GOVERNOR FREAR NOT ALARMED QUARANTINES NOT AS HASTILY ORDERED HERETOFORE

UP TO DATE INTER ISLAND SERVICE

Wireless Manager J. A. Balch says that he did not say that the United Wireless company was a fake scheme. Also that he did not know whether other wireless companies intended to enter the field or not.

Manager Balch of the local wireless company, who recently returned from Molokai, where he had been called to superintend the moving of the wireless station from Kamalo to Kaunakakai, stated this morning that this was the first of the improvements that would be made to assure the public having an up-to-date inter-island service.

"The climatic and other conditions existing here are different from any other place that I know of, and, taking everything into consideration, we have a very good service, although we hope to greatly increase the efficiency in the not far distant future.

"There has been a good deal of talk about the United Wireless Company coming here to enter the field, but I doubt very much if they will ever come.

"They are doing a big business in both oceans with their ship wireless, but so far their efforts to maintain land stations have proved far from successful.

"As far as I can learn there is no law that would keep them out of the field here if they wanted to enter it, but they will probably confine all their business to shipping.

"Wireless has come to stay, and, in the future, Honolulu and the other islands will be given a much better service than they now have."

The Royal Hawaiian Band will give a concert at the Moana Hotel tonight. The Moana, always popular, is particularly adapted for open air concerts and a large crowd is expected.

Kahi Gets One Year

Sam Kahi, who escaped from the prison gang at Manoa a few days ago, and who was captured yesterday afternoon while attempting to get away on the Logan, was before Judge Andrade this morning, and as a result will have to serve another year for his foolishness in trying to get away from the minions of the law. Sam did not seem to appreciate what he had done, judging from his attitude this morning in court; but he will have plenty of time for reflection in the next eighteen months, as his new sentence does not start until after January, 1911.

Thirty nine gambling, two assault, and one threat case were continued.

CITY GUARDIANS MEET EXECUTIVE FOR HEALTH'S SAKE

Aylett, McClellan and Logan, the Health Committee of the Board of Supervisors, waited on Governor Frear this morning to discuss with him the matter of quarantining the Russians at Iwilei camp on account of diphtheria, or any contagious disease, should such an event become necessary.

Governor Frear, on being informed of the board's decision that it could not undertake quarantine work, having neither the authority nor the resources for such, said that he did not think a general quarantine of the Russians would be necessary. If it should become so, the Board of Health would handle the situation.

Quarantines, the governor added, were not so hastily ordered now as on some former occasions in these islands. The people were not now thrown into hysterics as then, upon the appearance of a contagious disease. Recently a visitation of bubonic plague to the Territory was suppressed with but little disturbance of public equanimity. Also an epidemic of diphtheria in Honolulu had been quietly suppressed, so that outside of its appearance among the Russians there was not a case in the city.

ESCAPE FROM THETIS IS STILL A MYSTERY

Lieutenant Ahern, of the U. S. R. C. Thetis, in talking this morning about the escape of McKinney and Cramer from the ship last Monday night, said: "I was officer of the deck at the time that the men escaped, and can only account for their getting away by the fact that they had either outside help or had made keys themselves to fit the leg irons that they wore, as I had the keys in my pocket that fitted the locks."

"A few minutes before eight o'clock I went down to the wardroom to receive the night reports and I gave orders to the master-at-arms to lock the prisoners up in the brig for the night, but when he went to fulfill my orders the men had gone. The only way that I can see how they escaped after the fetters had been taken from their legs was for them to have crawled astern along the port side of the ship and then swung over the side to the wire cable which is made fast to one of the old iron boilers back of the 'rotten row.'"

BALLINGER REVEALS SENSATIONAL FACTS

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger, who was on the stand today, testified that he had reversed Pinchot's forestry policy. He also denied the statements made by ex-Secretary Garfield that he had ordered the restoration of the lands in such a manner as not to attract public attention. Ballinger also stated that he had ordered the reclamation service to recommend restoration of lands suitable for power sites.

WORLD COURT SURE

WASHINGTON, April 26—Ultimate disarmament of the nations of the world, in the opinion of Secretary Knox, is practicable.

He believes that the establishment of a court of arbitral justice, to which the nations of the world may appeal for the settlement of their controversies, will have as its own consequence, not merely a reduction of arms, but the ultimate effect of rendering large armaments unnecessary.

