall Miss Martin's salutes to the vessel as one of the pleasant features of the voyage, adds the Washington Star to the foregoing story of this Georgia heroine's latest exploit. Long before the vessel reaches Tybee light, at the mouth of the Savannah river, the passengers have been made acquainted with the story of the "Waving Girl." Almost every captain has a different narrative to tell, but they all have a romantic flavor. One tells of a lover who was lost at sea; and then of a brother who went away and was heard of no more and of a sister's abiding faith that some day he will return to find a welcome waving from the shore.

Whatever prompts Miss Martin faithfully to greet all vessels passing her home is with her a well-guarded secret, which she has never divulged even to her most intimate friends. In all the years since first she began to salute the passing craft it is said she has never missed a vessel, waving a white cloth by day and a lantern at night, until an answering greeting or farewell comes back to her over the water.

ARMY AND NAVY

Clipped From the Defender.

Fort Ruger.—Rex says:
The officers on duty at this Post are: Major E. J. Timberlake, commanding officer; Captain H. P. Wilbur, commanding "159" Co.; Captain J. S. Johnson, commanding "195" Co.; Captain C. A. Clark, engineer officer; First Lieutenant H. R. Vaughn, adjutant on furlough; First Lieutenant J. S. Williams, acting adjutant, recruiting officer; First Lieutenant J. S. Pratt, Q. M. C. & police officer; Second Lieutenant F. A. Price, "159" Co., exchange officer.

The 38th Company, at the Presidio of San Francisco, now has two of our old Ruger men in its ranks. Calloway and Harding were discharged here in September and re-enlisted in that company lately. That bonus certainly helps some!

Taylor, who has been baker here for some time, thinks three years are a plenty and leaves us on the December transport. Rather late to see you go, Taylor—but then, you know what's best.

Schofield Barracks:
Veterinarian James R. Hayes arrived on the transport Thomas for station here.

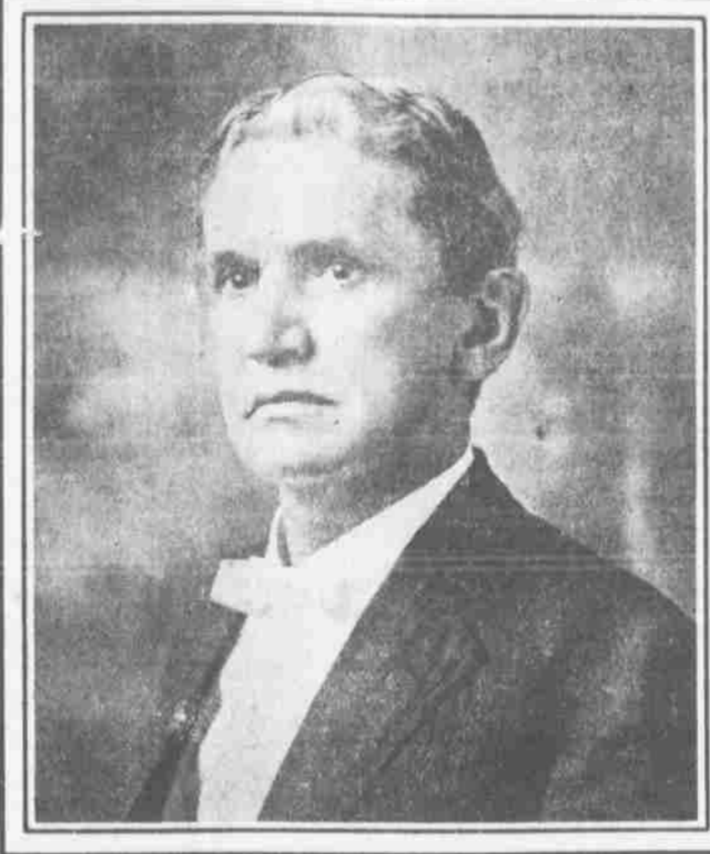

Fifth Cavalry people who came in on the "Thomas" were: Lieutenant Groninger, Lieutenant Hume and Captain and Mrs. Willard.

The band is doing splendid work at guard mount in spite of the fact that their ranks have been seriously depleted by the discharge of many musicians. It is hoped that the next bunch of recruits will have some musically-inclined men among them, as music is certainly a necessary item in the day's duties.

