MAP SHOWING THE STRATEGIC POINTS IN THE RUSSO-JAPANESE HOSTILITIES.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS BY WIRELESS TO THE TRIBUNE

WAR.

Liaoyang, Manchuria, Aug. 30.—The heaviest possible decisive battle of the war is now raging here with General Kuropatkin on the defensive against Generals Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku. The fighting is of the most desperate character, with continuous combat with artillery, rifle and bayonet. The Russian forces are fighting with the desperation of a last stand. The Russian cavalry is proving very effective against the enemy.

Chefoo, China, Aug. 30.—The assault on Port Arthur continues.

Madrid, Aug. 31.—Ten Russian warships are cruising on the coasts of Spain, Portugal, France and Africa searching British colliers bound for Japan.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—A war loan of $250,000,000 is being arranged with German bankers.

Liaoyang, Aug. 31.—The entire Japanese army, commanded by Marshal Oyama, and including the divisions of Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku, attacked General Kuropatkin's position yesterday. The Japanese brought 1200 guns to bear and the contending forces numbered 400,000 men. All arms of the service were engaged and the fighting was desperate. The Russian cavalry made several effective charges. The losses of life on both sides were enormous. Russian hospitals in Liaoyang are full.

Liaoyang, Aug. 31.—Over half a million men and 1300 guns are engaged in the battle, which is an incessant struggle. Practically the whole Russian force is on the firing line.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—The Russian wireless telegraph station at Chefoo has been dismantled.

Chefoo, Sept. 1.—The Japanese have captured two forts in the inner defenses of Port Arthur near the Tiger's Tail.

Vladivostok, Sept. 1.—General Linevitch and 30,000 men are within two days' march of Mukden.

Tokio, Sept. 3.—The Japanese captured the enemy's cannons and used them to bombard the Liaoyang railway station. The right wing is attacking the enemy at Heijintai, fifteen miles to the northeast of Liaoyang, and the left and central columns are hotly pursuing the enemy, who seems trying to get on the right bank of the Tatzho.

Honolulu, Sept. 2.—A cable from Japan says: The Japanese brought 1200 guns to bear upon Kuropatkin at Liaoyang and the contending forces numbered 400,000 men. The entire Japanese army and all arms of the service were engaged. The losses of life on both sides were enormous. The Japanese made several attempts to turn the Russian flank, but were unsuccessful, losing ten guns. On this battle depends the fortunes of the entire war.

St. Petersburg, Russia, Sept. 2.—The War Office contends that Gen. Kuropatkin's position on the north bank of the Taitse River is stronger than at Liaoyang.

Tokio, Sept. 2.—Oyama will pursue the enemy vigorously. On Friday the Japanese left resumed pressure upon the Russians at Tatzho while the right was engaged in the neighborhood of Heijintai. Since the 29th the Japanese losses have been 10,000.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—Kuropatkin is retreating northward. Liaoyang has been abandoned and the Japanese are occupying the city. Siakelberg's Siberian corps of 25,000 men have been cut off. Magazines exploded and provisions were burned at Liaoyang. The Russians are concentrating at Yentai.

Tokio, Sept. 3.—The losses in the Liaoyang battle were 25,000 Japanese and 30,000 Russians. The fighting still continues. Oyama is expected to cross the Taitse river today. Kuroki carried the heights of Heijintai and hopes to dominate the railway north of Liaoyang. No confirmation of the rumor that the Japanese have occupied Liaoyang.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—No details of today's fighting. It is impossible for the Japanese to cross the Taitse river. Kuropatkin is concentrating a second line of defenses.

Tokio, Sept. 3.—Battle at Liaoyang in progress with General Oku on left wing and Kuroki on the right. Latter advances fifteen miles northeast of Liaoyang. Japanese captured enemy's guns and fired on Liaoyang. Kuropatkin retreated north, leaving Liaoyang burning. Japanese casualties, 10,000.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—Kuropatkin with most of the army, including Siakelberg's corps, are concentrated at Yentai. Orloff's regiment with 1500 guns was not lost as reported.

Taigon, Sept. 5.—The Russian cruiser Giani is ordered disarmed.

DOMESTIC.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—President Gompers of the Federation of Labor refuses to recommend a general sympathetic strike. The meat cutters strike continues.

New York, Sept. 5.—Fourteen persons were killed in a tenement house fire here today.

New York, Sept. 1.—Governor Odell has appointed E. M. Cullen, a Democrat, to succeed Judge Parker on the Court of Appeals.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—C. Bolte, assignee for J. L. Coerper of Honolulu has sued Wilson & Lyon to recover $26,250 in connection with the Kona-Kau railway deal.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 2.—President Donnelly, who is directing the strike of employees of the meat packers, says that the strikers will force a meat famine if necessary to secure their demands.

Honolulu, Sept. 2.—Mrs. H. A. P. Carter, mother of Governor Carter, died today and was buried this afternoon. The Governor will make no changes in plan for the Maui trip. Mrs. Sybil Augusta Carter was born in Honolulu on March 16, 1843. Her parents, Dr. G. P. Judd and Mrs. Laura Fish Judd, were among the earliest missionaries here. On February 27, 1862, she was married to the Hon. H. A. P. Carter, who later was appointed Minister at Washington. She was the sister of the late Chief Justice Judd and the mother of the present Governor of Hawaii. Before sickness forced her into retirement she was the center of a cultivated hospitality which not only her own townspeople but eminent visitors from all over the world enjoyed.

