So much we have seen, tasted, discovered, learned and experienced during our stay, only to thank God for you for such wonderful and lovely people, beautiful and amazing island that God has placed you in this part of Pacific Ocean, Blessed to bless other Nations. It is with much joy that I write to express our sincere appreciation and thank you. So much that we have put you through which you have sacrificed your time, earnings, possessions, positions, status, and all you have served with humbleness and joyful hearts. TO GOD BE THE GLORY AND HONOUR.

I believe it would have been something very special or the highlight of our visit should we have arrived in time to join or witnessed your annual Nuku celebration, yet you have maintained the spirit of the joy and the suffering of the Gospel of the Word of God that in all you did for us is a testimony to many of us, to see the Love of God and the Power of His Word manifesting through CICC Ekalesia. We are moved by your humbleness, Love and gentle Heart.

Thank you for having us part take in the singing and delivering of the Dawn Service message in Avarua and Matareva Churches. Coming to Cook Islands is a yearn, a dream of every Papuan and thank you for the INVITATION 2012 and then the extended special INVITATION to the Bicentennial Celebration 2021.

Finally, our very special acknowledgement and BIG PALA TENKIU as follows:

1. Coordination – CICC ADMINISTRATION

Executive and the management of the CICC for the successful administration and coordination of the programme

2. Drivers

Thankyou all so much for the abundance and wonderful dinners, very sorry that we could not eat them all, since our human system has its limitations.

5. Tour of ancient sites, Museum, Lagoon Cruise and Information

- Mauri Toa, Secretary, CICC Ngatangia, thank you for making the time available to guide us around to the museum and to historical sites. These visits were very informative and a lot was learnt from these visits. The swim in the lagoon with the fish was certainly like paradise.

6. Programme Coordinator (Mr. Nga Mataio, CICC General Secretary)

- To you dear brother for ensuring our stay in Rarotonga was an enjoyable one and surely we all enjoyed our stay. Even missing out on the main event of the Gospel Day, the alternate program was a success. Thank you so much. We also wish to extend our sincere appreciation and acknowledgement to yourself, your wife and family for hosting the SECRET LUNCH and the Singing Lesson at your home. Thank you so much. Was it only a snack as you said?? No, it was more than a snack!!

To many of us, this visit was very fruitful and a historical one. Many of the things we witnessed were a testimony that we can be reminded about enjoying life both Spiritually and Physically. I also wish to take this opportunity that whilst I anticipate that many of the members have expressed themselves for another visit in the near future, we wish to bring to your attention that you are all welcome in our homes should there be anyone or any group thinking of visiting us here in PNG. I remember both Nikao and Matereva Ekalesias requesting for such a visit. Once again you are all welcomed.

GOD BLESS AND TANIKU BADA HEREA

10. NEWS FROM THE MATAVERA GILS BRIGADE

PRACTICE JOURNEY

On Saturday the 1st of September, the members of the Matavera Girls Brigade who are currently undergoing the Duke of Edinburgh Hillary Award (D.O.E) with 4 doing the bronze myself included and 1 doing her silver, went on our Practice Journey on the cross Island track. Leading us on this Journey was Boy's Scouts Leader Benjamin Maxwell and his assistant and followed with supporting members of the Matavera Company and a Mama. Before going on our trip we went through basic first aids training, compass use and directions, essential gear needed for the trip and also plotting on a map of Rarotonga, intervals on our trip.

Members of the Matavera Girls Brigade about to undertake their hike up The Needle as part of their Duke of Edinburg Hillary Award.

It was an early start for the team that morning while making our way up along the track starting at 7:00am in Avatiu. The equipment that we took on our Hike included; 3 tents, a few ropes, bag of supplies, food water, and clothing. A rush of excitement had everyone moving quickly while still on ground level. Then 20 minutes later came the mounting uphill track (big sigh) with everyone sweating. We managed to arrive at the top ahead of schedule (while enjoying the view) with the clouds moving in for the rain. We had a few rope knots and first aids response lessons from our guide and instructor and finally the rain came. We pitched up our tent and huddled closely while munching out on everyone's food.

When the rain did stop we packed up and started to descend down the mountain. While enjoying the wonders of nature, we also had our very own off-tune radio with Kuraiti Rasmussen (clown of the day) and Ben. Along the way we built a stretcher with 2 long sticks and a few t-shirts which we used to carry one of the members to the end of the track (almost to the end). We reached the end of our Hike at Vaimaanga Waterfalls in Titikaveka at 12:30pm that afternoon with our leaders waiting with a table of food for the hungry hikers. Though the day was not over, we had to bike rally (to fit the requirements of the practice Journey) from Titikaveka to our home base in Matavera at the Sunday School Hall and this was the most exciting part of the Journey because we didn't have to walk anymore! We were split into two groups and three stops along the way with the first two starting at the main road. As we rotated on and off the truck, those on the truck enjoyed teasing those paddling their way on the bikes till we reached Matavera, washed off and loaded off onto our beds. Overall the Hike was both exciting and informative and we all enjoyed ourselves and certainly learned a few things from the experience.

