AN INTELLECTUAL FREAK.

The intellectual feats of the anti-Republican press continue. The surprising thing about the Royalists, like Goldsmith's village schoolmaster, is that such small heads can contain so much alleged general wisdom and political acumen.

Now that the two and only "intellectual giants" of the cause their disreputable defense helped kill have simultaneously evolved this brainy freak in diplomacy, it would be fittingly appropriate that each editor place it under a glass case on his table, together with a marked copy of his favorite bitters, for private admiration when the band makes his heart weary by playing Republican airs in the street, or the tramp of the Philadelphia's battalion makes his former failures in diplomatic interpretation rankle in his anti-American heart.

There is something peculiar about great discoveries in diplomacy. It is that an admission that the discovery is genuine—in other words, founded on the intents and purposes of those participating—necessarily admits all the logical applications and deductions of such a discovery. The application of the principal cannot be checked or lost sight of at any point in the review of the case, even though it threatens to become a two edged sword with a suicidal tendency of cutting both ways.

Admit for the sake of argument the recognition of the Hawaiian Government is merely de facto, as originally recognized by Mr. Stevens. Of course, not being so well posted in diplomacy as the anti-Americans and royalists who have so signally failed therein since the revolution, even in the diplomacy of neutrality—and all along the line, for that matter, from Stevens to Gresham—we hope the two brainy editors, one of whom has already openly proposed to desert the ex-queen's cause, will explain the following facts: How was it the United States entered into treaty relations with the Provisional Government if it was only a de facto Government? How was it the United States accredited a Minister to the Provisional Government under the usual form and usage extended only to de jure Governments if the Hawaiian Government at that time was viewed in any other light in the archives of the State Department at Washington than a de facto authority? Is it possible the British Minister Resident applied to a merely de facto government for protection a few days ago? Can it be assumed in the light of the debates in the United States Senate that the resolution passed by that body is to be interpreted as referring to a de facto government, which is not only to be allowed, but presumably protected, in forming the policy of the future and determining the constitution?

The fact is the wish has been father to the thought, and the thought will likely die for want of nourishment, if it depends for sustenance on the intents and purposes of either the backers of the Republic de jure or those of the Government and people of the United States.

TO THE WRONG MAN.

The Fresh Young Man Tells of the Characteristics of the Mulligrub.

The fresh young man sat at the head of the table. He was eating a fish. A red faced man dressed in a tweed suit came in and sat on the left of the fresh young man. The red faced man was an Englishman. At least he had an English accent that sounded as if it was his right and not by adoption. He gave the waiter an order, and when he was waiting he began talking with the fresh young man.

"Pardon me," the red faced man began, "but would you mind telling me what kind of a fish that is you are eating?" "Certainly not," replied the fresh young man beamingly. "This is a very excellent specimen of what is known locally as the mulligrub. It is a fish that is found in great quantities in the shoal waters of Lake Erie, the lake on the shores of which this city stands, and, so far as I know, is caught nowhere else. The mulligrub is a remarkable fish. It grows to the length of two feet sometimes, but is at its best for eating purposes when about 10 inches long. It is delicately flavored, many persons claiming that the flavor is that of an excellent champagne, while others insist that it tastes of Medford rum. That point has long been a matter of local contention, but I am reliably informed that in the olden days the Indians who lived originally in these parts distilled excellent rum from the fish, so I think the rum partisans of today have rather the best of it."

"Indeed," broke in the red faced man, "that is very astonishing."

"Oh, yes," continued the fresh young man, "but it is not the most surprising thing about these fish. Their greatest peculiarity is the manner in which they are caught. It is utterly impossible to take them with a hook and line. They will not bite at any bait yet invented by man. Nor is it possible to catch them with a net. Their dorsal fins are sharper than a knife blade, and when caught in a net they simply cut their way out to liberty. For this reason the fishermen do not cast a net in places where the mulligrub are known to abound. The only way to catch these fish is to hire a German band to play the wedding march from 'Lohengrin' while standing on the shore. So great an admiration have these fish for the music furnished by German bands and for that tune that they swim up to shore and wriggle their way out on the sand. Then it is easy to gather them up with a net. This is the way the natives catch them, and thus many worthy German musicians are enabled to earn comfortable livings when otherwise they would be obliged to walk around the streets for an uncertain income, to say the least."

"How very extraordinary!" murmured the red faced man.

