TWO OF A KIND.

A Jude and a monkey met one day.
And to the Jude the monkey did say:
"How do, Mr. Jude?"
Then to the monkey the Jude replied:
"Remember my high ancestral pride,
You're only a monkey, sir; beside,
Please don't be so rude."
Said the monkey: "Pardon, my dudish friend!
Sure, I really did not mean to offend,
You take a high shelf.
If I'm a monkey, I own it is true,
But I could not help it; and as for you,
You're just my picture in all you do,
And you made yourself!"

When'er at school some bigger boy
Would pound me till I'd snarl,
My brother'd jump into the fray,
And kindly take my part.
When'er at home our mother gave
To us each half a tart,
My brother'd get me off alone,
And kindly (?) "take my part."

CANNING'S WIT.

On one occasion, on the first night of a session, Brougham attacked the Government for having, according to the announcements in the speech from the throne, stolen many of the measures advocated by his side of the house, and made them their own.
The speech was a telling one, and the more telling because it was true.
It was applauded to the very echo;
and doubtless many of those who heard him wondered how Canning would rebut the fierce attack. When he arose the house welcomed him with tremendous cheering, as if anticipating the success which usually attended his efforts. In this instance, too, it was not doomed to be disappointed. In a spirit of the utmost good humor, he said that the honorable and learned gentleman had reminded him of an anecdote which he would relate to the house. In the reign of Queen Elizabeth an author named Denis had written a play which was produced at the Theatre Royal of the day. In this play was introduced a scene in which for the first time on any stage there was an imitation of a thunder-storm. Denis attended the performance, and had the mortification to witness his piece, notwithstanding the thunder-storm, unequivocally damned. Time passed on, and with it the memory of his play and its unlucky fate, when, one night, he went to see a new play from the pen of another author. This play was in every respect superior to that of poor Denis, who witnessed each successive scene with feelings of envy. It happened, however, that this author had also introduced a thunder-storm. As soon as Denis, who was in the pit, heard the rolling of the thunder, followed by the plaudits of the audience, he jumped upon one of the seats, and, raising himself to his fullest height, shouted out with the voice of a geyser:
"That's my thunder! That's my thunder!"
The roars of laughter that followed, and in which Brougham himself, the Denis of the moment, was compelled to join, baffled all description. His speech was no longer to be thought of, except in so far as it had elicited the ready wit of Canning.—Temple Bar.

MUSINGS IN A GRAVEYARD.

I like to get away from the live men and seek the companionship of the dead ones. I believe I love the dead people. It is good to stroll about among the tombstones and look down upon the graves of them that sleep. You seem to catch some of the sweet quiet of their dreamless repose, and as you read their names and think of them all this grim, nameless fear of death passes away.
One day, away out in Blissfield, Mich., I left the little (and the town is usually about all I do leave after collecting my fee)—I left the little town, dozing away the early March afternoon, and strolled out to the acre where the sleepers await the resurrection dawn. I glance at the stones as I pass along the little mounds and wonder that people should live so long. Most of the quiet ones—could they hear me as I walked through the dead grass and rustling leaves, I wondered—most of them seemed to have dropped asleep in good old age, far down the quiet afternoon of life, like an old man falling asleep in his armchair, watching the fading sunlight die
away and the creeping shadows falling over his meadows and brown stubble fields. How tenderly you feel toward the dead you have never known as you stand among them.—
Robert Burdette.

It is not genius so much as ability that carries one through the battles
of life.—[A. B. Street.

SETTLING THE LAND.