His plan for the establishment of an international court of arbitral justice, outlined in an identical note sent in the fall of last year to various nations, is meeting with general favor. It seems certain that a court of arbitral justice, as proposed by Secretary Knox, will be constituted at The Hague in the near future.

By way of explanation of his plan for the establishment of such a court, the secretary today said the existence of a permanent court of arbitral justice would make a resort to it easy, as, it being in permanent session, it would not have to be constituted anew for each case as it arises; that the expenses of the court would be borne by the nations jointly and not, as heretofore, by the parties of the controversy, and that the judgment of such a court would bind all parties interested in the particular case.

The court would be composed of judges representing various nations or systems of law, and would undoubtedly develop international law just as the common law of England the United States had been developed.

Secretary Knox also said that while the court would be primarily intended for the powers participating in its constitution, it would, nevertheless, be open to any power that might wish to submit a controversy to it, thus making it in the fullest sense international.

It is not proposed that, in signing a convention for the establishment of such a court, the nations shall obligate themselves to disarm or make any move toward disarmament. The successful operation of the court, however, would have for its natural consequence a reduction of armament, if not complete disarmament.

The secretary gave as a familiar illustration of the successful operation of an international court, the conditions on the Pacific coast following the discovery of gold. In the absence of courts to protect the citizens, every man carried a pistol, and himself redressed his real or fancied wrongs.

Ultimately the establishment of courts in these regions rendered the carrying of arms unnecessary, and they were discarded.

The secretary foresees a like result to the nations from the establishment and operation of a great international tribunal.

While the secretary was unwilling to go into details as to what progress had been made toward establishment of such a court, it is known that reports so far received are such as to justify the expectation that a court of arbitral justice will be established before the meeting of the next conference at The Hague in 1915.

Furthermore, Mr. Knox stated that not only he but President Taft is deeply interested in the project, which they regard as marking the greatest possible advance toward the settlement of international disputes.

The great idea of settling international questions in conferences of the nations or in international tribunals specially constituted for the purpose, has been before the world for centuries. It seems that this great and beneficent project is likely to be realized by the present administration as the result of Secretary Knox's invitation of last fall.

AVIATION MEET IN AIR

WASHINGTON, April 26—It is now regarded as practically assured that the coming international aviation meet will not go to New York.

The situation is thoroughly mixed. While it is possible that the meet will be held in America, it is hard to predict anything further.

Cortland Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America, is on his way to France, carrying with him the agreement that the club has made with the Wright brothers for "licensing" the meet. The Aero Club either does not know how much the Wrights will demand for a license, or will not give out the figures.

Meantime the "insurgent" element of the Aero Club has cabled to France asking the International Federation not to ratify the agreement with the Wrights. They are demanding to know what the exact terms of the licensing agreement are. So far they have demanded without avail.

When, as representative of the Aero Club of America, Lawrence Gillespie was here last week, he intimated that the sum demanded by the Wrights for a license would be so high as to prevent the meet being held. Whether this was done for the purpose of scaring off Washington in favor of some other city is not known.

There is a report in New York that the Wrights will hold a meet of their own in or near New York city in July. If this is done it is possible that the insurgent element of the Aero club will try to get an injunction against them for violating the Montgomery patent.

The flowers in her cheeks are springtime's gayest show;
Heaven's smile is rivaled by the light within her eye,
Her presence in the outdoors lends luster to the sky!

TO BE ARRESTED FOR THREATENING

Mrs. Plolunov, wife of one of the Russians who went as delegate to Washington to present local affairs to the Russian Minister, has been threatened by one Solomin with death and other things if she attempts to join her husband, who is at present earning good wages in California.

Mrs. Plolunov received a letter in the last mail from the coast with money, enough for herself and son to join her husband, but when Solomin, a good for nothing Russian heard of it threatened to tear her and her son to pieces if she attempted to leave the city.

A warrant for Solomin's arrest is being made out, and tomorrow morning the cowardly Russian will answer to Judge Andrade for his conduct.

Fearless of their lives Sheriff Jarrett and Dr. Mackall last night ran serious risks in following what appeared to be authoritative clues in the whereabouts of murderer Grace.