"It certainly is," went on the fresh young man, "but there is still another habit of the mulligrub which is unique. The female mulligrub does not have the roe common in fish. Instead she lays eggs which resemble the eggs of robins, being of pale blue, though somewhat smaller. These eggs are deposited in the sand after midnight in the fall of the moon, and during days when the sun is not shining the male mulligrub sits on them to keep them warm. The little mulligrubs are born with four legs, which they use to walk into the water after they are hatched. In three days these legs drop off and the fish is ready to swim. "I can hardly believe it," said the red faced man.

A GREAT INVENTOR.

And the Man Who Had Him to Find Wanted Satisfaction.

A member of "the finest" while casting an eagle eye over a section of Garfield avenue yesterday heard a thumping and shrieking proceeding from a rather pretentious house. Feeling that murder was being done, he entered the residence on a trot and found an old man with a very red face holding a boy in one hand and a tub in the other. A heavy attack had been hitting the tub with the boy and was quite excited.

"What does this mean?" cried the officer.

"Mean?" echoed the old man in a dazed way. "It means that I am just now running a little reform school of my own."

"What has the boy been doing?" "I'll be glad to tell you. It is a pleasure to find somebody who will listen to the story of my trials. This boy, Mr. Officer, is an inventor. He thinks that he would lay over Edison if he had a chance. He invents all sorts of things. He has just invented, and I accidentally put my foot on that knob, and the first thing I knew that old buggy was sailing down hill backward at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour, and before it struck the bottom it knocked the plate glass front out of a store, tore up 10 rods of sidewalk and killed a cow, and then the wreck of the cow pulled me from the wreck and knocked the top of my head off."

"And you were whipping the boy for that?" "Partly. What business had he to put such a contrivance on my buggy without telling me? But that isn't all. He invented some sort of a mixture and put it in the bottle I keep my hair dye in. I used it last evening, not knowing what he had done, and I had to sleep with my hat on. It colored my hair a pale green and glued my hat to it, and the doctor says I'll have to soak my head in boiling water for three days before I can get the old tile off. Now, I ask you as man to man whether I'd better quit peddling this boy now or keep on for a couple of hours more?"

"Is he your own boy?" "Yes."

"Well, I don't believe I'd quit just yet, but you'd better go to the neighbors won't hear."—Chicago Tribune.

Convenient and Inexpensive. Johnson—I save myself a great deal of annoyance and trouble by having a pair of suspenders for every pair of my trousers. Johnson—That's quite an idea. But isn't it a little expensive? How many suspenders do you have to keep on hand, old man? Johnson—One pair.—B. K. & Co's Monthly.

Wants Some Satisfaction. Employer—You are late again this morning. Tardy Clerk—What difference does it make? You say I do nothing all day. Employer—Yes, but I want you to do it here.—Boston Transcript.

Brilliant. "Be sure to lock the back door, Jane," said a lady to a newly imported servant girl. "Yes, ma'am," was the answer. "Shall I lock it on the outside or the inside?" The mistress one day called down stairs and asked Jane, who was in the dining room, what time it was by the kitchen clock. "It was 10 minutes after 9 about five minutes ago, ma'am, so I guess it's half past by this time, ma'am."—Youth's Companion.

Hawaiian Hardware Co., Ltd

Superstitious people will have encouragement in their belief of dreams by an experience related recently by a certain sea captain running into Honolulu.

Just previous to his departure on a voyage the captain was requested by a merchant of San Francisco to take with him his nephew who desired to spend his vacation as a sailor aboard ship. After considering the matter and deciding upon what work he could assign the young man to he gave his assent. Before leaving San Francisco the merchant called on the captain and made a further request that his nephew's school companion be allowed to accompany him also. This was complied with and the lads given their quarters on the vessel and assigned to duty on the deck. A few nights afterward, and when the vessel was at sea the captain dreamed he had lost one of the young men overboard and so startled was he that the dream awakened him. Then he reasoned with himself: how could it be possible when his work on the vessel kept him on the deck and did not take him aloft. The dream impressed him to such an extent that he related it to the passengers in the morning. The believers in dreams suggested caution, others scoffed at the idea and the captain decided to keep a rigid watch on his ward and see that he did not attempt any duty that would take him into danger. Each day following came and went without anything of importance occurring until the morning of the twelfth day when a sail had to be shifted and ropes hauled. "Heave ho, blow the man down" was joined in by the led, and then a sudden gust of wind threw the boom in the opposite direction and the young man held to the rope and was jerked over the rail into the sea. In an instant the captain threw him a life buoy; eight minutes later the life boat was launched and pulled to the buoy but the lad was gone. We do not encourage a belief in dreams but the experience of this captain will probably make him as superstitious as the next man.

