

ALPINE CLIMBERS.

HOPEFUL TOURISTS WHO REACH THE HIGHEST POINT IN EUROPE.

Thrilling Account Given by a Traveler—Dangers of the Trip—How Climbers Are Affected—On the Mountain Top.

(Democrat's Monthly.) It costs from $20 to $30 to make the ascent of Mont Blanc. Each person must have a guide and a porter to carry luggage, provisions, etc.

"After the sun went down," he said, "we sat a long time on the narrow ledge of rock on which the last party had to wait to watch the daylight die along the length of the valley. All was peace and stillness about us in our isolation."

"One by one we disappeared in the little hut, rolled ourselves in our blankets, and lay down to rest. The snow ceased, the fires went out, and it drew on to midnight. We could not sleep. Sleep! We heard the sound of the falling avalanches in the distance thundering and booming in our ears, and feeling as we did that into that wild chaos and fury we were to go out in a few hours."

ON THE MOUNTAIN TOP. "In some portions of the route no roken silence is preserved, but to the whistling, even from the voices in the rare atmosphere, might detach an avalanche of snow and stones trembling in the balance. And then the last desperate climb! A solid wall of ice, which must be met with all the defiant, resolute courage of a man's nature."

The view, even at its best, is said to be unsatisfactory; only the outlines of the Jura and the Apennines loom dimly up on account of the great distance. But then it is the highest point in Europe, and the earth stands between one and the overlying firmament. It would seem that one might look into the very face of God through the pure ether of that stainless, earthless height.

Climbers are affected by various emotions, it is said, when this climax of climaxes is attained. Some give way to the most violent demonstrations of joy, singing and dancing like an Indian tribe, while others are dazed and stunned at the realization of such high hopes. One lady, whose spirit was stronger than her body, was so enthusiastic that when there was danger of her giving out on the way up, she made the guide promise that, should she die from exhaustion, he would carry her lifeless body to the summit.

We know of several American gentlemen who have made the ascent of Mont Blanc, and in each case they went to Chamoin as ordinary visitors, and were inspired to undertake the trip by hearing of the exploits of their predecessors. With members of the Alpine club, who have a yearly meeting in London, this climbing grows into a passion. Any one who can, during the summer, reach some height whereon the foot of man has never before trod, has an account to give which he considers in some degree worthy the consideration of his corps.

NOTHING IMPOSSIBLE. The word "practicable" is literally construed by these Alpine climbers. Nothing is "impracticable" which is in the power of man to accomplish, and nothing is dangerous that can be safely done. The air at the height of 10,000 or 12,000 feet is so refreshing to them that to live in the valley produces the effect of suffocation, and on the brink of a precipice thousands of feet high they are as free from dizziness as in their beds. And so, we find in their club journal accounts that take away the breath—of ice-bound cliffs, mounted step by step, as we have said, by the intrepid guide who clears the way for the party following at each to each other, and to him by ropes tied around the body. Each man plants his pick firmly in the solid ice and rests upon it while the steps are cut.

Sometimes one of the party may make a false step, lose his hold, and then it is on the strength of the rope and the nerve of his companions that the safety of all depends. It is but the question of a moment whether he is to be drawn back into place, or whether he is to drag the whole company to the bottom of the precipice hundreds of feet below.

converts kept in ignorance. (Chicago Herald.) The discovery has been made that Mormon missionaries do not let their foreign converts know of the polygamous doctrine of the Latter Day Saints until arrival in Utah. A full set of Mormon books and tracts, used in England by a preacher, contained no mention of plurality of wives, and a marriage service in one publication included the familiar proviso of one wife to one husband.

By Authority.

To the Inspectors of Election in the several Districts of the Kingdom.

Inquiries having been made whether persons who are exempt from the payment of personal taxes by reason of being clergymen, teachers, pupils in High Schools, firemen, etc., or by reason of being over the age of sixty years, or whose taxes have been excused by the Assessor on account of infirmity or poverty, are allowed by law to vote at the election for Representatives.

It is my opinion that all such persons are entitled to vote. The Tax Collector should issue to each such person a tax receipt with the words "Qualified to Vote" upon it, which he must sign, and in place of the amount of taxes, he must write "exempt" or "excused".

At the general election, to be held on the 3d February, 1886, the votes of such persons must be received, unless challenged for other reasons.

PAUL NEUMANN, Attorney-General.

Honolulu, January 13, 1886.

