[Notes and Queries.]
Turpin's ride to York is a myth, though it is based on the story told of Nick, who in 1876 is said to have ridden a horse from Gadshill at 4 o'clock in the morning, and to have ridden a bay gelding mare all the way to York, where, after attending to the wants of his steed and himself, he dressed himself in gay clothes, strolled to the Bowling Green, and there meeting the lord mayor, asked him the hour. It was 7:45 o'clock. This incident procured for him what old Weller so ardently desired, "a halibut." That one horse could have done the journey in the time was a manifest impossibility.
In 1831 Mr. George Osbaldeston wagered
1,000 pounds sterling that he would ride 200 miles in 10 hours, and he accomplished the distance in 7 hours, ten minutes and 4 seconds, but he was allowed twenty eight horses, and he was further allowed 1 hour, 22 minutes and 36 seconds for stoppages, and he rode round and round the four mile course on Newmarket heath. Cooper Thornhill's ride of 217 miles (April 20, 1745), along the turnpike road, from Stilton to London, from London to Stilton, and again from Stilton to London, was accomplished with nineteen horses in 11 hours, 33 minutes and 14 seconds, being nearly nineteen miles an hour. Mr. Osbaldeston's time was upward of twenty-eight miles an hour. Cooper Thornhill's nineteenth horse was a hunter belonging to the duke of Ancaster, and he rode it without stopping from the "White Horse" at Wormley. On the following morning Cooper Thornhill, "quite active and in perfect health," rode back from London to "The Bell" at Stilton.

THE ISLANDS MISREPRESENTED.

We publish in another column an unique thing in the way of sensational journalism of that kind in which truth is an element entirely wanting. Under the heading of "White Slaves" a California newspaper publishes what purports to be some horrible revelations of the manner in which plantation work is alleged to be carried on in these Islands.

CUSTOM HOUSE RETURNS.

The following is the quarterly report of the Collector General of Customs:

Table with columns: ARTICLES, QUANTITY, VALUE, and TOTAL. Lists various goods like sugar, coffee, and tea with their respective quantities and values.

The following exports are included in the above table: KAKULU—Sugar, 2,896,389 lbs; value, $83,277 12

Table with columns: ARTICLES, QUANTITY, VALUE, and TOTAL. Lists various goods like sugar, coffee, and tea with their respective quantities and values.

Entertainment on the Alameda.

On the last trip of the R. M. S. Alameda a grand concert was given in the social hall, under the auspices of Captain Morse, when the following programme was rendered:

The New Constitution.

The P. C. ADVERTISER office has printed the new Constitution in pamphlet form. It is inserted in the "Honolulu Almanac and Directory," which also contains the old Constitution, and will be sold at the old price—fifty cents a copy.

WHITE SLAVES.

A Horrible Story of the Hawaiian Sugar Plantations.

Los Angeles Times, Sept. 5th.

H. Benedict, a waiter in a Main-street restaurant, only reached this city a few days ago. He has just escaped from a life of slavery that is, according to his story, a hundred times more severe in every respect than were the old slavery days before the war.

"Almost six years ago," began Mr. Benedict, "I was a waiter in a San Francisco restaurant, when I was taken sick, and the doctor who attended me told me that I would have to get away from the San Francisco fogs unless I wanted to die with consumption. The first day that I was able to be out I walked down to the water front and was watching the ships discharge, when a stranger approached and asked me to take a walk. After having a little conversation with me he learned that I wished to leave the city, and he told me that he was friendly with a number of people in Honolulu, and that he was confident that I could get work as soon as I reached the Islands. He told me that he represented a certain firm, and was confident that I could get free passage to the Islands if I would go. I met him the next day and he informed me that he had secured thirteen others who would go, and he introduced me to several of them. They all thought it a good chance to get out of California for a while, and I consented to go. We sailed on a schooner under a man named Myers, and were treated like regular passengers for a few days, or until we all got over our seasickness, when Captain Myers came around one day with a big blank book in his hands. He asked us our true names, place of birth, age, and what occupation we had followed.

