How Women Have Figured in French Politics.

I was rather surprised to note, by the latest reports of the De Ciesey-Jung affair, that she was so universally in favor of the General. It seems to be considered therein as a matter to the malice of the Radicals. Now it is a well-known fact that everybody in Paris fully understood the why and wherefore of his resignation of his functions as Minister of War some five or six years ago. That the General had a profane amie who was a German spy, and who offered by her right of entry at all times to his private rooms to copy all sorts of important documents, the copies being forthwith transmitted to Berlin, became known to the police at that epoch, and through their medium to Marshal MacMahon. The Marshal sent for his old comrade, then his trusted coadjutor in the Government, and laid the proofs of the Baroness de Kaulla's misdeeds before him. Poor De Ciesey was utterly crushed by the revelation. They say that, war-worn soldier though he is, he burst into tears and wept like a woman. Out of consideration for his age and his long years of military service, he was permitted to send in his resignation on the plea of ill-health. The story was hushed up so far as the newspapers were concerned, and a journal in Paris recording a solemn warning not to allude to it in any possible way. But it was the talk of the city; and the clubs and the cafes rang with it; but even the correspondents of foreign journals did not venture to mention the incident in their veiled and guarded terms. It had all blown over, and the history was well-nigh forgotten, when it pleased an unscrupulous journalist to stir it up afresh.

Hence the scandal wherewith Paris is now ringing, and the end is not yet. Every day calls forth fresh details. Now it is a story of how the apartments of the Baroness were re-furnished in gorgeous style, the bill of $16,000 being paid by the French Government, and immediately after received an order for 50,000 pairs of shoes for the French army. Then we have the history of how all the chapeaux captured by Prussia during the Franco-German war were sent to the French Government through the medium of Mme. de Kaulla, that astute lady pocketing some $50,000 by the transaction. There is also a history of horses supplied to the French army through the same channel, said horses being completely worthless for anything but the knacker's yard.

Withal, the lady is said to be one of the most graceful, refined, and fascinating of women. A lady friend of mine chanced to be seated beside her at a public concert one evening, a year or two ago. Some small incident, such as the loan of a programme, led to a conversation, and my friend was entirely charmed with the vivacity, the high-bred elegance, and the beauty of her exterior. When the concert was over she asked a French acquaintance, who was present, who that fascinating lady might be, was told her name, and never forgot it, so deep had been the impression made upon her mind by the woman's brilliant and sparkling wit of her chance acquaintance. She never saw the bewitching Baroness again, and it was only when the De Ciesey-Jung scandal burst upon the public that she recalled the incident and the name of the charmer.

What an influence women seem to exercise over the story-tellers of French politics! The angry waxes may rise, and seethe, and overwhelm old landmarks and cherished institutions in their maddest fury. And, lo! when one comes to investigate causes and effect, it is all the work of some placid Lady Moon, enthroned in ethereal tranquility in some stately sphere, far above the raging tides. It was a woman who brought about the Franco-Prussian war. It was a woman who impelled poor, honest-hearted, thick-headed old MacMahon into the mad enterprise of the 16th of May. And now it is again a woman who has brought the veteran De Ciesey's gray hairs untimely to the door of public reprobation. A prominent French politician once said to de MacMahon over the Marais: "Madame, the President of the French Republic ought always to be a bachelor." Yet, by the light of recent, or rather past, events, it would seem as if even this extreme measure would not prove effectual. If it were not "Madame" it would be ces dames. On the other hand, no ruler in the world could be more inaccessible than is President Grevy to any undue or outside influence.

The Mortuary Post.

He was a country-looking chap, with an odd mixture of sorrow and resignation upon his lean countenance, and he dropped in upon the advertising clerk in a public reproach with the mysterious whisper of "She's gone."

"Who's gone?" asked the clerk.

"Who in thunder's Maria?"

"My wife; she's gone."

"Gone where?"

"Up above—did last night—want you to put it in your next issue."

