WHY EMPLOY WHITE LABOR

ASIATIC LABOR IS CHEAP AND SOME PEOPLE USE IT.

"Mechanic" Has Something to Say On Those Who Get Support from the White Mechanic and Employ Asiatics

Editor Star: The following noble words are taken from an editorial in the Advertiser of April 27:

"If employers of labor are honest they will immediately begin to lay plans for obtaining white laborers. It is one thing to say nice things about the changes that should be made, and can be made, and quite another thing to go to work in a systematic style and make the changes. * * * It now looks as if Mr. Fitzgerald had drummed good ideas into the minds of some of our intensely 'practical' men and the time has come for positive, progressive action."

A few weeks ago Messrs. Howard & Train, architects, advertised for tenders for the erection of a dwelling for C. G. Ballentyne, manager of the P. C. Advertiser. Believing that Mr. Ballentyne was acting in good faith, the various contractors of the city prepared estimates and sent in their bids at the specified time in accordance with the plans and advertised call.

It requires considerable time and labor to estimate on a building of even moderate cost. The amount and cost of all building material, the labor of carpenters, painters, plumbers and common laborers have to be carefully computed, and estimates procured from the planing mills for the required machine work.

It is reasonable to suppose, in view of the above facts, that no contractor would go to the time and expense of furnishing estimates for a building if he knew that Chinese contractors would be asked to do the work at a lower figure after the tenders of the white contractors were received and opened; or, indeed, if they were to be brought into competition with Asiatics at all.

Yet this is just what happened in the case of Mr. Ballentyne. A company of Chinese contractors, who pay their men $1 per day and their "meals," are now building that person's house. These men are not restricted to any regular hours of labor, but work anywhere from ten to twelve hours per day. It cannot be claimed that there is any scarcity of labor in the building trades. Dozens of white and native mechanics are out of work and can see no hope of employment awaiting them in the future. But they are not the only sufferers. Every merchant, butcher, baker, grocer, milkman—all who receive a portion of the wages of the mechanic, for their wares are directly injured by the downfall of the white mechanics.

Of course but little else could be expected from a man like Ballentyne. He first gained notoriety in this community by an attempt to foist a broken down electric tram plant on this public. Failing in this scheme, we find him "managing" a paper that for months past has been rabidly anti-Asiatic—for a consideration. A more contemptible spectacle of hypocrisy than this anti-Chinese—pro-Chinese juggler presents has seldom before been seen in this community.

I hope The Star will, in the interests of the working classes, publish this letter. It is the only paper in Honolulu at present that they feel they can trust and confidently regard as a champion of their rights.

MECHANIC.

"WHEELER & WILSON."

The name "Wheeler & Wilson" is a household word and the machine a necessity. It is the same as everything else handled by L. B. Kerr. The best to be had.

Fine Repair Work.

When your Bicycle, Gun, Typewriter or any article of fine mechanism needs repairing and you wish a job which is certain to prove satisfactory, bring it to us and we will fix it for you and guarantee it fully.

We take pride in turning out only the very best of work and will call for and deliver it to any part of the city.

VIEWS ON INCOME TAX

BILL WILL COME UP IN THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

F. B. McStocker Says the Question Is a Very Important One—Favors the Graduated Income Tax.

There is no one in the islands who is better posted on the merits of the income tax than is F. B. McStocker, Deputy Collector General of Customs. Mr. McStocker was one of the strongest supporters of the measure and lent his aid and influence in getting the plank embodied in the platform of the American Union party.

"I believe I speak the truth," began Mr. McStocker today in an interview, "when I say that it was the sincere desire of the majority of those comprising the American Union party that the income tax should be introduced here in the islands.

"The plank was instituted in the platform of the American Union party and that party selected the Senators who simply did their duty to their constituents when they passed the bill. The very same business men who are opposing the law now and contributing to a fund which is to employ counsel to fight it, had not a word to say against the measure at that time.

"In my judgment the law is a fair one. When it was adopted the Legislature in its desire to adopt some system of taxation to meet the conditions in the country, saw fit to select the income tax. While it was the desire of many of the legislators to go further and provide for a graduated tax system, the more conservative members prevailed upon them to try the income tax law first as an experiment.

"A fight will surely be made in the next Legislature, unless annexation obviates all need for legislation, for a graduated tax system. A tax of one per cent is sufficient for a poor man, but it is not so for a man with a large income. The burdens of state expense should be justly borne and surely a no fairer way could be devised than a graduated income tax."

FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

Jubilee Naval Review—Mark Twain Refuses Aid From His Friends.

The brig W. G. Irwin arrived last night from San Francisco, bringing one day's later news than the last steamer. Little of a definite nature concerning the tariff, sugar legislation or the treaty is recorded in the public prints, but there are many items of general news that are interesting.

The grand spectacular naval review that framed a part of the Jubilee celebration passed off on the 26th ult. without a flaw, and is described as being the most imposing, awe-inspiring and wonderful naval review in the world's history. The British men-of-war of all types and classes actually present in the five columns moored at Spithead numbered 165, of which 137 were effective fighting ships. There were besides more than half a thousand war vessels and steamships from every part of the world.

General Weyler has been ordered to crush the insurgents in Cuba without delay, without regard to loss of life. The war is costing Spain $250,000 per day, and she cannot much longer stand the strain.

Mark Twain has cabled from London to the New York Herald declining the financial assistance offered by his friends in America. While grateful for the movement in his behalf, he feels that he is still able to work, and while he has his health and the full use of his faculties prefers to make his own living.

Captain Carl J. H. Flindt of New York, after 24 years of labor, has invented a propeller which he thinks will drive a boat through the water at a speed of 50 miles per hour. He is building a strange craft, 67 feet long, 6 1/2 feet beam and 12 feet from the lowest point of the keel to the highest point of the deck, drawing only 6 feet.

Actual work was begun on the new Japanese cruiser Chitose at the Union Iron Works in San Francisco on the 29th ult. Great ceremony attended the driving of the first rivet.

The Hawaiian ship Fort George, recently purchased by R. P. Rithet and others and given a Hawaiian register, has been ordered to Royal Roads, British Columbia, for orders.

ARE THERE ANY BIDDERS?

GOVERNMENT MAY KEEP THE HAWAIIAN HOTEL.

Price Asked Is High—Whispered that William G. Irwin Will Erect a Hotel in Waikiki.

Within a little more than a fortnight the Hawaiian Hotel premises will be offered for sale at public auction. Whether there will be any bidders can not be definitely ascertained at the present time.