The "Andrew Welch" with its cargo of Standard Manufacturing Co's enamel ware has arrived and we are getting the articles in shape as rapidly as possible. We have had two or three invoices of these goods before, but have never gone in as extensively as now. The assortment consists of pools, conventional tubs, caskets, wash stands and sinks. The "Pool" is a square shaped arrangement about the depth of an ordinary tub, but instead of resting on the floor it goes through to the ground, only fifteen inches of it appearing above the floor. One of the advantages is in the fact that there is no climbing over and slipping on the rail. Then again it is a novelty which gives your bath room the appearance of that in a Turkish palace. These pools are decorated on the sides in bronze relief and have handsome nickel trimmings. Our other tubs are both plain and decorated, the insides finished like a China wash bowl and as easily kept clean. The closets comprise all of the best make and most serviceable. The wash stands we believe to be the handsomest ever brought to the country; the bowls are of the best enamel and will not break, if by chance any hard substance is dropped into them. In their selection particular care has been given to the quality of the Tennessee marble tops.

With the probable settlement of the sugar schedule in the tariff bill we anticipate a boom in building in Honolulu and there will be a demand for high class articles for the bath room. We confidently believe our display to be the best ever shown here and the wants of the people can be supplied without sending to the Coast.

EXAMINER ON SUFFRAGE

IS WOMAN WITH A CAPITAL "W" FIT FOR POLITICS?

How It is Done in New Zealand—A Lady Mayor Who Turned On the Gas and Sassed Back.

The Kansas exponents of woman's suffrage have been a whooping, and the New York women seem to be more desirous of getting into politics than into heaven; but there are certain signs and omens which should give these protagonists of woman as a ward striker pause and pain.

That she will be compelled to "do politics" once she gets to voting and aspiring to hold office is beyond question. People prate of her ennobling influence and dream that once she appears at the polls and caucuses and conventions, the plug-niches and general hard-scrabble will become Cisterciensian and Prynards, without riot and without reproach.

But over in New Zealand they have recently had an example of this ennobling influence, and in New Zealand, wherever it may be elsewhere, this influence will not do to let on.

The borough of Onehunga elected a "lady Mayor," and the Onehunga borough Council held a meeting at which the lady Mayor presided. The ennobling influence immediately proceeded to get in its perfect work. This work became so boisterous that the lady Mayor felt impelled to order the room cleared. The crowd wouldn't clear under the ennobling influence, but when the lady Mayor left the chair and went down to act as lady chucker-out the influence became more potent, and she managed to eject the lingering Chesterfields and kick out the last of the Chevaliers of Onehunga.

Then one of the Bayards, or possibly a Chesterfield, turned the gas off at the meter, and the lady Mayor was forced to become the lady janitor, while the assembled Bayards and Chesterfields were so ennobled as to say hee-haw and jeer immoderately. The noise became so disturbing that the lady Mayor went out to excise her ennobling influence on it, and incidentally to call for the police! Meanwhile the Beat Brummels and Ward McAllisters of the Council fought among themselves and permitted the lady Mayor to do the chores.

After the lady Mayor had persuaded the gas to retrograde and had kicked the police on the rip-roaring Bayards and yawning Chesterfields she returned in triumph to the chair. Councilman Jackson talked too much to suit her, and instead of applying the ennobling influence as a gag she forgot herself and applied the closure. Even this did not stay the wild Jacksonian tongue, so the lady Mayor got right down and "sassed back," shrilling with all the essentially feminine vehemence of a fishwife.

"Hold your tongue for goodness' sake. They talk about a woman's tongue, but I never heard any one that talked like you!" This womanly outburst was a closure in itself and Councilman Jackson hushed his loud notes instantly. But after the Council rose the crowd of Bayards and Chesterfields laid more fun at the expense of the ennobling influence, and the lady Mayor felt compelled upon to remark from an upper window: "You're a disgrace to the town and to the mothers who bore you! So there now!"

As she left the building, full in the halo of her ennobling influence, she was hooted and jeered, and at last accented the principal effect of the entrance of woman into politics in Onehunga was to increase the demand for cough syrup and other balms for the strained throats of those braying Bayards and chortling Chesterfields.

It might be different in California, though the recent experience of the lady Vice-President who attempted to rule the Populist convention in Sacramento does not much encourage the belief that the tyrant man is any less awful here than he is in far Onehunga.

