Daily Bulletin
Pledged to neither Sect nor Party,
But established for the benefit of all.
SATURDAY, MAY 25, 1889.

The newspapers in much larger cities than Honolulu take notice of dead animals and refuse on the streets, thus materially aiding the public health officials in the discharge of their duties.

Shade is a very desirable thing on our streets by day. At night it interferes with the electric light. Unless the lamps are arranged or the trees trimmed, so as to leave the day's shade and let in the night's light, one or other of these boons will be so much curtailed.

A liability of danger from having a large amount of the people's private money stored in the treasury, which was in view while writing the closing paragraph of Friday's article on the Savings Bank deposit, is amplified in this morning's leader in the Advertiser.

The editor and two printers of a native paper in Japan have been severely punished for a gross insult to the Emperor. They published a cartoon of the Declaration of the Constitution, containing the representation of a skeleton sitting on the throne.

The vessel is in good order and offers a desirable chance to parties to engage in the inter-island trade.

THE SCULPTOR'S ART. A representative of the BULLETIN called at the residence of Hon. L. McCully, Punahou, yesterday afternoon, to see a bust of that gentleman executed by Mr. Allen Hutchinson.

OUR PROSPERITY. EDITOR BULLETIN:—The following appears in this morning's "Advertiser":

GAZETTE CONSISTENCY. EDITOR BULLETIN:—It is amusing to note the change of heart that has befallen the Gazette.

AN AULD ACQUAINTANCE. A late Japan "Gazette" has the following about the genial skipper who brought two cargoes of Japanese immigrants here in the steamer Takasago Maru:

LOST. BETWEEN Robello lane and Fort street school, a pair of spectacles. The finder will be rewarded on leaving the article at this office.

Chinese Employment Office. THE undersigned begs to notify the public that he has opened a Chinese Employment Office, at No. 37, King street, will take contracts for carpenter work, painting, etc.

NOTICE. ANY Quarter's Bills to March 31, 1889, due by the Hawaiian Carriage Manufacturing Co. will be paid on presentation.

NOTICE. ALEX. FLOUR, Lock & Gunsmith, has removed opposite in the premises occupied formerly by Max Eckhart as a jewelry store, next door to Hoffschlager & Co., in the Damon Block, Bethel street.

Then allowing there has been no interval or break in our constitutional rights, they have existed half as long as those of the citizens of the United States—1789, 1839, 1889.

The Gazette asserts that "Hawaiians have inherited no franchise by right of birth." If this be true, there must be some meaning in the words that those of ordinary intelligence do not comprehend.

The Gazette denies the rights of inheritance to a race whose sovereignty has never yet been questioned by foreign nations, nor by residents at the islands till this late day.

CRICKET MATCH. A very evenly contested cricket match was played at the Recreation Grounds (kindly lent for the occasion), by the Starboard vs. Port Watch of H. M. S. Espiegle.

THE HAWAIIAN SCHOONER "RAINBOW." 23 2/3 ton burden, as she now lies, with good suit of sails, anchors, rigging, boat, &c.

THE LATE PAYMASTER ARMS.

One of the Samoan victims, Paymaster Frank H. Arms, while sailing toward Samoa, wrote to a New London, Conn., friend, telling of the trip into the Southern Hemisphere:

We lost sight of the North Star, and the Southern Cross became visible. This fact seemed to me to embody a poetic idea, and I wrote the lines which suggested themselves to me:

But as the Pole Star fades upon our view, Now flashing out like jewels in the sky The Southern Cross in golden majesty Irradiates the watery waste anew.

And so, when sets for us in sorrow's night Some pole star of our love and trust and hope 'Tis then, as we in doubt and darkness grope, The cross shines out with its divinely light.

MAUI'S POET LAUREATE.

He sat at his desk one bright, sunny day, And grasping his pen went scribbling away. 'Twas poetry flowed from the pen of the bard, The strain on his nerves was racking, and marred The rhyme and the rhythm which might have appeared From a laureate's pen less badly besmeared By the crooks and the cranks in the measure and feet Which disfigure the style and make it less sweet. 'Twas a comical sight as he sat in his chair, With his face all in smiles and with disheveled hair, As he wrote down the thoughts in his too fertile mind, Then read it all over to see how it rhymed. At last it was finished, the poet was through, He arose from his desk with a bulabalo that startled his wife from her sewing and took In haste from the kitchen the much frightened cook. The family assembled, and the laureate said, With a satisfied air, the production he read Was a gift of the muses as complete as could be. Then folding the paper, he put it away. ADOLPHUS.

MASTER'S REPORT.

In the Supreme Court of the Hawaiian Islands.

In the matter of the estate of George Bicknell, deceased testate. In probate.

To the HONORABLE SANFORD B. DOLE, Justice of the Supreme Court.

SIR:—I submit to Your Honor the following report touching the accounts filed by the executors herein.

The accounts as submitted are a transcript from the books of the firm of Greig & Bicknell covering the period from September 2, 1884, to March 31, 1889.

The deceased who was a partner in said firm died in Honolulu on June 9, 1884.

The fact that since George Bicknell's death the business of the firm of Greig & Bicknell has been continued as though such death had not occurred, is a reason why the executors have not confined themselves to an exclusive account relating to the estate of their testate.