The lowest offer which the Government will consider is $50,000. People who are interested in the matter insist that this price is exorbitant in view of the fact that the Government does not own a number of the cottages which adjoin the hotel proper. As the owners of these cottages have naturally placed a snug little sum on their properties, a purchaser would have very little left out of one hundred thousand dollars after he had bought in the square.

E. C. Macfarlane, one of the present lessees of the hotel premises, is now in San Francisco presumably for the purpose of consulting his brother, Col. George Macfarlane, and a number of San Francisco capitalists, upon the proposition of making a bid for the property. It is not believed that he will be successful in organizing a company which will purchase the property and erect a new hotel building.

It is rumored that another bid might be tendered by some local capitalists.

The latest talk going the rounds on the hotel matter is that William G. Irwin is thinking seriously of building a hotel on his property in Waikiki. Should this be true, and Mr. Irwin decides to build, the Honolulu public will need never feel ashamed of its hotel accommodations, as Mr. Irwin will not do things by halves.

What Honolulu wants now more than anything else, is a first class hotel. The lease on the Hawaiian Hotel expired on April 1. The present holders of the lease have been granted three months' grace.

A FAKE STORY.

A rumor current on the streets this morning that Marshal Brown would resign because of the charges made against his department in connection with the treatment of American marines, is laughed at by the Marshal. He finds no merit either in the report that marines are ill treated or that a subscription is being raised to defend them.

GIVES UP HIS JOB.

Owing to the fact that the contract under the original labor convention requiring the Hawaiian Government to employ Japanese inspectors and physicians, having expired, N. Igarashi, chief inspector of Japanese immigrants, has resigned. He and his family will go to Japan on the Gaelle.

TOMORROW'S BASEBALL.

It is highly probable that the Stars and St. Louis clubs will finish Monday's game tomorrow afternoon before starting in on the regular scheduled game.

If you have not sufficient belief in the merits of your goods to advertise them, how can you expect the public to buy them.

A HOME LIKE RELATION

SHOULD EXIST BETWEEN PUPIL AND TEACHER.

So Stated Professor Brown Before the Summer School This Morning—Mrs. Dillingham Gives Some Impressions.

Before the Summer School today Elmer E. Brown continued his lecture on "Feeling in Relation to Instruction," pointing out the desirability of avoiding wild enthusiasm.

He then spoke of "Emulation in Instruction." They might expect him to say that emulation is bad and must be banished from school work. He, however, found that many modern clear headed thinkers approve of emulation, and for his part he was inclined to think it was a good thing.

There is a kind of exercise that is frequently employed by intelligent teachers, namely, the use of a sort of debate. That is one kind of emulation which brings out very surprising results. In his judgment there is a better kind of emulation than can be called out by debate. The debate makes the child feel that he must maintain a position he has taken up, whether he should be led to ascertain whether the attitude taken up is right or wrong.

The spirit of instruction in a class should be a spirit of working together, of co-operation; that kind of feeling in which everyone is helping the others is a good thing to have. The spirit of "together" is one of the beautiful things of the kindergartens and should prevail in the schools above.

Dr. Brown next spoke of the relation of teacher and pupil. Emphasis had been expressed on securing the affection of the pupil. He thought a real affectionate relation like the home relation is a thing very desirable. But confidence in and respect for a teacher is better than wildly ardent affection. He had known teachers to work for an ardent affection on the part of the school, but the danger was that an ardent affection so extreme as he had seen was not wholesome, and was not promotive of the intellectual work of the school. In general it was desirable that the teacher should create hope and avoid discouragements.

Mrs. B. F. Dillingham thereafter described a visit she had paid to the Tompkins School in Oakland. This is called an observation school, intended for those who wish to observe the methods in use there. It is under the supervision of Dr. Brown.

BUILDING BOOM.

James Steiner's new building will be occupied as ice cream parlors and restaurant, to be modeled after some of the artistic places in San Francisco and the East. There is ample room for such an establishment here. It is common talk on the streets that Col.onel Fisher will erect a two story stone structure on Fort street, at the intersection of Chaplain lane. These buildings will not be put up by Asiatic labor.

BEAUTIFUL EXERCISES.

St. Andrew's Priory Girls are Clever Entertainers.

The closing exercises of St. Andrew's Priory were held out on the lawn in the open air yesterday afternoon. The Government band provided music throughout the afternoon. A May-pole dance by the larger girls, under the direction of Mrs. Woods, was one of the features of the program. Thirty young ladies attending the intermediate class formed a broom brigade. Miss Emma Mossman is deserving of much praise for the creditable showing made by this class.

The younger tots of the priory, known as the "Merry Little Maidens," executed a motion song under the direction of Miss Mossman in a most pleasing manner. Thirty of the larger girls, garbed in yellow, blue, lavender and pink waists, rendered the "Flowery Bells" performance.

BACHELORS ARE AFTER THEM.

The return game of cricket between the married and single men will take place on the old Makiki grounds at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The benedict's won in the former match.

NO MORE TEN CENT RIDES

MINISTER KING GIVES HIS DECISION.

Hackmen at Liberty to Tax Each Passenger a Quarter of a Dollar for Any Drive.

For many months past the hackmen of the city have protested against carrying passengers within the town limits for ten cents a head. While this sum was all that they were entitled to by law, the "hackies" insisted that it did not pay them to run their vehicles at that price.

At last they succeeded in laying their grievances before the Minister of the Interior, who, after carefully considering the matter, gave out his decision yesterday. The Minister has upheld the hackmen in their claims and announces that the public can have no more ten cent rides.

Under the new regulation a charge of 25 cents will be legal to or from any point between Beretania street and the harbor, and between Maunakea street and Punchbowl street for either one or two passengers. For each additional passenger ten cents. A charge of 25 cents straight for each passenger will be asked to or from any point between the second bridge, Kuann avenue and Kunavai lane on Liliha street and the harbor, and between the Reformatory school on the Ewa road and the line of Victoria street on the Waikiki side, and not exceeding one mile from the starting point.

The Minister of the Interior has seen fit to extend the down town limits in the direction of Punchbowl and Punahou for two or three squares. The hackmen express themselves as being perfectly satisfied with the new regulation.

"There is not a city in the United States that can boast of a better public hack system than Honolulu," said the proprietor of a leading livery establishment this morning. "And what is more, the prices asked here are much less. Because of the miserable street car accommodations people are obliged to ride in hacks much more than they do in the cities, and this is the reason why it comes hard on the public."

"Again, it should be remembered that hay and grain is very expensive in Honolulu, and everything considered, it cannot be truly said that the hack fare in Honolulu is exorbitant." There are in the neighborhood of 200 hacks in commission in Honolulu.

THEY MET PROF. BROWN.