This question cannot be discussed too much. It claims the best thought of the nation. The life of the Kingdom depends upon its solution. Unless this is to be a country of lords and serfs, it must have freeholders for the bulk of its citizens. Before advertising to a point suggested by our correspondent, "Farmer," we wish to emphatically repeat the opinion expressed by us in discussing the Homestead Act some time ago. That is, that the native race should have the first consideration in the apportionment of public lands for settlement. This is the lapid of the Hawaiian race. The interests of that race should be made paramount to those of all classes and conditions of foreigners in the settlement of the country. Not only give the Hawaiians the first chance and the first choice in taking up the lands at disposal, but let everything possible be done by both the Government and the professedly benevolent foreigner to induce the natives to engage in independent farming. As to the statements made by our correspondent, regarding the conduct of large landholders, we need only say that he is well-informed in the matter, and nothing need be added to his reflections. A great deal might, however, be said upon the sentiment of the closing words of his letter: "It should not be a question of how much can be got from the sales or leases, but how to settle a permanent population. Never mind the revenue. Get the population, and then the revenue will come." A large population of independent farmers would be the best security against such a depleted state of the treasury as is now producing great embarrassment to the Government—that is, provided affairs were administered at the same time with prudence and sound economy. With a very moderate custom-taxation, the duties upon agricultural implements alone would be a prolific source of revenue. The consumption of foreign dutiable goods would be vastly developed by the addition of few hundred independent producers to the population. Also the burden of internal taxation would be subdivided so as to make it lighter upon individual taxpayers, without a necessarily corresponding increase in public expenditures.

THE CANADIAN FISHERIES.

Next July, under notice from the American Government, the Fishery Clauses of the Treaty of Washington, concluded in 1871 between Great Britain and the United States, will be abrogated. That will leave the matter of the fisheries of Canada subject to the provisions of the London convention of 1818. Those forbid American fishermen from prosecuting their occupation within three miles from the shores of Canada and Newfoundland, with certain limited exceptions. They permit American fishermen to enter bays or harbors for the purpose of repairing damages or laying in stores. Mr. Joseph Doutré, Queen's Counsel, of Montreal, who was the senior counsel for Canada in the Halifax Fishery Commission of 1875—an international board of arbitration which decreed that the United States should pay Canada $5,500,000 as indemnity for the unauthorized use of her fisheries while the Fishery Clauses of the above Treaty were pending—is reported as saying that "if the conditions of the convention of 1818 are insisted on without any modification, there is sure to be trouble, because the conditions imposed are so very strict, and the temptation to infringe upon them offered to American fishermen so great, that it will be next to impossible to avoid the frequent occurrence of the most dangerous collisions." Under the different international treaties the Americans were granted equal rights with the Canadians in the fisheries of the latter, and, although the Canadians had corresponding privileges on the American fishing grounds, the advantages were mainly on the side of the Americans, for their fisheries were not worth seeking by the Canadians. The latter, however, had free access to the American markets for their fish and fish oil, which perhaps made the advantages even. Mr. Doutré, above mentioned, described the Canadian fisheries as being inexhaustible and more valuable to Canada than gold was to California. When the Halifax fishery award, above referred to, was made, there was a great outcry, led by the New England fishermen who were engaged in Canadian waters, that the amount was most exorbitant and simply a present to Canada. The same influence kept up a persistent agitation against the Fishery Clauses of the Treaty until the American Government was induced to give notice of the abrogation of the Fishery Clauses as above stated. Perhaps the Gloucester fishermen will have reason to regret their course, which looks very much like biting off their noses to spite their faces.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

So it appears the Mexican-Hawaiian steamship line, so confidently promised a while ago, was only a speculative scheme, and has "gone up the flume." What about the treaty with Mexico that our esteemed Attorney-General got the "promise of, from the party of the other part?" There could have been nothing speculative in it.

The Advertiser says, respecting samples of ramie fibre produced by a French invention, that, "The difference between the most highly-finished French samples and the Coleman is about that to be observed between No. 1 brown sugars that we send to San Francisco and the white granulated which we receive back from there." This is a gratifying tribute to local genius, and ought to go far toward inspiring confidence in the stock of the Hawaiian Ramie Company.