SUSPICION AROUSED. "We thought it very strange proceedings, but said nothing, although we were greatly troubled. When we reached the Islands, we did not go into port, but stopped outside. A steam launch was soon alongside and a man, who represented himself as a doctor, came aboard. He and the Captain were closeted for quite a while, when the doctor came aft and gave each one of us a medical examination. The Captain and doctor then left the ship, and a few hours after we weighed anchor and for two days we were sailing in and out among islands. Finally we were landed at a large sugar plantation and given to understand that we were to work in the field. We learned the next day that the plantation was owned by two men, who were considered the hardest task-masters on the Islands. We were told that we had been employed through the Captain and that we were to get $50 a month each. We hesitated about going to work at first, but the foreman talked very nice to us, and after we had worked a month we went to the foreman's office to draw our pay. Here we were horrified to learn that we had been sold to the sugar planters as slaves for so much a head, and that it would take us just three years to buy our freedom, if we worked every day. We were credited with 25 cents a day when we worked, and when we were too sick to work they charged us 75 cents a day for board. They paid so much for us, and we had to work our freedom out at the rate of 25 cents a day, and under the laws of the island, we agreed to this contract the first day we worked—as going to work of our own free will signified that we were willing to work for the planters for our passage to the Islands. Well, we made a hard kick against such treatment, but there was no help for it, as the plantation was guarded by a company of native soldiers, who were only too willing to shoot a white slave who attempted to escape.

HARSH MEASURES.

"When we refused to work we were placed in the stocks and whipped until the blood streamed off our backs. When a man wanted to lay off, because of sickness, a plantation doctor is called in, and if the doctor says he is not sick the poor fellow is either whipped or killed. I have known them to take a man out and shoot him because he could not work. A man was taken violently sick one day, but the doctor said he was all right, and the overseer made him go to the field. He struggled along until about noon, when he dropped down dead. We were worked ten hours a day, and no set of men were ever worked harder in the world. The work on a sugar plantation is never ended, and there are but few men who can hold it up many years. Of the fourteen who went with me there are but few who lived through their slavery days. After I had been there three years I thought my time was up, but I had a surprise in store for me in the shape of a bill the company had against me for eating sugar cane and playing sick. The overseer had charged me with every mouthful of cane I ever ate, and it took me just two years more to work it out at the rate of two-bits a day. I never ate any more sugar cane, and, as good luck would have it, I was not sick. It took me just five years and a few weeks to work out, and if I had time to tell you what I suffered during that time you would wonder that I am alive to-day. People might live in Honolulu a lifetime and never know anything of the slave system that is being carried on in the Sandwich Islands.

CHUN LUNG.

The Holder of the Opium License Fined $100 for Selling a Poisonous Drug.

On Saturday, July 16, 1887, Chun Lung, the holder of the opium license, was charged in the Police Court with selling a poisonous drug at Honolulu on or about June 3d, to wit, opium, or a preparation of opium, contrary to law.

The case was continued from time to time until August 19th, when the defendant pleaded not guilty.

The first witness called was Loo Shing, who stated he went to the opium house on Hotel street where opium is sold at 25 cents for one mace. It was sold on the lower floor. He bought opium, which was produced in Court. It was on June 3d, and defendant's servant let him have $2 worth. An exhibit marked B offered in evidence showed that J. L. Kaulukou, Marshal, gave the witness permission to use opium or its preparation. It was dated March 8, 1887. Another exhibit, marked C, reads as follows:

No. 27. HONOLULU, March 7, 1886.

I hereby certify that Ah Chan, a resident of King street, requires opium for the disease piles, from which he is suffering.

PANG MANG KONG, Physician.

The witness Loo Shing stated that he hurt his back at Ookala about two years ago, and used opium for it ever since.

The defense admitted that the witness bought opium of defendant's employee on Hotel street for the purposes of the case above mentioned.

