TIMIDITY—A HINDOO FABLE.
(From Boston.)
A silly mouse, thinking some thing a cat,
Fell into a hissing wretched trap;
But, noticed by a wizard living near,
Was turned into a cat to end its fear.
No sooner was the transformation done
Than dreadful terror of a dog began.
Now, when the wizard saw this latest throng,
"Here, be a dog," he said, "and end your wag."
But, though a dog, its soul had no release,
For four some tiger might disturb its peace.
Into a tiger next the beast was made,
And still 'twas painful and sore afraid,
Because the huntsman might, some ill
stared day,
Happen along and take its life away.
"Then," said the wizard, turning to his son,
"You have a mouse's heart—now be a mouse."
'Tis so with men; no earthly help or power
Can add one atom to their native power;
Them from their smallness nothing can remove—
No art can make a lion from a mouse.

Have Presence of Mind.
(Chicago Herald "Train Talk.")
"Talking about presence of mind," said the brakeman, "let me tell you of a little incident that I know something about,
'cause I was there. We were out one bad night when we got stuck in a snowdrift.
I was head brakeman, and had nothing to do with dragging our train. That was the business of the other brakeman, but, as he had been drinking a good deal, I felt a little alarmed for fear he would go to sleep, so pretty soon I slipped back to see if he was attending to business, and I found him lying flat on the track, asleep.
He had fallen on his lantern—the red one
—and broken it all to pieces.
"Just then I heard the passenger coming, and she was coming fast, too. How to stop that train I didn't know. I had my white lantern, but a white light just the thing for a danger signal in a snowstorm. The only red lantern within reach was broken into a thousand pieces at my feet. I suppose I might have stopped the train with my own lantern, but it would have been risky, as the drunken car hadn't gone back more than half as far as he should, and a white light doesn't show far in a storm. But I was mad, and as that damned trolley didn't stop, I suddenly concluded I would make sure of my work."
"What did you do?"
"I hit him in the nose and held my lantern to catch the blood. In thirty seconds I had the daisiest red lantern ever an engineer set eyes on."

An Irish Market Day.
(Good Words.)
The monthly market was being held at Ballinacross, through which, luckily, the Moy runs, for the town is incredibly dirty when I arrived, and I found the market place
the geese and the ponies and the donkeys and the girls and the "boys" congregated in the market-place. There was plenty of noise, but no fighting, and, in fact, during my whole stay in Ireland I did not see a single fight. I don't believe, indeed, that the Irishman is by nature a quarrelsome animal; he fights simply because he likes it; growing in his own language "blue-nosed for want of a bating," he rides down to the fair, and trails his coat across the road in the simplest and purest spirit of enjoyment.
No, I did not see a single fight, but the most charming Irishwoman I met told me what it was like. A hundred sicks are raised simultaneously, for an instant for an instant only, to enable the women to escape their cover in the air, as fir trees shake in the wind before a storm, and then down they come with a noise like the patter of hailstones upon water, on those old hats and bonnets, time the miller plays on cheerfully and the dancers continue their jig without concerning themselves about the fight—
such is the force of habit.

Snobbish British Amateurs.
(Chicago Herald.)
Sydney Smith's "3 pence looking down on a half penny" has just had an illustration which transcends the most moving instance of national weakness cited in "The Book of Snobs." It should be well known that one of the burning questions of the day on the other side, and to some extent here, is and has long been as to the essential elements of the property known as a gentleman amateur.
There are amateurs and amateurs as there are factors and factors, and the degrees of greatness and littleness do not travel off more cursorily into the infinite than do the grades and varieties of the British amateur. His more recent performance is the proclamation by the cricketers of a club formed by amateurs employed in wholesale houses to the effect that "the gentlemen engaged in wholesale commerce" are required as a condition of membership of the club to take no part in matches against "persons employed in retail trade." This manifest seems incredible, but it is in print all the same.