"What died?"

"Lockjaw; she lay for three weeks and couldn't speak; never had a quiet time in the house before. Just do the notice up fine, will you, and I'll see that everything is fixed up all right."

Accordingly the clerk scribbled away for a few moments, handed out what he had written for inspection, and curtly remarked:

"Dollar thirty-five."

The bereaved husband read it over carefully, and finally got a sigh of satisfaction.

"That's all right," he said, handing over the requisite specie, "but if I pose you could put a verse on the end, couldn't you?"

"Well, yes," said the clerk, "guess so; what kind of a verse do you want?"

"Something tenderly and powerful."

"How would this do?" asked the clerk.

A perfect female, folks did consider her, She's gone and left a weepin' widower.

"That's kinder melancholy," reflected the stranger, "but I reckon it's a little too personal. Just try again; I don't mind puttin' up lamsun for sumthin' that'll rake folks' heart-strings."

The clerk gazed at the ceiling for a moment and then suggested:

"The husband's lost a wife, The children a ma, Died on Friday night, From the lock-jaw."

"Yes," broke out the mourner, wiping his nose with a black-bordered handkerchief, "but you see I don't own any young 'uns."

"What do you think of that?"

She was always content, At life she'd never carp'd, Glad to be an angel, And play on a golden harp.

"Don't believe that'll suit. You see Maria couldn't even play on a pianer, an' I know a harp would suit her, sure. She had a tender heart, though, she made the most elegant biscuit you ever saw."

"Hanged if I won't have to charge you extra," growled the clerk.

"I know," replied the weepin' widower, "Just try once more, won't you?"

The clerk did try again, and ground out the following:

An earth could not stay Maria, So she died and went up higher.

"Sorter irreverent, arn't it?" anxiously asked Maria's relic. "I wouldn't grudge a couple of dollars for a bang up verse."

Thus stulticated the poet became suddenly inspired, and exclaiming produced:

Oh for Maria! Alas! she is no more— Joined the shining angels Upon the other shore.

The afflicted one took a chew of tobacco, and whispered:

"Beautiful; but there's one thing that spoils it. Maria had'n't any more melody in her than an old plow, an' it's deliber'ly in't to speak of her as a vocalist. None of them other sycops (seraphs) you allude to could keep time with her."

"Well," remarked the clerk, "if this ain't all O. K. you will have to hire a special poet, I'm played out."

two dollars; you've s'nt them. A young man that can make up such affectin' lines as them has a glorious future before him."

And squeezing the exhausted poet's hand, the widower left in search of a pair of black kid gloves.

Going for Gallagher.

Gallagher was President of a dramatic club in Boston, and wrote a piece for them. It called for nine persons, and everybody in the cast considered that he or she had the worst part, and that it was made so on purpose. At first they didn't propose to play, but finally decided to do so, and concocted a plan to punish Gallagher. He played the hero, and in the first act said farewell to his mother and went off to sea, and when she parted with him she contrived to wrench his head and scratch his nose on a pin fixed in the shoulder of her dress for that purpose. That eased her mind and disconcerted him. But he submitted. In the next act he appeared on ship board, and had to be knocked down by a civil captain, who hit him so earnestly with a belaying pin that it nearly killed him. And then when he headed a mutiny and called to the mutineers, "Follow me!" somebody in the cast, who was ignominiously fell through it, and got terribly gaudy by the audience. He was awful mad, but determined to conquer in spite of the disaster, and so came up and went on with the play.

In the third act he was to have a terrible combat with the villain of the play and whip him. Mr. Henocpe Smythe played the part. He was satisfied that he had the worst part in the piece, and that Gallagher had made it so to spite him. Gallagher, as he clutched his sword, "Villain! I'll beat your life out in two seconds!" But he didn't. The villain was the strongest man, and the way he lathered Gallagher about the stage was awful. But when it came to where the villain was to cry, "Let me up, I'm crushed!" he had Gallagher jammed under the table and beating him with a chair leg, and, of course, his speech and Gallagher's reply, "I will not spare your life!" sounded absurd. Before the villain consented to be overthrown he had the audience shrieking with laughter, and had beaten Gallagher black and blue all over. Gallagher went home terribly angry, and the rest of the company were delighted.