This reason is likewise coupled with the fact that the business of said firm is mainly transacted on Fanning's and Washington Islands lying in the Pacific Ocean. Moreover the following clause in the will may have some bearing on the matter: "And I enjoin and direct the persons for the time being entitled to the said property (meaning the property on said Fanning's and Washington Islands) not to sell or dispose of the same in any manner which may cause the same to go out of the possession of the Bicknell family and to carry out in all respects the agreement of copartnership existing between myself and William Greig."

The following schedules of account were submitted by the executors and are on file:—

1st—A trial balance of the books of Greig & Bicknell as of the 31st March, 1889.

2d—Receipts and expenditures of the firm during the period covered by the accounts, to wit: total amount received, $45,778.41; total amount paid, $49,425.76; excess of the firm's expenditures, $3,647.35.

3d—Account of William Greig's indebtedness to the firm, showing a debit balance of $2,649.32 on March 31, 1889.

4th—Account of the estate's indebtedness to the firm, showing a debit balance of $6,730.29 on March 31, 1889. (This, however, includes the executors' charge of $1,299.96 for their statutory commissions.)

5th—Sundry other statements in verification of the foregoing schedules.

I find that the commissions charged by the executors are upon the sum of $22,889.20, being a half of the firm's aggregate receipts. But I have found an overcharge of $20 in the charge for commissions, for the reason that 7 1/2 percent, instead of seven percent was charged on $4,000.

For the purpose of comparison I find that in June, 1884, Greig's debit to the firm was $6,702.13. On March 31, 1889, his debit stands at $2,649.32.

In June, 1884, the date of decedent's death, his debit to the firm was $4,074.33. On March 31, 1889, the debit stands at $5,430.33. While in the case of Greig there has been a reduction of his debit there has been an increase of the debit against the estate. The reason of this will be apparent from the fact that the executor's expenditures include the following items:

Expenses at the Queen's Hospital... Medical and funeral expenses... Legacy to Geo. Bicknell Greig... Payments to James Bicknell... Other miscellaneous payments... $6,637.90

A basis having been obtained out of the partnership account the executors in future will have no difficulty in submitting to the Court their exclusive accounts relating to the estate alone.

To summarize: Debit balance to carry forward to their next account would be: Debit balance owing by the Estate to the firm of Greig & Bicknell... $5,430.33 Debit balance owing by the Estate to the Executor's for commissions... 1,279.96 $6,710.29

I have verified the executors' items of expenditure with the vouchers. Also the 133 items of expenditure with the 133 vouchers produced. They all appear to be correct.

The master's recommendation is, that the account as at present exhibited, be approved by the Court. Respectfully submitted, HENRY SMITH, Master.

May 22, 1889. The executors of the will of Geo. Bicknell are Hon. J. S. Walker and James Bicknell, of Honolulu.

ALARM OVER A BRITISH FORT. The easy indifference which marks the attitude of the United States towards all other countries is well illustrated by the apparent lack of interest in Washington in the building up of a great British fort on Vancouver Island. A resident of Olympia, W. T., said in this city the other day: "A very small proportion of the people of this country are aware that the strongest fort on the American continent is now building on the Pacific coast. When completed it will rank next to Gibraltar among the world's fortifications. It commands the entrance of Puget Sound, the second port of entry on the Pacific coast and one of the most important in the United States. The British will soon be able to close this port at any moment. No other nation in the world would permit the building of this great fort to intimidate a peaceful neighbor."—[San Francisco paper.]

A ROMANIC STORY. Half a Million Fortune for a Franc. Some time ago a wealthy man died in Brussels leaving nearly his entire fortune to a young woman who was entirely unacquainted with him. The "American Art Printer" explains that this is how it came to pass: He was a very eccentric man, and set out, like Diogenes, in search of an honest man. His tub was an omnibus, and his lantern a small coin. In the omnibus he took his seat every day near the conductor, and always showed himself very obliging in passing up the money of passengers and returning the change, but to the latter he always managed to add a franc or half-franc. Then he would watch those to whom it came. They would count it carefully, notice the extra coin, and invariably slip it into their pockets. No one thought of the poor conductor, whose meagre salary of three francs a day could ill support such a loss. But at last a young woman passed hers back with "Conductor, you have given me half a franc too much." Diogenes, delighted, followed her home, made inquiries, and, as the answers were satisfactory, made his will in her favor, though he never gave her warning that her half-franc was going to bring her half a million.

ALARM OVER A BRITISH FORT. The easy indifference which marks the attitude of the United States towards all other countries is well illustrated by the apparent lack of interest in Washington in the building up of a great British fort on Vancouver Island. A resident of Olympia, W. T., said in this city the other day: "A very small proportion of the people of this country are aware that the strongest fort on the American continent is now building on the Pacific coast. When completed it will rank next to Gibraltar among the world's fortifications. It commands the entrance of Puget Sound, the second port of entry on the Pacific coast and one of the most important in the United States. The British will soon be able to close this port at any moment. No other nation in the world would permit the building of this great fort to intimidate a peaceful neighbor."—[San Francisco paper.]