QUALIFYING JOURNEY

Having completed our Practice Journey in preparation for the Qualifying requirements, we were to complete a 24km journey over a 2-day and one night period. Our leaders had chosen the mountain Te Kou on Rarotonga as the one to go up to and spend the night on, for our Qualifying Journey. Before going on this Journey, I asked around at school whether anyone had ever gone up on this particular mountain, most of them said that it's VERY STEEP. Now this got me worried and I started to doubt myself on whether I would be able to make it up. Then I was reminded of the verse in the Bible which goes like this, "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding." This gave me the strength and reassurance that I could carry out the Journey knowing that I will not be doing it alone or believing only in my own strength.

With much preparation that has been done for this Journey throughout the year, it all came down to this. So on Friday the 29th of November at 5:00pm, we the members of the Matavera Girls Brigade, those undergoing the Duke of Edinburgh Hillary Award, along with supporting members and our two Instructors and two Mamas, met at the Matavera Sunday School Hall, did a quick check of our equipments and other necessary gear; clothing, tents, sleeping bags, torches, food, first aid kit, and toiletries before heading to our starting point up Takuvaine Valley. According to our instructor, the climb was estimated to take 4 hours descending into the night. This means walking in the night for 4 hours!

Kuraiti Rasmussen, being the eldest of the girls, led the way. For the first half an hour of our Journey we thought we were LOST. Luckily someone knew the track well and so we continued. We were all excitedly singing till we came to our first steep mounting hill (eyes widen!). There was a set of rope dangling from what seemed like an endless ascending hill of darkness and this was the same for the next 6 to 7 steep hills that we climbed up on. Although the night was cold, I had sweated a lot so I could not feel the cold. The girls started to doze off while waiting for the others in the group to ascend up on the rope one by one. The rain started to drizzle but we continued on. We had a beautiful view of the night life of the Island, seeing spots of light in the distance below.

As time went by and more rain drizzling, we slowly pushed on in no rush at all as we made our way to the top. Coming to our last upward hill, and this was just after 1:00am, our instructors felt that we should rest where we were and not go up the last hill due to the time and the dangerous steepness of the hill. So we made ourselves as comfortable as we can where we were and rested, so what was supposed to be a 4-hour climb, turned into a 7-hour climb! Early the next morning when the sun had risen, we started making our way down which took us a good 4 hours with cheers here and there because of what we have just accomplished. We had an hour break before walking off to Nikao beach at the property of Helen. We filled our empty bottles with water from the stream and had a few things to munch on along the way. We then walked at a steady pace while burning in the hot sun, carrying our heavy load of equipment to Helen's beach. When we got there we were cheered on by our leaders and other supporting church members as we came to the finishing line of the Journey. A massive wave of relief and satisfaction swept through the whole team as they all headed for the sea and afterwards having a well-deserved lunch.

The girls and I much enjoyed the hike up TE KOU. Despite all the odds and faults, it was worth a year's preparation and a great experience full of laughter and pain. Thankyou very much to all those who contributed to this Journey; our parents, our instructors, the mamas who went with us, members of the team, and most importantly the Lord who took good care of us from the start to the end of the Journey, certainly a good experience for us.

News Highlights from Yester-years

Cover page of the monthly "Karere" in the 1940s-50s. The name of the boat is "John Williams VI".

"KO TE KARERE" (Karere) is a regular publication of the Cook Islands Christian Church. Its format has changed a few times over the years. Up to the 1970s, the Karere was published monthly and comprised of 3 parts: (1) scripture readings and uapou questions for each Sunday of the month, (2) a section set aside specifically for Sunday School, and (3) news, notices and announcements for the benefit of the CICC's branches on Rarotonga and in the outer islands. There were no branches in New Zealand and Australia back in those days. Printing was done at Takamoa by the LMS Press.

The Karere is still published today but on an annual basis and is confined to the Sunday scripture readings and uapou questions. News, notices and announcements are published in the bimonthly CICC newsletter. Both publications, in addition to others, are distributed to the CICC's 23 branches in the Cook Islands, New Zealand (22) and Australia (17) in both printed form as well as electronically. They are also available on the CICC's website (www.cicc.net.ck).

