

AN UNDESIRABLE OFFICE

If we were ever so unfortunate as to become one of the "powers that be,"—that is to say, a Cabinet Minister.—and we had a personal enemy whom we wished to punish; we know just what we would do with the fellow—we'd make him President of the Board of Health. If in time, the duties and responsibilities, real or fancied, that pertain to that office, did not suffice to fill to overflowing his cup of affliction, we don't know what would. We were set into this train of reflection yesterday morning in our walk along King street, by observing in close proximity to the sidewalk, an ominous looking wooden cross with some hieroglyphics inscribed thereon. On closer inspection, the cross was found to surmount a large pile of street sweepings, and its segment bore this legend, "Sacred to the memory of the President of the Board of Health." Now the sapient perpetrator of this supposed joke intended thereby to signify, that the streets needed sweeping, and that the President of the Board of Health ought to have had it done; that moreover he, and he alone, would be held responsible for all the dire diseases and ailments (including coughs and colds) that will probably result from its not having been done. And so, throughout the entire catalogue of nuisances, from the smells of Chinatown to the impure condition of the water in the Government pipes—to say nothing of the fearful responsibility if a pest ship arrives—it must be a peculiar temperament that would prompt its possessor to aspire to be President of the Board of Health.

The Bastille.

Yesterday morning there was a general inquiry in town as to the meaning of the unusual display of bunting, more particularly on Consular flagstuffs; and the reply was, that it was the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille, and a French national holiday. To the student of history, it is very clear what is meant: but the general newspaper reader may not be posted as to the facts. The Bastille was a famous stone structure in Paris, built in 1382—no less than five hundred years ago. It was for many years used as a prison by some of the tyrant Kings of France, and as such became infamous on account of the cruelties committed within its walls. On the 14th of July, 1789, during the French Revolution which banished the Bourbon, the Parisians attacked the Bastille, which after a stout resistance was captured and razed to the ground. Only seven prisoners however were found in it. See Carlyle's French Revolution, vol. 1. for an interesting account of the Bastille.

NEITHER the DAILY BULLETIN, nor any of those with whom it has conferred on the subject—and these last are people whose opinions are of value—have been able to comprehend the motive, as to policy or good taste, which has led to the republication here of a certain editorial article which appeared in the S. F. Argonaut of June 23rd, commenting on Hawaiian affairs. And as to the authorship of the article in question, it appears to have been a mere conjecture—the wish perhaps was father to the thought—which attributed it to the late Minister of the Interior.

LEGISLATIVE.

Friday, July 14.—Mr. Kalua read first time a new liquor bill. (This is the fourth on this subject.) It was read a second time by the title and referred to the committee of eleven.

Mr. Kaunamano gave notice of a bill to amend chapter 90 of the Penal Code. (This chapter consists of but one section, and provides that where there is an irreconcilable difference between the Hawaiian and English versions, the latter shall rule.)

Mr. Nawahi gave notice of a bill to prohibit the coming of Chinese into this Kingdom.

A resolution by Mr. Kalua was adopted, to the effect that no new bills be received after Monday next.

The order of the day—the Appropriation Bill in Committee of the Whole—was then proceeded with.

The afternoon Session was a long and somewhat stormy one, the items under discussion being the appropriations for police on the different Islands; and on these subjects, of course, country members were particularly alive and well-informed. The sum voted for Police of Oahu was $85,000, understood to include the lighting of Honolulu.

THE steamer Suez from San Francisco is due to-day.

THE Band will not give a Concert at Emma Square this afternoon, it being engaged elsewhere.

THE mail for San Francisco, per "Helen W. Almy," closes at the Post Office at 12 noon this day. All letters marked "per Almy" will be forwarded.

THE bark Kalakaua sailed for San Francisco yesterday. She took away 5,083 packages sugar, weighing 535,533 pounds, 2,595 bags rice, and 333 barrels molasses, containing 9,220 gallons. Domestic value, $46,245.52.

On Thursday evening, at the residence of Judge Austin, Nuuanu Avenue, Mrs. Austin and Mrs. McCully, wife of the First Associate Justice, received a large number of callers, ladies and gentlemen. His Majesty the King called in the afternoon, and in the evening H. R. H. the Princess Liliuokalani.

By a singular blunder in yesterday's report of Legislative proceedings, we make His Excellency the Premier to suggest that the sum of $10,000 in the Appropriation Bill for salary of the Minister Resident at Washington, be increased to $25,000. The suggestion really was that the amount for expenses of Foreign Missions generally, be fixed at $25,000.