The piece was to be played the next night, and Gallagher repeatedly himself too ill to appear. But he sent a substitute. That substitute was a prize fighter under an assumed name. He hugged the mother so in the pulled scene that he nearly killed her, and pulled her false hair off accidentally. He threw the cruel captain down the trap. He hurt all the other actors, and in the fight with the villain mopped up the whole stage with him, and hurried him clear through the back lot.

At the end of the evening the scenery was completely wrecked. Confusion reigned, and Gallagher sat in the front and laughed till he nearly died.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

America.

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), January 12.—Governor Murray of Utah, has arrived here, and sums up the Canon matter by saying that Canon is not a citizen and is ineligible to any office. His parents were foreign, and he has never been recognized as a citizen of the United States. There is no Court record of his naturalization, and consequently I could not give him a certificate. Added to this was the aggravation of his being a Mormon polygamist, which makes him a felon and criminal against the laws of the nation. I don't see how I could have done otherwise. I wish it distinctly understood, however, that there is not the slightest bit of politics in the matter. It is not a political question, but simply a question of right and wrong. To show the sense of Congress on the matter, when Canon took his seat before, they admitted him, but soon afterwards passed a resolution providing that members of Territories be qualified by the same rule that applied to States, viz: That to be a citizen of the United States for seven years and to be over twenty-five years of age. The resolution went on to say that any man guilty of polygamy was ineligible as Congressman, but the resolution was unfortunately crushed in the Senate. Out of a population of 44,000 there are fully 33,000 Gentiles, and these, I may say, represent fully half of the wealth of the Territory, although the Mormons, of course, have settled on nearly all the land. Things are rather warm out there, but I don't apprehend there will be any serious trouble, except, of course, bad feeling, and that I will be soundly abused by Mormon papers. There are more Gentiles in Utah than the whole population of the Territory of Wyoming, and they certainly have a right to be heard.

CHICAGO, January 8th.—A Times' Philadelphia dispatch says: Sara Bernhardt yesterday afternoon attended the ministerial performance of Thutcher & Ryman, playing the burlesque Sarah Bernhardt. She enjoyed it heartily, especially the ballet stomp scene and the "Opera Soup," sung by a black woman, who prefaced them with a French speech. She was, however, a little nettled by the bringing of her son into the play.

WASHINGTON, January 8th.—The War department abolishes caps for officers, and hereafter buttons will be worn, with trimmings to designate the different branches of the service. Infantry color will be white, cavalry yellow, artillery, red, and signal service orange.

NEW YORK, January 8th.—An Evening Post's Washington special says: It is reported that Jay Gould, in company with J. H. Wilson, has stepped in as a competitor for the purchase of the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio railroad, for which the Pennsylvania railroad has been negotiating. Wilson now controls the lines from Bristol west to Memphis. This purchase will give Gould a southern line to Norfolk and the Atlantic seaboard.

CANON, January 12th.—Fair was elected at 12:30 to-day. The vote stood: Fair, 52; Wren, 30; Daggett, 1. There was one absentee. The Colonel made a speech after his election. There was not much excitement or enthusiasm. It is the general belief that his seat will be contested in the United States Senate, although Sutor and Wren's friends disclaim any such intention.

CHICAGO, January 10th.—A  Tribune's New York special says: Short time ago Lieutenant Schwatka received a communication from Commander Cheyette of the British Royal Navy, a distinguished Arctic explorer, proposing an international Polar expedition, and inviting his co-operation. The letter was accompanied by similar recommendations signed by many of the most prominent British officers who have participated in Arctic explorations, or made them the subject of study. In it was also a suggestion inviting American capital from private sources to the enterprise.