KAISER'S COUSIN BECOMES A MONK

FRANKFORT, April 21.—The Kaiser's cousin, Prince Frederick Henry of Prussia, eldest son of the late Prince Albrecht (Regent of Brunswick), has embraced Roman Catholicism, has ceded his entire fortune to the Roman Catholic church and has entered an Italian monastery as a monk.

Prince Frederick Henry has had a remarkable career. A few years ago he was exiled by the Kaiser, who ordered him never to return home. After wandering about in the southern countries, he became sick of heart, and sought consolation in the church.

He gave up a life of pleasure for religion, and finally decided to become a monk. He has abandoned his real name and rank, and is known in the monastery simply as Brother Henry.

The fortune which he has ceded to the Roman Catholic church in Italy is estimated at $1,000,000, and will be devoted solely to charitable and humane purposes. Brother Henry lives a hard life. He inhabits a bare stone cell and sleeps on a plank bed. He rises at 5 o'clock every morning, and must scrub not only his own cell, but the long corridor outside it, besides a long flight of steps, working hard on his knees.

Many hours daily are spent in prayer and devotion. Other hours are devoted to manual labor in the monastery garden. It is altogether a strange contrast to the life of luxury and self-indulgence formerly lived by the scion of the house of Hohenzollern.

Hackfeld & Co., agents for the Pacific Mail S. S. Co., have received no word relative to smallpox on the Mongolia. The ship is due here tomorrow from the Orient. President Mott-Smith of the Board of Health, stated this afternoon that he had received advices from Japan that a victim of smallpox had been landed at Kobe, and one in Nagasaki. As the time limit of ten days is up, it is doubtful if the ship will be quarantined here unless new cases have developed on the trip over from Yokohama.

Major Langfitt In An Important Post

Every person who has lived here a few years will remember Major, now Lieutenant-Colonel W. C. Langfitt, who had charge of the engineers in Honolulu for quite awhile after annexation. The Washington Star of April 27 reports his appointment to take charge of the water works of the capital city, saying:

Lieut. Col. William C. Langfitt, Corps Engineers School at Washington barracks, has been ordered to relieve Capt. Warren T. Hannum, Corps of Engineers, of charge of the District water supply system and the improvement of the Potomac river.

Capt. Hannum will remain on duty as his assistant. The change takes effect May 16.

Maj. William J. Barden, Corps of Engineers, will then assume command of the Engineer School at Washington barracks.

A Native of Virginia.

Lieut. Col. Langfitt is well known to the residents of this city through his long service here. He was born in Virginia in August, 1860, but was appointed to the army from Ohio. He was graduated number two in the class of 1883 at the United States Military Academy and was appointed second lieutenant of engineers. After two years' service with the engineer battalion at Willets Point, N. Y., he was placed in charge of river and harbor works in the Department of Columbia at Portland, Ore., where he remained about two years. During the succeeding five years he was engaged in engineering work at Galveston, Tex., and was then stationed at Cincinnati for two years.

While on duty at Willets Point in May, 1898, he was placed in command of Company A, Battalion of Engineers, and ordered to join the expeditionary force ordered to the Philippines. When he had gone as far as San Francisco he was appointed major of the 2d United States Volunteer Engineers.

He organized the 3d Battalion of that regiment at San Francisco and proceeded with it to Honolulu. He was then placed in command in Hawaii and in charge of all engineering work in that country.

His Washington Service.

In 1899 he came to this city and served in the office of the chief of engineers for a few months, when he went to Portland, Ore., and superintended public works in that vicinity until August, 1905.

The next year he was in command of the Washington barracks. In October, 1906, he went to Cuba with the army of Cuban pacification and was chief engineer on the staff of Gen. Barry, commanding, until the army returned to the United States. Since August, 1907, he has been in command of the engineer post and school at Washington barracks. He has held the grade of lieutenant colonel since June, 1908.

One of the principal duties of Col. Langfitt in his new detail will be the improvement of the eastern peninsula of Potomac Park and the improvement of the Anacostia river from its mouth to the Navy Yard bridge, in accordance with the provisions for those projects in the pending rivers and harbors appropriation bill. In that duty he will have the capable assistance of Capt. Hannum who has been in temporary charge of the office since the detachment of Maj. Jay J. Moraw a few months ago.

