THE TREATY.

A despatch from Washington to the New York "Sun," dated January 23rd, throws some light upon the question a good deal discussed in Honolulu, as to whether the Hawaiian Government or its Minister at Washington had been consulted about the Pearl Harbor cession amendment to the Reciprocity Treaty before that clause was introduced in the Senate. The despatch is given below, explaining itself so that comment is unnecessary:—

Mr. Carter, the Hawaiian Minister, referring to the treaty which the Senate has just ratified, said to-day that he did not understand that the action of the Senate ever was final, as a motion to reconsider could be made, and he seemed to think it very probable that such a motion would be entered. He confirmed the current report that the amendment as to Pearl River Harbor has never been officially submitted to him or his Government, but that it originated in the Senate, and he said it is a curious way to act about a treaty. There have been no negotiations as to that subject, and the amendment is not at all germane to the subject matter of the treaty which was submitted to the Senate as the result of negotiations between the two Governments. Mr. Carter evidently was of the opinion that the Pearl River Harbor amendment would not be approved by his Government, and seemed to think that possibly the incorporation of that amendment in the treaty was a device which some of the Senators had adopted in order either finally to defeat the measure or greatly to prolong the negotiations regarding it.

THE DRUM.

To those who realize the important part the drum bears in band music, particularly when the band is only in early training, the following paragraph, clipped from a New York paper, will be interesting. We know something about drums without war in Honolulu, but might stand a little posting on the question of war without drums. As, however, European countries are re-suming the formerly discarded drums, it would be unwise to advocate that the reverberating instrument should be dispensed with in the Hawaiian army. It is hard enough now for the rank and file to keep step with the beating of the drum, a fact justifying the fear that without such an accessory there would be no telling in a march which was rank and which file.—

The recent appearance of the drum in some European armies, from which it had been banished, will seem timely should the whole Continent now be called to arms. Gen. Farre, the French War Minister, abolished it, and not until his retirement was it restored to the army of France. Belgium followed Farre's example, but now her troops have welcomed the return of the familiar music. Italy, after being fifteen years without it, is thinking of trying it again, the "Tribuna" and "Esercizio Italiano" pleading vigorously for it with the war authorities. The argument against the drum was no doubt theoretically strong. It was a relic of barbaric days, requiring the employment of a large force of men to do nothing but make a noise. The cumbersome instruments are often lost in battle or require inordinate attention to take care of them. After its successful raid against the drums, the process of dry scientific elimination was extended to the colors. There however, it met a repulse; and in the reaction in favor of the pomp and circumstance of war, as a relief from its mere slaughtering capacity, the drums get a hearing again.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Vessels from ports in infected Asiatic districts are subjected to quarantine, which is well; but it is not time that quarantine was proclaimed against arrivals from South and Central America, where the dread cholera is raging?

A Lutheran minister at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, declares he will expel all members of his church persisting in their connection with the Knights of Labor. That is just what he should do if he would like to make infidels of them.

Our contemporaries are again discussing civic incorporation. It is a good standby for all of us between foreign mail steamers, or in the period when the latest scandal has numbered its allotted nine days. The contemplation of a good time coming is, moreover, a not unprofitable diversion for both writers and readers in any slack season.

"Pernicious activity," a phrase that President Cleveland lately uttered, is discovered to have been used by Burke. Whether the American President got it from the English statesman or not, the phrase could not apply to anything more pertinently than to the policy of the present Hawaiian administration. There is here activity in throwing away the public revenues for unnecessary purposes, while public works calculated to be of supreme advantage to the country are untouched. If that is not "pernicious activity," then the phrase is senseless anywhere.

A reader of the HERALD said yesterday, referring to the leading article, that independence need not be looked for in Honolulu, but must be sought in the outside districts that advantaged nothing by the extravagant administration. It is very doubtful if Honolulu is so deep in the mire as all that, but the trouble probably is that the rule is too much every man for himself. The business men of Honolulu must be given more credit for common sense than to attribute to them connivance at extravagance for the sake of the pecuniary profit it brings them for the time, as if they did not foresee that the whole country will one day have to pay dearly for present improvidence.

