REMOVING THE UMPIRE.

At the local cricket matches in the Forest at Nottingham, a policeman or two are usually "told off"
to prevent the spectators from encroaching too far over the boundaries while a game is in progress.
At a match a few Saturday afternoons ago, a young and bumptious member of "the Force," who evidently could not have long lived in Nottingham, was very energetic in carrying out these instructions.
Having persuaded, at the start of the innings, the onlookers to keep far enough from the field of play, he shouted peremptorily to the umpire—who happened to be a man who usually affects the garb of a rustic—to "Cum furrer back, master, won't 'ou'?"

As the umpire disregarded, of course, the lusty appeal of "the man in blue," the latter made no more to do, but hastened up to square leg, and seizing the man—who was none other than the pere of a member of the Notts County eleven—unexpectedly from behind, lifted him "neck and crop," and deposited him boldly on the fringe of the crob, accompanied with the mark:—

"I've told you hoften enuf to shift."

The laughter at the unfortunate umpire, and the jeers and taunts hurled at "Bobby," rendered that spot a "tormenting ground," and his office by no means a sinecure for the remainder of the afternoon, and would, it is to be hoped, teach him at least the most elementary rudiments of cricket.—Tit Bits.

He must be.

Cross.—Did you ever write any Squeery.—Yes; some.

Cross.—What for?

Squeery.—Oh, just to kill time.

Cross.—Is he dead?

The Long and Short of it.

Auntie.—And how was Mamma dressed at the party, Tottie?

Tottie.—W'y, she had a pitty,
white, long, short dweess!

Auntie.—But, dear, how could it be both long and short?

Tottie.—W'y, it was long at the bottom and short at the top!

Apropos of the International Contest.

Mrs. B.: Why, Charles, isn't it peculiar that the names of both yachts happen to begin with V?

Mr. B. (with feeling). Hardly.
The owners know that nothing goes faster than a V now-a-days.

Old Lady (severely): Why don't you newsboys keep yourselves clean?

Boy: Huh! Wot's the good of a feller a feelin' above his occupation?

Guilty.—"Sullivan was arrested for having his hands in his pockets the other day."

"How could they arrest him for that?"

"Carrying concealed weapons."

PROGRESS.

The Life of the Land is Established in Righteousness.

HONOLULU, NOV. 15, 1893.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The wonderful and threatening display of organizations which pass resolutions and make demands on the government for offices may look very imposing on paper to those who do not understand the true state of affairs. When we hear about resolutions passed by the army, the annexation club, the American League, and the citizen's reserve it is well worth remembering that the annexation club consists of the very men who call themselves citizen's reserve, American League, and the army. And that all members of the club, and of the League, are members of the citizen's reserve. It is simply one body of men who parade themselves under three or four different disguises, and the formidable appearance of organizations dwindles, when analysed, down to one faction, clique or gang. We are aware that the heroic revolutionists were in the habits of sacrificing their lives for the P. G. only to be resurrected, and perform the same "killing" act again, but we did not think that they were able to triple or quadruple themselves and make their demands on the government appear as coming from four different set of men, while they virtually emanate from the one little disgruntled set of hungry sore-heads.

The attitude of the army in joining the political clubs in demanding offices is really rich. Mr. S. B. Dole is the commander-in-chief of the army according to P. G. law, and it is a most unusual sign to see his subordinates meet together and pass resolutions in which the course of action of the commander-in-chief is being shaped. We never did think that Colonel Soper was much of a military man or a disciplinarian, but we did think that he knew enough to prevent his officers from committing such a gross breach of military etiquette and such a preposterous piece of impertinence as dictating to their superior officer, the commander-in-chief. If Mr. Dole has any strength of character left he will resent the impertinence of his subordinates in the most emphatic manner, and once for all, teach the "army" and more especially the officers, their proper place.

Or is it possible that "Colonel" Soper dreams ambitious dreams about becoming a modern Napoleon or a new Admiral Mello? Does this gentleman contemplate a revolution against the P. G.? What joy to get a government with the great colonel as President, the Lieutenant colonel as Minister of Finance, the Major as Minister of Interior, the Surgeon general as Attorney-General (when admitted to the bar) and the Quartermaster-general, as Minister of Foreign Affairs. Then we would indeed have a stable Government—at least until the new Generals, Colonels and Majors should combine and overthrow the Soper administration. For the officers of the regular army to pass resolutions and make demands on the Government to which they have sworn allegiance is an act of insubordination bordering on mutiny and their motives may well be looked into and their intentions watched with suspicion. If the Executive council no longer has the confidence of the revolutionary party, they should be made to resign, but they should never brook interference by their subordinates in their business nor allow themselves to be dictated to or bulldozed by an irresponsible mob.