Mrs. Carter leaves three daughters and a son: Mrs. Frederic M. Crehore of Boston, Massachusetts; Mrs. J. R. Galt, of Honolulu, Miss Cordelia J. Carter, also of this city but at present at East Gray, Maine, and Governor George R. Carter. Two children died in infancy and another son, C. L. Carter, died in 1895.

Miss Helen Judd and Mrs. S. G. Wilder, of this city, are surviving sisters.

IMPROVED NEWS SERVICE.

Ever mindful of the purpose of a news-paper as a gatherer and disseminator of news, the TRIBUNE is enabled by special arrangements with the Inter-Island Telegraph Company to give to its readers, beginning with this issue, all of the latest and most important cable news. This we have done, believing the public would appreciate the advantages of an increased news service and of the opportunity of receiving at the beginning of each week all of the world news up to the hour of publication. Hereafter the TRIBUNE will be published every Tuesday morning in time to reach island subscribers before the arrival of the mails from Honolulu. Besides the cable dispatches received by the Wireless, the paper will contain a full resume of all island news and articles of special interest to island readers. While the TRIBUNE will be in no sense an agricultural weekly, special attention will be given to matters pertaining to agriculture, fruit growing, diversified industries and general local news. In other words, the TRIBUNE will contain each week the wisdom of yesterday and the news of today delivered at your door or through your local post-office. We feel assured that the effort of the TRIBUNE in thus improving its news service will meet with the hearty approval of the reading public, and we only ask for that measure of consideration to which expended effort is entitled for value received.

DANGER AHEAD.

The danger of exposure to epidemics cannot be so strongly impressed upon a community. There is too often a feeling of apathy in regard to health matters until the grim demon Death follows in the trail of a terrible scourge and leaves the country blighted and destitute. Heretofore Hilo has been singularly fortunate in escaping such calamities, but she cannot expect to be always immune. Too often the individual who has no insurance is the first to suffer loss. The importance of attending to health sanitation was forcibly brought home to these islands when the plague afflited Honolulu and nearly ruined that city. It was demonstrated that had effective precautionary means been employed the ravages of this direful disease could have been avoided at that time. The Board of Health through their agents have had their attention called to the unsanitary condition of certain portions of Hilo. Dr. Stow, government physician, with the aid of Sanitary Inspector Bowman and the cooperation of other physicians, are doing splendid work in reclaiming these blighted spots. They are requiring householders to clean up their houses and yards. In Waiakea barrels of lime and whitewash have been used to good effect. Citizens are requested to set rat traps and poisoned meats to kill rodents, which have become so prolific during the past few weeks and are a source of menace to the public health especially in tropical climates like Hawaii.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

T. J. Ryan the great Commoner of Olaa and exponent of Democratic, Home Rule and Populist doctrines, occasionally awakes from his socialistic dreams and gives expression to some rational ideas. His advocacy of an agricultural college in Hawaii has much to commend it. Experienced educators feel that the average Hawaiian youth are not fitted for the higher education and that the student and the community would derive much greater benefit from a systematic course of training in the principles of agriculture than by any attempt to make statesmen or professional men of Hawaii's sons. Agricultural colleges have been established and are successfully maintained in nearly every state and territory in the Union. They are state institutions but by Act of Congress receive federal support, and their work speaks for itself. Why should 104 Hawaii have such a college?

ATKINSON AND CUPID

Republican Leaders Address The Young Men's Club.

Nearly the entire membership of the Young Men's Republican Club, and some others, gathered Friday night in Fireman's Hall to listen to addresses by Secretary A. L. C. Atkinson, delegate Kubio and other leaders in the republican party. Owing to the lack of seats there was standing room only when President Jas. D. Lewis called the meeting to order. After explaining the purpose of the meeting and until the arrival of the principal speakers of the evening he called upon John Wise to address the young men. Mr. Wise is an eloquent speaker in either English or the Hawaiian tongue, and his remarks were full of good advice and a plea for party harmony. Any other course would cause defeat, he said, and as a reformed Home Ruler he spoke whereof he knew as the causes of that party's troubles.

When he closed, Secretary A. L. C. Atkinson was introduced by President Lewis as the next "Governor," and was received with much enthusiasm. This is the first opportunity the Secretary has had of meeting face to face and addressing the Club of which he was the originator and main spring. His remarks, which he read, are as follows.

"My Friends—The months go by quickly, and although nearly eight months have elapsed since I was here with Governor Carter it seems as if it were only yesterday. You will recall, then, I impressed upon you the necessity of harmony and organization. Whether my words at that time had any weight with you or not is not for me to say, but I have kept very closely in touch with political affairs in this part of Hawaii and with feelings of the deepest pleasure I have noticed that both organization and harmony are not things of the past in Hilo. The Young Men's Republican Club of this city seems to have taken hold of things with force. While, no doubt, there is still plenty of competition among you as to your choice of candidates for the Legislature (and it is only right that there should be such competition) yet after the convention has finished its duties and your candidates are nominated I feel confident that the Republicans of Hawaii will work together as one man to elect the choice of the majority for the good of their district, for the good of the party and for the good of the whole Territory. (Applause.)