American papers have long accounts of the remarkable escape from death or injury of a young Chicago lady named Mrs. E. J. Townsley, while traveling by stage coach in Colorado. The coach ran foul of a boulder in Independence Pass, throwing it over a precipice. A crevice 180 feet down on the side of the precipice caught the coach and all its occupants except this lady, who was hurled through the window and fell a distance of four hundred feet. She landed head first in a bank of snow, and, although dug out unconscious, the only injury perceptible a few hours afterward was a cut inflicted on the ankle by one of the shovels used to disinter her. Before the doctors that the drivers went after arrived from thirteen miles away, the lady was administering relief to her suffering and dying fellow travelers, who had been frightfully injured in their fall of 180 feet.

The Knee Breeches Movement in Chicago.

It begins to look as if Mr. S. H. Hamden, the gentleman who seeks to bring knee breeches back into fashion, were likely to succeed. Already he has received assurances from more than twenty gentlemen that he may count on them to be of the fifty which he purposes to enlist in the reform as a nucleus for others to rally on. Should he succeed in enlisting the fifty, and should they be persistent enough to wear the knee breeches for a few days, there would doubtless be many to follow their lead, for it seems to be the general opinion of men that knee breeches are handsomer and very much more convenient than long, baggy, flappy trousers. The time appears to be ripe; all that is needed is a few respectable gentlemen to take the lead. There will be enough followers.—[Chicago News.

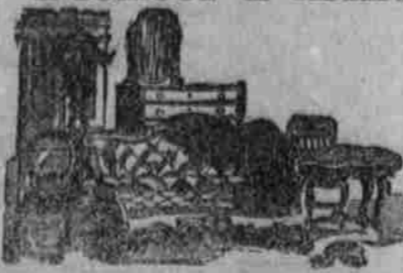

No Arctic Excursions for Secretary Whitney.

Secretary Whitney said recently, referring to the report that Lieut. Emory proposed to go North in the Thetis, that the United States had something else to do with its vessels, naval officers, and sailors besides sending them on Arctic expeditions. "I will not say, however," continued the Secretary, "that there will be no such expeditions under the present Administration, but certainly not with my consent or from any such suggestion on my part. Lieut. Emory may desire to make such a trip, but he will not receive orders from me in consonance with his wishes."—[Washington Critic

The Japanese Acrobats.

Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather there was a large audience at the Opera House last evening, to see the Oura company of Japanese acrobats. The feats were as marvelous and startling as on the opening night. Some of them severely tested the nerves of the spectators if they did not those of the performers themselves. For instance, when a man held a ladder balanced, one of his poles on his shoulder, without laying hand to it but using both hands to play a guitar, while for minutes that almost seemed hours a little boy performed all sorts of acrobatic feats on top of the ladder, the youngster then working mechanism that demolished the whole implement, only leaving one pole standing with himself on its summit to perform a numberless series of feats before descending, such as hanging by his heels, his knees or his hands, in every conceivable attitude, it is needless to say that all observers were held in breathless astonishment, occasionally relieving themselves with an outburst of applause. There will be a matinee on Saturday afternoon and the last performance of the present series that night.

The Copyright Case.

Yesterday morning a motion was filed in the Supreme Court in Equity, by Thomas G. Thrum, plaintiff in the case of Thomas G. Thrum vs. "The Pacific Commercial Advertiser" and R. J. Creighton, that the hearing of the above entitled cause be re-opened on its merits on the grounds that the plaintiff has discovered that publication was duly made in the "Hawaiian Gazette" newspaper for 1879 and 1880 in all of the issue of said paper issued during the two calendar months succeeding the issuance of said certificate of copyright, viz: December 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, 1879, and January 7, 14, 21, 28, 1880, making nine times in all. That owing to the lapse of time since the said publication of said notice, the plaintiff had forgotten and did not know that said publication of said notice in said "Hawaiian Gazette" had been made as above mentioned until after trial on the 2nd inst.

A day for hearing on this motion will be agreed upon by counsel, and fixed by the Court.

Kaue forfeited bail for drunkenness. Kesnu, a young native woman, pleaded guilty to assault and battery on Maui, a venerable native man, and had to requite the offense with $13.

