THE METHOD OF CHOOSING JURIES.

Having referred once or twice lately to the lack of sound discretion occasionally shown in the selection of persons to serve as jurors, it seems proper that we should explain the process by which the selections are actually made under the present law.

Twice in each year the clerk of the Supreme Court prepares two lists of fifty names each; one of Hawaiians and the other of foreigners. These lists are subject to the approval of one of the judges, who is usually but not necessarily, the judge who is to hold the next trial term. These lists having been thus prepared and approved, constitute the material from which juries are to be drawn for the ensuing six months. These being four regular terms in each year, namely, in January, April, July and October, it follows, of course, that the persons whose names are on the lists, are liable for service through two terms.

As for the care to be used and the discretion exercised in making out and scrutinizing these lists, but little need be added to what has been said on former occasions. What is needed is somewhat more of carefulness in regard to the antecedents, habits and general reputation of the persons chosen. If a man is a notorious liar or blackguard, or so bitter a partisan as to be presumably incapable of acting fairly, these facts should be known to either the clerk or the judge, and in a community of the size and composition of ours, there is no valid excuse for those officials not knowing them. A somewhat higher standard as to the mental and moral qualifications needed in the jury box, as well as diligence and care in securing the same, might be, apparently, cultivated to advantage.

If existing conditions are in any way unfavorable to the easy securing of good juries, there are, as we intimated the other day, certain practical advantages which are more than compensatory. If the population is small, it is so much the easier for judges and clerks to know all that need be known about the men from whom they are to make their selections. Any defects of personal knowledge in this respect can be corrected by means of proper investigation, easily and readily made. On the other hand, while the community is small enough to make the necessary knowledge of individual character and qualification entirely practicable, it is quite large enough to allow a liberal discretion in making selections, and to effectually dispose of any pretense that it is ever necessary to put up with poor material on the ground of there being such a limited supply to choose from.

There are between thirty five hundred and four thousand voters in this district, and only one hundred names to be put on the jury list for each six months. Surely there is ample margin here for rejecting all bad or questionable material, and that too without imposing any reasonable burdens upon a few, or compelling any one man to serve often enough to give just ground for complaint. But to accomplish these results, there must be system.

At the opening of each term, there are drawn by lot from each of the above described lists—one native and one foreign—twenty-four names.

These—forty eight in all—are the jurors for the term. Should it happen from any cause that more than this number are required, additional names are drawn in the same way, from the same lists.

Such, stated briefly and plainly, is the system now in operation. A careful examination of the law relative to jurors and juries reveals a number of what seem to us defects. It is our intention to point out, in a day or two, at least a portion of these, and indicate the direction in which changes are needed.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Spoils of Pen and Scissors From Many Sources.

Spence, the aeronaut who went up at Calcutta and was thought lost, descended safely.

Herr Stouhel, recently appointed German Consul at Samoa, arrived in Sydney, April 16th.

The Assembly of New South Wales has decided to favor payment of a fixed salary to legislators.

The German warship Olga, on being docked at Sydney, was found to have not sustained the slightest injury below the water-line by going ashore at Apia.

Emigrants who have returned to England from the Argentine Republic in a desolate condition complain that the country is crowded with unemployed.

All the printers in Brisbane, Queensland, struck work in April, because offices employing men belonging to the Typographical Association were executing work for non-association offices.

Westport, N. Z., coal is now credited to the remark let fall by Baron de Worms in his speech introducing the Bill in the House of Commons, to the effect that there was likely to be a scarcity of sugar in the market this season, in consequence of the small yield estimated to be obtained from the Cuban Crop.

The ratification of the Sugar Bounties Convention by the British Parliament was considered doubtful in London on April 17th. The sugar market is much excited owing to the remark let fall by Baron de Worms in his speech introducing the Bill in the House of Commons, to the effect that there was likely to be a scarcity of sugar in the market this season, in consequence of the small yield estimated to be obtained from the Cuban Crop.

Private letters from Samoa received in Sydney state that all the crops have been destroyed by the recent hurricane, and that as all the stores have been used up in providing for the shipwrecked sailors, there is every probability of a famine at Samoa. Several churches in Sydney have announced the intention to devote collections to the relief of the Samoan people. This would be a good sort of memorial service for Honolulu churches.

When an imp from the Auckland Herald office ran into Government House with an extra recounting the Samoan disaster, Admiral Fairfax was shocked at the news, but was greatly relieved and elated when he found that he had not to account to "My Lords of the Admiralty" for the loss of the Calliope. He put his hand in his pocket, and taking from it a sum which made the boy's eyes glisten, he remarked, "Here, my lad, I always like to give the devil his due!"