"On the day that I left Honolulu I was talking in my office of the progress that had been developed in Hilo. Notwithstanding all the jokes of which Hilo is the butt I said that there was no part of this Territory which had made more substantial improvement and development by its individual efforts than this city had done. It may be that some may have been disappointed up to the present time in the apportionment of the loan fund, but remember that we have only received as yet one-half of the amount that we have been authorized by the President of the United States to borrow, and I can assure you, gentlemen, that if I can assist you in securing a proper share to have proper work done on this island you can call upon me. By your own advancement you have shown that integrity and industry are the best possessions which any man can have. Nobody can give them to him and nobody can take them from him; they belong to the individual and are his private property. They are good things to have and good things to keep; they make happy homes; they achieve success in every walk of life; they have won the greatest triumphs for mankind; the merchant requires the clerk whom he employs to have them; the railroad wants them in its engineer and in its conductor; employment waits on them and capital requires them.

"This year there will be many new voters in the Territory, some of them of Hawaiian birth some of foreign birth and still others born upon American soil. These young men should, between now and election, talk politics with their elders. They should learn which of the great American parties have done the most for its country. Since the days of Lincoln, Democratic power and Democratic control of the National administration has inevitably been followed by ruin and disaster. Take the time of President Cleveland, for instance, when factories were closed from one end of the United States to the other; when banks were shutting their doors every day; when Coxy's great army of the unemployed marched upon the capital; when fire soup houses were established in every large city in the country; when clothing had to be distributed free to keep the needy from freezing to death. Have we heard anything of this sort since our late President McKinley succeeded Cleveland or during the administration of President Roosevelt? (Cries of "no, no.") Not a word! These are things for you young men to think upon, but one other thing for you to remember is that the poorest American boy in these United States and this Territory of Hawaii and this city of Hilo is not too poor to aspire to the highest place in the government of this great Republic. (Applause.)

"When I left Honolulu Governor Carter was just preparing to take up the question of appropriations to be asked from Congress for Hawaii, and I can assure you that your harbor and your Federal building will not be forgotten. The day is not far distant when the Atlantic and Pacific oceans will be joined by the Panama Canal and none of us can realize what this will mean to Hawaii. The ocean that surrounds us will be studded with ships of commerce bearing their freight to and from the shores of the Orient. With your break-water solidly constructed and protecting your harbor there is no reason why Hilo should not have its share of the trans-Pacific trade as well as Honolulu. These ocean traffickers will call here for fuel-coal or oil, as the case may be. You can keep it here just as well as the business men of Honolulu can keep it there. They will need fresh meat, and where can they get it better than the ranches of Hawaii? You have more and better bananas than Honolulu can supply and when the time comes I am quite sure you will be able to furnish all the other fruits and vegetables that your soil can produce. The American people have never failed, no matter how great the emergency, and in such a case, with the additional stimulation of a profitable trade, I am quite sure Hilo will be found ready to supply foreign shipping under the foreign flag, as well as American shipping under the American flag."

Delegate Kubio was greeted with applause when he took the platform, and after speaking a few words in English he begged leave to make his address in Hawaiian, as the majority of those present were of that race. His general argument was that the Hawaiians could not get anything unless they fell in line with those in power. Of course it followed that the party in power have the giving of the most offices.

He related the experience of McKinley, who was beset by politicians on all sides for political favors, and the wisdom which it required of the President to select his advisers. McKinley chose Mark Hanna because of his influence and the work he could accomplish. Governor Carter occupied a similar position in Hawaii, and it devolved upon the young men and members of the Young Men's Republican Club to prove their worth and strength. If this organization could control the votes, then they would receive recognition and could demand what they wanted at the hands of the Governor.

He then referred to the claims of the democrats that Parker would be elected, but from his view of the national situation he assured his hearers that Roosevelt would be the next president. The republicans have been in power for many years, and the Hawaiians could not expect to receive consideration of a republican Congress unless they joined the party in power. He referred to the difficulties which confronted him in Washington, the ignorance of national legislation on Hawaiian affairs and conditions. Senator Mark Hanna was the first man he met on his arrival at Congress, and he received much helpful advice and inspiration from President McKinley's right hand man. He was told by Senator Hanna that for the Hawaiians to remain in a party of their own, to establish a color line and oppose the whites, meant that they would be classed with the negroes, whom they were not. He was able to secure Hawaiian legislation only after the greatest difficulty, and soon discovered that Congress needed education on Hawaiian matters. This he was doing and was sanguine of success if elected and permitted to carry on the work he had commenced.

The speaker referred to the proposed bill making the Hawaiian language the official language of the legislature for a period of ten years. This he explained was intended to keep alive the native tongue and permit Hawaiian members to introduce bills in their own language without being compelled to have the same translated first into English. The Delegate declared that every patriotic man must be in politics. A man who did not take an interest in politics was not inspired by a patriotic love of country. He had advised Rev. S. L. Desha to do so, against the latter's will, and pointed with pride to the splendid work he had accomplished.

Other speakers addressed the meeting, including D. Kalauokalani, Jr., who two years ago supported the Home Rule party and visited Hilo with Delegate Wilcox and his father, Senator Kalauokalani, making stump speeches over the island. When the party became disorganized young Kalauokalani had the courage of his convictions, deserted his father's party, and is now a staunch supporter of the Republican cause. Sheriff Andrews also made a short speech in Hawaiian.

Should Hawaii Have An Agricultural College?