Ah Tin, Mow Lun and Ah Ho were charged with assault and battery on Kum On at Ewa. Ashford & Ashford moved for discharge of defendants for want of jurisdiction. Evidence of prosecuting witness was to the effect that he had been mauled and kicked to insensibility by Ah Tin, the other prisoners being accessory to the assault and battery. For the defense it was attempted to be shown that Kum On was the aggressor, getting perhaps more than he bargained for. Mow Lun and Ah Ho were discharged; Ah Tin convicted and fined $29 including costs. An appeal was noted.

Kamuela, a deserter from the contract service of Wilder & Co., was ordered to return to his employer and pay $3 costs.

Schooner Kaulila discharged her large cargo from Kaneohe yesterday and sailed again for Waianae, which looks like rushing work a bit.

Bark Martha Fisher completed discharging Honolulu cargo yesterday, and the taking in of ballast is to be rushed, if possible, to complete it before having to vacate the Pacific Mail wharf for the steamship City of New York on Saturday.

Bark Glengaber will be ready to take in sugar on Monday.

Bark Zoila will sail the first of next week in ballast for Port Townsend.

The Lahaina Tragedy.

As intimated in yesterday's HERALD the matter of bail for Mr. Thomas E. Evans, Deputy Sheriff of Lahaina, accused of manslaughter for the shooting of a Chinaman at Lahaina in the course of a raid on an opium joint, came up before His Honor the Chief Justice yesterday. Mr. F. M. Hatch filed a petition to admit the defendant to bail. The Attorney General on behalf of the Crown simply sent up the records in the case. The Court ordered that the defendant be admitted to bail by filing an approved bond for $5,000. Mr. Evans accordingly entered into recognizances in that amount with Mr. Godfrey Brown as surety.

The Boys' Entertainment.

In this issue will be found the programme of the entertainment to be given by the young lads of the Maile Boat Club this evening. The boys and their girl friends have been practicing hard, and they are among the most clever of the pupils in the school. A delightful performance may therefore be expected of them. It will be seen that the programme is a varied one, the musical element being prominent and well allotted. NEGROES PLAYING THE MAN.

They are Not Idling or Dying Out in the South—Prof. Price's Lecture.

Chickering Hall was filled yesterday afternoon, there being hardly a vacant seat left by an audience of ladies and gentlemen who had come to hear Prof. J. C. Price speak about the negroes of the South, their moral conditions and prospects. The meeting was held under the auspices of the National Temperance Society. Prof. Price is a colored man himself, the son of a former slave and a protege of the late Wm. E. Dodge of this city. He is an instructor in Zion Wesleyan Institute, North Carolina, and has been conspicuous for his labors among the colored people of the South both as a teacher and a missionary.

"Some are despondent," he said, "about the future of the negroes, and think the prospect is gloomy before them. In this I cannot agree. I am sanguine. I believe there is a future, and a great future, ahead of the colored men. If we can assure ourselves that the negro has the same element of success which the more favored race that inhabits the continent possesses, we need not despair of his future. It is the mind power, the power of intellect, which has made this grand country what it is. Has the negro that power?"

"Some years ago a man wrote a book to prove that the negro has no soul. If that man had that book now to write I don't think, in view of the progress the negro has made, that he would write it. I believe the American people are beginning to believe that the negro has the intellectual power. Of course there are many people who cling to the old skepticism, and who still have no faith in the negro; but their numbers are growing smaller. It remains for the negro himself to increase this faith in his intelligence and in his manhood. He must not ask this and ask that because he is a negro. He must ask it because he is a man. He must not ask for things because he is an ex-slave; he must ask because he is a man. If he is driven to explanations he may say that it is because he is an unfortunate man. He must meet problems and he must answer questions, and he must meet them as a man and answer them like a man, or go to the wall like a man.

"It is said the negro is not industrious. I do not believe it. A man who had seen the negroes of the South after the war told me that they were lazy and were doing nothing. They were not lazy; they were only taking a breathing spell. They had worked for 240 years for scanty food and scantier raiment, and they were just taking a rest. They saw that the white man was free and that the white man did not work, and they naturally associated freedom with idleness; they thought that freedom meant rest. But they soon got over that, and the great wealth of the South, which they have piled up with their own hands, is an eternal monument to their industry. In the State of Georgia alone, according to the report of the Comptroller, negroes are paying taxes on $9,000,000. They did not inherit this property from their rich ancestors. They didn't have any. They accumulated it themselves. That does not look like idleness.