On that occasion the "gentleman of the convention" so harried and baited and bothered that lady Vice-President that she was fain to call on the tyrannical and masculine Secretaries to stay the tumult and give her ennobling influence half a chance to exercise itself.

Taken for all in all, the experience of woman in politics seems entirely to favor the belief that the hand that rocks the cradle is a good deal more apt to rule the world with a slipper than with a gavel.

THE CRESCENTS WIN.

The Score Was Ten to Three—The Hawaiiis Badly Beaten.

Saturday's ball game was a sore disappointment to all who bet on the Hawaiiis. However, most of the bets were mental transactions, for the simple reason that it was nip and tuck and a slide which of the two clubs was strongest. And though the Hawaiiis were most awfully drubbed Saturday afternoon, a part of the outcome of the game must be credited to strolling fortune rather than to extraordinary good playing on the part of the opposing nine.

For instance, in the second inning the Crescents piled up five runs. That was due solely to the fact that the boy on the rail in front of the grand stand shouted too soon, a consideration no one will deny.

After this great lead off for the Crescents the game was, of course, like the cock with one wing clipped trying to fly the fence into the young garden.

With each inning the comparative score was wider apart, and at the close was as follows:

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Crescents..... 0 5 0 0 1 1 0 3 0 9
Hawaiiis..... 0 1 0 1 0 1 0 0 0 3

WODEHOUSE AND FUJII ACCEPT NOTIFICATIONS.

Correspondence to Be Submitted for Instructions—Government Pleas—With Replies.

British Minister James Hay Wodehouse has addressed a communication to Hon. F. M. Hatch, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in which he acknowledges receipt of the notification of the establishment of the Republic of Hawaii and states that he will take the earliest opportunity to submit the same for the consideration of his Government.

The gist and tone of the communication is very satisfactory to the Government, and it is believed that it portends a continuation of the present amicable relations and personal good feeling between the representatives of the United Kingdom in Honolulu and the Government of the Republic of Hawaii.

A very courteous letter was also received from Mr. Fujii, Japanese Consul-General, in which he recites the words of the notification transmitted to him by the Government and assures the Government that he will, at first opportunity, submit the correspondence for consideration of the Japanese Government.

AFTER THIRTY-FIVE YEARS.

Hon. G. D. Gilman Will Visit the Crater of Kilauea.

Hon. Gorham D. Gilman, accompanied by his wife, Miss Mott-Smith and Miss Secomb of Brooklyn, New York, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Severance, will leave for a trip to the volcano to-morrow morning.

The last time Mr. Gilman visited the volcano was about thirty-five years ago in company with Kanehameha IV and a large party of prominent residents and visitors. The party at that time went up by the old Hilo route on horseback and returned by the same trail after a three days' stay at the crater.

Before returning to Honolulu on July 27th, Mr. Gilman and party will visit the famous valley of Iao and the extinct crater, Haleakala on the Island of Maui. They expect to return to the United States by the steamer Mariposa on August 25th.

AMATEUR ART LEAGUE.

A New Organization That Seems to be Full of Promise.

A new organization that will add zest to the aesthetic branch of social life in Honolulu is about to be formed. A number of aspiring and earnest tyros in sketching, painting, sculpture, etching and belle lettres will combine for study and mutual benefit. There will be about ten charter members of the Hawaiian Amateur Art League.

It is proposed to secure an instructor from the coast. With this end in view a correspondence will be opened with Louis Roethe, this distinguished artist is of the famed Munich material school and was a fellow student of Tobey Rosenthal, honored for his "Constance de Beverley." The first meeting of the amateurs will be held this evening. They will proceed to work at once and from time to time note will be made of their progress and doings.

STOW-A-WAY COMPLAINS.

THOMAS COE OF THE MARIPOSA IN JAIL.

Says the Steward Imposed Upon Him—British Minister Wodehouse Declines to See Him.

Thomas Coe, of Sydney, was left here by the Mariposa last Thursday, having come in the manner of a stowaway. Coe tells a very interesting story, and one bearing the appearance of truth, as to his predicament and seems to think that he was imposed upon by the chief steward of the Mariposa. Coe was twelve months on the Mariposa and was discharged in San Francisco, when, he says, Captain Hayward promised to return him to his home in Sydney. But on boarding the vessel the chief steward protested against passing the man and had him handled as a stowaway.