FRIDAY, JAN. 15, 1886

FACTOTUM HAYSELDEN'S LITTLE GAME.

Mr. Fred. H. Hayselden, factotum of the present Administration leaders, has either been appointed the custodian of the soldiers' tax receipts, or he has assumed the office for the supposed general promotion of the Government party's desperate cause.

Why are these tax certificates being held by Factotum Hayselden? The solution is not hard to find. Great dissatisfaction exists among the soldiers, who have been mobilized into a "Solid South" to prop a sinking cause, but many of them have determined to vote for the Opposition candidates.

Under the law every voter must produce his tax certificate. What, then, would be the result if Factotum Hayselden refuses to produce the certificates of those soldiers who will, by election time, have been "spotted" as "apostates" to the false cause?

Every certificate that is not produced by Factotum Hayselden at that time will be a vote lost to the Opposition. A case in point: Within the last few days, as we are informed and believe, two of the Queen's Own corps, who have determined to vote for Opposition candidates, applied to Factotum Hayselden, for their certificates, and foolishly told him they would vote against the "old man's" candidates.

The result was that Factotum Hayselden politely informed them that he would give them their certificates on the day before the election takes place.

If the political word of Factotum Hayselden could be depended upon, that would be "all right," but if Factotum Hayselden did not produce the certificates at the promised time, it would then be too late to bring suit to recover them; ergo, the Opposition soldiers would get left.

The question is, will the soldiers wait to see if Factotum Hayselden will keep his word? Why don't these soldiers solve the difficulty by procuring a duplicate certificate, as authorized by Factotum Hayselden's letter published in Pae Aina?

The Government party is confessedly weak, and the chances of the Opposition, which were good at the start of the campaign, have been daily strengthened. But for all this, the Opposition cannot afford to have two tickets in the field, for the very practical reason that such a condition of things would tend to cure the weakness of the false cause of the present Administration.

The strength of the Opposition party is fairly represented in the Honolulu district by Messrs. Carter and Waterhouse. The Squires' ticket, which represents but a corporal's guard of the Opposition voters, has no reasonable argument, that we can see, which warrants them in dictating to the people's Opposition party, either as to the make-up of the ticket or as to the formulation of a platform.

NEVERMORE. (From the Spanish of Gustavo Recquer.) The dusky swallows in thy balcony To build their nests again will come; With friendly wing, beat, clamoring joyously, Against thy window-pane.

But they that paused, forgetful to pursue Their flight, thy beauty and my bliss before, To whom our names a sound familiar grew, They will come back no more.

Again, luxuriant thy garden-wall The honey-suckle, as of yore, will climb; Again its blossoms open, prodigal Of sweets, at eventide.

But they, the blossoms that for us exhaled Their sweets, whose cups with dew-drops brimming o'er, Like tears of joy, together we beheld— They will come back no more.

And on thine ear love's ardent utterance Falling again this silence too will break; And, yielding to its spell, thy heart perchance From its deep sleep awake.

But as the saint in silent ecstasy Before the altar kneeling may adore As I have loved thee—love like this to thee Shall come, ah nevermore!

MARY J. SERRANO. Thaddeus Stevens did not hesitate, away from the bar, to express his contempt for a court whose views differed with his. Upon one occasion, when arguing a case before a judge in Adams County, Pa., who interrupted him frequently with adverse remarks and listened impatiently to his arguments, "Old Thad," with ineffable disgust pictured on his face, slammed down a book he was reading from, and turning his back on the bench, limped outside the bar, and was hobbling as rapidly as he could toward the door.

The judge, as soon as he could recover from his astonishment, shouted: "Stop, Mr. Stevens; are you trying to show your contempt to the Court?" Without stopping or turning, the wrathful old man replied: "No, by God, I am endeavoring to conceal it!" and left the court-house, never to return to it while that judge was on the bench.

MARY J. SERRANO. Thaddeus Stevens did not hesitate, away from the bar, to express his contempt for a court whose views differed with his. Upon one occasion, when arguing a case before a judge in Adams County, Pa., who interrupted him frequently with adverse remarks and listened impatiently to his arguments, "Old Thad," with ineffable disgust pictured on his face, slammed down a book he was reading from, and turning his back on the bench, limped outside the bar, and was hobbling as rapidly as he could toward the door.