"They say, too, that the negro population is dying out. Statistics show that the negro population doubles every twenty years; that there are 500 more negro babies born every day than die. That does not look like dying out. They have tried to ship us to Africa and they have tried to send us to the West. But we do not go, and we do not die out. We remain where we were born and raised, and where, as I believe, the negro has a great mission to perform, which, with the will of God, he will perform."

Prof. Price was frequently interrupted with applause. He is a large, portly man, nearly six feet in height, and is nearly coal black. [New York Sun.

An Armor of Proof.

The potency of a gracious manner was shown notably a few years ago by an incident which occurred in one of our large cities. A young girl who had been a seamstress married the son of a wealthy and influential family. Her husband brought her home with his mother and sister, with a large number of guests, were at their country seat. It was resolved before the bride arrived that she "should be taught to know her place," that she must be made to realize that, although in the family, she was not of it.

The house was filled with experienced women of society, skilled in every method of administering snubs, from the stinging sarcasm to the smile of icy civility. The little woman who was their intended victim had neither birth, fortune, experience nor even education to defend her. But she had a simple self-respecting manner, softened by the most exquisite courtesy.

"It was an armor of proof," said a spectator. "If they insulted or snubbed her, she was apparently unconscious of it, and turned to them with the same gracious, cordial kindness. She conquered. The dullest woman among her enemies at last understood that the poor little girl was better bred than herself.

"If you cannot compete with a man," says Van Holden, "in rank, or wealth, or knowledge, meet him on the level ground of humanity. There you can always be his equal or superior."

MISSHAPEN IDEAS. BUILDERS SHOW A LEANING TOWARD MEANINGLESS ORNAMENT.

An Architect Who Regrets the Increase of Buildings of Grottesque Design—A Few Words in Favor of Simple Classical Forms.

Any one of an observing mind may have noticed the widely different styles of architecture in the upper portions of the city and in those localities down town where old buildings have given place to new.

The recent enormous increase in the building industry makes the consideration of architectural forms an important matter. In New York we see at present a wider divergence from old methods than ever before in the history of the city.

Then you are not an admirer of the new styles employed by our builders? In many instances I consider them extravagant and ill suited to the purposes for which they were designed.

What are the principles that govern the changes of form which occur in architecture? The same law that governs all human institutions; the love of variety, the law of fashion.

Do you consider the blocks up town more beautiful than the rows of monotonous brick and brown stone in the central portion of the city? In one way, yes. It is always pleasing when looking down a street to see the sky line broken, and in this respect our uptown blocks, with their variety of turrets and peaked fronts have a fine effect.

When Charles Sumner entered the senate in 1851, bringing with him only a superb presence and a promising home reputation, the veteran senator, Thomas Benton, of Missouri, said to him, in his positive manner: "You have come upon the stage too late, sir. Not only have our great men passed away, but the great issues have been settled also."

PICTORIAL ART IN THE PRESS.

An Etcher's Career—Demand for Comic Cartoon Work—Koppler.

The death of James A. Wales, the cartoonist, calls to mind how sudden has been the development of the branch of art he represented and how great the prosperity of those concerned in it in this country.

Almost as rapid has been the demand for comic and cartoon work. The American cartoon practically had its birth in Tweed's time at the hands of a man who could hardly be called an artist, so rudely did he draw.

For three years the French war authorities have been steadily planning and carefully considering a new weapon for the army, and now at last they have solved the great problem. Germany had set herself to the task long ago—France has had the benefit of her experiences and rejects her model.

The trouble with the domestic wine that has supplanted whisky in Atlanta is its procrastination. It puts off until tomorrow the drunk it should bring to-day.