Meyer and Greenish of E Troop left Uncle Sam on Friday, the 19th, and expect to sail for Australia by the next steamer. Though not too optimistic about the money to be made in that land, they think that the trip will be worth while. No use talking—floating around this old world only proves that home is best, after all.

The last batch of horses that arrived on the Dix are fast being worked into cavalry trim by the energetic work of the members of G Troop. This troop was placed on special duty (except on "Full strength drill" days) for the purpose of getting the new mounts into proper shape for work, and the horses are responding rapidly to the up-to-date methods adopted.

Washington Star: The Monitor and

WILLIAM RICHARDSON,

Representative from Alabama, Chairman of the Committee on Pensions. The Merrimac may again meet in Hampton roads. This is one of the thrilling features proposed for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the first battle of ironclad ships in history, to be held March 9, 1912, if plans now proposed are carried out.

A section of the Atlantic battleship fleet will be asked to participate and, if Congress is willing, the great foreign powers will be invited to send their dreadnoughts and cruisers to make the celebration one of the most notable and imposing ever held.

Captain Charles A. McAllister, engineer-in-chief of the revenue cutter service, is the originator of the idea, and the mere suggestion is being received with great enthusiasm by veterans of both armies and navies that took part in the memorable civil war.

May Invite Foreign Powers.
"The fiftieth anniversary of the battle between the first ironclads is less than six months away," said Captain McAllister, "and if we are to prepare a celebration commensurate with the occasion we should at once formulate at irregular intervals, the shrimps swarm up the rivers and are then caught in great numbers by the farmers, who prepare them for the market. However, their arrival is somewhat problematical, and too much dependence must not be placed upon what may have occurred in other years. Shrimps are also used as fish bait, both dry and live ones being used, as the fish bite greedily at either.

The shrimps from the Gulf coast are of good size, generally fully three inches in length and frequently exceeding this measurement. They are much larger than those caught on the British coast and the north Atlantic coast of the United States. They are in fine condition the year round, and may be caught in the lagoons any season of the year without fear of interruption by northers, at least not for more than a day or so during any time of the year.

No attempt has been made to supply regularly the domestic market, much less to build up an export trade. There seems to be no difficulty in extending the former and building up a fine foreign trade.

The fishing rights regarding shrimps are in the hands of the Federal Government; they may be obtained at small outlay. Were attempts made to develop the fish and oyster business, the same commission would cover the three lines and reduce expenses considerably in the aggregate.

Three choice consignments of show horses, the property of Lawrence Jones of Louisville, Ky.; Thomas P. Ryan of Oak Ridge, Va., and Julian Morris of Keswick, Va., were offered at auction at Burland's, New York, recently, and in addition to bringing the best prices this season, were probably the best lot of horses offered at the academy.

The first offering was that of the Jones consignment, and consisted of harness horses, all of show ring fame, with each horse having a list of blue ribbons to its credit, received at either the national or international shows. The first two sales of the lot, Gallant Lad and Diana of the Lea, brought the top prices, being sold for $2500 and $2000 respectively. Gallant Lad is considered one of the finest harness horses in America, with victories over Radiant and twice at the international exhibition over the champions of the national show, Lady Seaton and Vanity Fair. Gallant Lad was secured by John Gerken, and Diana of the Lea went to George Heineman, a local dealer, who was commissioned to buy the horse for G. G. Rohlig of Passaic, N. J. The balance of the Jones stable brought fairly good prices, and were snapped up by dealers and others of prominence in the horse show world.

CONSERVATION NOT DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY IS THE PURPOSE

Commenting editorially on the steel trust case the Washington Star says:

There is nothing in the least surprising about the government's suit for the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation. The administration could hardly have avoided having secured decisions by the United States Supreme Court on the legality of such corporations as the Standard Oil Company and the American Tobacco Company. Between those two trusts and the steel corporation there may be a difference discernible by the courts, but in the eyes of the public the three combinations have stood in the same category, and to proceed against two of them and leave the third without a Supreme Court test would be strongly suggestive of discrimination.