Great crises in the affairs of men and nations bring to the surface the best that is in men. At the beginning of the Civil War, when the Nation was in jeopardy, when the loyal men of the Union were bending every effort to win their cause by force of arms, the nation's lawmakers were looking ahead to the days when war should be at an end and peace should reign. In 1862, during the darkest period of that struggle, Congress enacted a law establishing Agricultural colleges in each State and Territory of the Union, and giving to each as yet unborn institution a magnificent endowment of public lands. Under this original Morrill law there are now sixty-six agricultural colleges in the United States.

The original Morrill law of 1862 was supplemented by the Hatch Act of 1887, establishing experimental stations as branches of these land grant colleges; and, by a second Morrill Act of 1890, "for the further endowment of agricultural colleges" by a cumulatively progressive annual Federal subsidy, beginning with $15,000 in 1890 and amounting to $25,000 in 1900 and subsequent years. The Hatch Act of 1887 and the Morrill Act of 1890 both hark back to the Land Grant Colleges founded under the law of 1862.

Both the agricultural college and the agricultural experiment station are supported from the funds derived from the sale of public lands, not from funds derived by taxation, direct or indirect.

Now, that Hawaii is a full fledged Territory of the United States the query has arisen, why cannot Hawaii receive from the Federal Government a subsidy in support of an agricultural college? There is no educational institution of college grade in Hawaii. Oahu College, the best that we have, is a preparatory school. The question is, as to whether the time has come when this country can adequately support an institution of college grade. There can be no doubt as to the need of a higher institution of learning but can Hawaii support such an institution?

Before we can justly go to the Federal Government and ask that our share of the funds derived from the sale of public lands be granted for the "further endowment of the agricultural college" should we not make due provision for this college? The original endowment of the mainland colleges was 10,000,000 acres of land, originally estimated to be worth upwards of $14,000,000. To this has been added other land grant funds amounting to $1,441,000; other permanent funds, $14,445,000; farms and grounds $5,550,000; buildings, $16,500,000; apparatus, $2,000,000; libraries, $1,900,000; miscellaneous equipment, $2,000,000, making a total permanent value of $60,000,000. In 1899 the agricultural colleges of the United States were attended by 36,000 students and during that year the Federal Government contributed $1,740,000 and the States and Territories $2,287,000. Three-fourths of the total permanent endowment of the colleges has been supplied by the States and Territories and 60 per cent of the annual running expenses.

Hawaii has no agricultural college but would like to have one in order to secure the $25,000 annual subsidy from the Federal Government. It seems to me that if a college is to be established the Territorial Legislature should set aside as a permanent endowment at least 100,000 acres of the best agricultural land in the islands. The law making Federal endowments specifies that the institution receiving this fund must be "a college," and "a college is neither an academy nor training school." "An agricultural college must not teach HOW to use the plow and hoe, but WHEN and where to use them to best advantage."

The law under which we would seek benefit specifies that in this college "the leading object shall be to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts." It is the function of a training school to show HOW a thing is to be done, —and of a college to teach WHY. The Agricultural colleges of the mainland demand that their matriculates shall be well educated, and shall have passed through the stage of learning how to do things. Two-thirds of our agricultural colleges demand that their freshmen shall have completed work equal to the 8th or 9th grades of the public schools. The remaining one-third stand on the same basis as to entrance requirements as the universities.

If an agricultural college is established in Hawaii, it should be a college in actuality, and not in name only for the sake of securing Federal endowment; it should be established for the future more than for the present needs of Hawaii on a broad and liberal basis; it should stand at the head of the common school system, and should begin on a plane a little higher than that yet reached by any existing institution; finally, if the people of Hawaii are of the opinion that now is the time to establish such an educational institution there is no time better than the present in which to set apart as a perpetual endowment for the cause of a liberal education in the sciences relating to agriculture and the mechanic arts at least 100,000 acres of the public domain.

The Blazed Trail

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

Copyright, 1902, by Stewart Edward White

That afternoon Thorpe met the other members of the party, offered his apologies and explanations and was graciously forgiven. He found the person to consist of first of all Mrs. Cary, the chaperon, a very young married woman of twenty-two or thereabout; her husband, a youth of three years older, clean shaven, light haired, quiet mannered; Miss Elizabeth Carpenter, who resembled her brother in the characteristics of good looks, vivacious disposition and curly hair; an attendant satellite of the masculine persuasion called Morton, and last of all the girl whom Thorpe had already so variously encountered and whom he now met as Miss Hilda Farrand. Besides these were Ginger, a squat negro built to fit the galley of a yacht, and three Indian guides. They inhabited tents, which made quite a little encampment.

Thorpe was received with enthusiasm. Wallace Carpenter's stories of his woods partner, while never doing more than justice to the truth, had been warm. One and all owned a lively curiosity to see what a real woodsman might be like. When he proved to be handsome and well mannered as well as picturesque his reception was no longer in doubt.

Nothing could exceed his solicitude as to their comfort and amusement. He inspected personally the arrangement of the tents and suggested one or two changes conducive to the latter comforts. Simple things enough they were—it was as though a city man were to direct a newcomer to Central park—yet Thorpe's new friends were profoundly impressed with his knowledge of occult things. The forest was to them, as to most, more or less of a mystery unfathomable except to the favored of genius. A man who could interpret it even a little into the speech of everyday comfort and expediency possessed a strong claim to their imaginations. When he had finished these practical affairs they wanted him to sit down and tell them more things—to dine with them, to smoke about their camp fire in the evening. But here they encountered a decided check. Thorpe became silent, almost morose. He talked in monosyllables and soon went away. They did not know what to make of him and so were of course the more profoundly interested. The truth was his habitual reticence would not have permitted a great degree of expansion in any case, but now the presence of Hilda made any but an attitude of hushed waiting for her words utterly impossible to him. However, when he discovered that Hilda had ceased visiting the clump of pines near the pole trail his desire forced him back among these people. He used to walk in swiftly at almost any time of day, casting quick glances here and there in search of his divinity.