Prof. Elmer E. Brown of the California University was given a hearty reception at the High school building last evening by the teachers attending the Summer School. There were in the neighborhood of 200 people present. A piano solo by Miss Ida Gertz pleased. Inspector General Townsend organized a chorus which furnished several songs to the delight of the audience. Light refreshments were served.

GETTING WELL ALONG.

There will be a meeting in Company D room at the Drill Shed this evening to complete arrangements for the military minstrels. The committees will be appointed, and talent selected. Gus Murphy hopes to be fairly well organized within a week or so.

HER MOTHER'S GIRL.

A bright, handsome girl on the borderland between childhood and womanhood, is at once a source of pride and anxiety to her mother. But she has grown fast and is still growing. Nature makes stern demands upon the slender body. The skin is dull, the eyes lustreless, the cheeks and neck are sunken, the appetite is capricious, and the movements languid. The trouble is impurity and sluggishness of the blood. It needs the life giving elements from which alone the body derives its vigor and health. The remedy is of the nutritive properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with Syrup of Hypophosphites, Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry Bark, has saved many such girls. It contains all the flesh-forming and strengthening qualities of the oil without its loathsome taste. The most sensitive and feeble can take it, as they take syrup, and digest it perfectly. Taken before meals it creates an appetite, stops the emaciating process, puts flesh on the thin and bony body, and ruddy cheeks soon tell the story of pure blood, good digestion and recovered health. Girls and women gain weight and vigor by the use of it. To give it a trial is to believe in it always thereafter. It is food and medicine combined. Genuine only gives results from the first dose. BLOWS STRUCK ON THE SHIP ROANOKE.

Second Mate Beats a Sailor—W. G. Irwin Arrives In Fast Time—Gossip of the City Front.

The Louis, Capt. Hatch, got away on a full breeze this morning.

The Mary L. Cushing is about ready for sugar. She will probably get stiffening tomorrow.

The dredger has hauled into the lower bay, where she will dig out the bank that has formed off Brewer's wharf.

The Kinnau was crowded with passengers when she sailed, shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. They are for the most part people of leisure, in search of rest and recreation.

The British ship Bronhilda hauled alongside the Irmgard this morning, and will discharge there until the Iolani clears, when she will take the berth at Brewer's now occupied by the latter vessel.

The story printed in a morning paper to the effect that the Marion has been ordered back to Mare Island is denied by Lieut. Storey. She is now undergoing extensive repairs and cannot be moved.

The Irwin is now lying alongside the Alden Besse at the Oceanic wharf. As soon as the Besse is loaded, and the Roanoke crops astern to take her berth, the S. N. Castle will haul out of the jog, where the Irwin will tie up and discharge.

There was a row aboard the Roanoke yesterday, which resulted in the second mate knocking down a sailor by the name of Bagley. Blood flowed from Bagley's nose, and he carried it up to the Consulate, that Consul General Haywood might see it flow.

The W. G. Irwin, Capt. Williams, made port last evening, 11 days from San Francisco. The Irwin left San Francisco at noon on the 27th ult, 28 hours later than the Irmgard, which arrived here Wednesday, and was only beaten by the fast barkentine by a few hours. The Irwin brought 600 tons of general merchandise, consigned to W. G. Irwin & Co. William Bickel, L. S. Dyar, Harry N. Dennison and Mrs. May Dennison were the only passengers.

Hawaiian Electric Company.
 The cleanest, brightest safest and really in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honolulu came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and said: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipped over and it came so near setting fire to the house and burning my children and I take no more risks." This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light. Just think it over and make up your mind that you want the best and safest light; send for the Hawaiian Electric Company and tell them what you want. We have a complete stock of everything in this line and have just received a lot of the very latest designs in chandeliers.

U.S. PRESS ON ANNEXATION
 MOST AMERICAN NEWSPAPERS FAVOR IT.

Strong Reasons Advanced for the Amalgamation of Hawaii—Republican and Democratic Papers Alike Favor the Cause.

A treaty of annexation will undoubtedly be received with favor by the American people. The vote for its ratification will not run along party lines.—Boston Journal.

There is every reason to believe that intelligent American sentiment is strongly in favor of either annexation or in some other way of securing control of Hawaii's future.—Detroit Journal.

England has found outlaying colonies extremely useful in times of peace or war. The United States could extend a territorial form of government to Hawaii and thus acquire rights there of inestimable importance.—Syracuse Post.

No better use of the great engine of the Executive power in its highest function of territorial expansion has been furnished by any of our Presidents than this President has now given us. Mr. McKinley has annexed Hawaii.—New York Press.

Hawaii is at least affording a little diversion. When some of the Senators tire of annexing Cuba they can turn in and annex the other island for a while.—Chicago Record.

The only job in the Hawaiian affair is the Sugar Trust's opposition to annexation.—Philadelphia Press.

The protest of some English journals against "land grabbing" by the United States is sublime or ridiculous, according as you look at it.—New York Tribune.

The annexation of Hawaii to the United States will be beneficial to the people of both countries; and it requires a little of statesmanlike foresight to discern that it will be in some way a sort of guaranty of the peace of the western hemisphere. Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It fortunately happens that there are neither political nor administrative difficulties in the way of annexation. To all intents and purposes Hawaii is an American colony now. Its affairs are conducted by Americans.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Facts and conditions bring us to the conclusion that if Hawaii cannot maintain its independence with a government friendly to the United States it is the interest of this government to take charge of the Islands—to annex them.—Indianapolis Journal.

Those who favor Hawaiian annexation are now called by the opposition "intemperate champions of immediate annexation." This is very amusing when one remembers that annexation has been before the country for four years and six months.—Philadelphia Press.

As a matter of pure business politics, looking to the future development of American commerce on the western ocean and to the security of our western shores, the acquisition of this group of islands is of incalculable importance to the United States.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Japan, it is said, has entered a protest against the annexation of Hawaii to the United States, on the ground that it will interfere with the existing treaty between that country and Hawaii. But there is no warrant for any such protest in the terms of the treaty or international law.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

It is grossly absurd to speak of Hawaiian annexation as the beginning of a Colonial policy on the part of the American Government. It is a great stretch of the imagination to regard the insignificant Sandwich Islands group as a colony for a nation like ours, having vast areas of land wholly unoccupied by population.—Newark Advertiser.

THE POLICE.

The duty of the public is to support the police. The man who carries the policeman's badge is the embodiment of the desire of every citizen to have law and order in the community. There is nothing easier than to trump up charges against the men doing police duty, especially that of receiving bribes. Yet time and again have the police been proved to have refused considerable sums of money.

The prisoner who has been engaged in a drunken row always considers that he has been unjustly treated and is loud-mouthed and voluble over his wrongs. To create bad blood between the police and any class is not only short-sighted policy, but distinctly wrong.