President (debating club): "Well, we have had some stirring speeches on the negative side of the question of the evening, 'Is Marriage a Failure?' but none of the gentlemen appeared to speak on the affirmative side have responded." Secretary (whispering): "Their wives are here." The President (loudly): "Owing to the lateness of the hour, further debate is postponed." Adjourned. (The foregoing does not describe the recent discussion in the Honolulu Debating Society.)

Among the lengthy reports of the Samoan disaster published by the San Francisco papers, those of the Post and Chronicle were by far the best. The former paper had an extra edition on the streets within a couple of hours of the Alameda's arrival. The Chronicle of course had longer time and gave a little more complete account. Both these reports were from the pen of John P. Dunning, of the Associated Press, who left here three months ago by the Alameda for Samoa. He was formerly connected with Wilmington, Delaware and Philadelphia papers. He stood on the beach at Samoa for thirty-six hours in the drenching rain, and almost blinded by the sand and flying sand, taking his notes and observing every incident of the disasters. His letter contained 22,000 words of which 20,000 words were telegraphed all over the country, the New York Tribune devoting nine columns to Mr. Dunning's report. This was the longest dispatch ever sent East from San Francisco. It was a clear and succinct account of every detail of the storm and wrecks, without any attempt at sensationalism, yet was heart-rending enough to draw many a tear from those who perused it, and it kept all riveted with interest from beginning to end.

THE SAMOAN SITUATION.

Important Facts and Interesting Details From our San Francisco Correspondent.

Ex-Minister Kasson, one of the Samoan Commissioners, who sails with Commissioners Bates and Phelps for Liverpool, in declining to express an opinion in regard to the stand taken by this Government, said:

"We all wish to enter the conference as free as possible from any utterances on the subject. We have considered the main question which confronts us for decision. It is to agree upon some mode of protecting the rights of foreigners at Samoa without interfering with native independence. Our general aim will be to secure good order at Samoa and maintain the principle of equal rights of the powers interested there. Kasson, when asked if he thought the destruction of the naval squadron at Samoa would affect the settlement, said he thought it would. There would probably be more strenuous efforts to reach a settlement so as to render unnecessary the maintenance of an armed force at the islands."

"Bismarck is a man of too much sense," said Kasson, "to let a man's views, as expressed in such a manner, influence him in a case like this. We are going over there to discuss the question of arrangement for securing the rights of foreigners in Samoa, without interfering with the native independence, and to secure good order in the islands upon principles of equal rights to the powers interested. We want to go into the conference with as much freedom from previously expressed views as possible. "I must, therefore, decline to express any views in advance, save that I am sure the conference will be actuated by a desire to do justice to the honor of the countries interested, and to maintain the rights of all concerned."

Two or three circumstances connected with getting the Trenton ready for service marked her as a "Jonah," and several officers have had their orders changed when sent to her. The first attempt to launch her was December 30, 1875, but after two hours' work the effort was abandoned. Soon after being launched she was put into dock and coppered, and when she was taken out she was found to leak so badly that she had to be redocked. It was then found that two or three holes near the sternpost had been carelessly or maliciously bored and left without plugging. A few weeks later a large piece of the machinery fell from the crane when being hoisted on board and caused considerable damage as it went plunging through the decks to the bottom of the vessel.

Now that the Samoan disaster has passed into history, interesting facts in relation to its cause are likely to come to light, and none more significant than the following: The fact that none of the ill-fated vessels were provided with coal at the time of the accident is well known, and it is evident that "some one had blundered." It now transpires that this colossal condition of the boats was not unpreventable, and that an offer was actually made to the heads of the Navy Department, which, had it been accepted, might have prevented the calamity. A prominent firm in San Francisco, of whose head-quarters the Samoan coast and the imminent danger existing there at this time of the year—especially menacing boats unprovided with fuel—made an offer, through Paymaster Goldsborough, to supply Australian coal to the vessels at Samoa at the rate of ten dollars per ton.

This offer was referred to Commodore Schley, who is the head of the Equipment Bureau at Washington, and was refused. The contract was, instead, carried off by a Philadelphia firm who sent 2,000 tons at very high rates to Pago Pago. Had the offer of Australian coal been accepted, it can be easily seen that the disaster might have been avoided, as the coal could have been placed on board within thirty days. Respecting the San Francisco dispatch criticising the Navy Department for its failure to accept the offer of coal from Australia for the American men-of-war at Apia, Commodore Schley, of the Bureau of Equipment, said: "We do not yet know that the loss of our vessels at Apia was due to a lack of coal. My latest advices, dated the last week in January, show that there was a supply of coal on the beach amounting to 150 tons. Nine weeks ago the Monongahela sailed from San Francisco to Apia with 600 tons of coal, which we had on hand at the Mare Island Navy Yard. It was not, therefore, necessary to buy Wellington coal at ten dollars per ton when we had coal of our own which had been bought and paid for. Wellington coal will not bear exposure to weather and it would not be good economy to lay in a stock of it at a place where we have no provision for shelter."

