THE LEGISLATURE.

It is too early to judge the work of the Legislature at this date. When it adjourns sine die we will endeavor to see Colonel Mazuma and throw some leis and bouquets at the departing Solons. Instead of retrenchment there has been a strong tendency on behalf of the Legislature to make a raise all round. We face the remarkable conditions that an appropriation amounting to more than $5,000,000 has been passed and no revenue measures of material effect provided for. Should the Supreme Court decide that the Income Tax Bill is unconstitutional, and the Boards of Tax Appeal oppose the enormous increase in value of property placed by the Assessor, where will we be?

We notice also that grievous mistakes have been made in the Appropriation Bill. We say "mistakes" because we cannot believe that the Legislators with their eyes open could drop the appropriation for school buildings on Oahu, and yet not a cent has been passed for that purpose, although we need a Royal School, a Normal School and a school for the Honolulu Plantation where there now are 125 children of school age and no school. How to remedy this mistake we cannot see at the moment, but we hope Mr. Cooper will see a way to rectify a wrong so injurious to this island.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

It is very characteristic that the tableaux in which American Admirals, Generals, and Presidents are represented, receive the frosty stare of the large audiences which have attended the performances of the World's Entertainers. Every theatrical manager should bear in mind that spread eagles, American heroism and blatherskiting will never become popular in Honolulu. The people of this country have no aloha for Dewey, McKinley and the rest of that gang.

If the so-called governor, Mr. Cooper, has not yet got softening of the brain he will sign the appropriation bill at once and allow the Legislature to adjourn sine die. It is all rot for him to say that he will give the bill his "careful consideration." The man has had nothing to do besides watching the work of the Legislature and, as the estimates of the government virtually have been adopted in toto, we can see no possible reason for him to make a "spiel" to the gallery by looking wise and taking the matter into consideration. All of us recognize him as being a fine specimen of the political humbug family, but we did give credit for being wise enough to drop his play to the gallery when a chance occurred to rid himself of a hostile Legislature.

Little Stronger Than Usual.

"One day back in Detroit," remarked a Douglas-street man, "I accidentally left some aqua fortis in a glass and soon afterward was horrified to find the glass empty. I inquired as to what had become of it and some of the boys in the store said the Bill Webster—a tough old sot who dropped in on us occasionally—had just gone out and may be he had drunk it, supposing it to be liquor. In a short time he came in and I said:

"Bill, did you drink that stuff in the glass on my table?"

"He said he did, and I then told him that he had drunk poison and that he'd be a dead man in five minutes.

"Oh, I reckon not," said Bill, "but I knowed it was somethin' a little stronger than I'd been a havin', for every time I blowed my nose I burned a hole in my handkercher." —Omaha "Mercury"

Miss Davison Recalled

Owing to the fact that Miss Rose Davison's services are needed by the Board of Education she has been asked to transfer the care of the Hawaiian exhibit at Buffalo to other hands and to return at once. She will arrive here by an early steamer. In speaking of the matter last night Supt. Atkinson paid a high tribute to Miss Davison's work in installing the exhibit but said her presence here was most desirable at this time. She has been instructed to pick out her own successor at Buffalo.

Good News.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Mr. Tracewell, the Controller of the Treasury, has decided that the Secretary of the Treasury has authority under the law to refund to Lascellas & Co. of New York the duties paid by them on sugar imported from Porto Rico between the date the treaty of Paris took effect and the date of the approval of the Foraker act. The duties so paid amounted to over $170,000. This decision is based upon the recent insular decisions of the Supreme Court. Other claims are on file for refunds amounting to about $1,500,000.

Embassador's Son's Suicide.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 8.—Attorney Frederick D. White, son of Andrew D. White, embassador to Germany, committed suicide tonight. He had been suffering from neurasthenia. He went to a bathroom at his home and shot himself in the head with a rifle. The suicide, following so close upon the divorce suit by which Embassador White's eldest daughter seeks release from marital bonds with Professor Newberry, may lead to the diplomat's resignation.

Danish Princes Coming

COPENHAGEN, July 9.—Prince Christian, eldest son of the Crown Prince, intends to visit the United States on board his yacht in the spring of 1902, unless, in the meantime, the King's age should bring about the accession of the Crown Prince. Prince and Princess Charles of Denmark also contemplate a trip to America in 1902.

A Strong Combination

LONDON, July 9.—"It is reported here," says the Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail, "that John D. Rockefeller and J. P. Morgan have decided to establish a banking house in Paris with a capital of £10,000,000."