It must be remembered that only a week or so ago some drunken Japanese men-o-war's-men knocked down and maltreated a young lady on Nuuanu Street. It is the presence of the police and their unflinching courage in stopping such rows that give our wives and children freedom to walk about the streets on any night in the year.

Another thing that must be kept in mind is, that if the police fail to keep order, the Government has to fall back upon the Citizen's Guard, and it will be no pleasant task for the men composing that guard to undertake policemen's duty. The position of the policeman is no sinecure, and he has to keep his temper under very trying circumstances and if, like any ordinary man, he loses it, he is hauled over the coals by his superiors and howled at by the mob.

The plain duty of all citizens is to support their police, and the community should be thankful that they have so thoroughly efficient a force as they have here. If an investigation is needed in certain cases, proper representations to the Attorney General would result in such an investigation being ordered. But such cases are few, if any. What must be kept firmly in mind is that the ordinary welfare and order of the community is founded upon its police, and that that is the force that must receive its support and commendation.

THE TREATY.

Five days' later news from the coast does not give much further information about the Annexation Treaty. The reply to the protest of the Japanese Government, which had been drawn up before the last mail left, was placed in the hands of the Japanese legation in Washington on June 26th and had been cabled by the Minister to Tokio. The document is a lengthy one, and deals with international precedent and international law.

It is said that in some parts the meaning is somewhat obscure. Of this statement one is apt to doubt the accuracy, for if Secretary Sherman prides himself upon one point rather than another it is his clearness and perspicacity in expounding questions of international law. However, the document is likely to give the Japanese Government a considerable amount of work, studying up the points made and finding answers to them.

With the use of the telegraph the counter reply will, in all probability be made in Washington before the next steamer from the coast leaves, for the draft can be made there and signed by the Japanese Minister. The full text of all these documents will be very interesting.

The Hawaiian exception clause will certainly pass in the tariff bill, pending action upon annexation nothing disturbing the economic conditions here will be undertaken. It is only a day's news, but it is quite a satisfactory day's news after all.

THE INCOME TAX.

There can be no doubt that an income tax is the fairest tax that can be levied. The bill which passed ed the last legislature was in the nature of an experiment. It is now on its trial and the first of its battles is to be its constitutionality.

The framers of the measure were very careful upon this very point. What threw the tax out in the Federal Courts was that it was a graduated tax and therefore unequal, but the tax, as levied here, is not a graduated tax.

An income tax has many supporters among the thinkers of the community and should the Supreme Court decide against the tax in its present shape, they will no doubt make it an issue of the next election. In fact it would be one of the main issues upon which representatives would be elected.

It does not appear to be generally known that an income tax is collected in three States of the Union, viz: Massachusetts, Virginia and Pennsylvania. In Massachusetts the levy is upon "so much of the income from a profession or trade or employment as exceeds the sum of $2000." In Virginia the tax is levied from interest or profits in excess of $1000.

As has been pointed out in these columns before, those who are dissatisfied with legislative enactments should watch such enactments while in the process of passing through the Assembly. They would save both time to the State and money to themselves by so doing.

Of the progress of civilization in Africa there seems little or no check. A little less than 20 years ago and the world was agape over Stanley's expedition across Africa and his discovery of the Upper Congo. Now one of the confluent streams of that stream is spanned by a railway bridge, and the iron horse reaches for hundreds of miles along the banks of the main stream. Within a year the locomotive whistle will be heard at Stanley Pool. This railroad runs through a country which took Stanley five months to cross, during which time he was in imminent danger of starvation. On the Congo itself there are now forty steamers and as many tow boats. Truly it is wonderful what mankind can do with the use of steam power. A century ago and such rapid advance as is now being made would have been impossible.

JULY 3, 1897.

IT WAS GREAT

Since our last announcement the Iolani has arrived with a very heavy cargo of kerosene oil and in consequence the price has dropped, making the using of oil stoves more economical than ever.

The demand for BLUE FLAME Oil Stoves has been so heavy that it has been almost impossible to carry a stock large enough to supply the call.

Where formerly we had on the two styles, we now have three sizes, the third size being smaller than the other two.

The PORTABLE DEITZ OIL STOVE is built on the same lines as the coal and wood stoves, with the exception that it consumes oil. This stove is complete with oven, kettle and stew pan. We have smaller styles in one, two and three burners for heating milk etc., that comes in handy when not wishing to cook a full meal.

In coal and wood stoves and ranges we have the Olive, Bono and Pansy in three sizes which are household jewels; in larger stoves or ranges the No. 7 Fisher Steel Range, Columbus Nos. 7 and 8, and the Empire City an excellent range for country hotels, restaurants and coffee shops. It is not boasting when we say that is is a hard matter to find a better assortment of stoves of all kinds, sizes and prices than we handle.

HAWAIIAN HARDWARE CO.

And it made a hit worth remembering, did our float, "Love in a Cottage," in the procession on Monday. It was an illustration of a kitchen furnished by us. It showed how completely that part of the home may be furnished by us at the lowest possible cost.

If you remember it, the Jewel stove stood supreme in the cottage and if you had inquired of the young housekeeper who occupied the cottage, she would have told you that as a fuel saver, the Jewel is the best ever brought into the country. She would have told you that it is the best baker she ever had in the house. The breadwinner in the cottage would have told you that the biscuits he ate along the line of march, baked in the Jewel were quite as good as those "his mother used to make." The Jewel is the best in every respect and the cheapest, for the money ever put on the market.

FINE NEW WAREHOUSE.

Davies & Co. Ready to Build a $15,000 Structure.
Davies & Co. are preparing to erect a big warehouse on the newly made ground on the Waikiki side of the new fish market. The building is to be spacious and substantial, and will cost when completed about $15,000. The land upon which the building will stand was recently purchased from the Government. It comprises 218 lots. Much material for the building is already on the ground. The new slip dug out there will be the most convenient on the water front.

"DOMESTIC."

There is no necessity to add the words "sewing machine" in speaking of the "Domestic." Every housekeeper knows that the "Domestic" is what L. B. Kerr claims it to be—the best in the world.

HAS BUT ONE CONDITION.

Captain Thompson of the St. Louis College team is not the least bit satisfied with yesterday's decision of the league in regard to Monday's game. "I think they have treated my team rather unfairly," said he today. "If the umpire made an error the league should reprimand him for it, but certainly should not take the game away from us. One thing is certain, my men will never play the game over again. We are entitled to play our half of the ninth inning. If we fail to score a tally then another inning should be played. I will agree only to such an arrangement."

WEEK IN SOCIETY CIRCLES

DELIGHTFUL FAREWELL TEA TO MRS. MILLS.