Lieutenant Parker of the navy will accompany the Samoan Commission, which sails from New York in the capacity of Secretary. He has been attached to the Adams for three years and it is expected that his knowledge of Samoan affairs, acquired during the stay of the Adams at Apia, will be of assistance to the commission. Lieutenant Backingham, now naval attaché at the United States Legation at London, but lately attached to the Berlin Mission in a similar capacity, will join the commission at Berlin and also act in the capacity of Secretary.

Emperor William went on board the warship Alexandrine, which is to relieve the corvette Sophie, and sailed down the harbor to Wangeroog. Upon leaving the vessel, he commended the ship's company to the protection of the Almighty. The German warship Olga has arrived at Sydney from Samoa to repair damages sustained in the recent hurricane at Samoa. The Olga's damages are slight and can easily be repaired. She has on board the commander, two officers and thirty of the crew of the Adler.

The Lubeck brought to Sydney the officers belonging to the Eber. They will proceed to Germany in the steamer Hapsburg. Three officers and seventy-five men will stay at Apia to guard the interests of Germany. The Olga's hull is perfectly sound, with the exception of a small hole in the stern. She will require two of her plates riveted. She made no water during her voyage from Apia to Sydney. Naval Constructor Richborn, acting Chief of the Construction Bureau, does not credit the report that the fires of the Trenton were extinguished by floods that came through the hawse pipes. He says that these pipes were placed on the berth deck to allow the heavy forward gun to be worked. The effort was to make the vessel ride at anchor more easily than if they had been placed on the upper deck. In a heavy sea water would come through them, and some complaint had been made that they kept the decks wet. Still they were furnished with rubber packed bucklers, which if applied would make the pipes nearly watertight, and Captain Hiebhorn says: "It is entirely incredible that enough water should come through to extinguish the fires. Undoubtedly the cause of her wreck was insufficient engine power. The English ship Calliope, which escaped by the bare margin of half a knot an hour to windward, has 3,000 horse-power to 2,700 tons displacement; the Trenton has 3,100 horse-power, but her tonnage is 3,900."

Secretary Blaine's instructions to the Commissioners of the United States at the Berlin Conference, are that they must insist on the maintenance of Samoan independence. The United States will pay no indemnity for the alleged aggressions of American citizens in Samoa. The proof is deemed conclusive that Klein sought to avert bloodshed and not to provoke it.

The Berlin Post says the Samoan Conference will open on the first of May. The German delegates are Count Herbert Bismarck and Dr. Krauel, Privy Council of the Legation of the Foreign Office. Count Herbert Bismarck will preside. Sir Edward B. Malet, British Ambassador at Berlin, will represent England.

The Cologne Gazette says: "The nomination of Sewall as disbursing officer of the American Commissioners to the Samoan Conference, together with the appointment of Bates, as a member of the commission, warrants the supposition that the Washington Government does not seriously desire a friendly settlement of the question concerning Samoa."

Yesterday's Bulletin contains a farewell salutation from its staff to Mr. Walter Hill, the editor and proprietor, who leaves by the Alameda for a trip of several months to the Colonies. The Advertiser would join in wishing Mr. Hill a good time and safe return, rejuvenated and invigorated from the scenes of his earlier manhood.

A setback to prospects of a parachute jump by Melville occurred yesterday, when the parachute was seized, together with two boilers and a glass case of stuffed quails, under execution on a judgment obtained by Egan & Co. against D. W. Pratt, business manager of the balloon combination.

THE MUSICALE.

Very Enjoyable Concert at Oahu College Friday Evening.

A large audience, filling the large parlor of Oahu College and overflowing into the hall and on the veranda, was drawn together yesterday evening by the announcement of the following musical programme:

- 1. Chorus—"The Stars in Heaven".....Choral Society.
2. Song—"Orpheus and his Lute".....Sullivan.
3. Trio—"Allegro" from No. 4 Haydn Messrs. Day, Brown and Jones.

- 4. Song—"Longing".....Rubenstein.
5. Piano Solo—"Aria con Variazioni".....Pabst.
6. Song—"Oh, Doubting Heart".....Miss von Holt.