A. E. Augustine of this city has brought suit for damages in the sum of $1,231 against the Oceanic Steamship Company for the failure of the latter corporation to deliver to her a trunk which was placed aboard the steamer Mariposa on which she was a first-class passenger.

A native woman, some 27 years of age, asks through her attorney, W. J. Robinson, that J. A. Magoon, who is and has been the legal custodian of her property since October 1, 1889, be discharged from that office, as he is not only unaccountable to her personally, but refuses to present accounts as the law directs.

Another Honolulu House.

A new commission house under the firm name of Wolters, Waldron Co., Ltd., has been established at Honolulu, the officers being W. Wolters, president; W. G. Cooper, vice president; F. L. Waldron, treasurer; C. Girdler, secretary; C. Bolte, auditor. Mr. Wolters was for many years a member of the firm of H. Hackfeld & Co., Ltd., and Mr. Waldron was in charge of and practically built up the grocery department of Theo. P. Davies & Co. The third member of the firm is Charles Girdler, who, during the past ten years, has been associated with L. B. Ker & Co., and the N. S. Sells Co.—Hilo Herald.

Mrs. E. A. Nawahi left for Hilo by the Kinai at noon. She was accompanied by her son Albert and her foster daughter.

Good Boys.

At the Yale commencement three Hawaiians got degrees. C. M. Cooke, Jr., was made a Doctor of Philosophy; Henry P. Judd a Bachelor of Arts and Wm. J. Rawlins a Bachelor of Laws.

He Had It Badly.

"I am thankful I do not live in a round room," said the man with the dreamy eyes, as he slowly sipped from a wicked looking glass at his side.
 The man with the wart on his ear and the man with the triple chin looked up expectantly. "Tell us about it," they said.
 The man with the dreamy eyes sighed. "It is a long, sad story," he said. He sipped again from the wicked looking glass. Then he added:—"I have a very nice room, situated, as the poet would say, 'in yonder street that fronts the sun.' It is a big, square, pleasant room, and is kept in excellent condition by the woman who runs the house. There is just one drawback."
 "What is it?" asked the others.
 "The goblin globe," returned the dreamy-eyed one. "The goblin globe is all right in its way, I suppose, but a decent bachelor's room is no place for it to do its stunt, and I'm going to make a vigorous complaint if I find it doing business in my quarters when I get home."
 "When I got in the other night—or maybe the other morning—would be the correct expression—I turned on the gas and prepared for bed. Now, you know how scrupulously neat I am. Well, you may judge of my annoyance, then, when I tell you that as my eyes travelled over the room they encountered a speck in the carpet. It was no bigger than the knot on a length of coarse sewing thread, but it annoyed me, and I stooped to brush it away. To my astonishment the speck wouldn't budge, and I thought then it must be a tiny spot in the carpet. 'Oh, well,' I thought 'it's a small matter, and I'll let it pass.' I had reached to turn off the gas and jump into bed when I happened again to glance at the carpet.
 "The speck was as big as a marble. I thought at first this was some optical delusion brought on by overwork, but this was not the case. I made a very thorough examination of the speck and convinced myself of its reality. It was round and black, and so heavy I couldn't lift it. I determined to postpone bed for a bit while I studied this remarkable effect. As I looked, the thing actually grew before my eyes. It soon became the size of a baseball. I drew my easy chair to the point on the carpet occupied by the queer growth, and settled myself comfortably to watch progress.
 "Larger and larger grew the ball. From the size of a baseball it reached the proportions of a Georgia watermelon, all the time retaining its perfection of contour. Gradually, and without my having noticed the change, I found that my easy chair was about two feet nearer the wall than it had been when I sat down. The growth of the ball had forced it away from the centre of the room.
 "When the globe reached the size of a United States mail sack I thought it was about time to call a halt. I threw my whole weight on the thing, but I couldn't move it an inch. On the contrary, it continued to grow, only with repeated rapidity. I started to call for help, but then the ridiculousness of the situation struck me, and I refrained. What did a grown man need of outside help to throw a ball out of his room? I laughed merrily. Then I assaulted the ball again. It was as tall as the piano by this time, and was forcing all the furniture out of the way.
 "The easy chair was jammed against one side wall. The couch had been squashed up into a soft heap, the bookcase had been flattened out, and the piano contracted. The ball was irresistible. It spread out until it had jammed the gas jet through the ceiling and thus left me in darkness. I tried to reach the door, but the globe now filled almost the entire room, and I couldn't get past it. I found myself in one of the four corners, and I couldn't move a foot in any direction. I was a hopeless prisoner, and the only thing that saved my life was the fact that the globe was round and couldn't penetrate the angle where I stood. I didn't know whether to be more thankful that the ball was round or that the room was square.