The judge, as soon as he could recover from his astonishment, shouted: "Stop, Mr. Stevens; are you trying to show your contempt to the Court?" Without stopping or turning, the wrathful old man replied: "No, by God, I am endeavoring to conceal it!" and left the court-house, never to return to it while that judge was on the bench.

Our reasons for asking your support are these: First—The DAILY HONOLULU PRESS is an independent morning paper, established in the interests of morality and good government, and will be devoted to advancing the prosperity of this Kingdom.

Second—The paper is conducted in a fearless, just and logical manner, aiming to fairly represent public opinion, and to be entirely free from everything objectionable in a family newspaper.

Third—It is our aim to make the DAILY HONOLULU PRESS the leading paper in this Kingdom. With this object in view we have secured the best literary talent, both at home and abroad, at our command, while the subscription price has been established at the low rate of FIFTY CENTS PER MONTH, with free delivery, so as to bring the paper within the reach of all.

Fourth—We desire to introduce our paper into every English-reading family in this Kingdom, feeling assured that it will be permanently retained after its merits, as a live, wide-awake journal, are once known.

Fifth—AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM, the DAILY HONOLULU PRESS possesses unequalled advantages, having retained all the subscribers to the late Saturday Press, in addition to a new subscription list, which is daily increasing, so that the paper is not only enjoying a large circulation in this city and vicinity, but is also mailed by every steamer to subscribers far almost every landing on the other Islands, and also to foreign countries, thus combining the advantages of both daily and weekly editions.

The coming month, especially, our paper will have a much larger circulation than all the other daily papers combined, as we intend sending specimen copies to every resident on these Islands who reads English.

We, therefore, ask your co-operation in our enterprise, and trust you will avail yourself of this offer.

The yearly statement of the Hawaiian Bell Telephone Company for the year 1885 shows: That the net earnings for the year were over $13,000, or about 33 per cent. on the capital invested; that the shareholders had received a dividend of 10 per cent.; that the current expenses for the year were about $1,500 less than for the year 1884; that the company has over 400 subscribers, which number can be increased, but that the rates now collected do not warrant new construction of lines, etc.; that the company has in cash and accounts now due the sum of nearly $4,000 dollars available. The following officers have been elected for the ensuing year: Godfrey Brown, President and Treasurer; Cecil Brown, Vice-President; J. F. Brown, Secretary; B. F. Bolles, Auditor; and Messrs. James Campbell, B. F. Bolles and J. F. Brown, Directors.

The yearly meeting of the Bethel Union Church was held Wednesday evening at the church vestry. Mr. B. F. Dillingham took the chair. The regular reports of the church officers were not read, on account of a misunderstanding as to the object of the meeting. Under the regular order of business Mr. T. G. Thrum was elected third Deacon. Rev. S. E. Bishop and Mr. J. O. Carter were elected members of the Standing Committee. The report of the Bethel Sunday School was read by Mr. T. M. Henderson. The report showed for the year 1885 an average attendance of 78 scholars, with the average roll of officers and teachers standing at 17. Appropriate reference was made to those removed by death. The report further showed that regular meetings had been held during the year, and that the sum of $27.05 had been collected at the quarterly missionary meetings. The following are the officers of the Sunday School elected for the ensuing year: Mr. B. F. Dillingham, Superintendent; Mrs. S. M. Damon, Assistant Superintendent; Mr. T. C. Henderson, Secretary; Mr. Jonathan Shaw, Treasurer; and Messrs. G. E. and W. F. Thrum, Librarians.

They say: That the sugar cane is looking well again on the Hawaii plantations; that the reason the present Administration is so opposed to J. O. Carter is because they don't want him to have a chance to go through the Government books; that the little tax certificate scheme that the Government leaders are trying to play on the soldiers will not win, for certain reasons which the soldiers know; that the reason a citizen went to Koolau and back in one day is not astonishing, when the political result of his trip was made known; that the fire boys threw cold water on a Government scheme which was passing along Fort street last night; that the best way to prove political character is to either keep still or do what is threatened; that another political tack will be taken by the Palace party next week; that the Waikiki road is a favorite resort of moonlight nights for a few "select" parties; that the latest social feat is to stay up two nights in succession and attend to "biz" the following day; that the young man who tried it came very near being exhibited by his employer as a "sleeping beauty"; that the band boys blew some Hawaiian silver notes into their horns last night, which came out to the credit of the Government; that the little "political bo-peep" is making eyes at certain of the Opposition candidates; that some of these candidates will come home and bring their tales behind them; that the little "political bo-peep" will cry her eyes out leaning against the Palace wall when their little tales are published; that the Mormons are negotiating with the present Premier to buy these Hawaiian Islands; that the space of "twenty-four hours is not a very long time, politically speaking; that the hope of the Postmaster is that the police will catch the fellow who got the dumps; and that the hope of the police is that they will be able to avoid the fellow who got the dumps.