"How do, Mrs. Cary," he would say. "Nice weather. Enjoying yourself?" On receiving the reply he would answer heartily, "That's good," and lapse into silence. When Hilda was about he followed every movement of hers with his eyes, so that his strange conduct lacked no explanation or interpretation, in the minds of the women at least. Thrice he redeemed his reputation for being an interesting character by conducting the party on little expeditions here and there about the country. Then his woodcraft and resourcefulness spoke for him. They asked him about the lumbering operations, but he seemed indifferent.

"Nothing to interest you," he affirmed. "We're just cutting roads now. You ought to be here for the drive." Once he took them over to see Camp One. They were immensely pleased and were correspondingly loud in exclamations. Thorpe's comments were brief and dry. On the way back for the first time Thorpe found that chance—and Mrs. Cary—had allotted Hilda to his care.

A hundred yards down the trail they encountered Phil. The dwarf stopped short, looked attentively at the girl and then softly approached. When quite near to her he again stopped, gazing at her with his soul in his liquid eyes.

"You are more beautiful than the sea at night," he said directly. The others laughed. "There's sincerity for you, Miss Hilda," said young Mr. Morton.

"Who is he?" asked the girl after they had moved on.

"Our chore boy," answered Thorpe, with great brevity.

The rest of the party had gone ahead, leaving them sauntering more slowly down the trail.

"Why don't you come to the pine grove any more?" he asked bluntly.

"Why?" countered Hilda in the manner of women.

"I want to see you there. I want to talk with you. I can't talk with all that crowd about."

"I'll come tomorrow," she said; then with a little mischievous laugh, "if that'll make you talk."

"You must think I'm awfully stupid," agreed Thorpe bitterly.

"Ah, no; ah, no!" she protested softly. "You must not say that."

She was looking at him very tenderly, if he had only known it, but he did not, for his face was set in discontented lines straight before him.

"It is true," he replied.

before sunset a hush falls on nature. The wind has died; the birds have not yet begun their evening songs; the light itself seems to have left off sparkling and to lie still across the landscape. Such a hush now lay on their spirits. Over the way a creeper was droning sleepily a little chant, the only voice in the wilderness. In the heart of the man, too, a little voice raised itself alone.

"Sweetheart, sweetheart, sweetheart!" it breathed over and over again. After awhile he said it gently in a half voice. "No, no; hush!" said the girl. And she laid the soft, warm fingers of one hand across his lips and looked at him from a height of superior soft eyed tenderness as a woman might look at a child. "You must not. It is not right."

Then he kissed the fingers very gently before they were withdrawn, and she said nothing at all in rebuke, but looked straight before her with troubled eyes.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THORPE returned to Camp One shortly after dark. He found there a number of letters, among which was one from Wallace Carpenter.

After commending the camping party to his companion's care the young fellow went on to say that affairs were going badly on the board.

"Some interest that I haven't been able to make out yet has been hammering our stocks down day after day," he wrote. "I don't understand it, for the stocks are good and intrinsically are worth more than is bid for them right now. Some powerful concern is beating them down for a purpose of its own. Sooner or later they will let up, and then we'll get things back in good shape. I am simply protected now, thanks to you, and am not at all afraid of losing my holdings. The only difficulty is that I am unable to predict exactly when the other fellows will decide that they have accomplished whatever they are about and let up. It may not be before next year. In that case I couldn't help you out on those notes when they come due. So put in your best legs, old man. You may have to pony up for a little while, though of course sooner or later I can put it all back. Then, you bet your life, I keep out of it. Lumbering's good enough for yours truly."

"By the way, you might shine up to Hilda Farrand and join the rest of the fortune hunters. She's got it to throw to the birds and in her own right. Seriously, old fellow, don't put yourself into a false position through ignorance; not that there is any danger to a hardened old woodsman like you."

Thorpe told the group of pines by the pole trail the following afternoon because he had said he would, but with a new attitude of mind. He had come into contact with the artificiality of conventional relations, and it stiffened him.

They sat down on a log. Hilda turned to him with her graceful air of confidence.

"Now talk to me," said she. "Certainly," replied Thorpe in a jocular tone of voice. "What do you want me to talk about?"

She shot a swift, troubled glance at him, concluded herself mistaken and said:

"Tell me about what you do up here—your life—all about it."

"Well," replied Thorpe formally, "we haven't much to interest a girl like you. It is a question of saw logs with us." And he went on in his driest, most technical manner to detail the process of manufacture. It might as well have been bricks.

The girl did not understand. She was hurt. As surely as the sun tugged in the distant pine frond, she had seen in his eyes a great passion. Now it was coldly withdrawn.

"What has happened to you?" she asked finally out of her great sincerity. "Me? Nothing," replied Thorpe.

A forced silence fell upon him. Hilda seemed gradually to lose herself in reverie. After a time she said softly:

"Don't you love this woods?" "It's an excellent bunch of pine," replied Thorpe bluntly. "It'll cut 3,000,000 at least."

"Oh!" she cried, drawing back, her hands pressed against the log either side of her, her eyes wide.