PEOPLE THE COUNTRY.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—I am glad you do not weary of advocating the throwing open of the public lands for settlement of small farmers. You are doing a service which some, at least, appreciate. I am also glad to see that other papers are beginning to follow your lead. In my humble opinion, as well as in the opinion of a few others whom I know, it would be wisdom on the part of the papers to give a little more prominence to this and similar questions instead of occupying their columns with an endless repetition of matters of which the public have long been sick. To say that the settlement of these islands by an industrious peasantry is indispensable to their permanent prosperity, is only a reiteration of what has been said a thousand times, and what every intelligent and reflective man admits to be true. It is gratifying to learn that one "large landholder" is ready and willing to "throw open some large and valuable tracts to settlement upon the most favorable terms," and it is to be hoped that others will be induced to do the same. Hitherto the large landholders have mostly locked up their lands from settlement or offered them at a price that none but a Chinaman could pay and live. If they would have their lands occupied by people who would gladly settle on them permanently, they must put them in the market at considerably less than thirty or forty dollars an acre rent per year. No land is worth so much for agricultural purposes, and no man with a conscience would ever ask so much. But large land owners, the world over, are mostly a lot of selfish, avaricious, grinding despots, and to expect much from them is to be disappointed. We are justified, however, in looking for more consideration from enlightened and liberal government. While private persons may be allowed to seek first, last, and always their own gain, such a thing is not to be tolerated in the policy of representative government. Its first concern is, or should be, the good of the state of which it is constituted, and I hold the belief that the Hawaiian Government would best serve the good of this little state by throwing open the lands under its control for settlement by people who will occupy and cultivate them. It should not be a question of how much can be got from the sales or leases, but how to settle a permanent population. Never mind the revenue. Get the population, and then the revenue will come.

The upper lots were purchased by Mr. Macfarlane for a residence, and for the purpose of improvement, it has had great care and cultivation, so that at present it is well covered by a large variety of trees, as well as a choice collection of plants and flowers, all in bloom.

Among the fruit and shade trees will be found the Traveler's Tree, the Royal Palm, the Wine Palm, the Lemon Tree, the Fan Palm, the Coccoloba, the Japanese Orange, the Pometia Regia, the Mandarin Orange, the Fig Tree, the Alligator Pear, the Algeabra and others. In Roses and Flowers there are a great variety, which must be seen to be appreciated.

Water pipes are laid on in each of Lots Nos. 1 to 7, inclusive, and 30 feet of hose will reach any part of them. These lots are situated just in the centre of Kaloakaha Plains, on the principal street leading from Honolulu, and are within twenty minutes walk from town, as well as being upon the omnibus route to Paianai.

Each offer, however, very favorable terms for purchase, namely, One-Fourth Cash, and balance in equal payments of one, two, three and four years, with interest at 7 per cent, secured by mortgage.

TESTIMONY TO IRON FILTER PRESSES IMPORTED BY H. HACKFELD & CO.

IT IS the second season this Press is in use in connection with the Lahaina Mill, and is proving a great success. I estimate the saving at about 5 percent of the crop. The many advantages these Presses have over the wooden ones in use on these Islands are as follows: They are much stronger, being able to stand a pressure of 100 pounds of steam, the skimmings are, therefore, forced through much quicker and consequently more work is being done with them. As each frame has a separate outlet, it is not necessary to stop working the Press altogether should one Press cloth be leaking; it is sufficient to stop the outflow of the leaking frame. The Press cloths can be changed much quicker, as no sewing is required. The Press will last forever, it never can get out of order. Lahaina, February, 1885. 959 1w E. MOELLER

LORD PALMERSTON AND THE REPORTERS.

An enterprising reporter had heard that the late Lord Palmerston was to be present at an archery meeting in a small country village in Hampshire, and he accordingly posted down to the place, and waited for something to turn up.

Lord Palmerston's task was to distribute prizes to some half dozen young ladies, and the whole company present did not number much above a score.