O. G. O. Exchange.
(Fortnightly Review.)
The adoption of the title of "stock exchange" dates from the 14th of July, 1773, when, as we are told in an old newspaper, "the brokers and others at New Jonathan's" so called after the fire in 1748 had consumed Jonathan's property, came to the resolution that instead of its being called "New Jonathan's" it should be called the "Stock Exchange," which is to be wrote over the door."
This change of name, however, was not effected without some ceremony, for the rejoicer goes on to say "The brokers then collected sixpence each and christened the house with the name." Funch, by the way, appears to have been the special apple of stock jobbers in those days, for in an old play written in 1710, in a scene at Jonathan's, one of the characters exclaims:
"Funch punch punch in the morning.
You surprise me, exclaim!" To which the colonel replies, "Why, most of your stock jobbers drink it, for they are fit for nothing till their brains are a little addled." The custom of stock exchange punch drinking still lingers at Birch's, I believe, but for the most part it has given way to the more congenial glass of sherry at Malby's.

THE AUSTRALIAN BALLOT SYSTEM.

A gentleman possessed of exceptional intelligence, whose perceptive faculties have been developed and sharpened by large experience in many parts of the world, and who has recently returned from a visit to the Australian colonies, was asked in our presence the other day to give the result of his observations upon the Australian system of secret voting and its practical results. His statement in reply was to the effect that although the law in question seemed to be carried out very fully, both in letter and spirit, it had failed to produce anything like that political golden age which many of those who are urging its adoption in other countries seem to regard as its natural and necessary outcome.

Although bribery and intimidation seem, under this system, to be so difficult as to be practically eliminated as elements in determining the result of an election, the complaint is still made by the more intelligent and orderly portion of the community, that under the operation of unqualified manhood suffrage, they are practically, in many places, ruled by the mob.

This is by no means incredible. Giving people perfect freedom to vote as they please will do very little good unless they are pleased to vote right. If a majority of the voting population is ignorant, if their moral tone is low and their conceptions of political duties and responsibilities of a selfish and sordid kind, they will be likely, under any system that can be devised, to vote according to their natures and elect men to public office who are very much of their own stamp. Relieving men from certain temptations may make it easier for them sometimes to do right, but it does not change their natures. To remove opportunities for bribery and intimidation and allow the voter to cast his ballot just as he sees fit is entirely proper. Unless, however, he has intelligence enough to appreciate the advantages of good government, and public spirit and personal virtue enough to desire the election of good men, the net results in the way of political reform will be exceedingly small.

We are not opposing the Australian system. On the contrary, we believe it to be, for the purpose of obtaining a free and untrammelled expression of the sentiments of the electorate, the best system yet devised, and we should have been glad to have seen it tried here. We only deprecate the common tendency to place too much dependence on systems, or plans, or methods, or machinery of some kind as means of purifying public affairs and elevating the tone of politics. Let it never be forgotten that there is, and can be, but one safe foundation on which to build a representative system of government, and that is the intelligence and virtue of the voting population.

The failure of the Australian system of voting, even in the land of its origin, where it has been fairly tried, to bring about any reasonable resemblance to a political millennium, should temper the asperity of those who have shown a disposition to blame such members of the government and the legislature as were not convinced of the wisdom of embodying the essential features of this system in our new election law. It is by no means to be assumed that those who did not regard the provisions of the Australian law as suited to our own conditions are either the friends of political corruption, or the enemies of good government and the purity of elections.

A Great Fighting Ship.

A ship of the Benbow class would of herself be almost a sufficient defense at any of these colonial ports, always provided that she was so placed with her back to the wall, as the saying is, and covered with her two 11-tonners. Imagine the Benbow stationed off the Nobby's at Newcastle for example. It would then be a fair thing to say, that the chief coal port south of the equator was tolerably safe. As stated, the Benbow carries two 11-ton guns besides other smaller guns. A shot from one of them weighs 1,800 lb., and when propelled by the full charge of 850 lb., can tear its way through a whole yard of iron armor. The gun is 43 ft. 8 in. long, and the projectile is over 4 in. long and nearly 1 ft. 5 in. in diameter. England's eight best ironclads cost nearly $5,000,000, the Benbow costing $750,000. Two more ships nearly finished, the Nile and Trafalgar, of 12,000 tons each, will cost nearly $1,000,000 apiece. At this price each will be worth its weight in copper. The simultaneous discharge of the guns of the entire fleet would develop force enough to lift the ships, guns, and all, 2 ft. out of the water.—[Exchange.]