G. E. Smithies, a clerk of the Interior Department, produced a book of licensed Chinese physicians, and the name of Pang Mang Kong appeared among them. His license was dated March 1, 1887.

C. T. Rodgers stated opium was considered a poisonous drug.

Lee Chung stated prepared opium was made from crude.

The above evidence was submitted to the Court for judgment September 28th, briefs were filed, and His Honor gave them careful consideration.

In giving judgment His Honor said that counsel for the Crown contended that Chinese physicians licensed under chapter 19, section 2, of the Session Laws of 1880, should not have the rights of other licensed physicians, and asks for a conviction under chapter 25, section 4, Session Laws of 1880. Counsel for the defense contends that Chinese physicians have the same rights as other physicians, and His Honor is of the opinion that section 3, chapter 19, Session Laws of 1880, supports that theory, which is also partially supported by the Supreme Court in the case of Rex vs. Young Tang. On reference to section 2, chapter 25, Laws of 1880, it states no such licensee shall sell opium or preparation thereof, except on the prescription of a duly qualified physician. Now, was this a prescription for a poisonous drug, or such a prescription as should be given by a physician to procure poisonous drugs? If it is not a proper prescription then a person holding a license should not deliver the poisonous drug, and His Honor is of the opinion it is not a prescription. During the trial the defendant was spoken of as the holder of the opium license, and permits were introduced tending that. As there has not been any justification under any license to sell poisonous drugs, or opium, or preparation of opium, introduced in this case, His Honor said he had no difficulty in finding the defendant guilty of violating chapter 25, section 4, of the Session Laws of 1880, by selling a poisonous drug without a license or a proper prescription, and sentenced him to pay a fine of $100.

Defendant's counsel noted an appeal.

Regular Meeting of the Board of Representatives.

Last evening the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Representatives of the Honolulu Fire Department was held in the hall of Engine Company No. 2, Chief Engineer Chas. B. Wilson in the chair.

Mr. J. C. White officiated as Secretary in place of Mr. Henry Smith, who was sick.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Foreman McCarthy made a verbal report as one of the committee to see Henry Robinson, who was sick. He stated that Robinson had drawn $20 and two months' rent had been paid him ($22), leaving a balance due him of $3. Robinson had gone to Kauai for a trip, and it was thought he would benefit by it.

A communication was read from the Committee on a Board of Physicians. After some little discussion the committee was granted a month's further time to report.

Chief Engineer Wilson said so far he had only received the by-laws and constitutions from two companies and the fire police. He reminded the other companies that they must report to him before the 15th of this month.

A communication was read from Hook and Ladder Company, giving the result of their recent election of officers.

On motion of Foreman More the report was accepted and the newly elected members requested to take their seats.

A communication was read from A. Ramsey, stating that he had been unjustly expelled from Engine Company No. 2, and wished to appeal to the Board.

The communication was accepted, and a committee was appointed to inquire into the matter and report at the next regular meeting. Following is the committee: Foreman Robert More, Foreman M. D. Monsarrat and First Assistant Engineer Frank Hustace.

Chief Engineer Wilson said that with regard to the Fire Police, he had talked with the Captain, Thos. Krouse, and it was agreed that the latter should make his own selections and report to the Foremen of each company the men he required.

After a short discussion the matter was laid over for the present.

With regard to fire alarms, Chief Engineer Wilson said it was useless for any company outside of No. 2 to run to any fire that takes place inside of Alapai street, Nuuanu stream and School street, without a general alarm was given. Of course the hose carts could go. He intended to lay out new fire wards and embrace his suggestion, but in the meantime he hoped the members would understand what he had said and act accordingly.

The meeting then adjourned.

Y. M. C. A. Entertainment.

Mr. P. C. Jones, the energetic Chairman of the Y. M. C. A. Entertainment Committee, has arranged a splendid programme for a literary and musical entertainment to be given next Thursday evening, the 13th. The programme is published in another column, and our readers are requested to peruse it. The venerable and talented actor, Mr. Walter M. Leman, will on this occasion give several of his inimitable recitations, and with Mrs. C. M. Walton, present a scene from "School for Scandal." The Misses Prescott and Jane Hare will also recite, and several of our leading musicians will assist. Nothing but a crowded house will suit Mr. Jones, and he is bound to get it.