"Canada Bill," said a confidence man the other day, "was the greatest monte man and cross roader that we ever had in this country. He died at Saratoga, Pa., and I remember his funeral very well. We went out to the graveyard with the body and just as the coffin was being lowered into the grave one of the party broke out: 'I'll bet a hundred to fifty he's not in the box!' and there wasn't a man to take it. For," said another, "I've known him to get out of as tight places as that." "Bill" was known from one end of the country to the other."—Chicago Herald.

Many suspicious wives who wish to detect any unusual thickness in their husband's tongue on coming in late at night never fail in their schemes by getting them to say "chrysanthemum."—Lancaster (Pa.) New Era.

THE TREATY.

A despatch from Washington to the New York "Sun," dated January 23rd, throws some light upon the question a good deal discussed in Honolulu, as to whether the Hawaiian Government or its Minister at Washington had been consulted about the Pearl Harbor cession amendment to the Reciprocity Treaty before that clause was introduced in the Senate. The despatch is given below, explaining itself so that comment is unnecessary:—

Mr. Carter, the Hawaiian Minister, referring to the treaty which the Senate has just ratified, said to-day that he did not understand that the action of the Senate ever was final, as a motion to reconsider could be made, and he seemed to think it very probable that such a motion would be entered. He confirmed the current report that the amendment as to Pearl River Harbor has never been officially submitted to him or his Government, but that it originated in the Senate, and he said it is a curious way to act about a treaty. There have been no negotiations as to that subject, and the amendment is not at all germane to the subject matter of the treaty which was submitted to the Senate as the result of negotiations between the two Governments. Mr. Carter evidently was of the opinion that the Pearl River Harbor amendment would not be approved by his Government, and seemed to think that possibly the incorporation of that amendment in the treaty was a device which some of the Senators had adopted in order either finally to defeat the measure or greatly to prolong the negotiations regarding it.

THE DRUM.

To those who realize the important part the drum bears in band music, particularly when the band is only in early training, the following paragraph, clipped from a New York paper, will be interesting. We know something about drums without war in Honolulu, but might stand a little posting on the question of war without drums. As, however, European countries are re-suming the formerly discarded drums, it would be unwise to advocate that the reverberating instrument should be dispensed with in the Hawaiian army. It is hard enough now for the rank and file to keep step with the beating of the drum, a fact justifying the fear that without such an accessory there would be no telling in a march which was rank and which file:—

The recent appearance of the drum in some European armies, from which it had been banished, will seem timely should the whole Continent now be called to arms. Gen. Farre, the French War Minister, abolished it, and not until his retirement was it restored to the army of France. Belgium followed Farre's example, but now her troops have welcomed the return of the familiar music. Italy, after being fifteen years without it, is thinking of trying it again, the "Tribuna" and "Esercito Italiano" pleading vigorously for it with the war authorities. The argument against the drum was no doubt theoretically strong. It was a relic of barbaric days, requiring the employment of a large force of men to do nothing but make a noise. The cumbersome instruments are often lost in battle or require inordinate attention to take care of them. After its successful raid against the drums, the process of dry scientific elimination was extended to the colors. There however, it met a repulse; and in the reaction in favor of the pomp and circumstance of war, as a relief from its mere slaughtering capacity, the drums get a hearing again.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Vessels from ports in infected Asiatic districts are subjected to quarantine, which is well; but is it not time that quarantine was proclaimed against arrivals from South and Central America, where the dread cholera is raging?

A Lutheran minister at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, declares he will expel all members of his church persisting in their connection with the Knights of Labor. That is just what he should do if he would like to make infidels of them.

Our contemporaries are again discussing civic incorporation. It is a good standby for all of us between foreign mail steamers, or in the period when the latest scandal has numbered its allotted nine days. The contemplation of a good time coming is, moreover, a not unprofitable diversion for both writers and readers in any slack season.

"Pernicious activity," a phrase that President Cleveland lately uttered, is discovered to have been used by Burke. Whether the American President got it from the English statesman or not, the phrase could not apply to anything more pertinently than to the policy of the present Hawaiian administration. There is here activity in throwing away the public revenues for unnecessary purposes, while public works calculated to be of supreme advantage to the country are untouched. If that is not "pernicious activity," then the phrase is senseless anywhere.