This section of the newsletter is devoted to bringing back memories of by-gone years. By reprinting in their original form some of the news articles from the church's past, one can virtually travel back in time and try to experience how things might have been then. For the next few issues of this newsletter, between 3/4 pages of published articles will be reproduced.

The CICC Head Office in Takamoa is greatly indebted to Ngata Urirau, Elder of the Avarua/Matavera Ekalesias for making available copies of the 1950s Karere from his possession for use in this CICC newsletter, thankyou very much. Anybody else who has old CICC records that may be of interest to the public and would like them reproduced in this newsletter, please contact the General Secretary at Takamoa on ciccgs@oyster.net.ck or phone 26547.

FAREWELL & GODSPEED to Mr. & Mrs. W. TAILBY

After nearly thirty years of association with these islands, Mr, W.Tailby, our Resident Commissioner, and his devoted and charming wife are retiring to their homeland. In bidding them "Farewell" we acknowledge with gratitude the friendship, sympathy and almost slavish devotion to duty which have characterised their service to the people of the Cook Islands. They will be remembered also for their interest in the church life of the people, an interest which which has been enhanced in value by the example they have set in the matter of attendance at the services. Their interest in the young and growing life of Cook Islanders has been abundantly manifested in their ardent support of the Boys' Brigade, Girl Guides and Child Welfare Movement. Many a home has been enriched by their manifold deeds of kindness and practical sympathy. In wishing them Godspeed on their journey we pray that they may enjoy happy reunion with their family and that in retirement their life may be enriched by many happy memories of their sojourn among the friendliest folk in the world in an island which has been rightly called "The Gem of the Pacific."

Walking Through Bible Places

This is the second of a series featuring pictures and notes from a book by Dr. Daud Soesilo with the above title. The book is a joint publication by the Indonesian Bible Society and the Bible Society of Singapore. Dr. Daud visited Takamoa in September 2012 as adviser on the BSSP-facilitated translation of the Bible, and presented a copy of the book to the church. The CICC is grateful for his approval to reproduce some of the contents of his book for the purpose of this newsletter. Dr. Soesilo is pictured on p.9 of newsletter 45. Re-typing and scanning of the photos were done by the CICC General Secretary.

Mount Tabor

The Basilica of the Transfiguration

Mount Tabor is situated in the Jezreel Valley, about 10km southeast of Nazareth. It is dome-shaped, 560m high, and stands isolated from other mountain ranges. Due to the steep sides rising flat land, it looks quite high. In the Old Testament, Mount Tabor was first mentioned as the site where Debrah and Barak, son of Abinoam, defeated Sisera, commander of King Jabin's army (Judges 4.6-16). "You are to get together an army of 10,000 men from the Naphtali and Zebulun tribes and lead them to Mount Tabor. The Lord will trick Sisera into coming out to fight you at the Kishon River. Sisera will be leading King Jabin's army as usual, and they will have their chariots, but the Lord has promised to help you defeat them." (Judges 4.6b-7).

In the Books of the Prophets, it was known as a place for idol worship (Hosea 5.1). King Nebuchadnezzar's power is compared to that of Mount Tabor and Mount Carmel by the Prophet Jeremiah (Jeremiah 46.18). The Psalmist mentions Mount Tabor along with Mount Hermon to illustrate the beauty of God's creation. "Mount Tabor and Mount Hermon gladly praise you. You are strong and mighty!" (Psalm 89.12-13). Mount Tabor is traditionally believed to be the "very high mountain" where Jesus took Peter, James and John. Although the name of the mountain is not mentioned, the Gospel has it: "They went up on a very high mountain where they could be alone" (Matthew 17.1b). There, Jesus' transfiguration took place, when Jesus' true glory was revealed. His three disciples saw Jesus talk with the Prophets Moses and Elijah (Matthew 17.1-13). To commemorate this event, a church, the Basilica of the Transfiguration, was designed by the Italian architect, Antonio Barluzzi, and built at the summit of Mount Tabor in 1924. It was built above the ruins of an earlier 4th century AD church. On Mount Tabor's peak, there is also a Greek Orthodox Church and a Franciscan monastery. It should be mentioned that others would rather believe that Mount Hermon was the site of Jesus' transfiguration, because Mount Tabor is not actually very high.

Cana

Cana is a small town in Galilee which is mentioned by name only in John's Gospel. Today it is called Kefar Cana (literally the "village of Cana"), and it is located not too far from Nazareth. Cana is the site where Jesus performed his first miracle, turning water into wine (John 2.1-11). Jesus also healed the son of a government official (John 4.46-54). Cana is the home of Nathanael, a disciple of Jesus whom Jesus gave his compliment; "Here's a true descendant of our ancestor Israel. And he isn't deceitful" (John 1.47, 21.2).