WAIKIKI BATH HOUSE.

Robert Lee, the Proprietor, Arrested Last Evening.

Yesterday afternoon Officer Hopkins, with two native policemen, went out to the Waikiki Bath-house for the purpose of making a raid on the place, knowing that liquor was being sold there by the proprietor, Robert Lee, without a license.

One of the policemen went in and asked for liquor, which was served him, and he paid for it. Officer James Kauhane tried the same game, but Lee knew him, and would not sell any to him.

With only one witness Hopkins was not satisfied, so in the evening he again visited the place. A native policeman was disguised so as to look like a hackman, and had a number of leis round his neck.

He went to the bath-house, and was cordially received by the proprietor. Asking for a drink of whisky, Lee supplied him, and he paid for it. Just then Hopkins appeared on the scene, and armed with a search warrant, arrested Lee on a charge of selling liquor without a license.

The bath-house was searched, and four cases of beer and a quantity of whisky and gin was found. Lee was taken to the Station House, and will have to answer to the charge this morning at the Police Court. He was formerly night clerk at the Hawaiian Hotel.

The "Honolulu Almanac and Directory" for 1887 is now on sale at J. H. Soper's and A. M. Hewett's news depots, and at this office. Price, 50 cents.

THE JORAN CONCERT.

A Brilliant Affair—The Audience in Raptures.

The second of the series of concerts by the Misses Joran and Signor Roselli was given at the Opera House last evening before a highly appreciative audience.

Rarely has it devolved upon us to chronicle an event so successful from a musical point of view or one marked throughout by such genuine merit.

The programme, which we give below, was somewhat severely classical and appealed to the tastes of the more cultured section of the community.

Indeed, none other than an ear gifted by nature and trained to art could fully enter into and realize the depth of meaning in the finer passages. Yet to such a one they were of a kind which took possession of the very soul.

The programme was as follows, though several additions were made in response to encores:

Trio (two pianos and violin)—"La Gazza Ladra," (overture) Rossini. Lula Pauline and Elise.

Scena—"Alzati." Verdi. Signor Roselli.

Piano Solo—"L'Invitation a la Valse" Lula. Weber-Taussig.

Violin Solo—"Polonaise Brillante" Pauline. Wieniawski.

Aria—Toreador Song (Carmen) Bizet. Signor Roselli.

Piano Solo—(a) Berceuse, (b) Valse op. 42 Chopin. Elise.

Duo (for two pianos)—"La Dance Macabre" Lula and Pauline. Saint-Saens.

Violin Solo—"Elgie" Ernst. Pauline.

Piano Solo—"Tarantelle" Mills. Elise.

Voice, Violin and Piano—"Alla Stella Confidente" Signor Roselli, and Misses Lula and Pauline Joran.

The initiatory trio may justly be described as brilliant, though but a forecast of what was to come. The vocal effort of Signor Roselli, which succeeded it, effectively illustrated the genius of the singer, which showed to equal, if not greater, advantage in his later songs.

Miss Pauline's manipulation of the violin was masterly, and so it was pronounced with an unanimous verdict, which we may judge from the plaudits which greeted her.

The spirited execution of "Polonaise Brillante" was no less remarkable than the solemn strains which followed, and the extreme delicacy of touch in the one selection coupled with the bolder measure of the other showed a mastery of the instrument of a degree not often met with.

But the finest effort of Miss Pauline was the later one to which her name is attached. It elicited a perfect ovation of applause, and a reappearance was twice demanded.

The piano solo by Miss Lula was a real treat. After being listened to with rapt attention, a clamorous appeal was made for a further exhibition of this lady's skill, which, like the other, was characterized by marked good taste.

Miss Lula also played the accompaniments to voice and violin, the effect in every instance being excellent.