 "I passed a most uncomfortable night standing up in that corner and getting never a wink of sleep. About toward daybreak the globe began to recede. Inside of half an hour from that time it had sunk down to the shape of a tiny black knot, in which I had first noticed it. I have had the same experience now for three nights and I am getting tired of it. Standing up in a corner has made me stiff in all my joints. I intend complaining to the landlady. Am I right?"
 "You are," said the man with the wart on his ear and the man with the triple chin. "You are right, and we'll back you up in it." And they called the waiter.
Where Was Mazuma.
 SALEM, July 8.—William J. Bryan confirms the statement that Emilio Aguinaldo's agents tried to corrupt him during the last Presidential campaign. Bryan said today that some time before the emissaries of Aguinaldo called at the Hoffman House in New York last fall he received a letter telling him that Aguinaldo's representatives would call, and that they would make a proposition to Bryan that the Filipino leader would give $100,000 to the Democratic campaign fund. In addition they would promise that Aguinaldo would surrender in the event that the Nebraskan was elected and that the surrender would be immediate and unconditional.
 In return the Filipino agents would exact a promise that a reasonable form of government, founded on the principles of the Government in the United States, be given to the Filipinos.
 When the Filipino agents appeared at the Hoffman House Bryan refused to see them.
 "I was prompted," said Bryan, "to refuse to meet them so that my opponents could not have an opportunity to misconstrue or misrepresent the objects of such a conference. I would not consider the proposition which they were anxious to make in person, for the reason that I considered it my duty to act as I did."
Embassador to Italy.
 CLEVELAND, July 8.—Myron T. Herrick, who has been named for the post of Embassador to Italy in succession to George V. L. Meyer of Massachusetts, does not owe his strength in the White House to political influence alone, but to the warm friendship entertained for him by President McKinley. Mr. Herrick is best known for his connection with the Society for Savings, of which he has been president since 1894, and which has deposits aggregating upward of $35,000,000. The prospective Embassador was educated at Oberlin and Delaware colleges. In 1875 he came to Cleveland with the intention of reading law, and three years thereafter he was admitted to the bar. In 1886 Mr. Herrick launched himself upon his financial career by originating the Euclid Avenue Bank and in the following year he was elected treasurer of the Society for Savings. For many years he has been prominently identified with the Republican party in Ohio. He is cultured and wealthy.
Wants an American Yacht.
 NEW YORK, July 8.—The report that the German Emperor had ordered an American yacht was confirmed today by Mr. Barbey of the firm of Carey, Smith & Barbey, naval architects, who said:
 "We have received orders for plans and specifications of a schooner yacht 120 feet long on the water line for the German Emperor. We expect to have the plans and specifications ready in about six weeks. Then they will be submitted to the naval attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, and after his approval tenders will be advertised for in the regular way. We expect to have the yacht ready for sea about April next."

He Had It Badly.

"I am thankful I do not live in a round room," said the man with the dreamy eyes, as he slowly sipped from a wicked looking glass at his side.

The man with the wart on his ear and the man with the triple chin looked up expectantly. "Tell us about it," they said.

The man with the dreamy eyes sighed. "It is a long, sad story," he said. He sipped again from the wicked looking glass. Then he added:—"I have a very nice room, situated, as the poet would say, 'in yonder street that fronts the sun.' It is a big, square, pleasant room, and is kept in excellent condition by the woman who runs the house. There is just one drawback."

"What is it?" asked the others. "The goblin globe," returned the dreamy-eyed one. "The goblin globe is all right in its way, I suppose, but a decent bachelor's room is no place for it to do its stunt, and I'm going to make a vigorous complaint if I find it doing business in my quarters when I get home."

"When I got in the other night—or maybe the other morning would be the correct expression—I turned on the gas and prepared for bed. Now, you know how scrupulously neat I am. Well, you may judge of my annoyance, then, when I tell you that as my eyes travelled over the room they encountered a speck in the carpet. It was no bigger than the knot on a length of coarse sewing thread, but it annoyed me, and I stooped to brush it away. To my astonishment the speck wouldn't budge, and I thought then it must be a tiny spot in the carpet. 'Oh, well,' I thought, 'it's a small matter, and I'll let it pass.' I had reached to turn off the gas and jump into bed when I happened again to glance at the carpet.