There is nothing in the case as presented to the court that might not have been said with equal force and truth several years ago. Indeed, the only surprising fact about the steel trust suit is that it has been so long in the offering. The consolidation of the steel plants which formed the physical property of the corporation was effected between 1898 and 1900. For at least ten years this corporation has been doing business in at least technical contravention of the principles upon which the Sherman anti-trust law is supposedly based. A new element entered into the situation in the purchase in 1907 of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, and this transaction is now made part of the government's complaint against the corporation.

Now that the suit has been filed, however, the public will not be disposed to quibble over motives or considerations of delay, but will welcome the prospect of a definition of the steel trust's position. After all, the equally important question before the courts is whether this corporation works in effect in restraint of trade to the end of increasing the price of its products to the consumers, whether its profits are legitimately founded upon a genuine capitalization, and whether, finally, its present corporate form is an advantage to the country or a disadvantage. If the steel trust is in violation of the anti-trust law, its dissolution, perhaps, in the manner prescribed in the court in the oil and tobacco trust cases, will doubtless be required, with the result of splitting the corporation up into its component parts.

No real harm can be done to legitimate business by the filing of this suit. The government asks for no destruction of property, but rather for its conservation. It is merely seeking to compel one of the largest of American corporations to comply in its corporate form to the statutes. In view of all the circumstances the government is proceeding conservatively, and if business is injured by its action it will probably be because public confidence has been deliberately shaken by speculative interests intent upon running the stock market to lower levels, or disturbed by the proceedings of the very corporations against which the administration has moved.

of the government's complaint against the corporation.

The Ryan consignment consisted of ten registered saddle mares and stallions, all of good breeding, but the figures received were not what was expected, and the choice of the lot were secured for comparatively small sums. The best figure recorded in the Ryan lot was received for the bay mare Barnard, which was knocked down to Dr. Clayton for $350. Oak Ridge Prince, a chestnut saddle stallion, by Highland Eagle, out of Virginia B., was secured by J. B. Wilbur for $325.

Captain F. H. Barrett of the state artillery, who will be one of the prominent competitors in the international jumping competition at the coming national show, secured two likely mounts, which he will in all probability use. They were Pompey, a registered saddle gelding, by Highland Eagle, out of Psyche, for $190, and Mary Hayden, a registered saddle mare, which was knocked down to him for $175.

Byron at Prevesa.

The Turko-Italian war is likely to provide the literary gossip with plenty of "reminiscences." For instance, it is interesting to recall that it was at Prevesa, in the Gulf of Arta, where the first shot of the war was fired, that Byron landed for his tour through Albania, and there also he began the second canto of "Childe Harold," which he finished, by the way, at Smyrna, another landmark in the present war, for an Italian squadron was reported in that quarter the other day. Prevesa is in the vilayet of Janina, where, it is recorded in the Hon. Roden Noel's biography of Byron, the poet was supplied by order of the pasha with a house, horses and all necessaries gratis. All himself being absent besieging Ibrahim in Hydrunt.

Readers familiar with "Childe Harold" will remember the very graphic description of the Gulf of Arta given by Hobhouse in a note to the poem. It is a vivid account of a night scene round the camp fires, with a background of rugged rocks and Albanian soldiers dancing in the freelight and singing fierce bandit songs with the refrain, Klephela pote Parga! ("robbers all at Parga"). On leaving Janina, Byron went to Missolonghi, thence to Vostizza, where he caught his first glimpse of the heights of Parnassus.—Pall Mall Gazette.

EVIDENCE OF CULTURE.

"Boosworth seems to be a man of extraordinary culture and ability." "I've never noticed any indication of it." "You haven't? Why, I heard him say 'aviatrice' the other day as if he had used the word a' his life."—Chicago Tribune.

HISSED COOK OFF COPENHAGEN STAGE

COPENHAGEN, October 24.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook's theatrical attempt tonight to vindicate his reputation by a lecture in the hall where two years ago he addressed the royal family and some of the most prominent persons of Denmark, under the auspices of the Geographical Society, on the occasion of his triumphant entrance into the capital, resulted in extremely riotous scenes. Dr. Cook was finally compelled to retire inconspicuously by the back door.

Ever since it was announced that Cook was returning to this city to lecture, the newspapers and the people have been strongly stirred, and threats of violence were freely circulated. Fifteen hundred persons assembled in the hall tonight, and a great crowd outside greeted Dr. Cook with an uproar of insulting cries. He was escorted by police, however, and no violence was attempted.