The Ladies' Valley Tennis Club will receive tomorrow afternoon—Hea-lani Boat Club Dance Tonight.

Mrs. F. M. Swanzy was the hostess at a delightful afternoon tea yesterday complimentary to Mrs. Ellis Mills, who will depart shortly for Washington. The tea tables were stationed on the lanai and verandas. The decorations were yellow marigolds, held in beautiful vases. The guests were served by Mrs. Mary Gunn, Miss May Atkinson, Miss Ella Stansbury, and the Misses Kelley. About fifty ladies were present, and a number of gentlemen, among whom were noticed Mrs. Harold M. Sewall, United States Consul General and Mrs. Haywood, Mrs. H. Renjes, Mrs. Charles Cooper, Mrs. S. G. Wilder, Mrs. J. S. Walker, Mrs. Porter Boyd, Mrs. Bruce Cartwright, Mrs. H. E. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Moses, Admiral Beardslee, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rain Walker, Mrs. Holdsworth, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Conradt, Mrs. R. D. Walbridge, Miss Parke, Mrs. Foeke, A. Adams, and others.

One of the pleasant events of the week will be the reception of the Ladies' Valley Tennis Club at the courts on Kuakini street tomorrow afternoon. The reception was to have been held two weeks ago, but was necessarily postponed owing to the rainy weather. The ladies have issued no special invitations, but they cordially welcome the friends of the club. This will be the first reception ever given by a ladies tennis club, as this club has just been recently formed. There is no question about its success. Refreshments will be served.

A pleasant surprise party was given to Miss Lelia Roynton at Kawaiahao Seminary last evening, the occasion being Miss Roynton's birthday anniversary. After a social chat, the guests partook of a delicious supper.

Miss Allie Wall entertained about fifty friends on Friday evening at progressive euchre, followed with an informal dance. The National Quintet Club furnished the music. After an elegant supper had been served, the prizes were awarded. Miss Rita Schmidt and Edwin Paris won the first trophies, Miss Nickelson and Mr. Simons came into possession of the booby prizes.

The Vice Versa Card Club, after a vacation of three weeks, will play euchre Monday evening at the home of Miss Allie Wall on Beretania.

The ladies will make a special day of it at the Pacific Tennis courts next Wednesday.

Mrs. George Herbert, Mrs. H. G. Noonan, and Mrs. E. D. Tenney, will leave for the island of Hawaii on the 30th inst., to remain a short time.

Miss Charlotte Collins, of Oakland, left last week on a visit to the volcano. She is now the guest of friends at Hilo.

The Hea-lani's will give their moonlight hop at the boat house this evening.

It is whispered that Captain Book of the Marion intends entertaining his friends shortly at a dance on board.

Mrs. A. A. Hanelen gave a luncheon today for a number of ladies.

It is better to spend a little money in advertising now, than to hold a fire sale at a latter date.

NOTICE TO HACKMEN.

Notice is hereby given that in the Rules and Regulations to be observed by licensed carriers of passengers in the District of Honolulu the following rules relating to rates of fare have been amended, so as to read:

13th—To or from any point in or between Beretania street and the harbor and between Maunakea street and Punchbowl street, for either one or two passengers, 25 cents. For each additional passenger, 10 cents.

14th—To or from any point between the second bridge, Nuuanu avenue and Kunawai lane on Liliha street and the harbor and between the Reformatory School on the Ewa road and the line of Victoria street on the Waikiki side, not exceeding one mile from the starting point, for each passenger, 25 cents.

The above amended rules to take effect from and after July 15, 1897.

Minister of the Interior.
Interior Office, July 8, 1897.

In accordance with the requirements of Section 4, Article 103 of the Constitution,

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN of the following which passed its third reading in the House of Representatives, May 12, 1896, and in the Senate May 16, 1896:

PROPOSED AMENDMENT
To Article 63 of the Constitution of the Republic of Hawaii, in Accordance with Article 103 thereof.

Article 63 of the Constitution of the Republic of Hawaii is hereby amended to read as follows:

Article 63.—Title of laws
"Each law shall embrace but one subject, which shall be expressed in its title."

J. A. KING,
Minister of the Interior.
Interior Office, July 1, 1897.

They All

"There are fads in medicine as well as in other things," said a busy druggist, "but the most remarkable thing about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that customers who try other remedies all come back to Hood's, and this is why the enormous sales of this medicine keep up while others and in a short time go out of sight entirely, to be heard from no more."

"Why is it?" "O, simply because Hood's Sarsaparilla is more real curative merit than any medicine I ever sold."

This is of daily occurrence in almost every drug store. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the standard remedy which has cured more sickness, relieved more distress and made more happiness by bringing people health than any other medicine. Its wonderful cures of the worst cases of scrofula, running sores, ulcers, salt rheum, etc.; of dyspepsia and other troubles where a first class tonic and aid to digestion was needed; of catarrh, rheumatism, malaria and other troubles arising from or promoted by impure blood, have made

WHAT WE KEEP STORE FOR.

To make money.
How do we keep store? To make money.

What do the rest of 'em keep store for? To make money.

How do they keep store? Some to make money, some to lose it.

Whence the difference? Different notions of how to make money prevail. Some think that the way to make money is to make as much as they can; they lose it.

We make money by making so little that nobody minds it—little and often—a little trickling stream.

We make money by keeping the best of clothes. Did you ever hear of better than those with this abelunder he coat collar?

Your money back if you want it; but you won't want it. What so good other use can you make of it? Still it is yours, and we never forget it.

ADVANTAGES OF ANNEXATION.

Views of Representative Spalding on the Subject.

Representative Spalding of Michigan, who introduced a resolution in the House in the Fifty-fourth Congress providing for the annexation of Hawaii, is very much interested in the progress of pending events in Congress looking to that end. Gen. Spalding is generally credited by his colleagues with being in close touch with the Administration upon the Hawaiian policy. In conversation with a Star reporter today, Gen. Spalding talked upon annexation. He said:

"In the Fifty-fourth Congress I introduced a joint resolution looking to the annexation of Hawaii. The resolution was drawn almost exactly like the joint resolution for the annexation of Texas, inasmuch as it gives the President sufficient power and scope to adopt the best methods of annexation. I believe now that the President and the officers in authority in the State Department are trying to throw the protecting arms of the great Republic of the United States around our little sister Republic sitting midway in the Pacific ocean. The islands constituting the territory of the Hawaiian Government, formerly the Sandwich islands, are extremely fertile, but their value to this Government is not in their fertility, but as an outpost in case of war for the defense of this continent. Their strategic position is invaluable to this country. As coaling stations for our navy in case of war they are absolutely necessary, hence our Government has always looked with favor on the requirement of a harbor by purchase to be a place of refuge and a coaling station in case of war.