Today, there are two churches in Kefar Cana which were built to commemorate the miracle of the water being turned into wine: a Greek Orthodox Church and a Roman Catholic Church. The Cana Catholic Wedding Church, also known as the Church of the Miracle, was built above the ruins of a 6th century AD church, on the site believed to be the site of the ancient synagogue where Jesus performed his first miracle.

Below the church you will be able to see a stone jar, a replica of the type of stone jar used when Jesus turned water into wine.

Capernaum

Capernaum is a town on the southwest shore of Lake Galilee, and is the centre for the fishing industry. Capernaum was Jesus' hometown and served as the centre of his ministries while he was in Galilee (Matthew 4.13, 9.1). Its Hebrew name, Kefar Nahum, literally means the "village of Nahum." In Capernaum, Jesus preached in the local synagogue, healed the sick, and performed other miracles (Matthew 8.5-13; Mark 1.21-28). One of the things Jesus did in Capernaum was to heal Peter's mother-in-law (Matthew 8.14-17). There is now a church above the ruins of what is believed to be Peter's house, where Jesus performed this miracle, standing on the ancient columns. You can also see the ruins of a marble synagogue from the 4th century AD, believed to be built on the foundation of the synagogue where Jesus often visited, preached and performed miracles. Among the ruins they found a relief carving of the Ark of the Covenant and the symbol of the menorah (the seven-branched candelabra used in synagogues). You can also see ruins of ancient dwelling places, and a stone mill and a wine press.

Reflections by Rev. R. L. Challis

Rev. R. L. Challis is one of our missionaries on the island of Rarotonga (one of the Cook Islands), sixteen hundred miles from New Zealand. Every year he visits the tiny islands near Rarotonga: Mangaia, Mauke, Mitiaro and Aitutaki. As the "John Williams" does not go now to these islands, Mr. Challis has to sail in a trading schooner, which is often exciting and uncomfortable. He describes one of his trips in this story.

Let's Go A-Sailing!

We started off on such a jolly day in the schooner "Tiare Taporo," a boat about sixty feet long, with one small cabin, with room for 3 passengers. We had eight passengers to begin with, which meant wooden beds for some of us. So off we started with a good breeze to take us to our first stop, the island of Mangaia. When I had finished waving good-bye to the crowd, I noticed that although the sea looked perfect from the shore, there were still a few bumps, and the little schooner felt every one of them and passed the feeling on to me. So I took a last look at Rarotonga, which can be seen forty miles away, and went down to my little wooden bed. At 5.00am the next morning the captain awakened everybody for breakfast. I went on deck and saw the island of Mangaia right before us; we had done one hundred and ten miles since leaving Rarotonga, which was very good sailing indeed. Soon we were up to the landing place, and the native canoes came out to take us ashore. The coral reef on the islands stops the boat from landing passengers. So all the people have to go ashore in canoes and shoot the reef, which sometimes covers you in spray.

We landed at Oneroa, the main settlement on Mangaia, and the pastor met us, and we went up to the Mission House for refreshment and a good wash. Then we had a meeting of the Island Council, formed from representatives of the three LMS churches in Mangaia. All sorts of things were discussed. The church at Oneroa is a very beautiful little building, with seats for 400 people, and much more beautiful than many a Congregational church at home. We had a very good cup of tea with the Chief Magistrate, and I had a game of tennis that shook off the remains of my sea-sickness!

So we left Mangaia and started for Mauke, about ninety miles away, still with a good wind. I was now feeling much more comfortable on board, apart from a very hard bed. Mauke came in view early next morning, and we were on shore about 10.00 o'clock. We were given 6 hours here and had to make the best of it. We went to the pastor's house and had food and discussed affairs, but we could not see any of the people as they were very busy working. It was so hot that we could not go for a walk. Then off to Mitiaro; as it was only thirty miles off, the little engine was shut off and we drifted along with sails flapping. By now I had got my usual appetite again and was very hungry. We were given five hours ashore at Mitiaro, the smallest island that we called at. The people here are very poor and the only shop has had to close. We left the island wishing that we had the "John Williams" back here to take us round the island as it used to.