The meeting within the hall was turbulent throughout. A small fraction of the audience supported Dr. Cook and applauded his efforts. Others hissed continually, with the result that the two sides almost came to blows.

The lecture, illustrated by means of lantern slides, was for the most part a repetition of his former talk.

Dr. Norman Hansen, the Danish explorer, who formerly supported Cook, started trouble by loudly denouncing Cook as a pure swindler. The climax was reached when an alleged reporter of the North Pole was thrown upon the screen. The audience was so hostile that Cook stopped his lecture and withdrew. He was escorted by a strong detachment of police to his hotel through the side streets.

On the return trip Cook's carriage was surrounded by a crowd, who threw eggs and apples at the occupants. The attitude of the people was so threatening it was deemed advisable to put a police guard in the hotel.

FOLLOW'S NATURE'S PLAN.

Medicines that aid nature are always most effective. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It opens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. REAL EVILS VS. BANANA TREES

(From the Defender.)

The wholesale cutting down of banana trees and the removal of potted plants under the impression that only these growths were responsible for the breeding of mosquitoes, places Honolulu in about the fifteenth century.

We have been in Cuba, India and China during epidemics, and in none of these places could the tropical growths be considered as very important accessories to the disease.

In Havana, during a very serious outbreak of yellow fever, it was shown as a positive fact that the trees and plants rendered infinitely less assistance to the mosquitoes than did other things. The duck ponds around the Alameda River constituted the chief source of danger, and when those ponds were attended to the plague subsided.

In Bombay, the chief menace to the public health lies in the closely-clustered, ramshackle, ill-ventilated and poorly-lighted houses in the native quarter.

Honolulu is unhappily provided with both evils: the duck ponds and taro patches too close to town on one side, and the filthy Oriental quarter on the other. The city is yet to know how serious these two sets of conditions menace the public health.

The first impression of visitors, concerning the beauties of Honolulu scenery and climate, is hopelessly spoiled by the awful stench that is always in evidence in the vicinity of the duck ponds. Think of enjoying a moonlight walk in Kapiolani Park or on the beachfront—and have to keep your handkerchief close to your nose to avoid the horrible smell!

It is a proven fact in other semi-tropical or tropical climates that "where the sun warms, disease flees." Where trees are so placed that the sun's rays can't reach to the surface of the ground,—there is danger. Where plants, trees and vines are so placed that the sun can reach through to the ground "and all around and in between"—there is no danger. This has been found to be the true case in every other warm country in the world.

or piles of dead leaves, etc. And moisture can be overcome by the sun's heat.

So our question is: Why does Honolulu waste time on an "after-effect" and let "primal causes" alone? The main future dangers can only come from such horrible places as the wet region near Cressaty Station and from some parts of the Oriental quarter in the region of which the depot is a center.

SLURS ON "NOBLEMEN."

Lord Clonmel has lost his camera, and he announces the fact in an advertisement. He took it with him on the Rohilla, and as this gay little steamer was specially reserved for members of the House of Lords who wished to see the naval review at the coronation he felt that he might relax the vigilance usually advisable with regard to portable property. But he was mistaken. His camera disappeared. He laid it down and turned away for a moment, and when he looked again it was gone. He should have known better. He knew the steamer was full of aristocrats, and yet he allowed himself to be negligent. And now he inserts an advertisement asking the "nobleman or gentleman" who inadvertently snatched his camera to return it. He does not say "no questions asked," nor does he offer a reward. His best plan will be to keep an eye on his fellow-peers and he may see one of them with the goods on him. But it is a frail chance. Peers have so many opportunities to dispose of property thus inadvertently acquired.

There was another aristocrat who lost a costly umbrella at a fashionable London club, and he posted a notice to that effect, asking the "nobleman" who had purloined it to have the goodness to make restitution. Fancy a nobleman returning anything! The club secretary asked why he addressed his appeal exclusively to noblemen. "Well," was the reply, "the club is composed exclusively of noblemen and gentlemen, and certainly no gentleman would steal my umbrella." These are sad incidents, and go far to explain a hostility to the hereditary form of government.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Matson Movements.