A reader of the HERALD said yesterday, referring to the leading article, that independence need not be looked for in Honolulu, but must be sought in the outside districts that advantaged nothing by the extravagant administration. It is very doubtful if Honolulu is so deep in the mire as all that, but the trouble probably is that the rule is too much every man for himself. The business men of Honolulu must be given more credit for common sense than to attribute to them connivance at extravagance for the sake of the pecuniary profit it brings them for the time, as if they did not foresee that the whole country will one day have to pay dearly for present improvidence.

American papers have long accounts of the remarkable escape from death or injury of a young Chicago lady named Mrs. T. J. Townsley, while traveling by stage coach in Colorado. The coach ran foul of a boulder in Independence Pass, throwing it over a precipice. A crevice 180 feet down on the side of the precipice caught the coach and all its occupants except this lady, who was hurled through the window and fell a distance of four hundred feet. She landed head first in a bank of snow, and, although dug out unconscious, the only injury perceptible a few hours afterward was a cut inflicted on the ankle by one of the shovels used to disinter her. Before the doctors that the drivers went after arrived from thirteen miles away, the lady was administering relief to her suffering and dying fellow travelers, who had been frightfully injured in their fall of 180 feet.

The Knee Breeches Movement in Chicago.

It begins to look as if Mr. S. H. Hamden, the gentleman who seeks to bring knee breeches back into fashion, were likely to succeed. Already he has received assurances from more than twenty gentlemen that he may count on them to be of the fifty which he purposes to enlist in the reform as a nucleus for others to rally on. Should he succeed in enlisting the fifty, and should they be persistent enough to wear the knee breeches for a few days, there would doubtless be many to follow their lead, for it seems to be the general opinion of men that knee breeches are handsomer and very much more convenient than long, baggy, flappy trousers. The time appears to be ripe; all that is needed is a few respectable gentlemen to take the lead. There will be enough followers.—[Chicago News.]

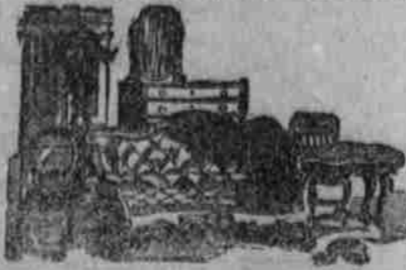

No Arctic Excursions for Secretary Whitney.

Secretary Whitney said recently, referring to the report that Lieut. Emory proposed to go North in the Thetis, that the United States had something else to do with its vessels, naval officers, and sailors besides sending them on Arctic expeditions. "I will not say, however," continued the Secretary, "that there will be no such expeditions under the present Administration, but certainly not with my consent or from any such suggestion on my part. Lieut. Emory may desire to make such a trip, but he will not receive orders from me in consonance with his wishes."—[Washington Critic]

The feats were as marvelous and startling as on the opening night. Some of them severely tested the nerves of the spectators if they did not those of the performers themselves.

The Copyright Case.

Yesterday morning a motion was filed in the Supreme Court in Equity, by Thomas G. Thrum, plaintiff in the case of Thomas G. Thrum vs. "The Pacific Commercial Advertiser" and R. J. Creighton, that the hearing of the above entitled cause be re-opened on its merits on the grounds that the plaintiff has discovered that publication was duly made in the "Hawaiian Gazette" newspaper for 1879 and 1880 in all of the issue of said paper issued during the two calendar months succeeding the issuance of said certificate of copyright, viz: December 3, 10, 17, 24, 31, 1879, and January 7, 14, 21, 28, 1880, making nine times in all.

Shipping Intelligence.

Bark Velocity arrived from Hongkong yesterday, but had to remain outside the reef, owing to quarantine regulations against Asiatic ports.

Schooner Canute brought 3,500 bags sugar; Haleakala, 1,210; Leah, 1,500; Kaulilua, 631 sugar, 100 rice, 40 hides and 98 barrels molasses; Mary Foster, 1,184 sugar; Nettie Merrill, 2,000 sugar.

Schooner Kaulilua discharged her large cargo from Kaneohe yesterday and sailed again for Waianae, which looks like rushing work a bit.