That afternoon we did a fine bit of sailing, doing the thirty miles from Mitiaro to Atiu in just over 3 hours; it was really fine to be on board and to feel the boat lift to the wind and water. The landing at Atiu is exciting. The ship's boat went up to the reef, and then one had to climb on to the back of a native and be carried pick-back to shore! There is only one village on Atiu, and that is on the hill in the centre of the island. The pastor met us and we started to walk the two miles thinking it would be good for us to stretch our legs, but we soon changed our minds, and we very glad of a lift on one of the two trucks on the island which run on little railway lines. We had two services, one on the Saturday morning. The whole police force of the island (three policemen) attended church. The people are very poor here, and we were told that quite a number were in the bush because they had no clothes to come in.

Aitutaki was the next and last island, and we did this with the enging working by itself. The wind had gone down. Aitutaki has a glorious lagoon. The Gospel of Jesus Christ came first to Aitutaki in all the Cook Islands, and they are proud of that. We had a very happy time and were looked after in right royal fashion by people who had been on the old "John Williams." It was surprising to find so many at this place who had served on the boat. We came away from Aitutaki with a number of presents, mats, and a case of mangoes each, also some oranges but we lost these.

Our luck with the weather, which had been good, now changed for the homeward run of one hundred and forty miles. The wind was strong and almost dead ahead, and the seas very big. The boat seemed to climb up the side of a huge wave and fall down to the other side like a switch-back. One moment the stern was high in the air and then up would go the bow! The scene in the little cabin at night was awful. There wasn't a spare inch of room, and the women and children are very frightened. Still next day Rarotonga came in sight, and we managed to land at five o'clock in the afternoon. If there is anybody who wants a good home for a seaplane, send it along here! But in spite of these discomforts it is a joy to visit these islands of the Southern Cook Group, where the pastors and churches still keep alight the flame of the Gospel.

The Flags on John Williams Island

"Land ho!" "Where away?" "Right forward," says the steersman of the little schooner in reply to my question. I climb on to the top of the small cabin, steady myself by holding on to one of the stays, and look out over the bowsprit of the schooner as she plunges into the waves. Sure enough, there is a lump of land upon the horizon, and I know it to be Rarotonga, "John Williams Island," and home to me. Four hours later we are entering the little harbour, only big enough for a schooner and not very safe in bad weather. A crowd of people are waiting on the tiny wharf, for the arrival of a boat is a big event in the life of the island, since not many boats come to us. Beyond the line of houses and stores that make up the village can be seen the coconut trees, and again the hills as they rise up into the sky. John Williams Island is a lovely place, and I try sometimes to think what it must have meant to him when he first saw it in all its loveliness. But then its loveliness was in the island only, for the people were very fierce, and he could not land and had to go away, leaving behind him one of his native helpers, "Papeiha," who worked among the people for a year until John Williams was able to return, and who did so much to lead them to Jesus. Some of you have read the story of Papeiha in "Treasure on the Deep."

I like to think that John Williams still sails the blue waters of the great ocean he knew so well, and I like to think that he came to Rarotonga on one special Sunday this year when we had a big service for the Boys' Brigade of Rarotonga. In front of the big church at Avarua, the main village on the island, there is an open space. In the middle of this fairly large piece of ground there is a stone, an ordinary stone, measuring roughly three feet in height and two feet on its sides. There are no letters carved upon the stone to tell its meaning, but all the people know that upon the stone stood Papeiha, when he first told the people of Rarotonga about Jesus. By this stone was a platform upon this special Sunday, a platform draped with the big leaves of the coconut tree.

Soon a big crowd of people gathered in the open space. Many white people came, and then the Resident Commissioner of the Cook Islands. And while they waited, they heard the music of a band in the distance.

The music became louder and a column of boys led by their band came in sight. They were the five companies of the Boys' Brigade, and they formed up in front of the platform. What a contrast with the day of Papeiha was the company gathered round that stone! Instead of a jostling crowd of fierce savages with painted bodies, brandishing spears and clubs, behold a great Christian congregation, having as its centre the five Rarotonga Companies of the Boys' Brigade, with close on 300 members, looking so smart in their uniform, and heartily singing from the BB hymnal, led by the music of their own band. In the background the village church of Avarua!

Then the colour bearers came forward with the flags, took them out of their cases and laid them upon the table, and the service began. The boys were reminded of Papeiha's stone and what it meant. Then they were told of the flags and what they should mean to the boys, how in olden days flags were carried by soldiers who regarded them as sacred and would sacrifice their lives to preserve them. These flags of the Boys' Brigade were the sign of their loyalty to the Boys' Brigade, the Empire, but most of all to Jesus Christ, the Great Captain of their lives. It was a great day for the boys. They were very proud as they marched through the village with the flags flying and the band playing. Then they went back for a feast which the village had provided for the boys and guests. But the day was not over. The officers gathered together to return thanks to God and to pray that His blessing, so abundant that day, might be still with them. And I like to think that maybe old Johh Williams was blessing us too on that Sunday as we carried on with the work that he began. We are seeking to lead the boys to Christ, carrying on for John Williams in his island.