The absurd rumors with which the town as usually are over-full have caused the chiefs of the police-department to lose their heads. We will say for Marshal Hitchcock, that we consider him too sensible a man to make a fool of himself unless ordered to do so by the Attorney General. Last night there wasn't a policeman to be seen in town. Upon investigation it was learned that they were confined at the Station-house—ready for action. Against whom may we ask? Why is the city deprived of the proper guards and the policemen taken away from their ordinary regular duties and allowed to loaf in the Station-house—waiting for something to turn up? Is it possible that there really is some truth in the statement made by several officers that the Marshal has instructed the police to prevent (sic!) the landing of any forces after dark? Is it possible that in the gigantic brain of W. O. Smith—the much learned Attorney-General—really are ideas that he proposes to resist a landing of the United States forces and propose to make such resistance with half a dozen policemen. The farce is evidently coming to an end, but it is evident that the Attorney-General desires to make his exit under the roaring laughter of the audience before he does his great final act of turning a double somersault which will land him on his knees in the royalist camp.

SOME PUMPKINS.

Last evening at about half past nine o'clock, one of the mounted serfs of the present government endeavored in a very arrogant and low bred manner to show his authority, or as he expressed himself, "them's my orders." In fact he was intentionally nasty. He said he was Irish, but those present are inclined to believe that he stated an untruth in this respect.

The accent and expression of his speech, also his English, lead a spectator to believe, that he was one of the "Drei Hundred."

OFFICIAL VISIT.

H. B. M's Minister Resident and Council General Major J. H. Wodehouse, paid an official visit to Rear Admiral John Irwin, on board of the U. S. F. S. Philadelphia, this forenoon. The Minister was accorded the usual salute upon leaving the ship.

Mixed Drinks.

A lady correspondent writes to thank us for our prescription for making "Afternoon Coffee Punch" which she claims had the promised effect after a drive to the Pali as an afternoon when you are tired-out beverage. She now wants to know what to give "him" after dinner and as she assures us that her daddy's side-board is filled to overflowing with every possible kind of liquor, we do not hesitate in giving her the recipe of what is considered the masterpiece of the century and so properly called

The Sweet Lei Lehua.

Take a large glass two-thirds full of shaved ice, and put in it one dash of absinthe, one-twelfth of maraschino, one-twelfth of benedictine, one-twelfth of green chartreuse, one-twelfth of creme de roses, one-twelfth of creme de cacao, one-twelfth of Bon de Noix, one-twelfth of curacao, one-twelfth of creme de mocea, one-twelfth of creme de menthe, one dash of fine old brandy. Shake this to the freezing point, strain into two thin glasses and—know what it is to live.

Consul-General Mills Visits the Philadelphia.

United States Consul-General Ellis Mills together with Vice Consul-General Porter Boyd paid an official visit to Rear Admiral Irwin this afternoon on board the Philadelphia. The usual salute was fired upon the departure from the ship of the Consul-General.

A Careful Bank.

The Bank of France is not entirely free from nervousness regarding the ability of the burglar, and guards itself in a very careful manner. Every day, when the money is put into the vaults in the cellar, masons are waiting and at once wall up the doors with hydraulic mortar. Water is then turned on and kept running until the cellar is flooded. A burglar would thus have to work in a diving-suit and break down a cement wall before he could even start to loot the vaults. When the officers arrive next morning, the water is drawn off, the masonry torn down and the vaults opened. The treasures of the Bank of France are better guarded than any others in the world. (Le Matin).

Shark Hunting in the Indian Ocean.

Colonel Nicholas Pike relates in Frank Leslie's Monthly some interesting experiences with sharks in Malay waters. On one occasion he made up a party of two English army officers to accompany him on a shark-baiting excursion, and took with him several Malay fishermen who were experts in the dangerous business.