On reaching this port Coe was turned over to the police and is now in custody. This morning the prisoner applied to Minister Wodehouse for help in the way of investigation of his case, to which the Minister is said to have replied that he would have nothing to do with it. Coe shows letters which seem to bear out all his claims. He has a wife and family in Sydney and shows a letter from his wife in which she evinces a knowledge of his expected return home. The police authorities think well of the case and say they hardly understand the singular attitude of the British Minister.

MANDOLIN MUSICALE.

The Instrumental Sextette Will Be the Leading Feature.

One of the most beautiful selections on the program of the mandolin musicale to be given by Professor Adelstein at the Opera House on Tuesday evening, the 17th, will be the instrumental sextette, "Musica Profana," by Graziani-Walter. It will be rendered by a combination of mandolin, two violins, flute, cello and piano. Professor Adelstein has the original from the composer and it will be rendered in Honolulu for the first time.

Miss Kate McGrew will sing "For All Eternity," by Mascagni, with mandolin obligato; Miss Nettie Burhaus will perform selections from Weber and Mendelssohn; Mrs. W. J. Warriner will sing "La Serenata," by Tosti; Mr. Will Hoops will sing the tenor solo from "Maritana," "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall"; Professor Adelstein will play several mandolin solos, and for a lute solo will perform "Schubert's Serenade."

A great treat is in prospect, and Honolulu's musical people will have the pleasure of listening to a program filled with many new and delightful numbers.

MANY CRAIS CRAWL.

Specimens of Land-crabs From Crabland.

The Advertiser of this morning publishes a long article from the Examiner telling the public something of the large land crabs of the South Pacific. Among other things Captain F. D. Walker is credited with saying: "They are as rare as Birds of Paradise." As a matter of fact, however, the greatest pest of the island from which these animals were taken is none other than the land crab! Hot water and everything else is poured into their burrows to kill them, and a boat load could have been secured. The denizens of the islands named use these crabs for food.

SCOTCHMEN AND COFFEE.

A COLONY FROM CALIFORNIA MEAS COME.

Wm. Thrum is Paving the Way For Them—To Grow Coffee On Hawaii—Olaa Sales.

Mr. Willie Thrum, son of T. G. Thrum, arrived by the bark Albert Saturday from school at Ann Arbor, Mich., but more recently from Sonoma County, Cal.

Mr. Thrum brings an encouraging report of a colony of canny Scotchmen now residing in Sonoma and Mendocino counties, California, who are contemplating moving to and settling in the Paradise of the Pacific.

The recognized head of the enterprise is a Mr. John Ross of Santa Rosa who has just returned from Guatemala where he had gone in the interest of his countrymen aforementioned.

Mr. Ross was well pleased with Central America and thought there was a great future ahead of Guatemala in the coffee industry. His plan then was to take the colony of fifty men to Guatemala and there enter the coffee business.

He had heard of the rich coffee lands and the flattering prospects for that industry in this country, though his ideas were very meagre and his information insufficient to direct his thoughtful attention this way. At this juncture he was met by Mr. Thrum, who took the opportunity of presenting the gentleman with a copy of Thrum's Annual for 1894. The information contained therein on the coffee industry, the lands and the growing commerce of the islands at once excited the interest of Mr. Ross.

Mr. Thrum was in again and talked with him at length upon the lands in Puna known as Olaa, what is being done there and what those interested hope to do in that quarter; of the lands of the various districts on the island of Hawaii, their approximate value and productiveness.

Mr. Ross was very agreeably surprised at the outlook in this country, and his interest developed into a determination to learn more of the islands, and to come here in place of going to Guatemala in case suitable arrangements could be made.

Mr. Thrum called upon Mr. Ross several times, and during these interviews furnished him with such information as was at hand.

On leaving Santa Rosa Mr. Thrum was commissioned by Mr. Ross, for the colony to ascertain the lands available for the cultivation of coffee, the terms upon which such lands may be secured, approximate acreage allowed to each holder and approximate cost of cultivation; another point of special inquiry was how the coffee could be gotten to market, and the probable cost of transportation. In truth, thorough inquiry was made into the subject of coffee culture, how cultivated, cost of labor, yield, prices obtained and estimates on net profits.

Mr. Ross expressed himself as greatly pleased with the reports of a good report to the volcano landing by the Oiaa property, and that fact was a great draw card in favor of the islands, inasmuch as transportation is carried on in the section of Guatemala considered by him, by pack mules.

From papers which will be forwarded to Mr. Ross by next mail, Mr. Thrum feels sure the gentleman will be fully convinced and think he will accept his plans to bring the whole colony here as early as practicable.