Bark Martha Fisher completed discharging Honolulu cargo yesterday, and the taking in of ballast is to be rushed, if possible, to complete it before having to vacate the Pacific Mail wharf for the steamship City of New York on Saturday.

Bark Glengaber will be ready to take in sugar on Monday.

Bark Zoila will sail the first of next week in ballast for Port Townsend.

The Lahaina Tragedy.

As intimated in yesterday's HERALD the matter of bail for Mr. Thomas E. Evans, Deputy Sheriff of Lahaina, accused of manslaughter for the shooting of a Chinaman at Lahaina in the course of a raid on an opium joint, came up before His Honor the Chief Justice yesterday. Mr. F. M. Hatch filed a petition to admit the defendant to bail. The Attorney General on behalf of the Crown simply sent up the records in the case. The Court ordered that the defendant be admitted to bail by filing an approved bond for $5,000.

The Boys' Entertainment.

In this issue will be found the programme of the entertainment to be given by the young lads of the Maile Boat Club this evening. The boys and their girl friends have been practising hard, and they are among the most clever of the pupils in the schools. A delightful performance may therefore be expected of them. It will be seen that the programme is a varied one, the musical element being prominent and well allotted. The object of the concert is a praiseworthy one, besides full money's worth being assured to all who patronize the juvenile company.

BUSINESS ITEMS.

NEGROES PLAYING THE MAN.

They are Not Idling or Dying Out in the South—Prof. Price's Lecture.

Chickering Hall was filled yesterday afternoon, there being hardly a vacant seat left by an audience of ladies and gentlemen who had come to hear Prof. J. C. Price speak about the negroes of the South, their moral conditions and prospects. The meeting was held under the auspices of the National Temperance Society. Prof. Price is a colored man himself, the son of a former slave and a protegee of the late Wm. E. Dodge of this city.

"Some are despondent," he said, "about the future of the negroes, and think the prospect is gloomy before them. In this I cannot agree. I am sanguine. I believe there is a future, and a great future, ahead of the colored men. If we can assure ourselves that the negro has the same element of success which the more favored race that inhabits the continent possesses, we need not despair of his future. It is the mind power, the power of intellect, which has made this grand country what it is. Has the negro that power?"

"Some years ago a man wrote a book to prove that the negro has no soul. If that man had that book now to write I don't think, in view of the progress the negro has made, that he would write it. I believe the American people are beginning to believe that the negro has the intellectual power. Of course there are many people who cling to the old skepticism, and who still have no faith in the negro; but their numbers are growing smaller. It remains for the negro himself to increase this faith in his intelligence and in his manhood. He must not ask this and ask that because he is a negro. He must ask it because he is a man. He must not ask for things because he is an ex-slave; he must ask because he is a man. If he is driven to explanations he may say that it is because he is an unfortunate man. He must meet problems and he must answer questions, and he must meet them as a man and answer them like a man, or go to the wall like a man."

"It is said the negro is not industrious. I do not believe it. A man who had seen the negroes of the South after the war told me that they were lazy and were doing nothing. They were not lazy; they were only taking a breathing spell. They had worked for 240 years for scanty food and scantier raiment, and they were just taking a rest. They saw that the white man was free and that the white man did not work, and they naturally associated freedom with idleness; they thought that freedom meant rest. But they soon got over that, and the great wealth of the South, which they have piled up with their own hands, is an eternal monument to their industry. In the State of Georgia alone, according to the report of the Comptroller, negroes are paying taxes on $9,000,000. They did not inherit this property from their rich ancestors. They didn't have any. They accumulated it themselves. That does not look like indolence."

"They say, too, that the negro population is dying out. Statistics show that the negro population doubles every twenty years; that there are 500 more negro babies born every day than die. That does not look like dying out. They have tried to ship us to Africa and they have tried to send us to the West. But we do not go, and we do not die out. We remain where we were born and raised, and where, as I believe, the negro has a great mission to perform, which, with the will of God, he will perform."

Prof. Price was frequently interrupted with applause. He is a large, portly man, nearly six feet in height, and is nearly coal black.—[New York Sun.]

An Armor of Proof.