E. C. STEDMAN AS WAR CORRESPONDENT

In Harper's for May are printed some hitherto unpublished letters of the late E. C. Stedman. They present a view of the post-bankier, which shows that he had also a capacity for deeds of heroism and a love for doing them.

July 18, 1861, his diary reads: "My first battle. Witnessed the Blackburn's Ford affair. Under fire from beginning to end. Helped to right the first gun. Came out safe. My telegraphic dispatch beat the other papers."

Two days later, while the army encamped, and reconnoitered for a new attack, Stedman wrote to his wife the following:

"The army moves forward again tonight—part of it, at least, and I am going to accompany it. As I sent my letter to the World this morning, and have a spare half-hour, while my horse is feeding, I think I will write you a word. I have written you several times this week, and sent a line Thursday night, after the battle, to say that I was in it throughout, but I shall have another such splendid opportunity of witnessing a battle. The ground was peculiarly favorable for my observation. My horse was got frightened, galloped 22 miles to very restive, throwing me twice—by Washington and there reported 500 the way, constant saddle-practice has made me a pretty fair horseman—when the heavy cannonading was going on.

"We move forward, as I said, tonight, but I don't think there will be much fighting, as we only go a little way, probably with a view to a permanently strong position. General McDowell, I learn privately, is really afraid to put our raw troops against the enemy's batteries. He fears they will run. But I go in for a grand attack from all quarters at once. If my dispatch got through, show it to George Arnold. I wish he was out here with me.
"The actual loss in the late engagement, no matter what the 'official' reports say, is about 25 killed, 30 wounded and 30 missing. The trees prevented the carriage from being greater.
From the diary Sunday, July 21, 1861:
"Battle of Bull Run. Got up at 3 a. m. Rode in advance till battle opened at 6 a. m. Stayed in it all day and witnessed with great shame and indignation the rout at the close. Saved colors of Massachusetts Fifth. Had officer shot on my horse as I tried to bring him off the field. Got to Washington at 2 a. m. Monday.
"I forget," says R. H. Stoddard, "whether Stedman's letters excelled those of other correspondents for accuracy, but they certainly excelled them in spirits.
"He was at the first battle of Bull Run, where the North was routed, as we all remember. Other correspondents sent letters to their papers about it but none came from him.
"Where was he?" his friends asked; but nobody knew.
"Two, or perhaps three, days passed before he returned to New York. The next day there appeared in the World a long and graphic letter about the lost battle which he had witnessed—a letter which was the town's talk for days. Another is was the best single letter written during the war.
In the letter which Mr. Tainter sent to the Philadelphia Inquirer, July 22, 1861, he says:
"The enemy appeared in sight, firing their guns, the balls raining upon us thick. Emerging from the valley we saw the reporter of the World, with the standard of the Massachusetts Fifth, waving it over him and pleading for the men to rally around him, but it was in vain; they heeded him not. An officer asked the privilege of riding behind him. It was granted, and before they had gone a hundred yards made me a pretty fair horseman—when the heavy cannonading was going on.

a shot from the thicket struck off off-galloped about a mile ahead, and after in the head and he reeled off. Mr. Terwards succeeded in rallying a large Stedman wrapped up the standard and force."

THIRTY SENATE SEATS HANG IN THE BALANCE

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The results in the three-cornered congressional bye-elections that have been held recently in the Sixth Missouri, 14th Massachusetts and 23d New York Districts, in the first of which a Democrat was elected by a greatly increased majority and in the other two of which Democrats overturned tremendous Republican majorities, have given Democrats here renewed assurance that they are likely to carry the next House of Representatives.

Some of them are so enthusiastic over the situation that they are declaring they will also make substantial gains in the Senate. But a survey of the whole Senatorial situation hardly bears out this rosy view. It is practically certain that the Democrats will make some Senatorial gains, but they are not likely to be enough to make any appreciable difference.

The Republicans now have 59 Senators and the Democrats have 33—giving a Republican majority of 26. The terms of 39 Senators expire on March 4. Of these only six are Democrats. They are Culberson, of Texas; Daniel, of Virginia; Money, of Mississippi; Frazier, of Tennessee; Rayner, of Maryland, and Tallaferra, of Florida. Two years ago Mr. Money announced his retirement, and John Sharp Williams, formerly Democrat leader in the House, was elected to succeed him. Culberson will have no difficulty in returning if he wants. Daniel has already been re-elected. But both are in bad health, and Mr. Daniel has been in a very critical condition for some time. Mr. Frazier has been meeting some opposition, but will probably have no real difficulty in coming back, nor will Mr. Rayner have any trouble. If any of them should fall other Democrats would be elected in their places. So there will be no losses among the Democrats.