Journalism Under Difficulties.

A newspaper in one of the western States of America, called the Rocky Mountain Cyclone, opened the first article of its first number as follows: "We begin the publication of the Rocky Mountain Cyclone with some phew difficulties in the way. The type pounder phrom whom we bought the outfit phor this printing office phaled to supply us with any ephs or eys, and it will be phour or phive weeks before we can get any. We have ordered the missing letters, and will have to wait until they come. We don't like the loox or this variety of spelling any better than our readers, but mistax will happen in the best regulated or phamilies, and iph the ephs and eys and exes and qus hold out we shall ceep (sound the c hard) the Cyclone whirling apther a phasion till the sorts arrive. It is no jecque to us; it is a serious apphair."

Longest Piece of Ordnance.

A correspondent of the Army and Navy Journal asks: "What is the longest piece of ordnance that has ever been successfully fired?" and receives the following answer: "If you include in the term ordnance everything that carries a projectile, we would answer fourteen miles. This is the straight tube conveying natural gas from Murrayville to Pittsburg. To clear this tube out a projectile known as the 'gum ball' was inserted in the end at the gas well, closely filling the interior. The gas was then turned on full force, and the gum ball was then fired through its full length, coming out at the further end in a few minutes."—Scientific American.

It is alleged that among the numerous ways in which the Crown Prince Rudolf met his death was a duel on the "American plan," where the opponents shake the dice, and the loser takes up his journey to the undiscovered country by any route his fancy may dictate. The peculiarity of the duel on the "American plan" is that it is practised exclusively in Europe. In America it would be called the dumphool plan.—[Alta.]

A KOHALA BUDGET.

Complimentary Dance—A Loss to Society—Weather—Police—Roads.

The most enjoyable dance of the season occurred at the Kaiopih Hall on the evening of the 19th inst. There were present sixteen ladies, and, as usual, an overplus of men. The evening was so decidedly cool that overcoats were in good demand, and the wind being a "kona" was in just the right quarter for the comfort of the trippers of the "light fantastic." At 10 o'clock, or thereabouts, a fine collation was served, and dancing resumed until 12 o'clock. There were four or five couples who indulged in the round dances, and more would had they known how. The company was composed of Kohalates with the exception, so far as we know, of Mrs. James Renton of Hanakua, and Mr. Sproull from Honolulu.

This dance was given as a farewell send-off to Mr. Ballentine, who has recently severed his connection with Hawaii, where he has been engaged for the past year. During this time he has made many friends here, and as far as we know, no enemies, and we shall all miss him, in our business and social relations, and do not know where or when we will be able to secure such a skillful and good-natured "caller" and "caller" our loss is some other district's gain, even though we do not derive much satisfaction in the thought.

There seems to be a dearth of news, of any particular importance. To a greater or less extent we are all interested in the Samoan war, and many are wondering will "John Bull" and "Uncle Sam" back down. We are very "dry," and the planters anxious for rain. The wind for the past week has been about as for the most part, viz., in four points of the compass the same day. No appearance of whooping cough yet, although we are still in dread of it. Nearly everyone is indulging in a real old-fashioned, sneezing, blowing, coughing cold, caused by the antics of the tricky old lady, "Dame Nature."

By the way, Rip Van Winkle would have taken up his abode in our midst. Witness an event that occurred nearly two months since, viz., the accident to Mr. and Miss Hall, has just been chronicled by the old gent.

Deputy Sheriff Spencer is very active in ferreting out the gamblers, opium smugglers and whiskey sellers, and we are inclined to the opinion that Mr. Hitchcock did an exceedingly good thing when he effected the change in deputies. Our roads are being put in first-class condition, and as soon as Haula is "pau" grinding, we will see them at work on the new Waianae road, which they will soon convert into a fine carriage drive. Mr. Wood is entitled to great credit for his untiring zeal in pushing forward the good work. Good roads are factors in developing a country equally with Christianity, and should go hand in hand.

There have been no more canefield fires of late, in consequence of which C. B. now takes his customary nap, from 8 p. m. to 5 a. m. For fear of calling a brown to your "marble brow" we close. X.

Kohala, February 20th.