"Nature has placed these islands as outposts of this continent, and to surrender them to other nations would seem to be almost an act of treason. Our foreign trade is assuming immense proportions. It is the duty of the general Government to protect, foster and care for this great trade. A navy thoroughly equipped was necessary to even police the seas, but the seas could not be policed without coaling stations, as a modern ship is of no value without coal.

"In 1842 President Tyler sent a message to the Senate of the United States relating to the Hawaiian islands. Fillmore in 1850 reiterated the statements made by Tyler in favor of the annexation or protection of these islands by our Government. Franklin Pierce in 1854 desired the annexation of Hawaii and authorized the negotiation of the treaty of annexation of 1854, but said treaty was not confirmed by the Senate. President Buchanan in 1849, as Secretary of State, stated that English or French control of Hawaii would be highly injurious to the United States. Would it be any less injurious to have Japan control these islands? The annexation of Hawaii was favored by President Grant. President Arthur was in full sympathy with the Americanizing of Hawaii, and President Harrison caused an annexation treaty to be negotiated in Hawaii, which was defeated by the Senate.

"There are some who object to the admission of Hawaii, believing that admission as a State is necessary to annexation. This is not the case. It could be admitted and held as a Territory or a protectorate. Hawaii is anxious for annexation. The governing classes are of our own kith and kin, the mixed classes that are there are largely laborers on sugar plantations, etc., and they will cause us little or no trouble in legislation. The precarious condition of the present Government requires speedy action. I have the utmost confidence in the genius of the President of the United States to foresee the peculiar conditions and to hasten an amicable arrangement by which the Hawaiian islands will be placed entirely under the control of the United States Government."—Washington Star.

REASONS WHY CHAMBERLAIN'S CHOLERA AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY IS THE BEST.

1. Because it affords almost instant relief in case of pain in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus.
2. Because it is the only remedy that never fails in the most severe cases of dysentery and diarrhoea.
3. Because it is the only remedy that will cure chronic diarrhoea.
4. Because it is the only remedy that will prevent bilious colic.
5. Because it is the only remedy that will cure epidemical dysentery.
6. Because it is the only remedy that can be depended upon in cases of cholera infantum.
7. Because it is the most prompt and most reliable medicine in use for bowel complaints.
8. Because it produces no bad results.
9. Because it is pleasant and safe to take.
10. Because it has saved the lives of more people than any other medicine in the world.

LOVE IN LEATHER.

No wonder he looked a bit leathery; no wonder he tied his tie in a manner suggesting shoe strings and expressed his estimate of a fellow man's character by the mysterious letter A, E or D. He was "in the shoe business." He always expressed it in that way as sounding somewhat better than the more vulgar acknowledgment, "I am a clerk in a shoe-shop." But he was. And his fingers had tied and untied more shoe laces than even the foreman of the establishment. Now, although his eyes were a trifle weak, not to say pink and watery, his trousers knees shiny, and though he possessed several other unpleasant drawbacks, his heart was a heart after all.

He never knew he had a heart until the day she came to get some slippers to wear at her own coming out party. Mamma was with her—mamma, ponderous and imposing, but whose shoes he had fitted for years with all the patience imaginable. Said mamma that day as she swept into the big shop:

"Where is Mr. Jenkinson? I could never think of having shoes fitted by any other young person."

So when they called him—he was at the back of the shop explaining lucidly the intricacies of a transfer clerk to a lady from out of town, who was suspicious of fraud in the matter—he came at once.

"I remember—fives C, isn't it?" said he, bowing before her magnificence of furs and silks.

"Oh, but it isn't today, Mr. Jenkinson," said mamma, in a superior way. "It's twos, and the narrowest you have."

And then, for the first time he saw her—or rather her foot, for, after all, it was her foot which stole his heart—healthy and tough in the matter of pretty feet, from having been in the business for years—and more.

But that little foot! Or rather those little feet, for he fitted them both. They were slender, arched in instep, curved like the most exquisite of shoemaker's lasts. Not a foot for an artist to admire—not in the least—but a foot to wear and dance in a No. 2 shoe in a manner to win the heart of the most blasé shoeman.

"White satin, please, and quite jolly high heels!" said a small, imperious voice.

And such dreams of slippers, such suggestions of coquetry in the matter of heels, as the amiable Mr. Jenkinson procured from out mysterious green boxes!

No wonder she was satisfied.

"For I'm never going to wear ones again, you understand, until I'm either married or dead," said the small, imperious voice, essaying a laugh.

"Horror!" said mamma. "What a reckless way of talking you have learned at school! I feel quite like finding fault. I do indeed."

But she only laughed again and skipped merrily out to be tucked into robes by a pompous footman.

After that, when that footman waited before the door of the shop, it was more often "twos, quite narrow," than "fives, broad."

And poor Mr. Jenkinson!

How could a little girl just from school and revelling in her first season know that among her fifty odd adresses there was one who never so much as dared raise his pink, watery eyes from her feet?

"She's got the dandiest foot in town, bless her!" Mr. Jenkinson would say to himself.

And he came to brood upon it. Once, when she tried on walking boots, she kicked off some tiny mules which she had most audaciously dared to wear during her trip into town in the tiny brougham and said: "You need not send them home; they are so worn."

That night Mr. Jenkinson instituted a shrine. It consisted of a corner cabinet of walnut, which was adorned as to exterior with a knitted mat and a china dog. At night, when he unlocked the door of the little walnut cabinet, one might see two tiny half worn mules of bronze-kid. That was all.

Yet many men have worshiped less. And if on the last great day all is made open and all secrets disclosed, what strange, not to say laughable, shrines of the bachelor heart will be among the exhibits! And she never knew. That fact imparted a strange melancholy to the air, in Mr. Jenkinson's opinion. And how busy she kept him! Pink shoes, blue slippers, green satin and lemon satin and such wicked, wicked rosettes and heels!

At last—for there is always that inevitable "at last" in affairs of the heart, even though it be not a shoeman's heart—there came to Mr. Jenkinson a blow—a bitter, bad blow. You would not think a pair of white satin high heels "No. 2's, narrow," could administer as severe a one. But so it was. Had she not said, "I will never wear another pair of white ones until I marry or die!" And she was very much alive. He could not wish her dead, ah, no—but it was very hard to bear. He leaned quite over that little dear foot as he fitted the slippers of a bride upon it. She could not see his face as she said, "Please see that they put real seed pearls on the tulle rosettes, for these are to wear with a wedding gown." But at the last moment Fifine, the little maid, said in horror as she fitted them upon the bride's silken covered feet: "But, madam—but, miss—these are really strange marks upon the satin! One might call them 'tears'!" "It's too late to do anything about it now!" said mamma fustily. "But really it was very careless of Mr. Jenkinson! As a matter of fact, they do look like tears. I wonder!"