Correction: newsletter 45 section 5 p.10, the last sentence in the 2nd last paragraph says: "Jean Mason at the Library and Museum Society, tells the story of Rev. Hutchin praying at the end of the wharf for hours when a severe cyclone was moving towards the Cook Islands and it moved away at the last minute." Note that this is not exactly the case; it was not Jean who told the story to the visiting Hutchin descendants. Rather, it is a commonly told story about the Rev. Hutchin, and some of the old people today still recite the story as passed down over the years. It was mistakenly attributed to Jean when in fact she first learned of it from the last issue of the newsletter.

Exposition of the Apostles' Creed

Akamaramaanga no runga i te Akarongo o te au Aposetolo

PART 1

INTRODUCTION:

While the disciples had Jesus with them, there was no occasion for a formal summary of the doctrines which His followers were called to accept and to maintain. He was present to resolve all doubts and settle all difficulties, so that when their faith was assailed or their teaching impugned they could refer to Him. Then, as now, faith had Him for its object, with this difference, that He was visibly at hand to counsel and to direct, while now He is passed into the heavens and guides His people into all truth, not by personal instruction but by the Holy Spirit.

Another reason why Jesus gave His disciples no creed may be found in the fact that His work was not finished until He had laid down His life, and that no creed could have been satisfactory which did not cover those great unfulfilled events in His history that lie at the foundation of the Christian religion.

Jesus did indeed require belief in Himself as a condition on which healing and salvation were bestowed. Unbelief hindered His work, while faith in His Messianic claims and mission never failed to secure a rich blessing to those who confessed Him. The faith which He recognized was not the acceptance and confession of a summary of doctrine such as any of the Creeds now existing, but a simple statement of belief in Himself as the Son of God and the Messiah. On one occasion only does He appear to have called for a confession which went further than this, when, having declared to Martha the great doctrine of Resurrection, He put to her the question, "Believest thou this?" (John 11:25)

After His death and resurrection, when Jesus charged His disciples to preach the Gospel, He bade them teach their followers to observe all things whatsoever He had commanded them. The Apostles, accordingly, appear to have furnished the leaders of the churches they planted with summaries of doctrine, such as we find in the fifteenth chapter of Paul's first Epistle to the Corinthians. Paul seems to refer to such a summary when he writes to the Romans commending them for obedience to the form of doctrine which was delivered them, and when he bestows his benediction on those Galatians who walked according to this rule. It was, doubtless, such a compendium of doctrine he had in view when he charged Timothy to keep that which was committed to his trust, contrasting this deposit with profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called. The bearing of this charge is made more emphatic when it is repeated by the Apostle in connection with the exhortation, "Hold fast the form of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus."

It would thus appear that from Apostolic times, there existed a form of words of the character of a creed, which, for some reason, came to be jealously guarded and concealed from all who were not Christians. It was perhaps Paul's reference to the summary of doctrine as a "deposit" to be carefully kept, that led the early converts to regard it as a private possession a trust to be hidden in the heart and covered from unfriendly eyes. The Apostle did not mean that it should be so regarded, but this interpretation given to his words, or some other cause, led to its being used as a watchword rather than as an open confession, the consequence of which is that in the writings of the earliest Christian fathers no statement of doctrines corresponding to a creed is found.

The absence of creeds or of allusions to them in the oldest Christian treatises gives seeming point to the objection against the Apostles' Creed as now held and interpreted by the Church, that it is not a correct summary of early Christian belief. That such objections are not well founded will become apparent as the various articles of the Creed are considered in the light of Apostolic teaching. The absence of creeds in early Christian writings is sufficiently accounted for by the care with which the summary was cherished as a secret trust, to be treasured in the memory but not to be written or otherwise profaned by publicity.

The word "creed" is derived from the Latin word "credo – I believe" is, in its ecclesiastical sense, used to denote a summary or concise statement of doctrines formulated and accepted by a church. Although usually connected with religious belief, it has a wider meaning, and designates the principles which an individual or an associated body so holds that they become the springs and guides of conduct. Some sects of Christians reject formal creeds and profess to find the Scriptures sufficient for all purposes that creeds are meant to serve. The Christian religion rests on Christ, and the final appeal on any question of doctrine must be to the Scriptures which testify of Him: but it is found that very different conclusions are often reached by those who profess to ground their beliefs upon the same passages of the Word of God. Almost every heresy that has disturbed the unity of the Church has been advocated by men who appealed to Scripture in confirmation of the doctrines they taught.

