NOTICE TO MARINERS.

During the process of Deepening the Channel at the entrance to Honolulu harbor the Dredger will be in operation night
and day.

At night there will be a Danger Signal
placed on the forward derrick of Dredger, about 35 feet above sea level, which can be seen by all vessels approaching the harbor.

The Signal consists of 3 Red lights and a White light as in

lights being about 3
feet apart, with the white light in the center.

All steamers crossing the Bar will stop

be answered by a single blast from the Dredger, to be followed by three blasts
from the Dredger when the passage is clear and they can proceed.

The Tag will be on hand when not otherwise engaged to assist sailing craft in pass-

THE SCALE PARASITE.

After Six Months Few Insects Survive.—No Dependence Can Be Placed in Lady Bugs as Scale
Exterminators.

Los Angeles, August 12.—C. M.
Heintz, editor of the Rural Californi-
an, furnishes the following review of the official investigation of the scale parasites imported from Australia:

Much has been said and printed regarding the Australian lady bugs
recently imported and said to be effective parasites of the red scale of the orange and the woolly aphis of the apple. These parasites have now been "planted" in the citrus and deciduous fruit orchards of Southern California for six months, a sufficient length of time to prove their ability to hold the pest in check.

To ascertain definitely what they have accomplished, Horticultural Commissioner John Scott of Los Angeles county, D. W. Coquillett of the Department of Agriculture (division of entomology), a number of orchardists and a coterie of newspaper men made a careful tour of inspection of all orchards in which the parasites had been placed.

The first visited was that of Albert
F. Kereheval. Here Professor Coquillett had constructed a tent over an orange tree badly infested with red scale in which he liberated on November 28th four beetles, "Coccus chalybeus," on December 28th three,
and on January 23d seventy-five.

Besides these he liberated on the trees in the open 325 beetles on January 23d, eight on February 20th,
and twenty-seven on April 15th,
making a total of 442 beetles in this one orchard. The conditions for their rapid breeding were exceptionally good, there being an ample supply of red scale for them to feed on and the orchard is well protected.

After six months' time they certainly should have been breeding in great numbers. But quite to the contrary this parasite has decreased.
Few beetles were to be found, and only one batch of eggs and none of the larvae.

The parasite of the woolly aphis,
"Ilex conformis," proved no better.
One hundred and seventy of these lady birds were liberated May 14th
in the orchard of Samuel McKinley just south of Los Angeles. The closest inspection failed to reveal a single specimen, the entire lot hav-

THE DAILY BULLETIN.

Pledged to neither Sect nor Party, But Established for the Benefit of All.

THURSDAY, AUG. 25, 1892.

The lady bugs at Los Angeles have been found not worth their salt. It looks as if they were a failure here also. They went at the scale tooth and nail when introduced first, but now when the pest has returned to despoil our foliage the ladies have not reported for duty. Perhaps the chemical engine of the Fire Department would kill and wash off the scale. It would be good drill for the firemen at least to try it.

There is nothing left of the little sensation about the alleged violation of American rights by the British occupation of Johnston isles. A prominent American in Honolulu pool-pooled the idea of American ownership before H. B. M. S. Champion returned from the annexation. The State Department at Washington, it appears, looks on the matter with the same unconcern. The reported British occupation of a coal-station site beside the American one at Pago Pago, Samoa, is also found to be all right and in accord with amity between the two great Powers.

THE JUDICIARY BILL.

The Legislature is engaged to-day in considering the Judiciary Bill section by section. It is to be hoped the measure will come through without damage from officious amendments. Having had its provisions maturely discussed by the ablest minds of bench and bar, there is danger in tampering with the details. Unless some vital omission be discovered it is doubtful if the bill can be improved by the assembled wisdom. The main question is on the principle of the bill, to which there seems to be a preponderating assent. It ought to result if passed in a revolutionizing for the better the Judiciary of the Kingdom.

SALISBURY'S DOWNFALL.

A graphic description of the scenes in Parliament attending the downfall of Lord Salisbury's long-lived administration is to be found in this issue. If we mistake not, the "Member of Parliament" who supplies Bennett's cable letter is Michael Davitt, who is well known as an able writer as well as parliamentarian. The view he takes of Gladstone's position, as that of a prominent home ruler, is decidedly interesting and scarcely calculated to inspire sanguine hopes of the "grand old man's" success in this doubtless last great effort of his life. Home rule, however, has taken an immense stride forward. It is now advocated by Cecil Rhodes, the Imperial statesman of Cape Colony, as an important factor in the problem of Imperial Federation.