Shipping Manager Drew of Castle & Cooke, local Matson Navigation Company representative, says the Honolulu, which reached Seattle on Sunday, eight days from Hilo, will leave Seattle for Honolulu on November 25, next Saturday; the Hyades will leave on December 16, and the Hilonian will leave on January 6. The two liners are regular Seattle-Honolulu runners, the Honolulu being an extra. Seattle is full of freight for Hawaii and the Matson people could make use of another vessel. The American-Hawaiian Company will dispatch a freighter from Seattle every eleven days. The Matson service is not necessarily permanent as far as Seattle and Honolulu are concerned.
Lurline Leaves This Evening.
Matson's liner Lurline leaves for San Francisco this evening at six o'clock from the Hackfeld wharf with passengers, freight and mail. She carries thirteen hundred tons of cargoes, shipped at Kahului; 10,000 cases of pineapples, 2000 bunches of bananas, without any mosquito larvae attached, and 250 tons of refined sugar.

Leaves San Francisco Today.
Today the new boat for the Inter-Island Company, the splendid Kilaua, leaves San Francisco in command of Captain Freeman, admiral of the Inter-Island fleet. She brings 900 tons of freight under charter by the Matson people. On being turned over to the Inter-Island Company she will be put on the Honolulu-Hawaii route. President Kennedy, of the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, may be a passenger. She will make the trip, possibly, in seven days.
Bark R. P. Rithet, leaving Honolulu October 24, reached the Golden Gate yesterday, taking twenty-six days on the trip. Two days after she left this port she was reported off Diamond Head, so she had difficulty in breaking away from Oahu. Among the passenger's aboard were the captain's bride and her mother and sister.

Shipping Notes.

PERPETUAL PENSION

An interesting fact has come to light in connection with Mr. Smith, a groom who has lately taken up his residence at Peterborough, viz., that his family have been drawing a pension from the British government for the space of 276 years.
Mr. Smith, who draws 30 shillings a week, explained in an interview the history of the pension. It appears that after the battle of Worcester an ancestor of Smith assisted Prince Charles to escape and was one of those who helped to hide him in the famous oak tree. Years passed, and it was not till 1675 that King Charles II was informed of the incident. Parliament, on the advice of the king, was not slow at rewarding those who had rendered service, however slight, to the sovereign. The consequence was that Mr. Smith's ancestor was placed on the perpetual pension list at the rate of 30 shillings a week, with the result that the family have received (in round figures) something like £21,500 since the pension was granted.
Mr. Smith's father, it appears, parted with the pension to another person while he lived, but on his death it reverted again to his eldest son, and in turn it will descend to the present pensioner's eldest child, and so on. It is stated this perpetual pension is the only one of its kind in existence.—London Daily News.

dorses the proposition for a celebration most heartily. There must also be a fair proportion of the enlisted men of both vessels now living, and who would no doubt be glad to attend such a reunion.

"The principle of the armored turret, as first put on the Blüme Horn, is still followed in the big battleships of the world."

Army's Health Improved.

The effectiveness of the continued efforts of the army medical department to reduce the mortality rate of the army, as well as lessen the amount of sickness, is seen in the annual report of Brig. Gen. George H. Torner, surgeon general of the army, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1911.

Since the Spanish American war, when there was a striking increase in sickness attributed to exposures in rugged climates, consequent upon our occupation of new territory, there has been a progressive improvement, which is ascribed chiefly to the sanitary control of infectious fevers.

Discharges from the army for disability, according to the report, showed a marked improvement over the previous year. For the year they numbered 15,268 per 1000, as compared with 18,877 for the year previous. The belief is expressed in the report that this condition is due chiefly to an order requiring soldiers certified as incapacitated for military service to be examined by a board of medical officers before discharge.

The effectiveness of the prophylactic treatment as a preventive of typhoid is discussed at great length in the report, which points out one case of severe reaction, and calls attention to the fact that this particular case indicates that the injection against the vaccination of any but healthy persons should be constantly borne in mind.

An important attainment of the medical corps in the Philippines, according to the report, during 1910, was the eradication of the dreaded beriberi from among the Philippine scouts. This is all the more noticeable when it is taken into account that during the preceding year the disease alone caused 41 per cent of all the deaths in that branch.

The surgeon general takes occasion to commend the interest taken by the profession throughout the United States in the army medical corps. He reports that during the year the department experienced little difficulty in finding desirable candidates to take the examinations for surgeon.

Guarding Gun Secrets.