Captain W. Parker Snow of the British Mercantile Marine, who was one of the early searchers for the lost crew of the Essex and Terror, has written a letter to Lieutenant Schwatka asking his co-operation in another expedition. Captain Snow proposes to get up a new search by Lancaster sound westerly, then back to the magnetic pole for any further information of Franklin's party, and afterward going through to Behring's straits.

NEW YORK, January 8th.—Members of the Executive Committee of the World's fair called on W. H. Vanderbilt yesterday to start the subscription list. They stated that no subscriptions would be valid unless the entire sum of $4,000,000 should be pledged. They relied on individual subscriptions to raise the first $1,000,000. Vanderbilt, after expressing his hearty sympathy with the project of the fair, handed the subscription list for the first $1,000,000 with a large cash subscription in his own name, saying that he thought there would be no trouble about finding one hundred men to subscribe $10,000 each. This subscription was followed by others and within a short time the Committee declared they had raised $100,000 toward the first $1,000,000 unconditionally.

PISCO, January 4th.—Three Chilean divisions are now on Peruvian soil and advancing on the Capital of Lima. The first and second divisions landed at Pisco, and marched northward after having ravaged the country around Pisco. The various valleys through which they pass have been forced to contribute their quota to the maintenance of the invading force. The third division landed on the coast, 25 miles from Lima, and immediately advanced on a place called Lurin, which they took at the point of the bayonet, and dislodged from a good position a Peruvian division, estimated at 2,000 men. The combat, it is reported, lasted an hour and a half. Considerable loss was suffered by both parties. The third Chilean division numbered 12,000 men, which will place the invading force actually in the field at 38,000 men. Another division will be added, which will bring the number up to the neighborhood of 40,000 men, with which the attack will be made on the city, which is defended, it is said, by between 50,000 and 60,000 men. Various skirmishes have taken place, with varying results. No serious attempt appears yet to have been made to stay the advance of the invaders. Dictator Ferrel appears disposed to await their approach behind the fortifications he has erected for the defence of the Capital, rather than oppose their march along the line of road, which offers many rare opportunities to harass the invading army.

The Chilean squadron in front of Callao has been unfortunate of late. The celebrated Armstrong gun on board the Agassiz exploded on the 11th of December, and one of the Huascar's turret guns (a 200-pounder) suffered a similar disaster. The loss of the Armstrong gun is a serious misfortune, as it was a formidable piece of ordnance. The turret blew out and went overboard, carrying away several men—among whom is said to be a Mr. Siate, a representative of the manufacturers. The Agassiz went south for repairs. The Chileans lost two steam launches in recent attacks on the forts at Callao, and suffered considerable losses in killed and wounded.

Europe.

LONDON, January 8th.—In the House of Commons last night the Attorney-General, in introducing the Corrupt Practices at Elections bill, explained that its chief object would be to put an end to the Irish expense accompanying most elections; that a check would be placed on expenses by a certain sum being fixed for an entire election according to a schedule varying according to size of constituencies. Various punishments, with hard labor, would be inflicted for corrupt practices, such as bribing. A candidate guilty of corrupt practices would never be able to sit again for a constituency where they occurred. The bill had its first reading.

LONDON, January 7th.—The British Board of Trade returns show the value of exports for December, 1880, to have been £18,250,000 against £16,500,000 the corresponding month in 1879. The total value of exports for the year was £222,000,000 against £191,000,000 for 1879. The value of imports into the United Kingdom for December, 1880, was £13,250,000 against £13,270,000 the same month in 1879. The total value of imports for the past year was £100,000,000 against £92,000,000 for 1879.

St. Petersburg, January 11th.—An official telegram announces that General Skobeloff has completely invested Gorko Tepe. General Skobeloff reports that Gorko Tepe is invested, except on the northern side, by 8,000 men, with 28 guns.

