Nobody knows of the work it makes
To keep the home together;

Nobody listens to childish woes
Which kisses only smother;
Nobody's pained by naughty blows
Nobody—only mother.
Nobody knows of the sleepless care
Bestowed upon baby brother;
Nobody knows of the tender pray'r
Nobody—only mother.
Nobody knows of the lessons taught
Of loving one another;
Nobody knows of the patience sought
Nobody—only mother.
Nobody knows of the anxious fears
Lest darlings may not weather
The storm of life in after years,

Nobody kneels at the throne above
To thank the Heavenly Father
For that sweetest gift—a mother's love;
Nobody can—but mother.

PROGRESS.

The Life of the Land is Established in Righteousness.

HONOLULU, FEB. 8, 1894.

THE UNRULY PEN.

This Time Mr. F. M. Hatch Opens His Heart

It is really astounding to see the recklessness with which men, and women, for that matter belonging to the annexation party commit themselves on paper, by writing letters to personal friends who consider it, an immediate duty to give to the world these "private" letters which generally were never intended for publication. From Chief Justice Judd and Mrs. McCully down to little "Elwood" and the other missionary kids there has been a constant inclination to tell their side of the story with the most indifferent regard to truth and facts. Of course their little yarns were only intended to create sympathy, admiration and if possible help from their correspondent, but their letters have made the writers very uncomfortable when read by their fellow-men in this community who alone can well judge of the value of the truth and facts set forth. The latest victim of the unruly pen and very vivid imagination is that cool, clever and careful lawyer, Mr. F. M. Hatch formerly vice-president of the P. G. (a minor consideration) and always attorney for Claus Spreckels (the consideration). Mr. Hatch has found it necessary to unbosom himself to a certain Mr. E. E. Wood in Cincinnati and this person has found it necessary to let the world at large participate in the benefit which undoubtedly Mr. E. E. Wood of Cincinnati has derived from the golden (even without a fee) words which drop from the lips of Claus Spreckels attorney even as manna did from the lips of the rest of Israel. Mr. Hatch writes as follows:

Honolulu H. L., Jan. 4th 1894. E. E. Wood, Cincinnati, Ohio. Dear Sir:—Allow me to thank you very much for your kind letter. We have been very much encouraged by the widespread and unexpected interest taken in our fight, which seems to be spontaneous from Maine to California. The simple truth of the matter is that the business community has been forced into a fight against the most gross corruption and misgovernment. For years the anomaly has existed here of the complete subjection of the property owners and business men to the political control of native politicians. The native vote represents about one tenth of the property and absolutely none of the business of the place. The white colony have developed the country. They have raised the public revenue from a few hogs, which was the only contribution made by the primitive Hawaiians to $1,500,000 a year. To handle this sum has been a very tempting bait. It has drawn about the Queen a disreputable crowd, who were determined to get their hand in. They found in her an arbitrary and unprincipled woman, who would join in any wild scheme in the hope of getting more arbitrary and unrestrained power, with a kindly interest at the same time for any cash in sight. Hence the overthrow. In the nature of things it was bound to come.

Very truly yours,
F. M. HATCH.