GRAND BALLOON ASCENSION

Kapiolani Park!

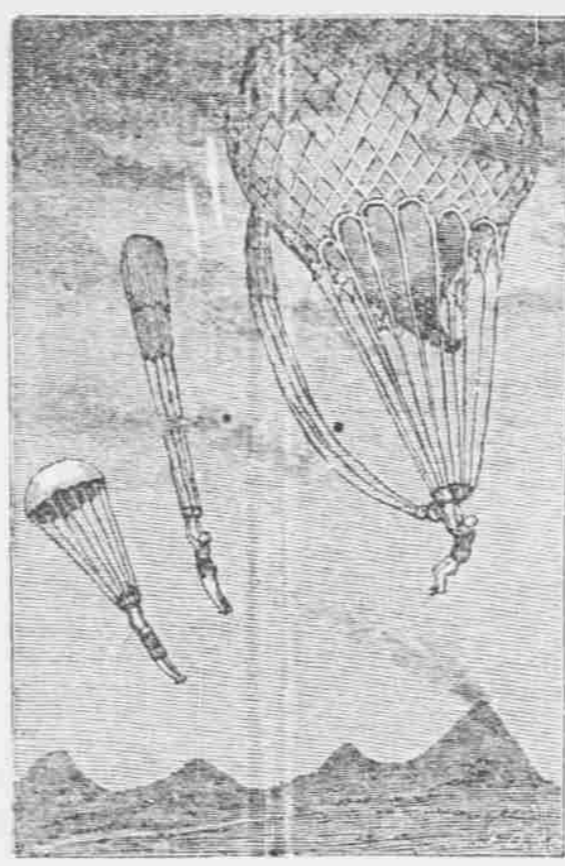

Saturday Afternoon, March 2d, at 4 p. m.

BY

PROFESSOR EMIL L. MELVILLE,

The Most Famous and Successful Aeronaut in the World!

Do Not Fail to See This Perilous Feat! A Jump of 5,000 Feet From the Clouds!

Ascend Hanging by His Toes to a Trapeze! Acrobatic Performance in the Air!

PROFESSOR MELVILLE has made 300 successful ascensions. He will leap from the Balloon when at an altitude of 5,000 feet and descend to the earth with a Parachute.

PROFESSOR MELVILLE, whose success for so young a man has been unprecedented, is a member of the Military Academy of Aeronautical Work, of Mondon, France. His father performed some great and daring work during the Siege of Paris. He made four balloon ascensions from Place Caroussel, Paris, and carried 16,000 letters and messages safely through the Prussian lines. When a boy the Professor made his first ascension with his father, who with a committee composed of Gambetta, Claretie, of the Parisian Press, Durant, the Astronomer of the Observatory of Paris, and General Negrez, started from the Anglaise, in the City of Nice, on the 7th of June and landed on the 16th at Moscow, Russia, traveling 6,000 miles, and at an altitude of 23,000 feet.

The Professor will make the ascent hanging by his toe to a trapeze fastened to the mouth of the balloon, performing all the while in midair. When at an elevation of 5,000 feet he will leap from the balloon and descend in the parachute.

The Balloon will be inflated at 2 p. m., and the Professor would respectfully suggest to the public that they be present at that time, as it is the most interesting feature of the entertainment, and should be witnessed, as the sight will, in all probability, never be seen again in this city.

COME AND BRING YOUR LITTLE ONES!

COME EARLY AND SECURE A GOOD PLACE!

The Royal Hawaiian Band will be in Attendance!

ADMISSION:

Adults..... 50 cents
Children under 12 years..... 25 cents
Reserved seats in Grand Stand..... 25 cents extra

Ample arrangements for the conveyance of the public to the Park have been made, at reasonable rates.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Professor Melville is undoubtedly great as the people of San Francisco know, and his daring feat of last Sunday exceeded any of his other attempts.—S. F. Chronicle.

Sixty-three thousand people, by actual count, witnessed Professor Melville's balloon ascension at Ocean Beach yesterday.—N. Y. Herald.

Professor Melville has most successfully improved on the balloon parachute, thus rendering the leap in mid-air comparatively safe.—Sacramento Union.