His lordship performed the task with his usual grace and good humor, giving the young ladies a paternal pat on the head, but making only the most commonplace observations.

Our stenographer waited anxiously in his place until, to his horror, he saw the proceedings brought to a close without a speech from the Premier.

This was more than he could stand.

He rushed from his corner to the noble lord, who was getting out of the room as fast as he could.

"My lord, I beg your pardon, but really this won't do."

"What do you mean?" was the reply of the astonished statesman.

"Why, you've made no speech. I've come all the way from London to report it, and I must have a speech of some sort."

Whereupon, it is on record—and this story is a true one—that the good-tempered nobleman turned back, and detained the retreating audience twenty minutes while he gave them a genial dissertation on the good qualities of English women in general, and of Hampshire lasses in particular.

On another occasion, however, he made up for this complaisance.

He was attending an agricultural dinner, and saw a large gathering of reporters, for the times were critical, and a speech of his certain to be valuable.

But he had made up his mind not to speak—no man knew better when to hold his tongue—and accordingly he slyly sent down to the "gentlemen of the press" a slip of paper, on which, in his bold round hand, were the words, "This fish won't bite!"

TOBACCO SMOKE.

Zulinski has recently published, in a Polish medical paper, the result of a large series of experiments on men and animals, made for the purpose of ascertaining the physiological action of tobacco smoke on animals.

He has found that the smoke is a powerful poison, even in very small quantities. In the case of man tobacco smoke, when not inhaled too freely, is only deleterious to a limited extent.

Zulinski declares that the poisonous character of the smoke is not entirely due to the nicotine which it contains. Tobacco smoke rendered free from nicotine remains poisonous, though not to so great a degree as before.

The second poisonous principle is an alkaloid, colidin. Carbonic oxide, hydrocyanic acid and other noxious principles are also contained in tobacco smoke.

The bad effects of excessive smoking depend very much both on the kind of tobacco consumed and on the manner of consuming it.

In cigar-smoking the greatest amount of poison is inhaled. In cigarettes much less, in pipes still less, while those who indulge in the narghah or any similar luxury where the smoke is drawn through water, take tobacco in its least mischievous form.

Such are Zulinski's conclusions. There can be little doubt that many of the light-colored tobaccos have been partially bleached in order to give them that pale tint which moderate smokers believe to be an infallible indication of mildness.

The decolorizing agent is suspected to be in many cases a deleterious chemical compound. Some of the light tobaccos smoke exceedingly hot, owing to the quantity of woody fiber which they contain.

This is especially the case with "bird's-eye," which is cut near the stalk of the leaf, the slices of the midrib, thick in this part of the leaf, giving this variety of tobacco the characteristic appearance from which it derives its name.

"Bird's-eye" is very apt to cause slight inflammation of the tongue, on account of the irritant character of its smoke, and, together with other light tobaccos, must act very prejudicially in elderly smokers, who may be prone to cancer of the tongue or lip.

Dark tobaccos are readily adulterated, but when pure they are probably the most wholesome for pipe-smoking. — British Medical Journal.

AN ALARMING DISEASE AFFLICTING A NUMEROUS CLASS.

The disease commences with a slight derangement of the stomach, but, if neglected, it in time involves the whole frame, embracing the kidneys, liver, pancreas, and, in fact, the entire glandular system, and the afflicted drags out a miserable existence until death gives relief from suffering.

The disease is often mistaken for other complaints, but if the reader will ask himself the following questions, he will be able to determine whether he himself is one of the afflicted:—Have I distress, pain, or difficulty in breathing after eating? Is there a dull, heavy feeling attended by drowsiness? Have the eyes a yellow tinge? Does a thick, sticky, mucous gather about the gums and teeth in the mornings, accompanied by a disagreeable taste? Is the tongue coated? Is there pain in the side and back? Is there a pain about the right side as if the liver were enlarged? Is there costiveness? Is there vertigo or dizziness when rising suddenly from a horizontal position? Are the secretions from the kidneys scanty and highly coloured, with a deposit after standing? Does food ferment, soon after eating, accompanied by flatulence or a belching of gas from the stomach? Is there frequent palpitation of the heart? These various symptoms may not be present at one time, but they torment the sufferer in turn as the dreadful disease progresses.