Republicans Who Face Election.

The 24 Republicans are: Aldrich of Rhode Island; Beveridge of Indiana; Bulkeley, of Connecticut; Burkett, of Nebraska; Burroughs of Michigan; Carter, of Montana; Clapp, of Minnesota; Clark, of Wyoming; Depew, of New York; Dick, of Ohio; DuPont, of Delaware; Flint, of California; Hale, of Maine; Kean, of New Jersey; La Follette, of Wisconsin; Lodge of Massachusetts; McCumber of North Dakota; Nixon, of Nevada; Oliver, of Pennsylvania; Page of Vermont; Piles of Washington; Scott, of West Virginia; Sutherland, of Utah; and Warner, of Missouri.

Of these two Beveridge and Warner are almost certainly marked for defeat by Democrats. Four others—Burkett, Carter, Dick and Nixon—may travel the same route, and if recent events be taken as a good sign, Post, Depew, Kean and La Follette may also be put in the doubtful class, or their States may, if they themselves should not be candidates for re-election. In the other 18 states Republicans will probably be elected, even on the present uncertain showing of the political situation, although the present Senators may not succeed themselves.

In fact, it is certain that in several of these cases the present incumbents will not return, for already four of them have made definite announcement of their retirement. These are Aldrich, Flint, Hale and Piles. And the information tonight is that Depew has also recognized the handwriting on the wall and taken himself out of the race.

Of course if there is an old-fashioned landslide coming such as swept the Republicans out in 1892, the Democrats may even make more gains than have been here indicated. The situation which would under general circumstances give the New York Legislature to the Democrats would also probably take New Jersey and Connecticut along. But this year the graft issue may take New York from the Republicans while Connecticut and New Jersey stand fast.

Situation by States.

Taking the States by groups the different situations today are practically as follows:

In Maine the Republicans seem certain to control the Legislature and elect the successor to Senator Hale. But there are already three factions in the party, with an insurgent so far ahead in the race.

In Vermont either Senator Page will come back or another Republican who stands for the same political ideas.

In Massachusetts Senator Lodge is already having some trouble in his own party. If the election in the 14th Congressional District is a true indication of the feeling of voters all over the State he will also have a lot of trouble with the Democrats before he secures re-election. But both he and Senator Crane, who wields the chief Republican influence in the state are confident that the Republicans will have no great trouble in carrying the legislature, in which event Mr. Lodge will no doubt succeed himself.

The Connecticut situation has shown no signs of difficulty for the Republicans thus far, and Senator Bulkeley seems sure of re-election.

Rhode Island will send the man upon whom Senator Aldrich and his friends agree.

New York Looks to Roosevelt. The New York Republican leaders are very much disturbed over the situation in their State. The defeat of Aldridge yesterday following on the heels of the Allis scandal are extremely bad indications. The attitude of the "bosses" against Governor Hughes tends to convince the voters of the State that a large part of the minor leadership of the party in the State is corrupt and is fighting merely to save itself from exposure through the medium of political defeat.

On every hand is heard the expression that only Colonel Roosevelt can save New York to the Republicans next fall. What he will do, of course no man can now tell, but it is certain he is about the only reliance of the Republicans. New Jersey presents a largely similar situation, and if the indicated Democratic ground swell finally develops Senator Kean is quite likely to be elected to stay at home for a while. In Delaware there are no signs yet of any serious trouble among the Republicans. Conditions being normal or nearly so, Senator DuPont will come back. But the Republican majority there is not large, and a ground swell may easily wipe it out altogether.

In West Virginia Representative Hubbard is out for Senator Scott's place. The Republicans are split into factions very badly. But there has been no special indication of disaffection, and the tariff took care of West Virginia handsomely, so that the Republicans stand to hold their own unless there is a great upheaval.