The true teaching of the Word of God is gathered from careful and continuous searching of the Scriptures, and there is danger of fatal error when conclusions are drawn from isolated passages interpreted in accordance with preconceived opinions. It has been found not only expedient but needful that the Christian Churches should set forth in creeds and confessions the doctrines which they believe the Scriptures affirm. They are bound not only to accept Scripture as the rule of faith, but to make known the sense in which they understand it. As unlearned and unstable men wrest and subvert the Sacred Writings, it is fitting that those who are learned and not unstable should publish sound expositions of their contents. In the light of creeds, converts are enabled to test their own position, and to put to proof the claims of those who profess to be teachers of Christian doctrine.

One of the most widely accepted of these forms is the Apostles' Creed, so called, not because it was drawn up by, or in the time of, the Apostles although there is a tradition to the effect that each of them contributed a clause but because it is in accordance with the sum of Apostolic teaching. The history of this Creed is not easily traced. The care with which it was guarded excluded it from the writings of the early fathers, and it is impossible, therefore, to assign to their proper dates, with certainty, some of the articles of which it is composed. This, however, is evident, that it came gradually into existence, clauses being added from time to time to guard the faithful against false doctrine, or to enable them to defend the orthodox belief. It appears to have been the general creed of the Christian Church, in a form very similar to that which it now bears, from the close of the second century. At that time and afterwards it served not only as a test of Christian doctrine, but was also used by catechists in training and instructing candidates for admission to the Church. It is sometimes urged as an objection to this Creed that it is not a sufficiently comprehensive summary of Christian doctrine. Those who object to it on this ground should consider the purpose of creeds. They were not meant to cover the whole field of Christian faith, but to fortify believers against the teaching of heretics. The Apostles' Creed was not intended, and does not profess, to state all the things that Christians ought to believe. There is no reference in it to Scripture, to Inspiration, to Prayer, or to the Sacraments. It sets forth in a few words, distinct and easily remembered, the existence and relations to men of the three Persons of the Godhead, those facts and truths on which all doctrine and duty rest, and from which they find development.

It is especially objected that there is no reference in this Creed to the atoning work of the Lord Jesus Christ. But, though not directly expressed, this doctrine is really and substantially contained in it. The Creed is the confession of those whose bond of union is common faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as their Saviour. The articles which treat of Him and of His sufferings and work are intelligible only to those who believe in the reality and efficacy of the Atonement. Despite the objections to this belief the essence of the Apostles' Creed lays the very foundation of the faith in the Christian Church and is widely accepted since the Roman Era, Catholicism till today.

The creed reads thus:

I believe in God Almighty, Maker of Heaven and Earth. And in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord, who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried. He descended into hell and the third day, He rose again from the dead, He ascended into Heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, From thence he shall come and judge the quick and the dead. I believe in the Holy Ghost, the Holy Catholic Church, the communion of the Saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body and life everlasting, Amen.

The Creed contains twelve articles, and to each of these, and to every part of it, the words "I believe" belong.

- A. One article relates to God the Father.
- B. Six articles relate to God the Son.
- C. One article relates to God the Holy Ghost.
- D. Four articles relate to the Holy Catholic Church and the privileges secured to its members.

These articles are:

1. I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth.
2. And in Jesus Christ His only Son our Lord,
3. Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary,
4. Suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried,
5. He descended into hell; the third day He rose again from the dead,
6. He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty;
7. From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead.
8. I believe in the Holy Ghost,
9. The Holy Catholic Church; the Communion of saints;
10. The Forgiveness of sins;
11. The Resurrection of the body,
12. And the Life Everlasting.

Our theme in this karere is our leadership culture over the last 200 years from 1812 to 1912 to 2012. In 1812, the traditional leaders were the only power base, limited in their mana to their individual tribes and districts. They never governed nationally or island wise but locally to their tapere and vaka district. Exceptions were Rongomatane of Atiu who governed parts of Mitiaro and Mauke. The other exception was Mangaia. The new warrior Mangaia king governed the whole island with his pava and kairanga nuku council of chiefs. They ruled until defeated in the next challenge for the supremacy of the King Mangaia title. It was not an inherited title from father to son. (Buck 1934, Mangaia Society), but an earned title through conquest. By 1912, traditional leaders were joined by two new kids on the block – church and government. The three of them became the triad of mana and thus the reason we greet all three groups in our traditional greetings today. The church arrived in 1821 via Aitutaki through the London Missionary Society of England. The first law or government arrived in 1888 via the British when we became the Hervey Islands, though comprising of the southern group islands only. The second government came via the New Zealand regime in 1901 when we became known as Cook's Islands and the third via the Maori Cook Islands government of 1965 when we became the Cook Islands. (Gilson 1980, Crocombe et al Cook Islands Politics 1978).