EDITOR OF THE DAILY HONOLULU PRESS—Sir: Being in a dreadful piliikia, I take the liberty of asking for your kind advice. An involuntary politician as I am, asked by lots of friends belonging to all the classes of society, to lend my name as a candidate for the good of the country, I find myself between and betwixt two fires, simply because I am really and absolutely independent.

Oh, dear! Oh, dear! What am I to do? Men of the old Opposition go very bitter against me, because I have been "bought up" by Gibson and induced by him to stand for dividing the votes of the people who do not agree with the Government.

On the other side, the sycophants and imported brawlers of the Administration proclaim that I am "set up" by the Opposition to divide the votes of the Government party, to help those wicked Opposition candidates to squeeze into the house, in spite of all the saviors of the country to keep them out. Now, Mr. Editor, please enlighten me. What am I to do? If agreeable to the wishes of my friends, I persist in my candidature. It seems that both the old Opposition and the Government, according to their own confession, are sure of being beaten. Am I, then, to commit such a great crime, or had I better let them fight it out between themselves? Only is it not to be feared that the result of such a fight would be that of the two Kilkenny cats, whose tails alone were left after the battle? And what would the country do with so much talk without any head, or with so many politicians without either head or tail? Consequently, if such is also your opinion, Mr. Editor, I begin to think it is a stern duty I owe to the people of this town to stand the fight on my own independent and patriotic platform. A. MARQUES.

In Bad Luck. HONOLULU, January 14, 1886. EDITOR DAILY HONOLULU PRESS—Sir: To relate a little incident which happened at the drill of Engine Company No. 2 last evening, and to give a word of caution to some one, would perhaps cause many of your readers to keep clear of one channel of sorrow.

As I was walking up Fort street last evening from the lower portion of the city, deeply meditating upon the present political affairs of Hawaii, at the same time trying to arrange in my mind as how to vote in the coming election, I was suddenly aroused by the sound of a whistle, and on looking ahead noticed a glare of reddish hue which appeared to me to be a fire being played upon by a heavy stream of water, and just as I was about to turn the corner of Merchant street I was struck by a fluid which resembled very much the same stream, and caused me to change my position, from standing on a smooth paved sidewalk to that of laying on the cold, muddy street, and in accordance with the performing of that back somersault I was greeted with a loud applause of laughter, which emanated from amidst three or four young men, who were holding on to the nozzle of a hose leading from a steam fire engine, and it was to them I sought for an apology for the spraining of an ankle and wrist and soiled clothes and lost hat. But, unfortunately, all I received in the shape of an apology was from one young man, who appeared to be the leader of the affair, was that his early education as that of a fireman was from the Pacific Hose Company No. 1, but since he joined Engine Company No. 2, with steam to "back him, he could not control the nozzle unless he made an impression. Moral: Do not walk in front of the nozzle of Engine Company No. 2 while the new captain has charge, or you will surely be induced to take an open-air bath. A VICTIM.

SOME QUEER PEOPLE

WHO COME ACROSS THE BIG POND IN THE STEERAGE.

An Hour at Castle Garden—The First Step into the Promised Land—Children, Children Everywhere—The First Meal Ashore.

[New York World.]

To the casual on-looker the distinctive feature of a ship-load of immigrants at Castle Garden is the striking color of the new comers' dress. The women fairly revel in sky-blue shawls tied about their heads and Magenta gowns or dresses of a deep and insistent yellow. The men are quite as pronounced in the color of their garments, and he is a poor immigrant indeed who does not blossom out in a brilliant indigo shirt or a pair of greenish trousers. No two styles of head-covering are alike, and the contrast is as picturesque as the boldest French painter ever ventured to put into a Breton coast-fishing scene. Even the babies' dresses, and there is always a large proportion of babies, are as bright as their mothers' costumes and quite as un-American.