Pennsylvania will no doubt return Senator Oliver. Disaffection in Ohio. Then comes Ohio, where the Republicans are in all sorts of trouble, factional and otherwise, with a strong Democrat in the Governor's chair. Governor Harmon will run again, with every prospect of re-election. There is tremendous dissatisfaction with the Republicans in that State. Much tariff disaffection exists to add to the factional troubles. Senator Dick, one of the old guard reactionaries, is out for a primary to renominate himself with three or four candidates against him.

Four years ago the Democrats elected the Governor, but lost the rest of the State ticket, and came within a few votes of controlling the Legislature. Two years ago they got the governor, lost the presidential electors and the Legislature went substantially Republican. This year they stand a good fighting show of carrying the Legislature and choosing Senator Dick's successor.

In Michigan the Republicans probably will have no trouble carrying the Legislature. Senator Burrows is out to succeed himself but Representative Townsend is hot after him. Burrows may be defeated but a Republican probably will succeed him.

Beveridge stoutly maintains the Republicans will carry Indiana by 50,000 and that he will be re-elected. Neither the Democrats nor such Republicans as Watson and Hemenway believe any such thing. The Republican party in Indiana is shot full of holes and nothing short of a political miracle can save Beveridge.

In Wisconsin the Democrats were admitting only a short time ago that they had no chance of beating Senator La Follette. So were the regular Republicans and there is no certainty what the result will be. He is on the popular side of the tariff agitation and unquestionably has a great deal of strength. There is little real probability now that he will not come back.

Minnesota is another State where there is strong factional difference among the Republicans. But there the regulars are in hot water. Senator Clapp is a red hot insurgent and probably will leave no especial trouble in securing re-election.

In Missouri every indication points to the election of a Democrat to succeed Senator Warner. Warner himself will not be a candidate for re-election and there is hardly a Republican to be found here who will express the opinion that it is possible for his party to carry the Legislature.

North Dakota stands now to return a Republican. Senator McCumber is having some trouble in his own party there, but thus far there has been nothing to indicate that he would not be able eventually to overcome it.

Democrats Hopeful in Montana. Senator Clark, of Wyoming, is as good as re-elected right now. The Democrats have a good fighting chance and perhaps better, of carrying Montana and electing Senator Carter's successor. They have the Governorship now and not a large majority to overcome.

Utah is entirely satisfied with Senator Sutherland and he will no doubt get another term.

The pocket borough of Nevada has been divided up for some time between Newlands the Democrat, and Nixon, the Republican. Newlands does the talking in the Senate for the State and Nixon sits tight and votes with the Republican old guard.

Nothing has come to Washington so far to indicate that Nixon would not come back for another term, but the Democrats have not far to go to get his place if they really want it.

In Washington, the Republicans are in good position to elect the successor to Senator Piles. There is a good bit of insurgent sentiment in the eastern part of the state, but apparently it will not endanger the election of a Republican Legislature.

There is a red-hot campaign on in California for the place Senator Flint announced some time ago he would not try to retain. Unless the indicated ground swell develops with emphatic force, the probability is that some Republican will win there.

In general the showing now is that the Republicans will surely lose two of their 24 seats, and perhaps three or four more, with a good chance that their loss will be considerably larger if the elections in New York and Massachusetts give a true line on conditions all over the country.

In each of these districts, however, purely local issues cut so large a figure that it is hard to say just where they ceased to be effective in producing the results and the general dissatisfaction with the administration and the Republican party, especially with the Republican tariff law, began to make Democratic votes.

FIRE GUYS: FIRE DRIVES DOGS TO SUICIDE.

PARIS, April 25.—Neurasthenia as one of the horrors of modern naval warfare is seriously discussed by the Matin in describing a series of experiments recently made at Toulon, with the disused battle-ship Jena as a target. After the Russo-Japanese war naval experts discussed the possibility of death being caused by carbonic acid after the explosion of shells. The results obtained by bombarding the Jena show that suffocation is not one of the dangers to be feared when a war ship is subject to a heavy fire, but that the officers and men would become neurasthenic owing to the severe concussion.

Two dogs were placed on board the Jena. They were docile and friendly, but after the first bombardment they were found to be morose and terrified. Later, they ceased to answer to their names and tried to conceal themselves.

This conditions grew more serious after each bombardment, until at last the dogs committed suicide by jumping overboard and not making any attempt to swim.