The pianoforte solos by Miss Elise included some exquisitely pretty selections, which were rendered with considerable skill and marked her as a pianist of great promise.

As a whole the performance was one of the best professional recitals ever given in this city. That announced for Saturday evening is described as popular, and it is due to these talented musicians that an extensive patronage be accorded.

Complimentary Concert.

Following is the programme to be given by the Royal Hawaiian Band this evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the Hawaiian Hotel, complimentary to Mrs. G. W. Merrill:

- Overture—"Titus" Mozart. Final—"Rigoletto" Verdi. March—"Honolulu" (new) Signor Roselli. Reminiscences of Gounod. Godfrey. "Hoehens" and "Vabina." Beyer. Recollections of the War. Beyer. Galtze—"Heart Throbs" Ellenberg. Waltz—"Queen's Jubilee" Coote. Polka—"Hussars" Strauss. "Star Spangled Banner." "Hawaii Poni."

A Useful Book.

TERRORS OF FETICH.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE NATIVES OF THE CONGO COUNTRY.

Ceremony Performed by the Man Who "Makes Fetich"—When Its Powerful Aid Is Invoked—The Crowning Act, or Seal.

Like all aboriginal people, the Congo blacks are very superstitious, but to what extent they believe in a future state can only be conjectured. They believe in the existence of good and bad spirits, which they believe are all about them, hovering around, and when one of them dies they believe that his spirit or soul is seized upon by either the good or the bad spirits, and carried away to become one of them. Hence, when a native is dying, his friends come around, fire off guns, and make horrible noises, for the purposes of frightening off the evil spirits. What effect this may have on the good spirits is not stated.

Their religious ceremonies are not of a propitiatory nature, or for the purpose of warding off danger, disease, etc., and here the fetich plays an important part. They do not make human sacrifices like the Ashantes, but when they bring a goat or a chicken to the fetich man to be sacrificed, and are given in return an amulet or charm, or fetich, as they call it. The fetich is the terrible, the unknown power, at once the persecutor or the avenger, according as its power is invoked or directed. This the present informant illustrated by an anecdote.

THE FACTORS' STRATEGY.
The Dutch have a factory at Banana point, which is approached by two roads, one on each shore side of the narrow peninsula. On the boundary line of their property, on each road, a watch house was established, to regulate admittance from the outside. But the laborers, servants and sailors from outside came in in such numbers, and gave so much trouble by getting drunk and creating disturbances, that the agents finally thought it best to make a fetich, as it is termed, on the boundary line. They employed a fetich man to make a fetich. This consisted first in bringing his fetich or idol to the line, making figures in the sand around it, and flourishes or signs around and above it with his hands and arms, and then taking a chicken, cutting its head off and sprinkling the blood around. This ceremony was performed on each road. In about twenty-four hours' time the news of what had been done spread far and wide, and so effectually did it frighten the natives that they ceased to go to the Dutch factory town thereafter unless they had business there. They supposed that if they passed that line and made any trouble, they would be subject to the penalties of the fetich, whatever they might be, and they were no doubt all the more terrified because their precise nature was not known.

One of the chief uses of fetich by the factors on the Congo is to recover stolen articles of any value, for unless the loss be considerable it often costs more to recover it by this means than it is worth, though the thief has invariably to pay the cost of prosecution if he can be held to do it. When an article has been stolen and the aid of the fetich is invoked, all the men upon whom suspicion falls are called out into an open place and made to stand in a semi-circle facing the fetich man. The fetich—which is a kind of idol made of wood, representing a man carving a man or beast, usually with two heads—is first placed on a cloth on the ground, the fetich man handling it with the same care and treating it with the same consideration as if it were a living, sentient being, as undoubtedly the natives generally also regard it. He then delivers a kind of oration to the men in front of him, telling what has been stolen, and calls upon the thief to own up and make restitution before he invokes the power and wrath of the fetich.