Professor Melville has no equal in his aeronaut performance in mid-air. He stands first in his profession.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Buy your tickets before going to the Park, if possible, to avoid a rush at the gate.

POSTPONEMENT OF EXECUTION.

Respite Granted Ahopa at a Late Hour - A Parallel Case in Hawaiian Jurisprudence.
To-day, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 12 m., was the time set for the execution of Ahopa, the Chinaman convicted at the November, 1888, term of the Third Judicial Circuit for complicity in the Pana murder. The prisoner has been for some time past in Oahu Prison, under sentence of death. At the eleventh hour, Col. Ashford was called in by the friends of the condemned, to assist Mr. Whiting, whom the Court had assigned to the defence of the accused at term; and counsel at once set to work preparing petitions to the King and Privy Council for commutation of sentence. But as there was much to be done in this matter, and as the time was so short, while the petitions were being pushed in one direction, proceedings were taken in another, to obtain a respite. About 10 o'clock on Saturday night an order of respite was finally signed by Mr. Justice Dole, of the Supreme Court, delaying the execution till Tuesday the 5th day of March next, in order to give an opportunity for deliberation on the case by His Majesty and the Privy Council. It is understood that the petitions will be formally handed in to the secretary of the Privy Council tomorrow, and that an early meeting of that august body will be called to take the matter into deliberation.

This is believed to be the second case in the history of Hawaiian criminal procedure, where a respite has been obtained for a prisoner under death sentence; the first being that of a Mrs. Davis, convicted and sentenced for complicity with a paragon in the murder of her husband. In that instance, previous proceedings were taken on legal suggestions to the Court by Preston (then Attorney-General, and now one of the Supreme Justices), in order to further the ends of justice by the introduction of newly discovered evidence. The order granting the same was signed by Chief Justice Harris. The authority for granting respite is derived from the sixtieth section of the law commonly known as the Criminal Procedure Act. There were a number of officials of the Marshal's department in town from the other islands to witness the execution in their official capacities. What the final result will be no one can say at this time.

ART AND AERONAUTICS.

Mr. Tavernier Promises a Picture-Balloon Experience of the Artist.
Mr. Jules Tavernier is going to execute a sketch in black and white, illustrating the balloon ascent and parachute descent of Prof. Melville. When completed by the artist the sketch will be reduced by photography and engraved by Mr. Ollert on wood. Mr. Tavernier does this out of aloha for the professor, whose father he was well acquainted with in France. The engraving will be used in the local papers. Mr. Tavernier takes much interest in aeronautics, having made two balloon ascensions himself. Once he accompanied the celebrated aeronaut, Prof. Busley, who since died in Mexico, in an ascension of Woodward's Gardens, San Francisco. The other members of the party were Mr. Paulirez, a brother artist who came out from New York with Mr. Tavernier for Harper & Bros., Mr. Thomas Neeseomb, editor of the Call and first President of the Bohemian Club, and Mr. McRoberts of the Call staff. This adventure ended somewhat disastrously, for the balloon burst and gave the occupants a precipitate descent. Their car came in collision with several buildings in the gardens, including the quarters of the famous "happy family." Very fortunately no loss of life or limb resulted from the accident. Should Prof. Melville give a second exhibition here, Mr. Tavernier seriously meditates taking a view with him, from the clouds, of the "Paradise of the Pacific."

GREAT BALLOON SHOW.

A Voyage to the Clouds and an Awful Leap to Earth.
Prof. Melville's great balloon ascent and parachute descent will take place at Kapiolani Park on Saturday next. It will be the most startling exhibition ever given in these islands. Of late it has been almost impossible to take up a foreign paper without finding mention of similar aerial performances, but Prof. Melville tends evidence of being at the head of living aeronauts. The inflation of the balloon can only be seen on the ground, and it is an exceedingly interesting process, as the writer can testify from observation. There is something grand in the gradual swelling of the vast globe, as well as its seemingly impatient struggles to be free from the ropes reys. Then the sight of the balloon like a mere speck in the sky is not fully appreciated except by those who have seen its great bulk at close hand, while the fearful rapidity with which it spurs terrestrial objects and soars into the empyrean vault is awe-inspiring. An advertisement in this paper gives a portion of Prof. Melville's record, as well as tells what he proposes to do at Kapiolani Park.