By 1912, traditional leaders of the Hervey Islands had been pushed out of Parliament by 11 years. High chiefs of that first national government were unelected MPs to parliament who appointed their own mataiapo MPs in parliament as well. (Gilson 1980: Cook Islands: 1830-1950). The 'Au Ariki government was very unpopular for alleged confiscation of people's lands and titles. The colonial New Zealand government abolished that federal parliament in 1901 and renamed the Hervey Islands as the Cook's Islands. (Kloosterman 1977) after Capt James Cook.

Today 2012, the triad has remained, supported by a new group on the block - the small business people. Together with government, they are the unchallenged leaders of the land. They influence the way national resources are distributed as also appointments to key government boards. The business sector also contributes heavily to the campaign coffers of all political parties. Today, traditional leaders have no powers to legislate or pass laws in their tribes or nationally. Similarly with the church. However, traditional leaders, church and business people can and do run for parliament. Today, there are more MPs in parliament, with small business backgrounds, compared to traditional and religious leaders. Since 1965, only one ariki - Tiki Tetava - and two Orometua - Rev Ra'ui Poko'ati and Pastor John Tangi - have made it to parliament. On the other hand many mataiapo, rangatira and deacons have been elected to parliament more frequently. This confirms that traditional and church leaders at the lower ranks of mataiapo, rangatira and deacon are much more politicised than the top level or ariki and orometua. Today there are about 2 traditional leaders at mataiapo and komono rangatira rank, 8 deacons and 14 MPs with small business backgrounds in parliament.

Our focus this karere is on the location of our people's settlements before and after the missionaries arrived in 1821. In the northern group they lived in scattered temporary settlements on the big motu islets and on the most sheltered ones from the storm winds and rough seas. They were largely hunters and gatherers of natural food resources. They also collected sea shells and fished the lagoons and deep sea. Their settlements were on the wind sheltered lagoon side of the motu rather than the ocean side. They exploited the food resources from motu to motu and practised the tumutu and ra'ui resource management strategies on each islet. Today they live permanently around the churches and government buildings on one or two motu.

On Mangaia they previously lived permanently inland and close to their gardens or kainga and water source. Today they live permanently on the dry coastal upraised coral makatea reef, away from their gardens and water and around the churches built there. Lately some people have moved back to the kainga inland. On Atiu they lived down the valleys and enua. Again, next to their gardens and water sources. Today they live on top of Atiu's hills, away from their gardens and struggle with water issues during the dry months of the year. On Rarotonga, they lived inland in the riu or valleys where their gardens of taro were and the source of water as well. Today they live around the coast and until the 1950s, when piped water was introduced, depended largely on natural and dug out waterholes in the coastal villages. Over the last 10 years, people have moved inland closer to their gardens and natural water sources but further away from their work and employment. On Mitiaro they lived in the pito enua of the island where they farmed on half an acre plot of volcanic soil. Today they all live around the coastal CICC and Catholic churches on the makatea.

Should we be surprised by all this? Not if you understand something about reverse psychology – a strategy early missionaries used in shifting large populations from one area to another of their choice. The shift from the old settlements deliberately helped in communicating the new religion and preventing relapses to the old ways for the converted. Thus the old settlement became the symbols of the archaic and politically unstable ways and the sites visited by old ghosts. The new settlements represented the modern progressive ways of the new religion and her psychological and material advantages and benefits over the old settlements. Mauke is our exception to the rule here. The majority of the people always lived inland around their gardens before the missionaries arrived. Today, two of the three villages have continued living inland while Kimi'angatau was a created post missionary village that shifted from inland to the dry makatea coastal area.

The LMS church did not shift them but they moved of their own accord and established a new political and religious identity, after a dispute with the two villages inland over construction of the LMS church in Oiretumu. They became the first Christian converts to migrate to the coastal makatea region and subsequently the first to convert to Catholicism from LMS. Their inland relatives remained converts of the London Missionary Society, now Cook Islands Christian Church. Perhaps Kimi'angatau also moved to the makatea to maximise the new material benefits from the anticipated shipping trade that came through their village before heading inland. Today, Kimi'angatau is the new administrative centre of the island's local and national government. She is the 'new evangeria and kavamani capital' of the island – a position that Oiretumu and Ngatiarua once enjoyed with the old religion and political structure.