It is of course hardly necessary to point out any of the points in this letter which furnish the best illustration of Mr. Hatch's endeavor of creating a false impression. The gentlemen is worried because the government has been most grossly corrupt, and because the property owners and business men have been subjected to the popular will. When we remember that Mr. Hatch's great client Claus Spreckels is constantly denounced by the other annexationists as being the main cause of all corruption etc. it is really refreshing to see his attorney expressing himself in that line. The business community was forced into a fight, says Mr. Hatch. Who is the business community? we should like to ask this astute attorney. Spreckels, Davies, Allen, Widemann, Campbell, Hiad and many others who own more money than Mr. Hatch's business community put together and nobody knows it better than Attorney Hatch—were not "forced" into any fight, so why does Mr. Hatch prevaricate and avoid telling the truth to Mr. E. E. Wood of Cincinnati. Our brilliant lawyer and ex-vice-president further on says that the white colony "have raised the public revenue from a few hogs (sic!) to $1,500,000 a year." And he adds that it was a very tempting bait to handle that, and that therefore a disreputable crowd was drawn around the Queen! Allowing that Mr. E. E. Wood of Cincinnati is gifted with the most unusual intelligence, we will ask any fair minded man if not in the inference from Mr. Hatch's remarks is that previous to the Queen's reign the government only had hogs, but since her accession we were blessed—through the white colony—with $1,500,000? We don't know anything about the hogs in the treasury—they have always been found in the camp to which Mr. Hatch belongs politically, but it strikes us very forcibly that the dollars in the treasury have been mostly controlled by the same lot since the hogs-period. But we weep copiously when we find Mr. Hatch reproving the Queen by saying that she shown a "kindly interest in any cash in sight." That is gruesome. Now if she only had been like Hatch everything would have been alright. He sacrificed his hard-earned dollars nobly by investing them in the Oahu Rail-Road Company and the lofty sentiment which he now furnishes to Mr. E. E. Wood of Cincinnati ought to forever silence the lips of those worldly miscreants who state that Mr. Hatch became an annexationist and a P. G. for the purposes of recovering his shekels and booming the O. R. R. Co. We trust that Mr. E. E. Wood of Cincinnati has been very edified by the lofty unselfish and sterling sentiments expressed in the letter of F. M. Hatch.

The demand for the President to uphold the honor of the United States by restoration of the Queen is becoming very general in the United States.

The report comes from Headquarters that all the fuss and feathers about the latest poisoning fake is built only on the fabric of a bilious disposition.

As usual the editor of the Advertiser follows the rules laid down by his gang, and publishes a lot of scare-articles about poisoning, shooting and generally murdering of the faithful followers of the P. G. by the royalists. Nobody got scared. The experience which the community has had in the police dynamite business has not been forgotten. Mr. Henry Castle is simply a new man.

The most important news forwarded by the Alameda is the French incident in Hawaii. The new commissioner and Consul General of the French Republic, Monsieur Verlahey arrived here accredited to the government of Queen Liliuokalani. He did so under orders from his own government which undoubtedly knows what it is about. The gross insults against the French commissioner published in Mr. Dole's official organ the Star has fortunately been ignored by the French official in question.

WHAT are we coming to? We notice that Mr. T. H. Davies has been "summoned" to appear before Mr. W. O. Smith, the P. G. Attorney General, for the purpose of contradicting certain reports which have appeared in certain obscure papers. Mr. Davies who undoubtedly called on Mr. Smith under a misapprehension has now got a good illustration of the decency, tact and common sense on which the men in power claim to have a monopoly. Mr. Davies was actually asked by the most learned Attorney-General if he was arming a body of men in Victoria. Poor Smith! like poor Dole he is basing his policy and state-manship on newspaper items. The lack of brains—we except the one of Hoar—is becoming too pronounced. The idea of W. O. Smith calling a man like T. H. Davies, perhaps the only man with an absolutely unspotted record in our business community, before him, and asking him if he is a traitor or a conspirator against this country, in which he owes one hundred times more property than little Smith does! The idea of Marshal Hitecock, an official, supported to a great extent by the large amount of dollars which Mr. Davies puts into the treasury for the purpose of paying salaries, being present and by his very presence adding to the insult! The preposterous idea of Mr. W. O. Smith, whom we have, even from our own people heard designated as being a gentle man making such a low, cowardly and inexcusable exhibition of himself in sitting as a grand inquisitor and putting a man "on the rack." The "people" royalists or annexationists alike have no use for Mr. Smith. The quicker that His Excellency takes at tumble to himself the better it will be to his own interest. This is not yet a Mud Winter Fake.

NOTHING more strongly adds to the truth of Admiral Irwin's statement that the annexation papers here are "attempting to influence opinion abroad" than the following "scare heads" over faked stories in last evening's Rails and this morning's Tiser thus: "An assassin's Bullet." "Tried to kill Him" both relating to the probable accidental discharge of an officer's pistol in his own hands; and "sick soldiers another dose of cold poison" etc. The late arrival of the Alameda gave opportunity for discovering the "fakes."