"And if they were tears," cried the little bride, "are not tears pearls? And I ordered them." Poor Mr. Jenkinson!—Johanna Staats in Philadelphia Press.

Eton a Typical English Town.

The houses at Eton are clustered about the college and look very comfortable with their broad, ivy covered fronts and window boxes blazing with flowers. Instead of large, common sleeping rooms, the boys have each a room of his own. These are not usually more than 10 feet square, and besides a folding bed, bathtub and washstand they contain not only a fireplace, a cook stove, and a tea table, but also a study table and chair and sometimes a bookcase and ottoman. You wouldn't think there was much space left for a boy to live in, to say nothing of making a racket, but there is. A favorite joke in some of the houses is to gather all the bathtubs in a hall and shove them through the transom into some poor fellow's room. This fills the room so full that the boy who owns it has to get the caretaker to drag out each separate bathtub, amid vast sound and confusion, before he can go to bed. In the winter months the boys play football up and down the halls, using the door at either end for goal. This also makes enough noise. But these are not the only diversions. In a number of rooms you will find collections of books far larger and more wisely selected than is usual on the shelves even of American university men.—Harper's Round Table.

A DRUGGIST'S YARN.

"I am still a young man, though my hair is almost white," he said when he at last consented to relate a few of his experiences in the Post. "But the drug business is in many ways a trying one. I often wake in the night dreaming that I have witnessed some unfortunate by mistake. When I first began to compound prescriptions, I was very nervous about the components, and would look at a bottle several times before using its contents, and when finished would go all over them to make sure that I was correct. Upon one occasion I became so anxious that, having carefully prepared a prescription and given it to a lady, I hastened after her and took away the bottle under the pretext that it was the wrong one, and throwing it out of the window I made up the medicine all over again. Well, well, that was over long ago. I believe it would have killed me if I had made a mistake. But I never did. So I gradually became more confident, and now my own cases, as well as dangerous drugs, are under my control."

"Yes, a man in my calling does hold a good many secrets in his keeping. I fancy that has helped to age me. The problem of one's own individual existence is a sufficient tax on the mentality without plunging into the great maelstrom of human life."

"Do you ever feel your collection of other people's skeletons to be a dangerous as well as a heavy burden?"

"No," he answered, "I never think of that except perhaps in my dreams. No doubt there are a number of irreproachable ladies and gentlemen who will sigh with regret when they see my name in the death column. Nevertheless, this is a civilized country and man is a creature of habit."

"I began life as a physician," he continued, "but I had neither capital nor influence, and so came to grief. I then took a situation as a drug clerk, in which capacity I managed to save enough after a few years to take a small store on the outskirts of the city and set up for myself. It was at this period of my life that the experiences I am about to relate occurred."

"The neighborhood where I found myself was semifashionable, and I did fairly well. The first scene in one of the most interesting real life dramas I have ever witnessed took place on a lovely June evening."

"A beautiful boy, apparently about 18 or 19 years of age, entered my shop and asked me to sell him a very small quantity of an extremely insidious poison."

"I want it to mix up with some other stuff to kill insects," he explained, with a sweet smile. "I'll take out a patent some day and make my fortune. I'm no end of a chemist."

"He wanted so little of the drug that I could see no harm in giving it to him. While I was wrapping the tiny parcel I looked curiously at my customer, for it is seldom you see so beautiful a youth. There was something odd about his expression. When he smiled, his shapely lips parted over rows of pearly teeth, but though the lines about his mouth were sweet, the effect was not altogether pleasant, because his eyes widened suddenly and shot out a tigerish gleam, half mocking, half cruel, that was as extraordinary as it was transitory. But the peculiarity that struck me most forcibly was the small, well-poised head and the delicacy of the profile of the tiny, shell-like ear, as he stood outlined against the red sunset light that flowed through my western window. I also observed a mole that set off the whiteness of his throat about half way to his low collar."

"Well, it was a number of days before I could get that pretty boy out of my head. On the third morning I read in the papers an account of the sudden death (probably of heart failure) of a prominent gentleman who had recently taken up his residence in the city. The reporter who wrote up the tragedy told pathetically about the grief of the young widow, who had been devoted to her husband, despite the fact that he was a good many years her senior."

"It was quite by accident that I went to the inquest. A friend of mine, happening in, asked me to accompany him, and for want of better employment I went."

"The afternoon was waning when the beautiful young widow took the stand to testify. A murmur of sympathy and admiration greeted her as she made her answers in a low, sweet voice. As she spoke the ghost of forgotten music seemed to fill the room. I was strangely reminded of—I could not tell just what. The coroner spoke a few words of condolence and regret that he should be forced to question her. As he did so a faint suggestion of a smile flitted across her lips, and at the same time her eyes widened and a gleam shot forth, as though the blinds that guarded those windows of her soul had been for a moment raised, disclosing the inward fire. The expression was gone in a breath, but my heart was beating rapidly, for the illusive memory had come over me more strongly than before. "Who was this woman, and of what did she remind me?" I asked myself. My question was almost miraculously answered, for just then the sun, which had been behind clouds all day, made up his mind to show his countenance for a space before retiring, and, suddenly emerging, lit the sky gloriously, throwing his beams full upon the western window, against which the black robed figure of the young widow stood outlined."

"This association of ideas was sufficient. Whether without it I should ever have recognized her I cannot say, but I saw it all then. The delicate profile, which was turned toward me, the well-poised head and pretty, tiny ear, even the mole became visible as she raised her chin in replying rather laughingly to some inquiry."

"Afterward I made private investigations among my business conferees and succeeded in finding two who remembered being visited by a beautiful boy on a certain lovely night in June. From each he had purchased an infinitesimal quantity of a particularly insidious drug used to kill insects—and other things."

"Did no one else suspect her?"

"If they did, they never made their suspicions public," he replied. "If half of the crimes committed in this desperate old world came to light, the criminologists would be forced to the conclusion that only the good people are abnormal."—Washington Post.

Superstition or Vanity?
 An English woman, expert in palmistry, who is highly esteemed in London, says that the Americans are among her best customers. She does not consider Americans more superstitious than other persons on this account. She credits the fact to their vanity.

FOR A CENTURY.

"Heaven help me!" groans Maurice Ringwood. His father had been no less popular than his ancestors. But latterly he had become heavily involved in debt, leaving behind him nothing but the practice and the long household of the house. During his lifetime no whisper had assailed his integrity. But that very morning his son had seen in a neighboring solicitor's office certain documents which revealed everything—dark records there, which, although they could not harm the dead, would, if once disclosed, forever disgrace the living.