A lady who had been travelling in Italy, was asked by a friend how she liked Venice. "Oh! very much, indeed," was the reply. "I was unfortunate enough, however, to arrive there just at the time of a heavy flood, and we had to go about the streets in boats."

An old sailor was observed to be always hanging about the door of a church when a marriage was taken place. He explained that he liked to see the tide going out.—[Cincinnati Saturday night.

Positively the latest college joke: Professor says: "Time is money; how do you prove it?" Student says: "Well, you give twenty-five cents to a couple of tramps; that is a quarter to two."

Under the microscope a hair has rough edges like a rasp. No wonder then that a young man's mustache often tickles a girl's nose.—[Philadelphia Chronicle.

Ruskin was unflatteringly truthful when he said: "We are all, and always asleep half our lives, and it is only by pinching ourselves hard that we ever learn to understand anything. At least, it is not always we who pinch ourselves, sometimes other people pinch us, which, I suppose, is very good of them; but it is a sad life, made up of naps and pinches."

A military company, composed of twenty-one young ladies, rank and file, has been organized in San Diego, Cal. Aside from the sport of the thing, the drilling and exercises will prevent them from acquiring the round shoulder and "humped up" appearance of the fashionable lady of the period.

Charles Sumner once said to a friend, with whose statement about the wit that abounded in Wendell Phillips' ordinary conversation he readily agreed: "Did you ever see a joke in one of my speeches?" His friend was forced to give the expected denial, whereupon Mr. Sumner replied: "Of course you never did. You might as well look for a joke in the Book of Revelation."

It is a great mistake to suppose that titles have no significance in Taxes. Not long since Maj. Smith, living near Dallas, was elected constable. The day after election somebody asked the Major's little boy: "Ain't you Maj. Smith's little boy?" "No, sir," was the proud reply, "I am Judge Smith's little boy?"

An old lady in the country had a dandy from town to dine with her on a certain occasion, and on the table was an enormous apple pie. "La, madam," said the gentleman, "how do you manage to make such a pie?" "Easy enough," was the reply. "We make the crust in a wheelbarrow, wheel it under an apple tree, and then shake the fruit down into it."

"You may talk about your mean men," said one rustic to another on the ferry boat, the other day, "but we've got a woman over there in Alameda who takes a pie." "Kinder close—is she?" "Close? Why, last month her husband died—fourth husband, mind—and I'm blamed if she didn't take the doorplate off the front door, had his age added, and then nailed on to his coffin. Said she guessed likely she'd be wanting a new name on the door soon any way."

A Connecticut farmer seeing some railroad surveyors getting ready to run their line straight through the center of his barn remonstrated with them. "I want you tew understand," said he, "that I've got somethin' else tew dew besides runnin' out tew open and shut them doors every time a train wants tew go threew." But, being monarchs of all they surveyed, they went right on just the same.

The Crabman's Commiseration.

Old Quinn was the queerest fish in all the odd school of 'longshoremen'; but, alas! his many radiant virtues were clouded with a few conspicuous vices. He would fish Sundays and get drunk every day that opportunity offered. Well, one summer Sabbath morning, having succeeded in filling his market basket with large, live crabs, and himself with rum, he began to zig-zag homeward. The day was superbly beautiful, with a sky of serene blue and an air as balmy as the breath of Araby. Even the merry insects seemed to have mellowed their hum, and the old sea muffled its triumphant boom out of respect to the sanctity of the day. Reeling up a hill, he saw approaching the venerable clergyman of the neighborhood, and struggling to maintain a drunken dignity, he fell headlong, and then the crabs struck for liberty.

"My friend," said the elder, "I see you not only desecrate the Sabbath with labor, but you also debase yourself by intoxication."

"Elder," hiccupped Quinn, reaching for a runaway crab, "if you have as much trouble in getting your congregation together to-day as I do these cussed crabs, darned if I don't pity ye!"—Chicago News.

A club of "Unfortunate Lovers" has been formed in Herne, England, and already fourteen members have been enrolled. The chairman is a bachelor whose rebuffs have been so frequent that he dares not visit any family in the town lest he may be obliged to pass the evening face to face with the maker of one of his many mittens. The meetings are social, and no allusions are ever made to the rascally little dart finger and small god of woes.

A gentleman gave a party in honor of a distinguished missionary lately returned from his field of work. The ladies appeared in very décolleté dresses, and as the host feared the style might shock his reverence, he apologized for it, saying that fashion demanded it. "Oh, I don't mind it at all," replied the missionary, "I have been ten years among the savages."