The potency of a gracious manner was shown notably a few years ago by an incident which occurred in one of our large cities. A young girl who had been a seamstress married the son of a wealthy and influential family. Her husband brought her home while his mother and sister, with a large number of guests, were at their country seat. It was resolved before the bride arrived that she "should be taught to know her place," that she must be made to realize that, although in the family, she was not of it.

The house was filled with experienced women of society, skilled in every method of administering snubs, from the stinging sarcasm to the smile of icy civility. The little woman who was their intended victim had neither birth, fortune, experience nor even education to defend her. But she had a simple self-respecting manner, softened by the most exquisite courtesy.

"It was an armor of proof," said a spectator. "If they insulted or snubbed her, she was apparently unconscious of it, and turned to them with the same gracious, cordial kindness. She conquered. The dullest woman among her enemies at last understood that the poor little girl was better bred than herself."

"If you cannot compete with a man," says Van Holden, "in rank, or wealth, or knowledge, meet him on the level ground of humanity. There you can always be his equal or superior."—[Youth's Companion.]

"Hello, Smithkins," saluted his friend, "What's the matter now? You look blue as a whetstone." "So I am. You see my new book—" "Then the critics have attacked it? That's too bad!" "I wished they had. Why, they have gone to work and praised it highly. That's good, I am sure." "Cut'the sales down to almost nothing. New a fierce attack would have been worth 50,000 copies at least."

BUILDERS SHOW A LEANING TOWARD MEANINGLESS ORNAMENT.

Any one of an observing mind may have noticed the widely different styles of architecture in the upper portions of the city and in those localities down town where old buildings have given place to new.

"Then you are not an admirer of the new styles employed by our builders?" "In many instances I consider them extravagant and ill suited to the purposes for which they were designed."

"What are the principles that govern the changes of form which occur in architecture?" "The same law that governs all human institutions: the love of variety, the law of fashion."

"What are the most prevalent forms now in use?" "That would be difficult to answer. Many buildings are constructed after Moorish patterns; others are Italian, French, Gothic and Queen Anne designs."

"Do you consider the blocks up town more beautiful than the rows of monotonous brick and brown stone in the central portion of the city?" "In one way, yes. It is always pleasing when looking down a street to see the sky line broken, and in this respect our uptown blocks, with their variety of turrets and peaked fronts have a fine effect."

"Should not the architects be blamed for this?" "Not altogether. They are very much hampered by the ideas of their patrons. To be sure there are many who do not understand the principles of their art, but I should lay the blame more to the prevailing spirit of the times."

"When Charles Sumner entered the senate in 1851, bringing with him only a superb presence and a promising home reputation, the veteran senator, Thomas Benton, of Missouri, said to him, in his positive manner: 'You have come upon the stage too late, sir. Not only have our great men passed away, but the great issues have been settled also. The last of these was the National bank, and that has been overthrown forever. Nothing is left you, sir, but petty sectional questions and petty strifes about slavery and fugitive slave laws involving no national interests.'—Youth's Companion.

PICTORIAL ART IN THE PRESS.

An Etcher's Career—Demand for Comic Cartoon Work—Kepler.

The death of James A. Wales, the cartoonist, calls to mind how sudden has been the development of the branch of art he represented and how great the prosperity of those concerned in it in this country. I had a friend who once put every dollar of a considerable fortune in a factory for making hair nets for women.

"Almost as rapid has been the demand for comic and cartoon work. The American cartoon practically had its birth in Tweed's time at the hands of a man who could hardly be called an artist, so rudely did he draw. But he had the faculty for seizing public attention with vigorous cartoons upon the follies and abuses of the hour, and these were more telling than speech or writing."

"But, good or bad, trained or crude, these men are all doing vastly well. The newspaper artists I have mentioned make from $5,000 to $8,000 apiece, or more than twice the pay of any reporters whose stories they illustrate, except one."

"For three years the French war authorities have been steadily planning and carefully considering a new weapon for the army, and now at last they have solved the great problem. Germany had set herself to the task long ago—France had had the benefit of her experiences and rejects her model."

"The trouble with the domestic wine that has supplanted whisky in Atlanta is its procrastination. It puts off until tomorrow the drunk it should bring to-day. Few things were quicker on trigger than the whisky with which Atlanta was wont to whop herself up."