STREET MAKING.

It is to be hoped that the Road Board of Honolulu, having started well and won general praise for efficient work, will not enter on a career of costly experimentation. There are many well-established systems of street construction, the nature of which can be learned from cities where they are in vogue by correspondence. The great question to be settled, if we are to get beyond macadam, is what sort of construction is best for the means at disposal. Macadam with good material is the most accepted, doubtless, for country roads and city streets without much traffic, but all can see for themselves that it has a comparatively short life on streets having continuously heavy traffic. It, moreover, is not adapted to either the sprinkling or washing or scraping that thoroughfares in the business quarter of a city require.

BUREAU OF INFORMATION.

The Hawaiian Bureau of Information is now fully organized, and on such a basis as to merit the confidence and support of the business community. The people have long been asking for relief from the present financial depression; nothing heretofore has been suggested that tends to remedy the situation. Now, something practical is offered; the Bureau of Information has formulated a definite scheme: advertise Hawaii as a health and pleasure resort, and the incoming tide of tourists will settle the question of dull times. The plan is feasible, easily carried out, and every one can assist. The result is sure. There can be but one result. Hawaii will be overrun with travelers and sightseers.

Let every one buy a few shares; every shareholder is a member of the Bureau and has a voice in the election of Directors. The make-up of the Board is a sufficient guarantee that every dollar subscribed will be expended judiciously and for the common good.

Columbus and the Egg.

Professor Edwin J. Houston, in his recent lecture before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, in referring to the incident of balancing an egg on end, gives the usual explanation that Columbus accomplished it by cracking the shell. We are not prepared to controvert this idea authoritatively, but for years have regarded it with suspicion. Patriotism inspires in our breast such a high regard for the one who discovered the land upon which we live as to forbid our attributing to him any such disreputable trick. We believe that others cracked eggs before Columbus, as they have since, and stood them on end, too, but, as there is another way of balancing an egg without resorting to such unfair means, we submit this explanation as probably the true one of Columbus' feat. If a freshly laid hen's egg be violently shaken so as to thoroughly mix the yolk and white, and also to fracture the air sac and allow the contained air to rise, it is simply a question of manual dexterity, within the reach of all, to balance an egg, without cracking it, on a perfectly smooth surface.

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations

A worn-out stomach. I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. SALISBURY'S DEFEAT.

Graphic Description by a Member of Parliament.

LONDON, August 13.—The deed is done. Mr. Gladstone is once more Prime Minister pending a few formalities which nobody desires to impede. You will have heard about the great excitement attending Thursday night's debate and the final vote. To my eyes the whole business had a theatrical and artificial look about it. One of our papers speaks of the "fate of the members trembling in the balance" just before the division. What nonsense! We all of us knew the result days ago, and except for death or illness not a single vote could be affected.

But an ovation had to be got up for Gladstone, and his entry after the division was well timed for the purpose. He was kept back to the last. Then a lane was made for him through the crowd and all his party stood up and shouted. The Irishmen worked themselves into a genuine fever. The old man walked to his seat careworn and weary looking, with a faint deprecating gesture, as much as to say: "Do not make all this fuss about me; I am not worthy of it." And then his son hurried him off to bed.

It was a crowded house. Every seat was taken and a lot of members were obliged to stand. New members were fussing around as if they were about to decide the fate of the universe. All this was a matter of course. There was Hon. Edward Blake, without his sombrero hat, out with an amazing display of shirt front, sitting on the Irish benches. Many of the new Nationalists were there, wild and unfettered in cries and general behavior, interrupting Mr. Chamberlain with yells and groans, and later on, when a member of the Government was foolishly put up to speak, almost beside themselves with rage.

There was Kerr Harvie with yellow trousers, a brown flannel shirt and a traveling cap, a costume which he never seems to change, even when he goes to bed. None of your clean shirt nonsense for this gentleman. Mr. Blake might lend him one or two of his majara shirt fronts the next time he drives down to the House with a brass band in a bank holiday van with his portrait exhibited.

The Conservatives were all as spruce as new pins, most of them in evening dress and wearing gorgeous flowers in their coats. There is a gentleman with an orchid rivaling Chamberlain's and another one with the green carnations which young dandies now affect. Balfour has a white rose, and Gladstone, opposite him, sports a red flower. Harcourt—what's the matter with Harcourt? He fidgets about all through the night as though on a gridiron. First he comes in and has a long, animated talk with Gladstone, and then rushes out. Ten minutes later another talk, and he is off again; but he comes back, and seems as uneasy as a man waiting to have a tooth out.