"We embarked in a whale-boat," he says, "with a 'pirogue' (dogout) trailing at our stern, and a dead bullock astern of that. On board we had whaling gear of every description used to the capture and destruction of these monsters of the deep, with a pailful of bullock's blood from the abattoir. We proceeded about half a mile from the outer reef, and here we anchored our bullock in about thirty feet of water. The carcass was made to float by artificial means, our boats moving twenty five or thirty feet away from it. The bullock's blood was thrown overboard. Sharks, large and small, began to assemble and in a few minutes we had a great number around us. Some of the large one were seen to bite huge pieces from the legs and neck. We brought our boat near, so that we could see and study their habits, especially while feeding. So eager were they, and the numbers so great, all could not get a chance for a mouthful, and they began to fight each other. It is generally supposed that these man-eating sharks—in fact, all sharks—turn on their backs when they bite, but this is a mistake. If you examine a shark's jaw you will at once see that it would be impossible for him to bite at all in the position attributed to him. The shark turns on his side when feeding, and bites semicircular pieces with one row of teeth; the other rows of teeth are seldom used except when fighting or when very angry. At any rate, I had on this occasion an excellent opportunity of satisfying myself that the genus Carcharias of the Indian Ocean do this. We were within a few feet of a large number of sharks of all sizes, from three feet to eighteen, and some over twenty feet in length, all so intent on feeding that our presence was hardly noticed by them.

After studying all we wished of their habits and deciding some points previously in doubt, we commenced our sport. Our Malay fishermen were experts in noosing the shark. It was very dangerous business to lean over the boat's side, as these brutes had got a taste of blood and were ready to bite at anything that they could get hold of. A whale-man's line was carefully coiled in the bow of the boat, and a noose was prepared by the Malays to slip over the tail of the largest shark. We approached slowly two good-sized fellows, and the first attempt was successfully accomplished; after a few minutes the second one was secured. We then backed slowly away, throwing over the slack line, till we were some distance, or near the edge of the outer reef, when we began to take in the slack line and pull. As soon as the shark felt this he began to flounder and plunge in his endeavor to escape. The second one all this time was quietly feeding.

When we began pulling him he plunged at once into deep water, where he remained quiet. We were over an hour getting the two fish into shoal water on the reef. Now the real sport began. Just as soon as they realized that they were in shoal water and there was not much tension on the lines, they came for the boats with all the ferocity of tigers. I had now drawn my pirogue to the side of the boat and stepped into it, with my trained Malay boatman, who was to manage it while I killed one of the sharks. We had previously separated them by allowing one a large amount of line, so that he had swam away nearly to the outer reef into deep water.

The individual I was about to tackle was a very savage and pugnacious one, and I was a little afraid of him. As I approached, head on he came for me in the greatest fury, but before he reached me he sidled off about ten feet to my right, and swam out to the full extent of his line. He was turned again by those in the boat and came rapidly toward me, striking the boat obliquely on the left side to where I stood, almost throwing me down. Turning quickly he came the third time, going down under the water, coming up on the other side of the boat, making the fourth attack and the last one, for I struck him fairly, killing him instantly. We now pulled on the other one, drawing him from his retreat. My friend, Captain S—, who had excellent nerve, took my place in the bow of the pirogue, and after much skilful skirmishing killed the other shark handsomely with one blow. He declared the sport was more exciting than tiger or elephant hunting in India. Although these brutes are so savage and quick in their movements, man is a match for them and the greatest enemy they have.—(Current Literature).

 - March—"Katulani".....Liboraino
- "Hawaii Ponoi."

Fridley, an Illinois lawyer irritated by an unexpected decision of the Kane County court said, in an undertone: "That's a d-d pretty decision!" "Mr. Fridley," said the judge, with dignity, "if you are displeased with the decisions of this court, you can carry them to a court of errors." "A court of errors! If your honor please, where on earth can I find a court of errors superior to this court?"

Turn about.

LOCAL NEWS.

This is a week of Band Concerts.

The Board of Health, holding a meeting this afternoon.

The Hawaiian National Band at Sans Souci on Saturday evening.

The police made a seizure of twenty-seven tins of opium on board of one of the local steamers yesterday afternoon.

The Kona storm which has been brewing for the past few days, has set in. Lookout for three days of bad weather.

H. B. M. S. Champion, from Esquimaux en route to the West Coast of South America is expected to arrive here within the next few days.

Remember that the Hawaiian National Band gives a concert at the Hawaiian Hotel to-morrow evening. So do not make any other engagement.

The Police department seems to be making the opium seizures now-a-days. Where are the Custom authorities? More money in leaving the stuff alone perhaps.

If the thunder which was a "few" miles off yesterday, was the cause of the caving in of a portion of the earth on Brewer's wharf, what will be the result, when the next attempt to blow up that coral bed takes place?