St. Petersburg, January 11th.—The investment of Gorko Tepe has been effected by Generals Kourskine and Skobeloff, by attack on the trenches of Yelke Turcomans, which lasted three days. The Russian loss was small. That of Yelke Turcomans was reported enormous.

VIENNA, January 11th.—The alliance of the Empresses of Austria, Germany, and Russia may be regarded as re-established, the possibility of their meeting being discussed.

LONDON, January 11th.—Yesterday's meeting of English and Irish Liberals to express dissatisfaction at the incompetency of the changes of the proposed land system, is attracting much attention.

LONDON, January 11th.—The Daily News says: It has become abundantly manifest that strong measures will receive abundant support, while weak ones will cause defection from the Liberal ranks, and strengthen the hands of the House of Lords.

The Times says: The body of politicians, English as well as Irish, are conveying the message, not in words, but intelligibly, that unless sweeping changes in the land system, going far beyond the lines of the Act of 1870, are proposed, a stand will be made against coercion. There is a rumor that Earl Cowper desires to resign the office of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, principally for private reasons.

LONDON, January 10th.—The Home Rule members of Parliament have decided that Parnell, McCarthy and Gray should move amendments to Gladstone's proposal to give precedence to Coercion bills.

CHICAGO, January 10th.—The Daily News' London special says: The impression has prevailed and a rumor has been published that the Irish Land Commission have submitted a report to Parliament. It is now officially stated that the commission is unanimous in its decision. It is stated that the conclusion arrived at is that a plan known as the "Three F's"—"Free rents," "Free sales," and "Fixity of tenure"—has been approved. All the commissioners are large land proprietors. To-night Mr. Shaw is expected to make a speech in the House of Commons, in which he will go to the bottom of the Irish question. The report is that the commissioners will have great influence on the Government.

LONDON, January 10th.—It is rumored that, if necessary, further debate on the reply to the Queen's speech will be postponed until after the passage of a Coercion bill.

TRALEE, January 11th.—The examination of the Land Leaguers is still proceeding in the jail, the police fearing to remove the prisoners to the court, owing to the excitement.

PARIS, January 8th.—The revenue from indirect taxation during 1880 exceeds the budget estimate by 169,000,000 francs.

MADRID, January 10th.—There is a serious split in the ranks of the Carlist League. The Home section has abandoned the cause of Don Carlos.

LONDON, January 8th.—Private advices from Crete report a rising and ferment of revolution there, and a determination on the part of the Greeks to seize the opportunity of the rising in Greece to throw off the Ottoman rule.

LONDON, January 6th.—The Times says: Rumors that additional reinforcements are to be sent to Ireland are unfounded. The Government is convinced that the forces there are ample to meet any emergency.

The proposed Land League meeting at Tolley, County Galway, where Canon Fleming was fired at, has been prohibited.

DUBLIN, January 6th.—Gun-makers are doing an enormous business, especially in revolvers.

LONDON, January 8th.—A meeting of Irish Liberal members of Parliament, as distinguished from the Parnellites, will be held to-day to express regret at the incompetency of the changes proposed in the land system, a comprehensive reform of which they assert should be immediately supplemental to any coercion bill. It is reported that a considerable section of English Radicals will support this view, and some members of the Ministry do not disapprove of such pressure.

LONDON, January 8th.—Eighteen Irish members of the House of Commons spoke on the O'Kelly Obstruction motion last night, consuming over two hours. The question was raised whether O'Kelly was in order in speaking on a motion for adjournment. The speaker said O'Kelly was in order, but the practice was highly inconvenient, and, if persisted in, he believed the House would be obliged to put an end to the abuse of the practice.

TRALEE, January 8th.—The examination of the Land Leaguers takes place to-day, when the defendants will be brought to the court house, provided their escort is not molested.

The President has decided to include this branch in the curriculum of the College.

Its object is to afford all classes of the community the means of acquiring a theoretical and practical knowledge of all commercial and business transactions in daily use; and also to give an insight into the workings and application of the different Trades, which it is so essential to do in these Islands.