If the case be one of long standing, there will be a dry, hacking cough, attended after a time by expectoration. In very advanced stages the skin assumes a dirty brownish appearance, and the hands and feet are covered by a cold, sticky perspiration. As the liver and kidneys become more and more diseased, rheumatic pains appear, and the usual treatment proves entirely unavailing against this latter agonizing disorder. The origin of this malady is indigestion or dyspepsia, and a small quantity of the proper medicine will remove the disease if taken in its incipient stage. It is most important that the disease should be promptly and properly treated in its first stages, when a little medicine will effect a cure and even when it has obtained a strong hold the correct remedy should be persevered in until every vestige of the disease is eradicated, until the appetite has returned, and the digestive organs restored to a healthy condition. The surest and most effectual remedy for this distressing complaint is "Seigel's Curative Syrup," a vegetable preparation sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors throughout the world, and by the proprietors, A. J. White Limited, 17, Faringdon Road, London, E. C.

This Syrup strikes at the very foundation of the disease, and drives it, root and branch, out of the system.

Market Place, Pocklington, York, October 2nd, 1882.

Sir,—Being a sufferer for years with dyspepsia in all its worst forms, and after spending pounds in medicines, I was at last persuaded to try Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, and am thankful to say I have derived much benefit, and it has done more for me than any other medicine I ever took, and would advise any one suffering from the same complaint to give it a trial, the results they would soon find out for themselves. If you like to make use of this testimonial you are quite at liberty to do so.

Yours respectfully, (Signed) R. TURNER.

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition. They cure costiveness.

Hensingham, Whitehaven, Oct. 16th, '82.

Mr. A. J. White.—Dear Sir,—I was for some time afflicted with dyspepsia, and was advised to give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial, which I did. I am now happy to state that it has restored me to complete health.—I remain, yours respectfully, (Signed) JOHN H. LIGHTFOOT.

15th August, 1883.

St. Mary-street, Peterborough, November 29th, 1881.

Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to inform you of the benefit I have received from Seigel's Syrup. I have been troubled for years with dyspepsia; but after a few doses of the Syrup, I found relief, and after taking two bottles of it I felt quite cured.

I am, Sir, yours truly, Mr. A. J. White. WILLIAM BRENT.

Dear Sir,—I write to tell you that Mr. Henry Hillier, of Yatesburg, Wils., informs me that he suffered from a severe form of indigestion for upwards of four years, and took no end of doctor's medicine without the slightest benefit, and declares Mother Seigel's Syrup which he got from me has saved his life.

Yours truly, (Signed) N. WREAP, Chemist, Calne, September 8th, 1883.

Dear Sir,—I find the sale of Seigel's Syrup steadily increasing. All who have tried it speak very highly of its medicinal virtues; one customer describes it as a "Godsend to dyspeptic people." I always recommend it with confidence.

Faithfully yours, (Signed) VINCENT A. WILKS, Chemist-Dentist, Merthyr Tydfil.

To Mr. A. J. White, Preston, Sept. 21st 1883.

My Dear Sir,—Your Syrup and Pills are still very popular with my customers, many saying they are the best family medicines possible.

The other day a customer came for two bottles of Syrup and said "Mother Seigel" had saved the life of his wife, and he added, "one of these bottles I am sending fifteen miles away to a friend who is very ill. I have much faith in it."

The sale keeps up wonderfully, in fact, one would fancy almost that the people were beginning to breakfast, dine, and sup on Mother Seigel's Syrup, the demand is so constant and the satisfaction so great.—I am dear Sir, yours faithfully, (Signed) W. BOWKER.