It is this constant commingling of changing colors that makes the kaleidoscopic picture at Castle Garden different from any other in America. That is the form of the women. Nowhere else can one see such triangular or pyramidal women. Not one of them has the slightest trace of a waist. They seem built up from the ground in the shape of an Egyptian pyramid. The broad skirts touching the floor form the base, and lead up by unbroken straight lines to the apex of the pyramid—the head.

After the ship has landed her cabin passengers at the dock, the crowded steerage people plunge down the gang-plank into the garden. The first step into the promised land, their Eldorado, is not wholly reassuring. They thought America a free country, but find themselves prisoners in the garden, cut off from everybody by a long list of rules and regulations printed in every language that anybody ever cared to learn. Watchful attendants are at their side to tell them what to do, and with the pillar-like patience characteristic of emigrants they sit down to wait for fortune and the boat. They learn to work very early, and the little girl of 10 or 12 years employs the idle time in knitting warm stockings that will do good service in the cold northwest farm lands whither they are bound.

THE CHILDREN.

Sifted in everywhere, as thick as stars in the milky way, are the children. They seem to burst into blossom in Castle Garden as naturally as the leaves crowd the trees outside in Battery park. They only, of all the ship's company, do not care a fig for the new surroundings. The new country has the same sunshine that they knew at home, and there is the same freedom for play that they liked there. Every grown person seems to have more children than baggage. The usual rule is, the greater the one the less of the other. You can see motherly-looking widows leading and carrying long strings of children and tired mothers worrying over sick babies.

Back of those who stand on tiptoe and look over their heads, you can see a little group of two boys and a girl clutching each other tightly hand in hand. About their necks or sewed to their clothing is a tag. It is written in low German and begs of the good American to forward the little tots to their uncle who lives somewhere in Dakota or Manitoba. They have come all the way from Germany alone. Just a month ago two children, one from Lolland and the other from Holland, exchanged their tags with childish playfulness and it took rooms of explanation to make the relatives believe they had the right children.

These little emigrants are as a rule too young to realize their changed lots in life and gambled on unconsciously amid their strange surroundings or sit with a look of supreme patience on their stolid faces munching huge slices of coarse rye bread and Limburger cheese, for they can eat any and every thing, and no fear of cholera infantum disturbs their parents on their account.

FIRST MEAL, ARHOHE.

One consolation the emigrant has at the Garden that is dear to him. He can buy food in his own language and eat it the same way if he wants to. There is a bread counter where the prices are posted up in different languages and where the purchaser is offered the choice of "Schwartz brock," "Pumpernickel," "Wurst," and all the similar articles of food he has been accustomed to across the water.

If the countenance is any indication, there is a greater satisfaction in a supper made up of things with familiar names than ordinary people miss. The old man unites his hoarded pennies from the corner of his handkerchief, where he keeps them, school-girl fashion, and invests in a loaf of Pumpernickel. The old lady buys a mug of beer and the two seat themselves side by side on an old box that contains their entire property and make the first meal in the new country. It is not much, but they enjoy it, and he rolls over and goes to sleep on the floor as naturally as if he had camped out there for years.

Pets they bring too of all kinds in the conditions of sea sickness. One of the worst specimens seen lately was a green parrot in a cage. It belonged to a boy of 10 and was the only friend he had in this country. The parrot was unaccountably ill and moaned the fate in a tongue that nobody but the boy knew. The lad clung to the cage with homesick devotion, and the last seen of him he was loaded on a train, lovingly carrying the cage under his arm.

British Royalties at a Discount.

[London Truth.] It is a common error in England, and one which is exceedingly silly and absurd, to suppose that our regard for the monarch abroad with something approaching veneration. Nobody, in these days, cares anything whatever for a connection with the royal family of England. Nothing is gained either from the most obscure of the dynastic points of view; there is never any money (or the thing), and the English court is the dull and most parsimonious in Europe.

It is a mistake of the wildest and most extravagant kind to believe that English princes and princesses throw their handkerchiefs where they please, with the certainty that they will be eagerly scrambled for. This plan may answer the most obscure of the German royalties, but it is quite another matter when it comes to the question of a connection with any distinguished or wealthy governing family.

Awfully Attenuated.

[New York Journal.] "My dear," said a thin little Brooklyn man to his wife, "this paper says that there is a woman down east who goes out and clips wool with her legend."

"Well, what of it? I should think she could easily do it if he is as thin as you are. I've often thought of using you to peel potatoes with."

The thin little man laid down his paper with a sigh that sounded like the squeak of a penny whistle.