EX-TERRE MEASURES.
In the majority of cases, this exhortation is effective, but if not, he gets down upon his knees and talks and mumbles to his idol, making it presents of say a bottle of gin, a piece of more of cloth, brass kerchiefs, etc. etc. if it will only point out the thief—the things thus promised being those agreed upon beforehand with the loser for the recovery of the stolen goods. Having done this the fetich man again calls upon the culprit to own up, and if this appeal does not have the desired effect, the fetich man proceeds to gradually work himself up into a state of excitement similar to that affected by the Mohammedan dervishes in their religious frenzies, in the course of which he calls down all manner of dire calamities and evil happenings upon not only the actual culprit, but his wife, children, parents, relatives, and even his whole tribe, including his chief, the same penalties being invoked also in behalf of any one or more of the persons who know of the theft and will not reveal it.

During the continuance of this incantation, the fetich man watches the countenances of the men before him, and is quick to note those that may show guilt, or a guilty knowledge of the act. It is rare that the fetich is continued beyond this point, but if, as occasionally happens, the culprit is still obdurate, the last act of fetich is begun, being the most serio-comic of all. The fetich man, finding his idol will not do his bidding, now begins to upbraid and abuse it, and, to carry out his harsh treatment to the end, begins to drive into its body an eight-penny nail. The nail is driven in slowly, the fetich man, before every stroke, calling upon the culprit to repent and confess his sin before it is too late. The nail is driven in about one third of its length, and there it must stay to goad the idol on to the terrible vengeance invoked against the sinner, the crowning act, or seal to this ceremony, being made by smearing the head of the nail with the blood of a fowl, an ox or a goat, according to the nature of the misdemeanor to be punished. Once the seal of the blood is set, there is no forgiveness—the punishment is relentless and to the bitter end. The smallest number of nails that are driven in idols attest how seldom this last act has to be done.

An Artist's Skill.
[Exchange.]
A surprising example of artistic ability was cited by Mr. Henry Blackburn in his last lecture upon English water-colors. He said that he knew an artist who understood the "value of a line" to such a perfection that he could draw a picture in his pocket. When a street scene interested him he would put his hand in his pocket, seize a pencil, and illustrate the event without taking the paper or pencil out of the pocket.

SOME NAMES IN MAINE.

The Significance of Bar-Harbor, Schooner Head, and Egg Rock.

Many people have a peculiar idea and others have no idea at all of the significance or derivation of the names of localities in Maine frequented by summer tourists. Bar Harbor is a familiar name to very many, but why it is called so is unknown to not a few. There is a story to the effect that a Kentuckian who once visited the place had a hard hunt for a bar-room, and expressed to the landlord his opinion that it was a—of a town to call Bar Harbor, and that it should be named Waterville. But the name is appropriate enough, and is derived from the fact that the harbor is partly formed by a sort of sand breakwater extending from the shore off to a small island.

Among the many points of interest around this famous resort is Schooner head, three and a half miles from the village. This is a rocky headland of perpendicular face, rising abruptly from the sea, in such a depth of water that a man-of-war might lie close alongside with no danger of grounding. There are no breakers here, the sea merely rising and falling with smooth surface and majestic motion. The face of the cliff is of a grayish color, and on a background of this hue sharp lines of white quartz crop out in such a manner as to define the shape of a two-masted fore-and-aft, with main and fore-sails set, heading up the bay. In the war of 1812 a British cruiser fired several shots at this rock picture, taking it for Yankee craft hugging the shore, before the mistake was discovered. This is why the promontory is known as Schooner head.

Egg Rock is distant half a mile from Schooner head, and is named from the vast quantities of gull eggs deposited there. In former years the people of the vicinity used to go over to the rock and break all the eggs they could find, and when they returned in a few days there would be countless dozens of fresh eggs there. Since the lighthouse has been built the gulls have deserted the island.

The Spouting Horn is a sort of chimney-like shaft in a cliff near Schooner head, being open both at bottom and top, and when a heavy sea is rolling in, the waters are thrown high up in the opening with a peculiar, loud noise.