"The speck was as big as a marble. I thought at first this was some optical delusion brought on by overwork, but this was not the case. I made a very thorough examination of the speck and convinced myself of its reality. It was round and black, and so heavy I couldn't lift it. I determined to postpone bed for a bit while I studied this remarkable effect. As I looked, the thing actually grew before my eyes. It soon became the size of a baseball. I drew my easy chair to the point on the carpet occupied by the queer growth, and settled myself comfortably to watch progress.

"Larger and larger grew the ball. From the size of a baseball it reached the proportions of a Georgia watermelon, all the time retaining its perfection of contour. Gradually, and without my having noticed the change, I found that my easy chair was about two feet nearer the wall than it had been when I sat down. The growth of the ball had forced it away from the centre of the room.

"When the globe reached the size of a United States mail sack I thought it was about time to call a halt. I threw my whole weight on the thing, but I couldn't move it an inch. On the contrary, it continued to grow, only with repeated rapidity. I started to call for help, but then the ridiculousness of the situation struck me, and I refrained. What did a grown man need of outside help to throw a ball out of his room? I laughed merrily. Then I assaulted the ball again. It was as tall as the piano by this time, and was forcing all the furniture out of the way.

"The easy chair was jammed against one side wall. The couch had been squashed up into a soft heap, the bookcase had been flattened out, and the piano contracted. The ball was irresistible. It spread out until it had jammed the gas jet through the ceiling and thus left me in darkness. I tried to reach the door, but the globe now filled almost the entire room, so I couldn't get past it. I found myself in one of the four corners, and I couldn't move a foot in any direction. I was a hopeless prisoner, and the only thing that saved my life was the fact that the globe was round and couldn't penetrate the angle where I stood. I didn't know whether to be more thankful that the ball was round or that the room was square.

"I passed a most uncomfortable night standing up in that corner and getting never a wink of sleep. About toward daybreak the globe began to recede. Inside of half an hour from that time it had sunk down to the shape of a tiny black knot, in which I had first noticed it. I have had the same experience now for three nights and I am getting tired of it. Standing up in a corner has made me stiff in all my joints. I intend complaining to the landlady. Am I right?"

"You are," said the man with the wart on his ear and the man with the triple chin. "You are right, and we'll back you up in it." And they called the waiter.

Where Was Mazuma.

SALEM, July 8.—William J. Bryan confirms the statement that Emilio Aguinaldo's agents tried to corrupt him during the last Presidential campaign. Bryan said today that some time before the emissaries of Aguinaldo called at the Hoffman House in New York last fall he received a letter telling him that Aguinaldo's representatives would call, and that they would make a proposition to Bryan that the Filipino leader would give $100,000 to the Democratic campaign fund. In addition they would promise that Aguinaldo would surrender in the event that the Nebraskan was elected and that the surrender would be immediate and unconditional.

In return the Filipino agents would exact a promise that a reasonable form of government, founded on the principles of the Government in the United States, be given to the Filipinos.

When the Filipino agents appeared at the Hoffman House Bryan refused to see them.

"I was prompted," said Bryan, "to refuse to meet them so that my opponents could not have an opportunity to misconstrue or misrepresent the objects of such a conference. I would not consider the proposition which they were anxious to make in person, for the reason that I considered it my duty to act as I did."

Embassador to Italy.

CLEVELAND, July 8.—Myron T. Herrick, who has been named for the post of Embassador to Italy in succession to George V. L. Meyer of Massachusetts, does not owe his strength in the White House to political influence alone, but to the warm friendship entertained for him by President McKinley. Mr. Herrick is best known for his connection with the Society for Savings, of which he has been president since 1894, and which has deposits aggregating upward of $35,000,000. The prospective Embassador was educated at Oberlin and Delaware colleges. In 1875 he came to Cleveland with the intention of reading law, and three years thereafter he was admitted to the bar. In 1886 Mr. Herrick launched himself upon his financial career by originating the Euclid Avenue Bank and in the following year he was elected treasurer of the Society for Savings. For many years he has been prominently identified with the Republican party in Ohio. He is cultured and wealthy.

Wants an American Yacht.

New York July 8.—The report that the German Emperor had ordered an American yacht was confirmed today by Mr. Barbey of the firm of Carey, Smith & Barbey, naval architects, who said:

"We have received orders for plans and specifications of a schooner yacht 120 feet long on the water line for the German Emperor. We expect to have the plans and specifications ready in about six weeks. Then they will be submitted to the naval attaché of the German Embassy at Washington, and after his approval tenders will be advertised for in the regular way. We expect to have the yacht ready for sea about April next."