Recent publications hinting at the development of a remarkable aeroplane gun has brought out the fact that a strong rivalry exists between the army and the navy ordnance bureaus in designing and constructing guns calculated to solve problems introduced in land and sea warfare by the adoption of the aeroplane on land and the hydro-aeroplane on the sea as machines of offense.

It appears that the two bureaus are proceeding on precisely opposite lines; the army is trying to develop a gun that can be trained with lightning-like rapidity upon the swiftly-moving aeroplane with the purpose of bringing it to earth, and the navy is striving to equip its hydro-aeroplanes with guns which will shower destructive missiles upon fortifications or bodies of troops below.

Both branches of the service are conducting their experiments with great secrecy, but it appears that the navy, at least, will soon be obliged to test its gun in the open, though even then efforts will be made to prevent unauthorized persons from approaching the weapon near enough to observe its peculiarities.

The navy gun is the invention of Commander Cleland Davis, who also invented the cannon torpedo, which has recently been tried with surprisingly successful results. It is understood that it was the success of the remarkably light vanadium steel eight-inch gun in the torpedo which convinced Commander Davis that he could build a serviceable gun light enough to be carried by an aeroplane and to discharge a six-inch canister shell which would almost annihilate a company of men in trenches below.

Ingenious devices have been adopted to take up the recoil of this weapon without injury to the hydro-aeroplane, which could carry at least a half dozen rounds of ammunition.

The army weapon designed for hitting an aeroplane is of much simpler construction, the departure from ordinary practice consisting in a peculiar carriage capable of directing the gun at any point between the horizon and the zenith without injurious recoil; in the arrangements for instantaneous changes of direction, and in a method of automatically adjusting the sights to compensate for the changes in the trajectory of the shot incident to changes in elevation of the gun.

GREAT SEAL OF ENGLAND.

No other emblem of government authority, perhaps, ever had such a series of queer adventures as those pertaining to the great seal of England.

In the first place, when Richard I set out for the Holy Land he took the seal with him. His vice chancellor, Malchien, is said to have worn it suspended by a chain round his neck. Off Cyprus the vice chancellor fell overboard and was drowned, and the great seal was lost.

The first seal of Charles I was thrown into the River Severn, in order that it might not fall into the hands of Cromwell's soldiers. When James II fled from England he carried the great seal with him. He threw it into the Thames, evidently thinking that without it William III could not carry on the government. A fisherman's net caught it, and it was restored to the authorities, and was used by William until a new seal was made.

In 1781 thieves broke into the house of Lord Chancellor Thurlow and stole the great seal. It was never recovered.

The country seat of Lord Chancellor Eldon took fire at night. At the first alarm the chancellor hurried from his sleeping chamber with the great seal and buried it in his garden. In the morning he tried in vain to locate the place where he had buried the seal. By the advice of Lady Eldon every servant in the household was provided either with a spade, a trowel or a poker and ordered to "probe" the garden. At last the chancellor was relieved by the cry of "Found!"

The great seal of England is often called "the seals," because it is made in two parts, the obverse and the reverse. In other days when a new seal was used the old one was "broken into pieces, the destruction forming quite a ceremonious act. The pieces were a requisite of the chancellor. In modern days the ceremony of making the old seal has consisted in the sovereign giving it a gentle blow with a hammer. It is then supposed to be broken and has lost all its virtue as a symbol of the royal authority. The lord chancellor preserves the "broken" seal and hands it down as an heirloom to his descendants.

The breaking of the old seal was the occasion of an amicable contest between Lord Lyndhurst and Lord Brougham. At the time of the accession of William IV a new seal was ordered. Lyndhurst was then chancellor. When the new seal had been finished and put to use Brougham had succeeded Lyndhurst in the office. Each, however, claimed the old seal as his perquisite. The matter was left to the king to decide. William determined to solve the problem in a Solomonlike manner. Turning the seal round and round in his hands, he said to the claimants, "How do you cry, heads or tails?"

"Your majesty," said Brougham, "I will take the bottom part."

Whereupon the king ordered each part to be set in a silver salver, with the royal arms on one side and on the other the arms of Brougham and Lyndhurst, respectively. Each claimant received one part. A similar dispute arose between Lord Chelmsford and Lord Campbell, and Queen Victoria followed the precedent of William IV—Harper's Weekly.