After a moment she caught her breath convulsively, and Thorpe became conscious that she was studying him furiously with a quickening doubt.

After that, by the mercy of God, there was no more talk between them. Unconsciously the first strain of opposition and of hurt surprise relaxed. Each thought vaguely his thoughts. Then in the depths of the forest, perhaps near at hand, perhaps far away, a single hermit thrush began to sing. His song was of three solemn, deep, liquid notes, followed by a slight rhetorical pause as of contemplation, and then deliberately three notes more on a different key. It is the most dignified, the most spiritual, the holiest of woods utterances. Combined with the evening shadows and the warm soft air it offered to the heart an almost irresistible appeal. The man's artificial antagonism modified, the woman's disenchantment began to seem unreal.

Then subtly over and through the bird song another sound became audi-

A Gallant Rescue.

Policeman Mahi Lonoaea, Sheriff Andrews' crack mounted patrolman, made a brave rescue of a runaway horse attached to a hack belonging to the Volcano Stables last Wednesday. The hack was standing in front of the stables on Waiannuene street, and to all appearances the horse was safely tied by a lasso fastened to the bridle bit. Manager Wright says this is a very bad way to tie up, and he has repeatedly warned his drivers against the practice. The horse, which is a restless animal, worked the bridle over his nose and proceeded on a jaunt about town with an empty hack behind him. Starting up Waiannuene street some one headed the animal into Bridge street. The hack and runaway horse made the entire circuit of Puna, returning on the Pitman street bridge and started on a tear down Pitman street. In the meantime word was quickly sent to the Police Station and Patrolman Mahi, with lasso in hand, went forth. He overtook the speeding animal in front of the Hilo hotel grounds and with a dexterous twist threw the rope over the animal's neck and brought the rig to a standstill in front of the First Foreign Church. No damage except to the bridle was found to have occurred, and Manager Wright is congratulating himself that the vehicle was not smashed and his horse badly injured.

Serrao Incorporates.

J. G. Serrao has incorporated his wholesale and retail liquor establishments in Hilo. The name of the new corporation will be the Serrao Liquor Co., Ltd., with main place of business at Hilo, Hawaii. It will be capitalized at $25,000 and is incorporated for a period of fifty years. The purpose of the incorporation is to operate a wholesale and retail liquor business. The officers of the corporation are J. G. Serrao, president; C. E. Wright, vice president; W. Conrath, treasurer; Wm. Fernandez, secretary; R. T. Guard, auditor. The above officers with Antonio Cabrinha and I. E. Ray constitute a board of directors. At a meeting held Thursday week, J. G. Serrao was selected as manager of the new corporation.

Boat House Proposed.

Secretary A. L. C. Atkinson has aroused renewed interest in a boat club, which has been proposed from time to time in Hilo, but not met with success heretofore. In order to get a club started, Secretary Atkinson has generously offered to present the proposed club with a $50 from the Healan Boat Club of Honolulu. Atkinson is vice president of the Healan and is very anxious that Hilo have a similar organization, so that later on it may compete with Honolulu clubs in inter-island boat races. W. I. Madela and Geo. N. Day have the matter in hand, and it is believed a sufficient number of local oarsmen can be found to form such a club. Ladies, don't worry about how you are to make your dress, but step in and consult the "pattern lady" at Moses & Raymond's.

REPUBLICANS AVOID SPLIT IN THEIR RANKS

First District Committee Meet in Convention—A Break in Caucus and Disruption Narrowly Averted—Candidates Smith, Lewis and Brown Speak—Everything Points to Harmony and Republican Success.

There had been street rumors of a possible contest in the district convention over the selection of two candidates from Hilo for the lower house, so that on convening the delegates on Saturday morning at Firemen's Hall there was little surprise when Chairman Beers announced that the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Precincts had been unable to agree, and suggested the advisability of an adjournment for a few hours.

According to the program adopted upon the organization of the District Committee on August 12th, Hamakua and Puna were each to elect a candidate and the other precincts included in the South Hilo district were to join on two men. Owing to influences which had been a work with the Young Men's Republican Club, Carl Smith's nomination was conceded, but the young men split among themselves between Charles Akau and J. D. Lewis for second place. Akau seemed to be the choice of the Young Men's Club, but Lewis rallied his forces, and to the surprise of the opposition had the six delegates from Waiakea solid for him. These, in addition to Beers, Roy, Siemsen, Todd and Pacheco from Hilo, gave Jim eleven votes as against Akau's remainder of the eight-en delegates. This seemed to insure Lewis' nomination, and word had been received that the other districts had respectively agreed upon their men, namely, W. H. Shipman from Puna and Antone Fernandez of Hamakua.

The influences which were behind Akau threatened setting aside the caucus agreement and a possible disruption in the party if the fight were brought into the convention. When the convention met there was a disposition, especially on the part of Lewis' friends, to proceed, but they finally withdrew their objection to a brief adjournment so that their differences might be settled outside of the convention.

From the time of adjournment until 2 o'clock, for three hours and a half, the delegates from the precincts from Waiakea to Laupahoehoe thrashed the matter up and down, and neither side would listen to a compromise. Ray and Pacheco were won over to the Akau side, and the vote in caucus stood 9 to 9. Here the vote remained for three hours, with no possible solution in sight, until Charles Akau, tiring of the wrangle and in the interest of harmony withdrew his name. To those who were familiar with the feeling that was being engendered over the two factions, this saved the convention from what promised to be a very ugly fight if brought before the main body of delegates. Akau was congratulated on all sides upon the stand he had taken, and he was unquestionably strengthened himself by his refusal to block harmony in the convention.