Band Concert.

The Royal Hawaiian Band will give a concert this evening at Emma Square, commencing at 7.30. Following is the programme:
1. Overture—Hungarian. Bela
2. Polka—Cavalier. Fährbach

Police Court.

An opium case occupied most of the session on Saturday, but was not concluded.
Bill Pele was fined $5.10 for profanity. He swore at another driver on a hack stand.
A guilty pair pleaded so and their sentence was suspended one week.
Kamahuai and Solomon Kaloa, $5k each.
Ah Mang, opium in possession, $5k and hard labor one hour.

TAIEHU CLUB RACES.

Four Lively Events at the Kapiolani Park Track.
King Kalakaua, Prince Kawanakoa, many of the sporting fraternity, and one to two hundred spectators gathered at the Kapiolani Park race course on Saturday afternoon, to see a number of horse races under the auspices of the Taihu Driving Club. Capts. Tripp, Ross and Cluney were judges and Majors Parker and Cornwell time-keepers. Hon. John A. Cummins made entries in all the advertised events and was present on the track. Good time was made in each event, as the following summary will show:
No. 1, trotting race, 5 mile dash; purse $200.
1. Billy D., ch. g., E. R. Miles. Time, 14.52.
2. Sweetwood, s. m., E. G. Schumann.

BACK-NUMBER BUDD

THE PROSPEROUS BUSINESS OF AN ENTERPRISING COLORED MAN.

Over a Million Copies of Old Newspapers Collected on an Original Capital of $5—Belief of Old New York.

[New York World] Robert M. Budd ("Back Number Budd" he is called) is a colored man and was born in Washington thirty-two years ago. Five years ago he came to New York with $5 in his pocket and opened a boot-blacking stand where Wallace's theatre now is. Shrewd, enterprising and industrious, he got along and soon branched out into the newspaper business. Like other newspaper men he sometimes found himself with unsold copies of the daily papers on his hands. The frequent inquiry for old papers suggested an idea to Mr. Budd, and his present business is the carrying out of this idea—the keeping of complete files of all New York papers, so as to be able to furnish back numbers at any time.

In the basement of 1272 Broadway, on the east side of the street, a few doors above Thirty-second, Budd has his place. He still does business as a bootblack, but numerous signs inform the public that here they may subscribe for any publication desired. At one side of the entrance to the dark basement is this notice: "Back numbers of all daily papers for every day in the year," while opposite is another sign, "Boots blacked, 5 cents." Still another informs the public that the place is open every day in the year from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m., and that while even boot-blacking tickets may be bought for 25 cents, the proprietor is not willing to labor on the Lord's day for nothing, and therefore charges 10 cents for boot-blacking boots after 6 p. m. on Sunday.

When a reporter visited the place it was very dark, except at the foot of the stairs, and a dim jet of gas lit the back part of the room only seemed to aid to the general gloom. All about the room, on shelves, tables and counters, were piles of newspapers. The proprietor, a tall, good-natured young fellow, was busy writing in a book, stopping now and then to sort out some particular paper from a loose pile behind him.

"Yes," he said, "I'm 'Back Number Budd.' That nickname helps to advertise my business, so I don't mind. I've been here since Feb. 20, 1882; began with less than a wagon-load of old papers, and now I have 1,500,000. "What do I charge for these old papers? That depends on how old they are and how much they are wanted. My prices run from 5 cents up. Sometimes these lawyers want a paper to use in court, and they have to pay for it. The most I ever charged for a single paper was $20. A lawyer paid me $40 for two copies of the Sun published in 1831. Newspaper men often borrow papers, look them over here in the shop and pay me 50 cents or $1. A large part of my trade is in the country, but I never send papers out until they are paid for. Gen. Grant has bought papers from me. In June, 1864, he came and got a month's file of the papers containing a account of the Grant & Ward failure, and the next day his wife got 'The World and Tribune' for the same time.