Thunder cave is another cavity in the cliff near by. It is in the shape of an old-time brick oven, clean as can be, and accessible only at half tide. The place is fifty feet deep and twenty-five feet high, large enough to hold a dance in. It has been also known as the Devil's Oven and Anemone Cave. Its present name was probably suggested by the fact that the sea, washing in at high water, reverberates in the cave like the celestial artillery.

In Maine, as elsewhere, there are any number of cliffs, caves, peculiarly shaped rocks, profiles, and mountains of eccentric contour, which, upon discovery, have promptly been named by the unpoetic natives the Devil's this or the Devil's that, indicating a superstition and fearful belief in the evil one, perhaps, or perhaps a dire and reckless familiarity.

Eighty Tons of Popcorn.
[Boston Globe.]

"Novelties in popcorn? Yes, sir," said Boston's only manufacturer of this toothsome commodity. "There's what we call 'boss corn candy.' It is of assorted flavors, strawberry, chocolate and vanilla—and such cakes are put up in white, waxed paper. We sell it in lots to suit, and it retails for 5 cents per cake. Then we have a heavy-sugared corn in assorted flavors, called 'crumbs of comfort.' As a novelty, also, we get up large guess corn-balls, of any size, for church and society fairs. We made one some time ago containing three bushels of corn, and one quite recently containing over a bushel."

"Any more novelties?"
"Yes, we make what we call 'a return cornball,' with elastic attached, which retails for a penny. And we are putting corn of assorted flavors into lace bags of many colors. These retail at 5 cents per bag. In the last four years we have gotten up no less than eight different styles of penny popcorn prize-packages. For Christmas we get up plain, white and red and white sugared corn, of assorted flavors, for stringing. These strings of corn, as you know, are largely used for decorating Christmas trees. We have also what are called coarse corn cakes, made with pure Porto Rico molasses, and put up in glass-front cans, and a ground or fine corn cake, also made with molasses, and put up in tin boxes. The latter are especially for the southern and western trade, but there is also a large demand for them in New England."

"Do you sell many goods in the west?"
"We have been in the habit of sending goods to the wholesale grocers and confectioners of St. Louis and Chicago, but, owing to the high price of corn for the past year or two, have had to sell them direct to the jobbers or middlemen nearer home. We bought over seventy tons of corn from one seed-house in Chicago last year, and used altogether perhaps eighty tons. We employ about ten hands all the year round."

How Meals Are Served in New Orleans.
[New Orleans Times.]

Few set tables. You are served in the morning before you get out of bed with a cup of coffee as good as can be found anywhere in the world, and some bread or little Creole pie-crust cakes. There is no trouble about your meals. There is a restaurant on every corner or so, or you can have your meals served hot, and at the most reasonable rates. As a general thing, however, they do "go in heavy" for breakfast here. Your coffee is supposed to satisfy you until midday, when you take a slight lunch at some saloon. About 8 in the evening you sit down to the big meal of the day. Supper there is none, unless you drop in at the theatre, after which you eat something light. Thus, at least, you will find the natives doing, and those who have been visiting New Orleans each winter for years will tell you that it is the most comfortable way to live here and best suited to climate.

The Zuits "Slab Bread."

Perhaps one of the most curious delicacies, for such it was considered, ever known to the Zuits, was made not by baking but by freezing. This was called Thlem-math-to-we ("slab bread"). The plain variety was simply thin mush reduced to paste by boiling, then placed between two stones which were laid in cold places and left until thoroughly frozen. The unbaked batter of the thick "we-pa-lo-kia" or "sweet buried bread," excessively boiled, then treated in this manner, made what we might call an exceedingly coarse ice-cream and certainly prized as highly by these ancients, to say the least, as is the latter delicacy among ourselves.

Thieves' Vanity.

"Vanity in thieves," says Inspector Byrnes, "is a valuable aid to detection. I don't believe that four thieves could keep quiet over a job they had jointly engaged in any more than I believe I could fly."