On reconvening at 2:45 p. m. there were gathered besides the delegates a large number of business men who were interested spectators of the proceedings. I. E. Ray reported from the Committee on Platform heretofore adopted, reiterating the convention's allegiance to the principles and traditions of the Republican party as expressed in the Chicago and Hilo platforms. The report also favored an appropriation for a high school on Hawaii and the Hilo Band. Likewise legislation increasing the income tax exemption from $1,000 to $2,000. Norman K. Lyman moved an amendment providing for appropriations for roads in Kalapana, Waipio, and Pahoia to Kaohoe homesteads. With these amendments the platform was adopted.

The chairman made announcement of changes in the Executive Committee growing out of the division of Puna into precincts. He named D. Kaloi for the First and Kilipio for the new Eleventh.

Calling on the several precincts for nominations of Representatives, Kilipio of Puna nominated W. H. Shipman, which was seconded by J. D. Lewis. On behalf of the Third, G. F. Affonso proposed the name of Jas. D. Lewis, the former Representative, whom, he said, was the only candidate who succeeded of election two years ago, when there was such an overwhelming Home Rule victory.

J. Kauhane Paahan from the Fourth put in nomination Carl S. Smith, who as a lawyer would be useful in the next Legislature in framing a county act. Seconded by Mattoon of Laupahoehoe. From Hamakua Jos. Pritchard named Antone Fernandez, whom he stated was the unanimous choice of his district.

Upon motion of Supe, the Secretary was instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the convention for W. H. Shipman, J. D. Lewis, Carl S. Smith and Antone Fernandez. When the vote was announced the Chair appointed J. K. Paahan, I. E. Ray and F. Brughelli to escort the nominees before the convention. After a short recess, Mr. Brughelli reported that inasmuch as candidate S. Shipman and Fernandez were absent from the city the committee were able to present only Mr. Smith and Mr. Lewis.

When called to the platform, Mr. Smith spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman, and delegates of this convention—I honor a few days ago I might have the honor of being your candidate for the next legislature, but you overwhelm me when you give it to me unanimously. I shall not attempt to express the gratitude that wells up from within me. I have no campaign speech to make at this time; I shall only say "thank you."

The fact that I have been nominated for the next legislature makes it imperative upon me to prepare some campaign speeches which I shall proceed to do, in order to carry the Republican party to victory.

If I have ever had any particular ambition to stand as a republican candidate for either house of the legislature before that ambition has been checked by the condition in which we found the republican party in this district heretofore. Gentlemen, the matter of attending to the legislature of this Territory is one so close to my heart and interests that I have hoped for some time I might go as a representative to either the upper or lower house. But when I consider what the republican party has been in times past with its leaders, its factions, lack of harmony and lack of interest, and when I have seen what the republican party has done, I was afraid. But through yourselves and that branch of the republican organization known as the Young Men's Republican Club, we have formed a solid front and I feel sure we can whip this whole district. (Applause) I hope by your applause that you intend to stand shoulder to shoulder in this fight. (Cries of "Sure, sure") It is not much that I can do, I do not understand the native language. We will have to address the natives in the back districts and we will have to give them some reason for joining the Republican party. I regret therefore I cannot address those people as I would like.

It seems to me we have a long campaign in front of us. We might have postponed making nominations at this time, but of course your judgment is better than mine. We have a long campaign before us. However, I shall get to work and prepare some campaign speeches and we will then go forth and see if we cannot talk the Home Rulers and Democrats to death.

Gentlemen, I wish to say at the present time you have indeed honored me with an unanimous nomination. This is something I never could have hoped for before. This is particularly touching to me and I am particularly grateful, since there has not been one man from the chairman to the lowest man here, who has asked me for a single pledge. I come before you without having made a single pledge in the first representative district. This leaves me open to go to the legislature unhampered, absolutely unhampered, by any pre-campaign pledges.

The principal thing before us is local self government. Since I came to the Hawaiian Islands, I have dreamed of the time when our entire Islands would be broken up into counties and municipalities, and every man be given an opportunity to exercise the Anglo-Saxon right of governing himself. The thing closest to my heart and which will be when I am seated in the legislature is a county bill,—one that cannot be upset by the Supreme court and one which will work for our benefit. We do not want any weak half-hour measure, but one that will forever give our island into one county. (Applause) There has been a proposition made in Honolulu and I have heard it mentioned in Hilo, which would give us a county only in name with the same condition of affairs as we have now. I do not believe in that. I believe if we are to have a county at all it ought to be a county in which every citizen has a right to vote and an opportunity to express his wishes. This is a matter upon which I will give the greatest attention.

There are other important matters we will be required to attend to in the next legislature. Matters of public improvements are not satisfactory. Everybody knows that. Improvements will have our consideration. Legislators sent from this district will have to go there and demand and get the things you desire. (Applause)

The United States of America has said this is a territory and that these people should have a right to vote here, and are upon the same footing with the citizens of the United States. This is not an experiment but a principle of the United States of America. If you are citizens in the full sense of the term, you are entitled to every thing that a citizen is entitled to. I think you ought to have an opportunity to work upon public works of the Territory and I believe only citizen labor should be employed upon public works. Under the act of the Legislature, which has been misconstrued in the past, every opportunity should be given the citizen to work, to work by the sweat of his brow at a fair day's wages.