In speaking upon the subject this morning, Mr. Lanika, Commissioner and Agent of Government Lands, said that since the 31st of March last about 2000 more acres of the Olaa coffee lands have been taken up by settlers, in twenty separate holdings, making the total area of the Government lands held under special settlement conditions since January 1st, 1892, 17,000 acres.

LAST SUNDAY'S SERMON.

REV. DR. STEPHEN B. L. PENROSE AT CENTRAL UNION.

Practical Lessons in Christianity, Faith, the Resurrection—What is Life? What Death?

Dr. Steven B. L. Penrose, of Dayton, Wash., preached at Central Union Church Sunday morning and again in the evening.

Dr. Penrose is a graduate of Yale College, and, though a young man, his reputation as a preacher of great ability and an earnest worker in the cause of Christ and Christian civilization is widespread.

Sunday morning the young divine selected for his topic: "O gain Christ!" and preached from the 29th Psalm, "Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of the Hebrews;" as touching the law, a Pharisee; concerning zeal, purifying the church; concerning the righteousness which is in the law, blameless. But what things were gains to me, those I counted loss for Christ."

In part, he said: "Old ages live in its true perspective. The young age is occupied with the present. The old man Paul is writing to the Philippians from his dungeon. He is a stranger in a great city worshipping God in his solitude.

What wonder that his thoughts go back to the past! But would he exchange his dungeon and religion for the position of the highest in Nero's land? No! He is mastered by a single passion, to live like and be with Christ. Formerly, he had loved self, but now he was possessed of a new love.

Is this not the true music of life? Not what he is, but what he has been and will be. How often do we abstract with our left hand what our right hand had added. Our wills are weak. Do we not see life's wrecks everywhere? Broken nines, shattered wrecks, confined in Castle Despair, hoops on life's sea.

There are men inspired by a single purpose, and we admire such. Napoleon had a single purpose, and that purpose changed the map of Europe. That brings to mind a little keen-eyed Jew—the Apostle Paul. His one-eyed was to bring men to Christ.

How to live is the first great question that confronts the soul. Paul had that thing which uplifts the race—righteousness. Well might we who mold our lives to please our friends, well might we who live without purpose, learn wisdom of the Pharisee of old. Not by wisdom, not by wealth, can we attain Christ, but by throwing the gates open to righteousness.

What is life? What is death? Is there a hereafter? What is the question Paul put to his soul. Paul experienced the power of Christ's resurrection in his life. Do not think that you have grasped all of the truth until you have known, in all your life, that Christ is true.

What is life for? For one thing, that when Paul was so aged, did he not realize in all of his sufferings that Christ had suffered before? Christ having suffered before he and Him his friend. To love the Lord Jesus Christ with all your heart and love Him with all your possibilities is a perfect life in Christ.

THE FIRST MINNESOTA'S ATTACK ON A WHOLE DIVISION AT GETTYSBURG.

A Thrilling Recital of the Deed by One of Forty-seven Who Lived Through It—Is It a Parallel in War Annals, American or Foreign?

EN. BLACK'S speech in the house of representatives a few days ago...

and inspiration. The general in a crippled Union veteran...

It is true that General Black depended for his material upon hearsay evidence...

The story of the disaster of the second day of the battle, when General Sickles' Third corps was overwhelmed...

At this moment the Confederate commander ordered forward Anderson's division to pierce the interval between Sickles and Hancock...

"When Sickles advanced, eight companies of our regiment were placed as a reserve support to a section of United States artillery...

"At length, Sickles' angle was broken. Our troops in front gallantly endeavored to check the enemy till still fresh battalions of the foe came down, and our gallant boys gave way, carrying back their colors and slightly wounded and rallying by squads now and then to empty their guns against their pursuers.

How Gave the Battle? Ions of the foe came down, and our gallant boys gave way, carrying back their colors and slightly wounded and rallying by squads now and then to empty their guns against their pursuers.

Just then Hancock rode up, and unable to conceal his agitation asked in almost anguished tones, "Great God, is this all the men we have here?"

of the Alabama brigade of Wilson and portions of Barasade's Mississippi brigade, had lost their alignment and become mingled in one advancing mass...

"Charge, men!" rang the order along the line, and with a wild cheer we ran at them. Their extended line swept around our flanks like the waters around a rock.

The almost fatal attack was repulsed, but where was the First Minnesota? But 47 men now gathered around our colors.

"WITH A WILD CHEER WE RAN AT THEM," our son said—213 killed and wounded—and none missing. Our colonel, Lieutenant Colonel, and major adjutant were all wounded.