- 7. Piano Duet—"Larghetto".....Symphony in D. Beethoven.
8. Song—"Thou Everywhere".....Lachner.
9. Vocal Duet—"The Birds".....Rubenstein.
10. Trio—"Largo" from Opus 1 No. 2 Messrs. Day, Brown and Jones.

- 11. Song—"The Lost Chord".....Sullivan.
12. Chorus—"Lullaby of Lullaby".....Leslie Choral Society.

Where nearly all the performers are amateurs, and all do their parts well, criticism is out of order and comparisons are invidious. It may be remarked, however, that the largest measure of applause, as is usually the case, was bestowed on the vocal part of the programme, particularly the singing of Miss von Holt and Miss Rhodes. Owing to the late arrival of one of the trio, the two concerted instrumental pieces came in the second part.

The unavoidable absence of some of the ladies whose names had been announced, necessitated the omission of two numbers from the vocal portion of the entertainment. The enterprise of Mr. Gribble in running special cars to the college entrance was a great accommodation to many ladies and gentlemen and was heartily appreciated.

HAWAIIAN CAMERA CLUB.

Large Attendance at the Monthly Meeting—The Members Photographed by Flash Light.

There was a good attendance of both ladies and gentlemen at the monthly meeting of the Hawaiian Camera Club yesterday evening. Mr. C. Hedemann, President, was in the chair, and besides routine business some very interesting practical work took place.

The members were photographed by magnesium flash light, the negative when developed showing remarkably clear details. An exhibition of one or two hundred Hawaiian and European stereoscopic views was given, the instrument used being a beautiful, large, revolving one, in a handsome case. This stereoscope was presented by Emperor Napoleon III. in person to the late Queen Emma on her visit to Paris, and when her effects were sold it was bought by Mr. Hedemann.

Albums of work done by members were open to inspection, revealing some excellent views of scenery and groups. Members have lockers in a large cabinet in the main room, well stored with appliances and chemicals used in photography.

At the next meeting Dr. Martin will deliver the first of a series of lectures he has promised, upon the subject of "Chemistry of Photography," which he will illustrate with practical demonstrations. The club is in a flourishing condition, having over fifty active members and an illustrious list of honorary members.

A man, whose wife was very dull at guessing conundrums, said he had at dinner—"My dear, can you tell me why I am so quick in making up my mind?"—"Well, John," she candidly answered, "I suppose it's because there isn't much in it to make up."

H. Brooks was fined $6 for leaving his licensed carriage at a liquor saloon.

CIVIL CASES. D. T. Bailey vs. Hawaiian Bell Telephone Company. Damage. D. Dayton and J. A. Magoon for plaintiff; C. Brown for defendant. This is an action of damage for trespass, founded on the removal of a signboard of plaintiff, owner of the Crystal Soda Works, by the superintendent of the telephone company when the latter found the signboard interfering with the company's wires.

Plaintiff testified he had spoken to one of the company's linemen, who at his request shifted the wires higher up and then said they were all right. He considered the damage was $200. The lineman himself testified he told plaintiff the wires would be all right if insulated from the sign. J. Cassidy stated that eighteen wires touched the sign, and it being a wet day the wet wood distributed the electricity so as to derange the whole system. The case was continued for judgment.

W. C. Parke, assignee of W. H. Graenhalgh, bankrupt, vs. C. O. Berger. Assumpsit for $155 00 goods sold and delivered. C. Brown for plaintiff; W. A. Whiting for defendant. Defendant filed a set off for $157 50. It was admitted that W. C. Parke is assignee of W. H. Graenhalgh. C. Bolte, who had power of attorney from Graenhalgh, testified the creditors authorized him at a meeting to keep store open. Before the meeting defendant told him creditors were trying to buy goods at store so as to offset their claims. Defendant's wife bought goods, on which claim was sued, a few days after the meeting. Ernest Thrum, the clerk who sold the goods, did not remember defendant offering Graenhalgh's note to him in payment for the goods. C. O. Berger testified to Graenhalgh making the note claimed as set off; Bolte paid him $22 50 on it; balance was due and unpaid; he was at first meeting of creditors and after that would have nothing to do with it; he told his wife to go to the store and buy what she could get; later he offered Graenhalgh's note in payment; the $22 50 was for life insurance; the rest of the note was for life insurance. Judgment for plaintiff for amount and expenses, making $171 79, and defendant's set off is disallowed, with prejudice to his right to file it as a claim against Graenhalgh's estate in bankruptcy. Appeal noted.

A. A. Montano vs. Enterprise Ranch Company. Damage $200, for failure to deliver three cows pastured by plaintiff at defendant's ranch. W. A. Whiting for plaintiff; J. A. Magoon for defendant. Judgment for defendant with $5 80 costs. Plaintiff noted appeal.

