CHEAP PAINTINGS.

HOW WORTHLESS DAUBS ARE SOLD IN THE AUCTION ROOM.

"Cappers" and the Part They Play in Disposing of a Great "Art Collection"—Selling a Picture—Valueless Frames.

(Chicago News.)

From above the door hangs the auctioneer's red flag. Around the entrance and in the broad window to the left is placed a number of pictures, starting in their glaring hues and inaccurate drawing. The poor lumber and terra-cotta ornamentation of the frames in which these pictures are incased is disguised beneath a thin coating of cheapst bronze. To-day they are a bright golden color. In two minutes, as the furthest, the gilding will have lost its luster and the frames will be dingy and tarnished. Within the auctioneer vociferates loudly, although there are but three individuals in the room. There are never less than three persons in this particular room, except when one of the trio is absent at meal-time.

THEY ARE CAPPERS.

One is a man perhaps 40 years old. He is of medium height, with heavy features, black whiskers and mustache. He never wears the same hat all day. He carries a railway time-table conspicuously displayed, which gives him the appearance of a traveler who has just arrived in the city. The second of these three individuals is a man somewhat older. His long English whiskers are plentifully bedrested with gray. He does not change his hat as frequently as his companion, but he examines the pictures put up for sale more attentively. The third person is a woman, who is seated on a chair before the auctioneer. She has small, shrewd features and dark hair. So continually does she occupy this chair that her weariness she frequently changes her position, sometimes doubling up her feet on the chair like a school miss.

Her business is the same as that of her two male companions. Each word she utters is intended to bid the pictures and raise it as high as possible. But she alternates and listlessly while the auctioneer mechanically, with an indistinct jumble of sounds, repeats the same words. She catches sight of three or four lotteries outside the door. Instantly his manner changes.

AN ART COLLECTION.

"Walk right in, ladies and gentlemen, and view the great art collection," is the invitation he utters at once. Each word now rolls out from his mouth round and clear. "This is the greatest art collection in the west," he continues, as one by one those without venture in. "It is the greatest collection of pictures ever offered in the west. Now I invite your inspection of this beautiful water-color on the rack. It is by the famous French artist, La Groux."

Here he pauses. The picture in question is a group, a print, which can be bought at any second-class picture-shop for 50 cents. The "capper" with the long side-whiskers advances to the front, attentively scans the alleged "water-color," taps the frame, and bids $1.

"Five dollars for this magnificent painting!" cries the auctioneer, in mock astonishment. "Only $5 for a work of art that has cost a man years to produce. It must be, ladies and gentlemen, a masterpiece. It is an interesting scene, more than to your attention instead of a rare work of art. Only $5 do I hear; only $5!" as he scans the faces of those in the room.

FROM THE COUNTRY.

Among them is a plainly clad couple, evidently husband and wife. They seem like humble folk, whose money is hard earned, and saved only by much pinching and denial. This is doubtless one of the few occasions when they come out together to purchase something for their home.

The word picture conveys to them the idea of something beautiful, and to their uneducated eyes the one before them seems all it is represented. The woman faintly has flushed a little, and she turns with eyes to her husband. He puts one hand irresolutely into his pocket and clinks together the silver coins it contains.

"Ladies, I can't spare more'n four for it," he whispers to her.

Beside him and overhearing his words is the black-eyed "capper." Mean while the woman "capper" had raised the bid 50 cents. The black-eyed man saunters carelessly up to the picture, examines it, and bids $1 higher, then whispers to the auctioneer while he bends over the painting as if searching for a signature. With many a protest that he is ruthlessly sacrificing a priceless work of art, accompanied by the scathing remark that his listeners must expect to get the picture for nothing, the auctioneer knocks down the picture to the "capper." As this is accomplished a portly man with gray hair and jetty mustache appears from the rear. This is one of the proprietors of the establishment.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

"Give me the picture; give 'em to 'em. Mean be what they're waiting for," he says to the auctioneer, with a great show of disgust. "Give 'em to 'em, I tell you. I prefer, sir, to prevent those impertinent pictures to sacrifice 'em for $3.50."

The timid woman who had wanted to buy a picture looks disappointed and half scared at these words. Her husband turns toward the door. Quick as a flash the auctioneer has placed a picture on the rack. The frame about it is four inches wide. It is the vilest of all daubs.

"This beautiful painting is a picture of a Sussex meadow by the great English artist, Gunning," he begins. "What will you bid for it?"

The black-eyed "capper" offers 75 cents. The woman lays her hand on her husband's arm, and they both turn back. Then he bids $1, and the "cappers" bid against him till finally the picture is knocked down to him for $3.