The vicinity of Brewer's wharf presents an animated appearance now-a-days. On shore are the carpenters and workmen attending to the work in their department, while close at hand in the bay are the dredger, and the pile driver "Pet," at the is respective duties.

The Lougee brothers are still continuing their examination of the hull of the steamer Miowera. So far, the damage found is not of great extent. A coffer-dam will be placed under the stern of the steamer, after which the work of repairing will be commenced.

The following persons left the city yesterday by the local steamers, for Maui:—C H Eldredge, F S Dodge, Mrs McKenzie, Mr Larnach, Miss EM Brash, Ah Young, Lau Chock, Bro G Bertram, John U Iosepa, J A Rodanet and S Matsumura.

For the Volcano:—W Peak, For Hilo and way ports:—T P Severin, C V E Dove, A Hood, Rev E Lewis, P McCrea, Capt W Matson and wife, Rt Rev Lord Bishop of Honolulu, Theo H Davies and son, Rev E P Baker and wife, and C M White.

For Kanai:—Miss J Smith, P N de la Vergne, Lau Chong, E R Hendry, Miss K McGrew and Mrs Van Vliet.

Equal to the Occasion.

Mr. Norris (groping his way into the parlor).—Why, what are you young people doing in here?
Jack.—Oh—er—we're—er—reading Puck.
Mr. Norris.—What! Without a light?
Bessie.—Yes, Papa; the jokes are so bright we can see them in the dark.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or the utterances of our correspondents.]

EDITOR HOLOMUA:

Sir:—The Annexation Club was started for the advancement of the principles of independent politics; at one of the first meetings, it was arranged, that each and every member present, was to pay his equal share of the expenses of the meetings without doing as it has been done heretofore, that is, to pass the hat around to the merchants and monied-men of the city, so the would-be-aristocracy would not have it in their power to dictate to the people, but, that the people would rule and dictate to them. Things did not stand long in that state, nor could it be expected, knowing the material it was composed of and from whence it sprung; with all their boasted freedom, there is a no more corrupt nation under the sun, no more corrupt political system to be found in any country, and where money is used in practical politics than in the Great Republic of the United States. Here we in Hawaii-nei have a sample and some of the stock, who not only declare before this nation, "if they did not rule they would ruin" this is a sample of the missionary and should one be so fortunate as to get to Heaven, he would soon be telling the Great God that he was not running that Government to suit them; he would then combine with the Arch-Fiend to overthrow Him and apply for Annexation to "His Satanic Kingdom."

"ONE WHO KNOWS."

Band Concert.

Should the Alameda be in port this evening, the P. G. band will give a Concert at the Hawaiian Hotel, commencing at 8:15 o'clock. Following is the programme:

- PART I.
- Overture—"A Summer Night".....Suppe
 - Finale—"Belisario".....Donizetti
 - Waltz—"Vienna Blood".....Strauss

That's All Right.

Jimly—A run on a bank is a disagreeable thing.
Bunly—Yes, unless it happens to be the run of a band of pretty bathers on a sandbank.—Truth.

at the Menagerie.

Chimpanze—How is your highness this morning?
Kangaroo—I'm on my last legs.—Truth.

BINKS: How is that revolution in Cuba progressing?
Jinks—(who reads the paper): It's all over.

"You don't say! What became of the revolutionists?"
"They were both caught, I believe."

Reckless.

Wool.—I saw you going into a Saloon.
Van Pelt.—I went in to buy a cigar.
Wool.—You didn't look to be full enough for that.

MORTGAGEE'S NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE.

In accordance with the provisions of a certain mortgage, made by CALAPAI to Isabella A Achi, dated October 5, 1891, recorded in Liber 145, page 248; notice is hereby given that the Mortgagee intends to foreclose the same for conditions broken, to wit: non-payment of principal.

Notice is likewise given that after the expiration of three weeks from the date of this notice, the property conveyed by said mortgage will be advertised for sale at public auction, at the auction rooms of Jas. F Morgan, in Honolulu, on MONDAY, the 20th day of November, 1893, at 12 noon of said day.

Further particulars can be had of Wm. C Achi, Attorney at Law. Dated Honolulu, October 25, 1893. ISSABELLA A. ACHI, Mortgagee.

The premises covered by said mortgage, consist of: All those premises situated at Kapalama, Honolulu, Oahu, and more particular described in a partition deed between W C Achi and said C Alapai, recorded in Liber 125 page 1; containing an area of 1-10 of an acre; and being a part of those premises known as Apana 1 described in Royal Patent, number 687, granted to Keliipueaini. oct. 28-3w