"How do I keep track? Oh, that's easy enough. The papers are arranged by dates and tied in bundles of one month; then each paper has its own particular shelves, and the bundles are stored in regular order and each bundle is tagged. Here, for instance," pointing to a pile of papers, "is 'The World.' You see, they are arranged in double rows of six; that gives twelve bundles, one year, on each shelf. You ask for 'The World of July 4, 1868.' Here's the '83 stuff; July is the end bundle in the second row (seventh month, you know), and the paper you want is the fourth from the top of the bundle. The only trouble is that I'm getting crowded and will soon need more room. This place is 24x35, and it's full already. I keep files of twenty-five dailies, two Sunday papers and eight weeklies.

CUSTOMERS AND BUSINESS. "Who are your best customers?" "Newspaper men and lawyers, but I have calls from all sorts of people—lots of them from out of town." "Does the business pay?" "Well, I have 1,500,000 old papers—you can put any value on them you please—and I guess I've got the value of the $8 I started out with. Next year I want to buy a lot somewhere and put up a building to store my stock in. I haven't room for many more here. Yes, the business pays, but I'm not too proud to black boots yet awhile. "Here are some old papers," placing before the reporter a pile dusty and brown with age. The first was a Herald of May 20, 1844. The leading article was headed, "Acquire Begg's Great Letter. Against James Gordon Bennett and the New York and Erie Railroad Company." A Police Gazette of May 20, 1864, had on its first page a wretched wood cut of the capture of Jeff Davis, a Frank Leslie's of April 29, 1865, showed Booth shooting Lincoln, while the issue of May 6 contained pictures of Lincoln's funeral; and a week later, a full-page picture of two men in a boat dumping a sheeted figure into the sea, was entitled, "The Assassin's End." Other papers were a Herald of Aug. 20, 1860, containing an account of the opening of Central park; a Tribune of Nov. 2, 1844, with a "colossal" leader headed, "Can I conscientiously Vote for Henry Clay?" and signed, "A Professed Christian;" a bound volume of The Sun for the year 1834, including a copy of June 20, of that year, with turned column rules for the death of Lafayette. The Sun of those days was a four page sheet, with three short columns to the page. The editors were Benjamin H. Day and George W. Wisner.

Professional Entertainers. Within the past five or six years a new calling in the amusement line has come into existence. Those who follow it may be designated as professional entertainers, and they find plenty to do at club receptions and social gatherings at private houses without going upon the stage. An expert upon the piano or violin joins forces with a good reader or humorist, and they may take in a third who has gained a reputation as a pianist. This trio, if made up of fair artists, is capable of presenting a programme of light and entertaining character admirably suited to a club reception. A majority of these professional entertainers stand well socially and after finishing their programme become the guests of the club or family where they may appear. "It is a very pleasant way of making a living," said one of these entertainers a few evenings ago. "If you make any reputation your services are sure to be constantly in demand all through the season, and if you are so inclined you can pick up a good living at the several watering places in the summer time. Now I give recitations and readings and on occasion can act as accompanist upon the piano. My partner plays the baritone, violin and piano, and also possesses a fair tenor voice, so you see together we can give plenty of variety in our programme. After you have gained a little reputation at one club the members of the other clubs are sure to hear of it and you soon manage to make plenty of dates ahead."—Brooklyn Eagle.

GEO. W. LINCOLN,

THE WELL-KNOWN BUILDER IS STILL IN THE FIELD AS A CONTRACTOR, and is now better prepared to do any and all kinds of work appertaining to contracting or any other class of work belonging to his trade, in the same good and workmanlike manner as heretofore; having curtailed my shop expenses and still retain plenty of room to do any and all kinds of work appertaining to the building trade that may be entrusted to my care. I am enabled to do the same at very low rates, to suit the extremely dull times, and at the same time bearing in mind that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Thanking the public for past favors, I remain respectfully yours, GEO. W. LINCOLN.

REPORT

Prof. Alexander Wasthewitz, Public Analyzing Chemist for the Florida Government, St. Petersburg.

"Murray & Lanman's FLORIDA WATER does not contain any mineral parts which could be poisonous to health."

"The comparative investigation has shown that Murray & Lanman's FLORIDA WATER possesses in a well-defined state a greater ability and power to purify the air than 'Eucalypti' and in this respect Murray & Lanman's FLORIDA WATER is far preferable to the well-known Eucalypti Water."