"That is almost an hourly scene," remarked a gentleman who saw the occurrence. "Not only are people of limited means and intelligence deceived by the impostures of the picture auctioneers, but also those well-to-do and with at least an average amount of comprehension in other respects. I know of one attorney in Chicago with a practice which yields him a fair income, and from which he has saved enough to buy a comfortable home, who paid out $250 in this place for daubs which are not worth $30. The actual cost to the people who put on the market such daubs is that which was just sold is less than $1. The frames are built of fence lumber and fastened together with the cheapest resin glue. Occasionally metal fast is used for the gilding, but usually bronze."

OPIMUM SMUGGLING AND TRADING PERQUISITES.

Any one who has taken the pains to watch the course of events as they appear from week to week upon the police court records will notice a continual string of charges brought against petty offenders for smuggling opium into the Kingdom or for having the smuggled drug in their possession.

Chinese who come into close competition with both labor and trade. In touching upon this question it is but right and just to state that the Oceanic Steamship Company has always protected the merchants in this regard.

Warrants Issued for Gentiles on the Charge of Lewdness.

SALT LAKE, November 22d.—The Mormons have as they say, "turned the tables" on the Gentiles. For some time there have been rumors that the Mormon leaders had hired harlots to come here and entrap Gentiles.

BOSTON, November 22d.—The leading Clearing Houses of the United States report that the total gross bank exchanges for the week ending November 21st were $1,156,967,998, an increase of 4.45 per cent, as compared with the corresponding week of last year.

PETALUMA, California, November 22d.—The predicted early Winter is being fully verified. The rain again set in last night and still continues.

The New Mail Contract.

William Center, of the firm of Sprackels Brothers & Company, was interviewed last night by a Call reporter in reference to the reports contained in the following special dispatch which was received by the Call in the evening: NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A Washington special to the Post says: The Postoffice Department has been advised that, upon the completion of the Canadian Pacific roads, all transatlantic mails from England will be forwarded over that road, and that a new line of British steamers will be established at the western terminus of the Canadian Pacific for Australia.

It was show that there would inevitably be an actual loss in time of at least two days from the Atlantic shore to Sydney, for, although the Canadian Pacific road is somewhat shorter than the American mail route, the time gained would, under the most favorable conditions, amount to only about one day, while at least three would be lost through the extra length of the sea voyage upon the Pacific.

Nor would this be all, when the entire trip from England to the colonies is considered. In point of fact there are no fast Canadian steamers crossing the Atlantic, and the mails would consequently have to come first to New York upon the Cunard or some other fast line, and then be reshipped north to Canada, which would cause an additional loss of time.

A Direct Route.

The most direct route, and one which he was somewhat inclined to think might one day be fixed upon, Mr. Center stated would be to go by rail to some extremely southern port, Guaymas for instance, and thence by sea to the colonies, since thus the land route would be lengthened and the ocean passage shortened, which would be a double gain.

LOCAL NEWS.

The steamer Kinau took thirty-three bags of mail yesterday.

Prof. M. M. Scott will return from a school-inspecting trip shortly.

Word comes from Hawaii that petty robberies are on the increase throughout that Island.

There were three attempted runaways yesterday on Fort street, all of which were nipped in the bud by passers-by.

The Martha Davis, which sails for Hongkong next Saturday, will take about two hundred and fifty Chinese passengers.

It is reported that there are at present twenty-three new houses going up in Honolulu. Pretty good for these dull times.

Mr. G. F. Renton and wife, who were married at the residence of J. A. Hopper, last Monday evening, left for Hanalei, by the Kinau yesterday afternoon.

Mr. J. W. Hingley, formerly of the Pioneer Cigar Factory on Fort street, has moved his cigar manufacturing business to the front part of the Crystal Soda Works on Hotel street, where he will be glad to meet his old customers and friends.

Mr. William White, freight clerk on the Inter Island Steam Navigation Co.'s wharf, left by the Iwawani yesterday as purser, in place of Mr. Webster, who takes the Planter this trip, on account of the illness of Mr. Welhelm, the present purser.

The following challenge has been issued: I hereby challenge Mr. M. L. Hartmann to skate a race of from two to five miles for the sum of $100. The race to take place at the Yosemite Skating Rink on or before Saturday December 12th, 1885. W. MULLEN.

The inhabitants residing in the vicinity of School and Punchbowl streets were startled the other night about ten o'clock by the shrill cries of a woman. Investigation showed that some of the Portuguese inhabitants who live in that neighborhood were engaged in a sort of free fight, when one of the men hit his wife by mistake with the above result.

Yesterday morning about half-past ten o'clock a native hackman who was driving out Nuuanu street with four passengers in his hack attempted to turn around, when in front of the Commercial saloon with the horse in a trot. The result was that he succeeded in turning the hack around and also succeeded in breaking out two or three spokes from one of the hinder wheels. The occupants chartered another hack and drove off.

The Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company has issued a neat new calendar for the year 1886. The summary of this company for the year 1884 is as follows: net income $8,999,000; life and annuity funds $18,453,000; general reserve and re-insurance fund $7,500,000; total invested funds $34,557,000; claims paid since 1836, $103,069,000. Messrs. Bishop & Company are the Honolulu agents.

Word comes from Koolau that a Chinaman named Ah Sue was thrown from a horse last Sunday evening while returning from Honolulu, and sustained a compound fracture of the left wrist, the horse which had belonged to the Chinaman for a long time returned to him after the accident, and by getting the horse into a ditch by the side of the road the Chinaman was able to remount it and reach home some three miles further on, where he received the proper attention.

Yesterday afternoon a small child who had been allowed to stray into Emma street near School street was almost run over by a native who was driving a brake drawn by a fractious white horse. The child became scared and attempted to cross the street in front of the animal to get out of the way, when the horse shied at the child, who was knocked down by the near wheel of the brake. The mother who allowed the child on the street was to blame. The child was somewhat bruised.

A good audience greeted the Amateur Dramatic Company who played at Music Hall last night for the benefit of the Honolulu Library Association. "A Widow Hunt," one of Mr. J. Sterling Coyne's most amusing comedies, in three acts was given. The following was the cast: Felix Featherly, Mr. J. F. Brown; Frank Icebrook, Mr. E. W. Purvis; Major Wellington de Boots, Mr. Godfrey Brown; Trap Mr. Lawrence Barrett, Jr.; Mrs. Featherly Miss L. Moore; Mrs. Major de Boots Mrs. J. D. Strong; Mrs. Swandown Mrs. A. B. Haley; Fanny, Miss S. Clark. The second act was especially good and many of the parts were applauded with great zeal. Mr. Godfrey Brown as Major Wellington de Boots was the lion of the evening. The other parts were carried out with great credit. It is hoped that this good company will give us some further exhibition of their talent before long.

At half-past nine o'clock last night a white man created an excitement on Beretania street near Fort street by beating his wife, a Portuguese woman. The facts of the case as far as could be learned are as follows: The man had been maltreating and beating his wife for some time and as she claims, she has supported him even to buying newspapers and tobacco for him and becoming tired of this she ran away from home a week ago. It was only last night that he discovered her alone on the street when he at once, beat and abused her tearing her clothes and taking her hat and shawl from her. It was at this juncture that the police were called and after a good deal of parleying on his part, which terminated in loud talk and general abuse of the crowd that had gathered, he was taken to the Station House.

Last evening about half-past eight o'clock a hack was driven rapidly down Hotel from Nuuanu street and disappeared toward the Hawaiian Hotel. When in front of Horn's bakery the screams of a young native girl attracted the attention of almost every body on the street. When first seen she was sitting on the step of the hack with her feet dragging on the ground while she was being held by some party inside the hack. Different parties on the street called to the driver to stop but he paid no attention to their cries. A policeman, as usual, stood in the middle of the street and did nothing. All who witnessed the affair is of the opinion that something was decidedly wrong. The matter ought to be looked into at once by the authorities. This is the second case of the kind within a year. It is understood that a white man was in the hack.

"So you didn't know I gave 'em all icecream?" said the genial Henry Hart as he came into the PRESS office yesterday morning. "Gave you icecream, Mr. Hart?" cried the shipping reporter as he fairly bounded into the air with the water running out of his mouth. The business manager dropped his eye glasses into his lap with a look of despair and the editor put both feet into the waste-paper basket to quiet his agitation. When Mr. Hart saw the damage he had done he immediately made atonement by asking the occupants of the editorial room to come up and try a dish. The shipping reporter immediately recovered sufficiently to make a blunder in the shipping news; the business manager replaced his glasses on his nose with the wrong side out, and the editor dipped his pen into the muclage stand and wrote the following local: "On last Sunday Mr. Henry Hart of the Elite Ice Cream Saloon sent gifts of icecream to Oahu Prison, the Queen's Hospital, and the Leper Settlement. The inmates of these different institutions sent the plates back empty and expressed the warmest thanks for Mr. Hart's cool compliment."

The following local clipped from the columns of the Carson, Nevada, Free Lance where Mr. Daggett, our ex-Minister Resident is well known will be of interest to many of our readers: "A grape vine telegram from Washington City brings the news that Hon. Rollin Mallory Daggett has disclosed to President Cleveland and his Cabinet the weighty matters which were committed to his charge by King Kalakaua upon the departure of the ex-United States Minister from the dominion of His Dusky Majesty. It is briefly a proposition for the absolute annexation of the Hawaiian Kingdom to the United States upon the condition of its being admitted to the Union on an equal footing with the original States, as Texas was in 1845. This may to some extent explain Mr. Daggett's apparent indifference to the standing of the Senatorial contest in this State, for if his present negotiations should succeed he would have no difficulty in securing from the grateful new State of Hawaii anything that he should ask. The present King would probably be his colleague. The new State would be entitled to three members in the lower house in Congress.