These are some of the campaign doctrines, which I wish to discuss in the campaign this fall and win a victory. Are you with me? (Cries of "Sure") If you are, we will carry this Republican party to such a victory as has never been witnessed before in these Islands.

Chairman Beers called upon Representative Lewis to address the convention, and in accepting the nomination, Mr. Lewis said:

Gentlemen—We have come to a satisfactory termination of our efforts in selecting suitable candidates to put before the public for their suffrages in this district. I wish to say that the expressions made by Candidate Smith are in accord with my own ideas. You will remember that in the election two years ago the Republicans were almost snowed under, and I was the only one elected. I believe as Mr. Smith said that if we join together and work harmoniously in this campaign, the Republican party will have a great victory this fall. (Applause) During my service in the last legislature, I did everything in my power for the good of the people and of this district, but like Delegate Kuhio I met with difficulties as it was my first term. But I assure you that in the coming session of the legislature, if I am elected, I will do all I can and feel confident that I will be able to accomplish much more than I have done. (Applause)

There can be no doubt of the responsibility resting upon the members of the legislature, as with all a legislator can do, there are some measures which he must pass. If the representative whom you send to the legislature, does not accomplish everything that he hopes to do or which you desire, there may be some criticism made upon his efforts when he returns to his constituents. This should not daunt us in our efforts to do what is right. There is one motto which we should follow, and that motto is on the emblem of this Territory. "Ua mau ka ea o ka aina i ka pono."

I do not wish at this time to lengthen my speech by making any further remarks. That I hope to do in the campaign, which is before us. I only wish to thank you gentlemen who have expressed confidence in me, enough confidence to select me to be one of your standard bearers in the campaign. (Applause)

The nomination of Senators was merely a matter of form. Under the rules, East and West Hawaii were supposed to meet in joint convention for this purpose, so the Chair announced this convention would endorse the nominee put forward by the other side of the island, provided they responded by endorsing the candidate of East Hawaii, and the convention proceeded to select one Senator. As the chair called each precinct, the response each time was for John T. Brown. Pritchard caused some amusement when called upon by saying he "didn't know John T. Brown from the west side of a house, but would second the nomination." Senator Brown was duly nominated, and when called before the convention by W. A. Todd and J. D. Lewis expressed his thanks for the nomination and pledged his support of Republican principles. His son-in-law, Norman K. Layman, whether doubting the sincerity of this assurance or for some ulterior motive, asked that each candidate be called before the convention and pledge his support of the Republican platform. Chairman Beers promptly ruled him out of order, stating that an acceptance by any candidate was binding upon any honorable man. After a vote of thanks given to Chairman Beers and the Secretary, R. A. Lyman, Jr., the convention adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Carter's Death.

The following resolutions were passed Friday night by the Young Men's Republican Club:

Whereas, Almighty God in his infinite wisdom has called unto himself from this life's labors and tribulations the beloved mother of our esteemed fellow citizen, Geo. R. Carter, Governor of the Territory of Hawaii, be it

Resolved, by the Young Men's Republican Club of the First Representative District, that the heartfelt sympathy of this club be extended to the Governor of Hawaii and his cherished family in this hour of bereavement; and be it further

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the club, a copy be transmitted to the Hon. Geo. R. Carter and furnished the press.

Took Him to Port Arthur.

Secretary A. L. C. Atkinson tried to emulate the recent exploit of Walter Guff Smith when that comic editor was in Hilo experimenting with Japanese hack drivers and writing up impressions of Hawaii. The Secretary is a staunch friend of citizen labor. He has won out in his single-handed fight for labor's rights in government road contracts, and nothing but the spirit of research would have prompted him to lend his support to an Asiatic herring as in the following occurrence.

One day last week the jovial Secretary sought to satisfy himself by practical demonstration what might be regarded as the average intelligence of the Japanese hack driver. He wished also to corroborate Editor Smith's statements concerning the carrying capacity of the Asiatic vehicle and whether the Oriental comforts of travel surpassed the ordinary advantages of rubber-tired carriages to be found on any well-regulated and legitimate citizen hack stand about Hilo.

Boarding one of these equipages, the former Acting Governor, in response to the query, "Where you go?" responded, "Take me to Port Arthur." The highly-bonored Japanese, recognizing the importance of his load and following the impulsive instincts of his race, demurred not to the impossibility of complying with the order, but whipped up his steed and promptly carried his exalted charge to Cocosnut Island. Here the practical joker protested that that was not his destination, but was "Vladivostok." He insisted upon being taken to Port Arthur, and the obliging jehu was about to proceed to the government dumping ground in Waiake when the genial Secretary cried "enough," having become satisfied with the capabilities of his driver to please any editor of a Honolulu daily newspaper.

Bad Blood

Have confidence in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has been curing people in all parts of the world for over 60 years. It is the greatest family medicine in the world. It purifies, strengthens, enriches, builds up.

Mr. George Fountain, of Mt. Torrens, So. Australia, sends his photograph and this interesting letter: "I had a very bad case of eczema. Medical men had told me nothing more could be done. I tried several blood remedies, but without relief. The eruption was over the whole of my body and arms. My friends told me I must try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. To please them, I did so. To tell the truth, I did not have much confidence in it. I had tried so many medicines. To my great surprise, I found that after only one bottle the scales were beginning to disappear. It took just five bottles to make a complete cure. My skin is now perfectly smooth, and not a trace do I have of my former trouble."