Glib & Shalton knew the value of the papers they held, and meant to get it. For a consideration, they said—yes, for a consideration—the documents would be given up to Dr. Ringwood. But the price demanded was a heavy one. He must be prepared to quit The Cedars, of which they were the ground landlords, at the ensuing term.

His child wife slips to his side. Sooner or later she must know the truth. So he tells her all. Only once, when he speaks of a neighboring town as their likely home for the future, does she start instinctively.

"Oh, Maurice, to leave The Cedars and go to Newington—to live there!"

As the business is far too important to be trusted to a subordinate, it is Mr. Glib himself who is seated next morning in the library at The Cedars, his black bag by his side. After a few commonplace he comes to business.

"Here, Dr. Ringwood," he says, handing over a thick envelope with some inclosures. "These are the documents you have already seen. Better assure yourself that they are all right. And this, again, is the formal notice to quit these premises at Lady day, which requires your signature by way of acceptance. As you are aware, a clause in the deeds of the leasehold provides for its termination at any time in this manner."

Poor Ringwood soon satisfies himself that the papers are in order. He pauses meditatively, however. A strong temptation assails him at that moment to seize the papers and expel their rascally possessor on the spot. But he restrains himself.

At this moment his wife comes into the room, with the slightest of bows in Mr. Glib's direction.

"You don't mind me, do you, Maurice?" she asks shrilly.

"Certainly not, love," answers her husband. So she leans over his chair. While he is looking over the other papers she absently toys with the notice to quit, which lies open on the table. Whether her hand trembles as she fingers it, or whether a slight breeze from the open casement causes it to fall from the table, no one can tell, but the paper flutters for a moment in the air, then falls on the blazing fire.

"Oh, what have I done?" cries Dot distractedly.

"Don't put yourself about, ma'am," interposes the solicitor hastily. "It's of no consequence whatever—only a simple notice, which can easily be replaced."

In ordinary circumstances he would at once have returned to his office and had a fresh notice written out. But delay in this instance may be dangerous. Dr. Ringwood seems to be in a hesitating humor. Better, then, to strike while the iron is hot.

"If you will oblige me with a sheet of paper, ma'am," he continues, "I will draft a fresh notice. A mere memorandum will serve," he adds, turning to Ringwood.

"And, if you wish, it can be extended afterwards."

But silently pushes a stationery case toward him, from which he extracts a sheet of note paper. It is headed "The Cedars, Hedingham," and a ruled space is left underneath for the date. He rapidly drafts a notice to quit, "as at Lady day next ensuing after date hereof," appending the usual form of acceptance, to be signed by the tenant.

The surgeon looks over the paper handed him with a mist before his eyes—his hand trembles as he writes his signature, "Maurice Ringwood."

Silently the surgeon locks the document in a drawer. "At last," he says to himself—"at last, but at what a price!"

"This is your birthday, Maurice," says his wife at the breakfast table next morning. "So here is your cadeau!"

She laughingly hands him an oblong packet. He opens it. Nothing within but a gossily number of quires of note paper, printed with the familiar heading of "The Cedars."

He looks up inquiringly, "Why, what is this, darling?"

"You foolish boy, you haven't looked at it. Read the heading."

"The Cedars, Hedingham," he begins. "Why, what is this? The date line is printed for next century, 19—! What does it mean?"

Just this, Maurice. I found a lot of this paper in the old chest in my attic. You know you told me once that your father used to buy enormous quantities of stationery—sufficient to last for years. It is plain that he did so—there are rooms upon rooms of it up stairs, and, do you know, he actually made provision for the coming century by storing up paper headed like this, 19— Now, don't you see?"

"I confess I'm rather dull," he begins. "Why, love, don't you see that our notice to leave is written on this very paper by Glib himself, and he never noticed the printed date figures, but just added 97?"

So perhaps, after all, we won't have to leave till a pretty distant date comes round, say a century from this—1997 is what the notice says, anyway."

"And you—you"—he stammers.

"I took good care, of course, that the original notice fell in the fire—on the chance of his using this paper instead. I had put a lot of it in the stationery case, just in fun. But the idea struck me the moment I came into the room. You are not angry with me, Maurice, are you?"

The Ringwoods are still at The Cedars, a very pretty laid scheme having been frustrated by a woman's stratagem. Although the surgeon had his doubts at first, they were soon put to flight, for the London lawyers affirmed that Dot was right. The notice to quit was duly written out by one of the ground owners of the property, was duly signed by him and by Dr. Ringwood and the signatures were not disputed. It was therefore a perfectly legal instrument, and the date could not be amended. It was a valid notice to quit indeed, but only at Lady day a century hence, certainly not before.—London News.

Raw Eggs.
 Taken whole and raw, using a tablespoon which has been dipped in lemon juice, eggs are a fine tonic. The old-fashioned way of boiling eggs until the white is horny and the yolk soggy should be abolished. Put into cold water and brought to a temperature of 180 degrees and then allowed to stand from 25 to 40 minutes, the eggs will cook evenly, leaving the white and yolk jellylike and digestible.—New York Tribune.

ITCHING SKIN DISEASES

Instantly Relieved by CUTICURA

A warm bath with CUTICURA SOAP, and a single application of CUTICURA, the great skin cure, followed by mild doses of CUTICURA RESOLVENT (the new blood purifier), will afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy, economical, and permanent cure of the most distressing of itching, burning, bleeding, scaly, and crusted skin and scalp diseases, after physicians, hospitals, and all other methods fail.

Sold throughout the world. British depot: F. NEWBERRY & SONS, 1, King Edward St., London, E. C. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Sole Proprietors, Boston, U. S. A.

Women and Women Only
 Are most competent to fully appreciate the purity, sweetness, and delicacy of CUTICURA SOAP, and to discover new uses for it daily. In the preparation of curative washes, solutions, etc., for annoying irritations, chaffs, and excoriations of the skin and mucous membrane, or too free or offensive perspiration, it has proved most grateful and comforting. Like all others of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, the CUTICURA SOAP appeals to the refined and cultivated everywhere, and is beyond all comparison the most effective skin purifying and beautifying soap in the world.

Cause vs Effect

CAUSE.

If you are contemplating doing any speculating, take our suggestion and look out for a good piece of real estate. Then speculate to your heart's content. But never speculate on feed for your stock. You will find it worse than real estate.

EFFECT.

If you contemplate buying any new feed for your stock, it will pay you to buy it of us. You are in no wise speculating. It is a sure investment, and your money will be well placed. Who wants sick or poisoned stock? The result of a speculation.