Indeed, on the front of the Gladstonians there are no signs of joy and victory. Morley is grave, even downcast. What, with the Welsh party, with their ultimatum, and the Loyal party with theirs, and the two Irish sections with theirs and Mr. Gladstone yielding to the weight of eighty-three years, what sort of a Government is possible? Would it be rash enough to insure its life over 1887? The rumor is that Harcourt does not want to take office at all. Under the present circumstances Morley must be still less inclined. Gladstone alone smiles when the figures are read out which proclaim him the successor of Lord Salisbury. A more funeral party returned from what is called victory I never came across.

Why in the world Balfour should, at the last hour, put up our horse friend Chaplin to speak no member can guess. The House was tired of debate and a winding-up speech was not required. Poor Chaplin went floundering into a bog of old speeches, extracts from blue books, and rakings and scrapings of the political dust heap. New members who had never seen him before pursued him with jeers, jibes and mocking laughter. His portly figure, stumbling, thumping style of oratory and dreary excursions beginning "What did Mr. Gladstone do in 1885?" sent them into fits of mirth.

In the midst of it all Dr. Tanner walked down the floor of the House with a large glass of water in his hand and coolly deposited it in front of Mr. Chaplin, the most impudent thing I have ever seen done in the House of Commons. The Speaker could not interfere. There was no breach of order, and yet it was the most insulting act that was ever perpetrated. The Gladstonians cheered Tanner till they were hoarse, and the Conservatives could only look glum, for Chaplin's speech vexed their souls, also, and as midnight approached and he was still at it open revolt nearly broke out. Never did a great Ministry die uttering so weak a last word as that.

Then bells, bells, a rush into the division lobby, the checking off of our names by clerks and the return to the House, a great reception to Mr. Gladstone, ditto to Mr. Balfour. Radical yells on one side, deep-lunged Tory cheers on the other, a crush outside for cabs and carriages, parting cheers for Balfour as he walks homeward, and all is over.

Thus ends a Ministry which lasted six years, and thus begins another which is committed to a policy that its own chief has never worked out. We turn over a new page in English political history. Already the hand of fate begins to make faint marks upon it.

A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT.

PAGO PAGO HARBOR.

England's Claim to a Coaling Station Admitted in Washington.

Washington, Aug. 6.—There is nothing more said at the State Department regarding the seizure of Johnston Island, as it seems to be the impression that the United States lost her rights by abandonment. The State Department officials talk some about the reported seizure of Pago Pago harbor. They say that the newspapers are always trying to stir up a contention between the United States and England, and that in this case there will be no trouble, for Great Britain has not seized Pago Pago harbor, but is merely preparing to establish a coaling depot there, to which the privilege was granted her by Samoa in 1880.

According to some of these officials we have no exclusive privilege in Pago Pago harbor. Article second of the treaty between the United States and the Samoan Government, adopted January 17, 1878, says: "Naval vessels of the United States shall have the privilege of entering and using part of Pago Pago and establishing therein and on the shores thereof a station for coal and other naval supplies for their naval and commercial marine, and the Samoan Government will hereafter neither exercise nor authorize any jurisdiction within the said part adverse to such rights of the United States or restrictive thereof."

Section seven of the treaty between Great Britain and Samoa, adopted August 27, 1880, says: "Her Majesty, the Queen of Great Britain, may, if she think fit, establish on the shores of a Samoan harbor to be hereafter designated by Her Majesty, a naval station and coaling depot, but this article shall not apply to the harbors of Apia or Saluafata, or to that part of the harbor of Pago Pago which may be hereafter selected by the Government of the United States as a station under provisions of the treaty of 1878."

Under the interpretation put upon these sections by some of the State Department officials both the United States and Great Britain have the right to establish coaling stations in Pago Pago harbor, the United States having the first chance. The United States has already selected its site and unless England encroaches upon the actual territory selected by our country there will be no trouble, say the State Department officials. Our rights to that harbor were thought to be exclusive by some Congressmen in 1889, when an appropriation was made, viz.: "For the survey, improvement and occupation of Pago Pago, $100,000." Senator Sherman, in his speech at that time, declared that "the first thing to be done is to assert our power and occupancy of Pago Pago bay and so much of the shores of the Island of Tutuila as is necessary for a coaling station."

Some Congressmen expressed the belief that the United States can, under the treaty of 1878, acquire title to the whole shore line of Pago Pago. We have already purchased from the Government an island and half a mile of the opposite shore, and this is a small part of what Admiral Kimberly recommended should be bought.