"You finally ask my 'careful consideration' of the following statement contained in my letter. 'Your action has unfortunately aroused the passions of all parties and made it probable that disturbances may be created at any moment,' and say that you 'refuse to believe that upon re-examination you (I) will feel at liberty to affix your (my) official signature to such an extraordinary declaration.'"

In reply I beg to state that I have resided in this country for nearly fifty-six years and had intimate personal knowledge of the conditions prevailing during the riot of 1874 and the revolutions of 1887, 1889 and 1893, and with all deliberation I state of my own knowledge that during such periods there has never been a time when the country has been subjected to such strain and excitement as during the eight days following the arrival of the Corwin."

Will Mr. Dole honestly endorse the above statement which he has made in his "specifications" to Minister Willis? We believe that we are as good judges as Mr. Dole in regard to "strains" and "excitements," and we must emphatically state that we noticed nothing in that line, after the arrival of the Corwin which in any way can be compared with the feelings of unrest created in 1887 and 1889. Mr. Dole judges from his own personal feelings. In 1887 although a member of a certain secret committee, he yet had the feeling of security because he knew that there was a large majority behind him. In 1889—well we shall refrain from digging up Mr. Dole's position in 1889, but he was safe both ways. In 1893 he had the guarantee of the support of the United States forces and he figuratively speaking wrapped himself in the American flag—but when the Corwin arrived his conscience troubled him and he thought that after all his jig might be up and punishment fall on his head. It is from such reasons that Mr. Dole judges of the "strain" and "excitement" at the different periods mentioned. But Minister Willis can be assured that Mr. Dole only expresses his own individual feelings on the subject.

CLEVELAND'S FOREIGN POLICY.

The President's Sensible Conduct in the Hawaiian Affair.

All Democratic administrations have been persistently conservative in foreign affairs. No attempt has ever occurred under democratic auspices in our more than century of history to disturb the safeguards that detach us from foreign entanglements. Republican jingoists have been the band hirers and jugglers in foreign policy. Every time at tempt has been made it has been foiled by the sober and irresistible refusal of the country to sustain bravado or approve filibustering. Mr. Blaine had to give up his fantastic if plausible South American scheme. President Harrison has, it is true, tied us up for the present with two European powers in preserving the king of Samoa and paying his board and lodging as our common captive. Stevens used our naval forces at Honolulu to overthrow a lawful government, and now we have to consider what we may constitutionally do in righting our conscience for Stevens' and Harrison's unconstitutional proceedings.

The constitution of a country is not altogether reducible to writing. The document which the fathers contrived with infinite labor, and that has disappointed us partially on one or more occasions by failure to define a clear course in definite contingencies, does not embody in its letter all that comprises the fundamental convictions of the American people on constitutional questions. One of its most conspicuous omissions has become by common consent a constitutional obligation on our federal government—that which is commonly known as the Monroe doctrine. Equally binding on us is its companion, also absent from the constitution, non-interference in the domestic affairs of foreign countries. Washington and Jefferson were the authors of this constitutional canon in their conduct and writings, as Jefferson and Monroe and all after them for fifty years are a phalanx against the impolicy of meddling with other people's business or permitting others to meddle with ours.

Conservative, according to the traditions of his party, Grover Cleveland will not take any reckless step even to reverse unconstitutional conduct of a predecessor. When Mr. Cleveland withdrew the proposal of annexation of Hawaii from the senate it was not for the purpose of setting up an executive responsibility where the constitution ordains explicitly that the congress shall be consulted. Mr. Cleveland could not be expected blindly to assume a responsibility entered upon but not completed by his predecessor near the end of a term and involving grave danger of material and moral error. No president should be expected to take up the unfinished business of a predecessor and shift his own responsibility by a fiction or retrospection. He was bound to investigate the Hawaiian incident for his own information before taking any step making his administration accountable for so grave a proceeding as annexation of distant and undesirable islands.