Nancy Ellis vs. Iocla. Action to recover summary possession of rented premises. W. H. Sea for plaintiff. Defendant agreed to quit premises before sunset on Saturday and pay $2 costs, whereupon plaintiff discontinued.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER Absolutely Pure.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food.

Prof. R. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported: "The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government."

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public." "Dr. HENRY A. MOTT, Ph. D." 5129-1y U. S. Government Chemist.

FLORIDA WATER The Universal Perfume For the Toilet, the Bath and the Handkerchief.

In view of the attempts made recently by some unscrupulous dealers to force upon the public a worthless imitation, bearing the general outward appearance of the genuine, we call attention to the distinguishing marks of the genuine MURRAY & LANMAN'S

FLORIDA WATER. Each bottle of the genuine article bears on its neck the Trade Mark, which appears alongside this notice, and on each leaf of the pamphlet, which is wrapped around it, appears in faint water mark letters the words

LANMAN & KEMP, NEW YORK. If either be lacking reject the article as spurious.

MALLETTOA'S COURT.

"Of course," he answered, "it was a regular game of 'follow my leader.' They believe if any one drinks with out first breaking the spell by spilling some, he will surely die. After this some American whisky and gin were passed around."

"Were there any women there all this time?" "The queen was there. She was a high chiefess from some other group far to the south, and several princesses. They all wore their hair dyed. They covered it with a plaster of lime and water, and that bleaches it to a reddish color that is very becoming to some of them."

"What did they wear?" "Oh, some wore petticoats of leaves that hang from the waist down and make the women look like ballet dancers, or they wear a piece of tapa closely wrapped around the loins. Then they have necklaces of bright seeds and shells and flowers in their hair. I tell you they are handsome!"

"When we had rested and had more speeches the King arose and escorted us, single file, through a large village to the Council-house, which was a grass hut thirty five by fifty feet, and crowded with chiefs. There must have been a hundred, all solemnly sitting cross-legged on their mats in rows, according to their rank."

"They wore flowers in their hair," continued Pueaka, "and strings of bright-red seeds around their necks, and they fairly glistened with coconut oil. Each carried a staff of polished wood and a fan. We were shown to a raised bench at one end of the house, with one of the fine mats at our feet. There wasn't a sign of a woman anywhere."

"Then one of the big chiefs stood up, and took the speaking staff the orator always holds while he is addressing the house. I can't remember for all he said, though it was very well translated."

"I remember," said Tusi-Tusi, "the first man who spoke was the King's orator. He made us welcome to the village of Tifua and Pipala—to the birthplace of the Mallettoas, and the seat of government. I tell you he talked like a book."

"The chief responded," said Pueaka, "and Tusi-Tusi here made a fine speech in thrilling Fenimore Cooper style that seemed to please everybody."

"Then came kava, this time made by one of the high chiefs. After about two hours of speeches a great noise was heard at the end of the village, and a procession filed along to the music of drums. First came four men bearing a litter with 250 pounds of roast pig on it, then came men with taro, chickens, ducks, bread fruit, cocoanuts, yams and fish, about sixty men in all."

"These things were all piled up before the houses and presented to us—cooked edibles enough for 1,400 people. Then the feast began; banana leaves were laid on the ground for tablecloths, and the tid-bits picked out for the guests. I was hungry, and the way I tackled the spring chicken and coconut milk was a wonder to the aborigines."

"After the feast the oldest of the chiefs stood up among the mountains of grub and divided it out among the chiefs of the villages who, when their names were called, advanced and took their portion."

"After it was all divided but the big hog and about a ton of fruit and fish—which was our share to take home with us—the feasting began in the village."

"We sat around and smoked awhile, and then those six old chiefs got up, oiled themselves well with coconut oil, and danced the sea for us, a thing they had never done for foreigners before. They kept it up for two hours, doing the wildest things, prancing and leaping and throwing themselves like mad."

"After more speeches and kava the King escorted us back to his house, and we lay off in the shadow of the palms and smoked, starting homeward at 10 o'clock that night."

"Did you ever see Malletto again?" I asked. "Oh, yes," said Pueaka; "we saw him many times. What a shame it is to think that he is now in the power of the Germans, his beautiful islands the scene of riots and war. I cannot believe that Bismarck knows half—"

"But Bismarck!" returned Tusi-Tusi, with warmth. "If the Americans had any spirit at all they would not have calmly laid by and—"

"But they had no authority from their Government—"

"Oh, well," I said, rising and shaking the sand from my dress, "if you fellows are going to talk politics, I'll leave." I. S.