The last day that the sailors of the Constance were allowed on shore three of the jolly tars decided to demonstrate the fact that they could steer and navigate a horse just as well as they could handle a ship. So early in the morning, they were on shore and were soon perched upon three sorry looking animals that looked as if they were incapable of doing any mischief. The small party started out at first rather cautiously and walked their fiery steeds down King street. The "old salts" seeing clear sailing set more sail and started their horses, on a trot, but the riding was a little too bouncy for their comfort. The horses were started and kept increasing their speed until they were going at a break neck rate. For once in their lives the valiant mariners let go the tiller of their plunging hulks and held on like grim death. No accident however occurred until the now thoroughly scared riders reached the corner of Hotel and Richard streets, when a frantic endeavor was made to stop their course which resulted in causing each horse to make a different tack, two going down Richard street the other running a foul of the Hotel fence. The collision caused Jack to fall overboard, but he sustained no injuries. The other horses at last became winded and were finally managed, and were steered back to Hotel and Richard streets where they found their ship-wrecked mate awaiting them. They were again all mounted and sailed back to the place where they procured their riding equipments. They then went aboard their vessel "sadder but wiser men."

A Chinaman who resides in the midst of his vegetable patch, near the shore of Waikiki, has been troubled for some time past by some person pilfering among his roots and grasses. To put a stop to these depredations the said Chinaman determined to sit up all night and mow a gun loaded with the coarsest quality of Hawaiian salt. The night before last this watchful Chinaman was rewarded for his vigils and would have rewarded the man who had been in the habit of eating greens at his expense, if the gun had gone off when he pulled the trigger. But as the gun didn't pop, he took it from his shoulder to examine it and while holding muzzle down it went off and the Chinaman is reported to have spent the remainder of the night picking salt out of one of his feet. The other fellow took the hint and skipped.

They say: that it is easier to talk politics than it is to work; that there is $15,000 up at the Merchant's Exchange in San Francisco, bet as follows: $5,000 that the Alameda will beat the Zealandia to Honolulu, $5,000 that the Alameda will arrive at Auckland first, and $5,000 that the Alameda will reach Sydney first; that the steam launch presented to the missionary packet Morning Star is to be re-named after Captain Bray's daughter; that the editors of California newspapers will need no punishment hereafter because they are burnt up sufficiently in this world by their contemporaries; that the most the King expects from the natives at the next election is a half hearted support to his "dummy Government;" that there will be an electric light company organized in Honolulu next spring—provided sufficient Hawaiian capital can be brought into the affair to secure home backing; that the Alameda will have passed the Zealandia by twelve o'clock last night; that the dedication of the Chinese Y. M. C. A. building on next Thursday evening will be an interesting affair; that the hope of the Government side for success at the coming elections lies in the support they will have from those who support the liquor license question; that those who pretend to further the cause of the people sometimes have private ends in view; that the men of Honolulu intend organizing a club after the style of the Pacific Club in San Francisco; that the English built ships on the new line will never be able to compete with American ships in speed; that the Fort-street Merchant intends issuing a funny almanac for the year 1886; that the coming financial shadows leave political events behind, much to the detriment of the old adage; that the hula girls who danced so sprightly a short time since have not as yet received their pay; that the Christmas turkey will soon bid the world a long farewell; and that revolutions will never occur in a country where the people eat poi and trade with depreciated silver.

A BEAR HUNTER

TELLS HOW HE MANAGES TO ENTANGLE LUCKLESS BRUIN.

A Farmer's Shrewd Escape—How a Bear Trap is Made and How it Must Be Set—Wary Old Oxc—Saving the Peck.

[Lawiston (Me.) Journal.] I found myself hobnobbing with a bear hunter in the midst of his traps the other day...

The farmer's judgment was as good as his cattle's. He had nothing with which to defend himself and he had to think lively to devise a way of escape.

Mr. Knapp has a blacksmith shop opposite his house, where he makes bear traps and shoe horns.

Your bear hunter must use considerable craft. Said Mr. Knapp, "I usually build a cubby-house in the woods of old stumps and decayed branches."

"I have twelve traps, and visit 'em twice a week. The bear is usually caught by the fore paw. He don't live more than twenty-four hours after the jaw closes on him."

"I've noticed them many times, but have never thought anything about the matter," replied the reporter.

"There is a rather peculiar story connected with that," replied the other. "Some years ago an ordinance was passed through council, which required red lanterns to be displayed on street obstructions."

"And didn't the schemer who got the measure through the council profit by it?" "Not a bit of it. He had the whole stock of red lanterns left on his hands."

A Valuable Suggestion. (Farm and Fireside.) Label every bottle of medicine that comes into your house...