If the president were reckless and insensible to his oath he might easily have left the Hawaiian incident twin with the Samoan imbroglio. He might have written to congress that, inasmuch as a predecessor had seen fit to contract the United States with two European powers in the face of traditions amounting to inhibition; and inasmuch as a predecessor had seen fit to violate other binding precedents in the matter of invasion of a friendly country and overthrow of a lawful government, it was, after all, not his concern. What was done was done. Instead of this lax and prodigal course, the president has adhered to constitutional standards and submitted himself to democratic authority. He cannot undo the knot at Samoa.

He was bound to inquire into the incomplete transaction at Honolulu. Responsibility as to that now lies on congress. It will have before it for elucidation of the facts Stevens' official letters, Blount's official report, the instructions given to Minister Willis before starting there as agent of the administration, and in a few days Willis' statement of the actual condition of the country. It may be that the revolution, accomplished unlawfully by our connivance, is not susceptible of reversal. At least the administration has shown that respect for our precedents and safeguards, which amounts to moral repudiation of the transaction and to acknowledgment that our national name was defiled by an unconstitutional procedure. If congress shall find on examination of the facts as existing now that we cannot go farther than this except by using violence a second time, it will be conceded that President Cleveland has done his duty in conscience and cannot be held to blame for consequences. Nor can the democratic party.

The proposal of annexation is wholly apart from contentions about past political intrigues in the leprous (?) islands. Annexation must be debated on its own merits. We have absolutely nothing to gain by annexing the islands. They are ours now for all useful intent and purposes. We do not want a gratuitous and costly political burden.—Chicago Herald.

A PHONOGRAPH EXHIBITION.

Mr. E. Nestor Edison to Appear in This City.

Mr. E. Nestor Edison, a nephew of the famous inventor is in town. His first public appearance will be on next Saturday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, when he will exhibit the latest improved loud-talking phonograph. An interesting program will be rendered, and during the performance a number of records of voices of local singers will be taken, and immediately afterwards reproduced to the audience. The exhibition promises to be a most entertaining one and a large crowd is expected. Reserved seats will be on sale to-morrow at Hobron, Newman & Co.'s drug store.

An Added Trust.

Mr. Preston Harrison, owner of the Chicago Times, who left for America on the Alameda today desires his friends in Honolulu to know that he has appointed Leigh Irvine, once an editorial writer on the Times, special correspondent of the Times in Honolulu. Mr. Irvine now represents the Examiner, New York Herald, and Chicago Times which requires the dictation of about 50,000 words a month to a stenographer.

The Alameda did not leave for the Coast until 4 p. m. The mail was not late; the band played and the "kids" as usual dived for coin.

A grand entertainment is now under way of preparation and which will take place at the Opera House on the evening of Feb. 17th. Well-known local talent will appear, as well as some volunteers of ability. Further particulars in tomorrow's issue.

IN THE RING.

Devotees of Corbett and Mitchell Compete.

The exhibition given by the Champion Minstrel company last evening, at the old Armory, Queen street, was a very successful one both in point of interesting events and sociability and Mr. Porter, who had the management of the affair, is well entitled to shake hands with himself and his assistants.

The evening's performances commenced with a chorus by the Champion troupe. This event was followed by a good "three round go" between Messrs. Ellwood and Thompson, followed by Mr. Russell in a sailor's bonaparte and Filmer and Verrier in an interesting single-stick contest. A song and dance by Duncalf and two, three rounds sparring contests between Johnston and Coulsock and Porter and Gurney closed the part 1.

Part 2 was opened up by W. Russell in a song and dance after which Langly of the "Champion" and Sharkey of the "Philadelphia" mixed matters in a very clever exhibition of sparring in a three round contest, David Koi the young and clever Hawaiian club-swingdr, gave the audience a sample of his club movements after which Duncalf and Willett exercised in a neat sparring contest. Ballard and Verrier tapped each other scientifically during three rounds and the performances ended with a rattling bout of three rounds between Porter and the well known light-weight Jim Barrington. The house was filled with interested spectators and the show was well managed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions or the utterances of our correspondents.]

EDITOR HOLOMUA:

Things look bad in fact are bad! and as they used to say in 1889, "what are you going to do about it?" the Revd. Editor of the Anglican Church Chronicle says "It is easier to get a drink than a meal." You yourself came out in your issue of Feb. 7th, with the story that Honolulu has a plethora of white labor—Now sir! the Editor of the A. C. C. does not talk through his hat, he is one of the first who gets hit by the impecunious as I well know—others as well as myself can bear him out. What I want to get at is this; if annexation with free labor means so much why the devil don't these annexationists employ some of these riff raff which is arriving by every steamer and show us the benefits of annexation—Bah! they know as well as you or I, that that class of labor is not what they want! They have got a down on the constitutional good of this country, because they can't under it rule the roost—and what is more they know perfectly well that this annexation free labor would not work for them anyhow—now what on earth do they expect—they talk annexation and yet not one logical conclusion under our circumstances has been advanced in favor of it. The whole thing has been like a child hunting for a toy, as a means to pacify the guileless moment of an hour.—I am sorry I said "guileless" because it might be misconstrued, but still we will let it stand; the whole affair is "guileless" from Nov. 22, 1892 to date! The funniest part is that the very much learned W. O. Smith in a letter published in the Los Angeles Times of January 15th says, speaking of the week before me "We were prepared to resist even to bloodshed any restoration" and further on "but the Lord stepped in and prevented it"—Poor Smith; I hope he said his prayers that night! But enough, let us see how much of this free and enlightened unemployed labor can be turned to account by these—well call them annexationists for want of another word.

Thurston May Be President.

It is said at the Hawaiian legation that there exists the utmost satisfaction over the way affairs are proceeding in Washington, and the liveliest hopes have been awakened that public opinion will bring about the condition they have so long hoped for and which some months ago it was confidently expected would have been reached long before this.

Mr. Thurston, it is said, will not be in a hurry to return to the United States, but will come back before the winter is over. When he returns, if all reports be true, it is more than likely that a republic will have been set up in the Hawaiian Islands and that the provisional government will have become the permanent government, with a new head, and possibly a new cabinet. It is not improbable that Minister Thurston may be selected as the new President.—Washington Post.

A Sound View.

President Cleveland has sent to Congress a message relative to the Hawaiian question, together with a mass of official documents bearing on the subject. The message embodies a review of the events incident to the change of government in Hawaii, of the indecent haste with which an annexation treaty was concluded and transmitted to the United States senate, just 32 days after the United States minister at Honolulu had supervised and controlled the pretended revolution, of Commissioner Blount's investigation and of Minister Stevens' course prior to and after the Queen's deposition in pursuance of his monomania for annexation by conquest.

The fact that the Queen yielded under protest to the superior force of the United States is strongly emphasized, as is also the character of the committee which Stevens and his troops converted into a governing body, and which is composed entirely of aliens and the sons of aliens.

All the circumstances recited are described as leading to the conclusion that the Provisional Government "owes its existence to an armed invasion by the United States" and that reparation is, therefore, due from this nation.

Hoping to restore the status quo by amicable means, Mr. Cleveland states, he dispatched Minister Willis with authority to propose restoration to the Queen on condition that she would bury the past and subject the "revolutionists to no punishment." This offer having been rejected, the powers of the chief executive are exhausted and he accordingly refers the whole matter to congress for legislative consideration.

The justice of the position maintained by the President is so plainly apparent that it is a marvel that even the most unreasoning partisanship should attempt to run counter to it. In the instructions to Minister Willis, out of which the annexation party hoped to make capital, it is explicitly stated that "the President will not authorize the use of the United States troops either to restore her (Liliuokalani) or maintain her upon the throne. The use of the troops can only be authorized by act of Congress." This disposes of the pivotal argument used against the President, to wit, that he himself had undertaken to assume the power of armed interference which he condemned in the case of the agents of the last administration.

In whatever light the affair is viewed, whether from a Republican or a Democratic standpoint, it is manifest that Mr. Cleveland has been right from the first and has been actuated wholly by solicitude for the honor of his country and the conservation of the American doctrine of non-interference with friendly powers. That Republican leaders have seen fit to take the other side of the question, for the sake of vindicating Stevens, who acted with his eyes open and President Harrison, who was hoodwinked, is unfortunate in so far as it tends to commit the Republican party to a form of jingoism unworthy of the great American nation.—Pittsburgh Leader.
