The Honolulu Republican.

THE INDEPENDENT welcomes into the local field of journalism the Honolulu Republican which appeared this morning contemporaneously with the official birth of the Territory of Hawaii.

If Editor Gill adheres to the principles announced in his salutatory it will be a long time before he need write his valedictory. He says in part:

The Republican believes in the principles enunciated by the Republican party and will support those principles, but it will never put party above principle nor support unfit men for public office.

The Republican will be independent, brave and fearless in the discharge of its duty to the public. It will ever support all causes and enterprises tending to the public good, and, at the same time, it will always condemn and oppose everything that works against public morals and good citizenship.

It will be free and independent in its criticisms of public affairs and public officials, and it will not allow business considerations to sway it from the path of public duty.

It will not be the party nor personal organ of any man, faction or clique, but a broadminded, patriotic newspaper, run as a legitimate purveyor of the news.

Although it is usually rather unfair to criticize initial numbers, the Republican is entitled to favorable criticism in all its departments.

It intends to attempt the novelty of publishing a Sunday but not a Monday paper. The motive is an excellent one, for a morning paper, for it give to its employees the Sabbath day's rest. This move should be approved of by our dearly beloved friends of the denominational churches and alphabetical societies.

Honolulu now rejoices in four American-English writing journals on behalf of the Republican party and only our own little napkin sheet to defend the Hawaiian Democratic vote; and yet we think we will have a majority at the polls.

APOLOGIA.

To-day more than ever THE INDEPENDENT regrets its want of space to properly portray to-day's important ceremonies and to make comments thereon and to place before the public information it possesses.

SATISFACTORY APPOINTMENT.

The community will rejoice with THE INDEPENDENT that Hon. Alatau T. Atkinson has been appointed Superintendent of Public Instruction. There is probably no man in this country better qualified for the position than he is, nor is there anyone who could fill the office with better result to our people. The compliment paid to journalism will necessitate a severe loss to the profession by Mr. Atkinson's immediate withdrawal from the editorship of the Star, a chair which he has most admirably and intelligently filled.

ADMISSION DAY.

Governor Dole's Inaugural Address.

The Ceremonies Attendant Upon the Admission of Hawaii as One of the Minor Stars in the American Constellation.

Old father Sol was rather too warm to-day in his greeting of the transformation of the old into the new Hawaii; the pleasure loving Hawaii of the past into the business activity and dollar hunting of the American-Hawaii. But as the inevitable must always happen as well as the unexpected, the will of the men who for some years have determined that the Paradise of the Pacific should become American soil had to be accomplished with due pomp and ceremony regardless of the wishes of the autochthones, whose bitter pill has been gilded with promises and assurances never yet administered to any Territory of the United States; thus demonstrating how very valuable an acquisition to the stars and stripes we are, and how impossible it is for us ever to be severed from that alliance except by an improbable contest at arms in which America might be conquered, which the God of Battles forbids. Consequently this morning the functions of transfer were performed before a galaxy of beauty, a wealth of decorations and a super abundance of bunting.

It was notable that, as the Romans made their captured victims pass under the yoke, all who entered the much bedecked government building passed under two large Hawaiian flags but from them and above them to the blue heavens there was nothing but stars and stripes and American emblems. There could be no doubt even to the most unsympathetic eye of the cause of the day's historic gathering.

The proceedings commenced by Rev. E. S. Timoteo, of Kaunakapili church, offering up a prayer in Hawaiian. Hon. E. A. Mott-Smith, the retired Minister of Foreign Affairs, then read the Commission of Sanford Ballard Dole as Governor of Hawaii for four years or until his successor is appointed, and Chief Justice Frear administered the oath of office to His Excellency, our first American Governor.

The Governor's inaugural address which follows was delivered in clear and distinct tones, but for a few moments interrupted by the diapason of Berger's band. After the conclusion of the inaugural address Berger again gallantly came to the front with the martial array of American and Hawaiian soldiers in the grand military parade. The proceedings closed with a crush reception in the former throne room which was most tastefully decorated. To-night the illuminations will be "splendiferous" and the ball and supper will round off the night.

Fellow Citizens:—In accepting the position of Governor of the Territory of Hawaii at the request of the President of the United States, I feel certain that there will be some problems in the administration of the affairs of the Territory for which the government of independent Hawaii has created no precedents.

Were it not for the support that I am confident I have in your sympathy, and in your patriotic determination that in the new departure the country shall make progress in good government, I could not contemplate the task before me without deep misgivings.

The political evolution of Hawaii has been from feudalism to royal authority, then to a republic and now to dependence upon a stronger nation. The recent policy of the great powers to parcel out between them the islands of Polynesia, has been an influential factor in the last act of these successive changes. Paramount commercial relations with the United States have formed another. With such influences at work, it only needed the decadence of the monarchical authority to cause the Hawaiian community with its strong American sentiment to gravitate irresistibly to the United States, choosing its own destiny rather than leaving it to be decided by others.

Hawaii owes its remarkable progress in civilization largely to the wise statesmanship of Kamehameha III. and other high chiefs, in the early part of his reign. These men and women carefully weighed the counsels of their new advisers from across the sea, and selected the best as a basis of action. A few months of peaceful revolution sufficed for an advance in civil administration, which has, in analogous cases, required years of devastating civil war. Personal rights were guaranteed, the absolute authority of the sovereign was voluntarily surrendered for constitutional limitations; the vast landed interests of kings and chiefs—the rich prizes of the victories of Kamehameha the first, were divided and adjusted in conformity with the new recognition of the rights of the common people, and the creation of corporate government.

It is not easy for us at this time to give due weight to this organizing work of those chiefs and their foreign advisers. Had the former been less public spirited, or had the latter been less sincere, in all probability the history of many another tragic conflict between the forces of civilization and barbarism would have been repeated here.

The influence of this peaceful reform in the civil system has been to this day constant and controlling in the relations between the Hawaiian and the foreigner. To this influence we may largely credit the comparatively peaceful settlement of the disturbed condition of affairs incident to the dissolution of the monarchical system.

To Hawaiians this occurrence was especially painful and bewildering. Accustomed to the wise and successful rule of the Kamehamehas, and to a hereditary sentiment of loyalty toward the ruling chiefs, but few were able to weigh the causes that led to the disintegration of the royal prerogative in 1893; yet in spite of the most disturbing nature of this event, they did not as a class assume a hostile attitude, nor refuse their confidence to those who succeeded to the sovereign authority, although they have to a considerable extent held aloof from participation in public affairs. Many among them have been irreconcilably hostile to the new movement, while others have been its steadfast supporters, but the mass have remained in a state of suspense in political matters.

The solution that has come is political union with a great and most friendly nation, in which relation native Hawaiians are guaranteed full civil rights as citizens of Hawaii and also as citizens of the United States. May they never forget how America has trusted them.

This generous treatment of the Hawaiians by Congress calls for no less consideration from their fellow citizens in these Islands. They were the first settlers in Hawaii—pioneers of us all. With the most limited resources and without metals, they worked out an elaborate and splendid feudalism, developed agriculture, hydraulic engineering and the manufacture of beautiful and useful fabrics. They welcomed the foreigner and adopted his civilization, both to their advantage and injury. May fellowship between the two races be honorable and helpful and sincere.

The United States—always the protector of Hawaii—has approached the question of annexation in the most considerate manner. With great deliberation has our request been acceded to and finally consummated with a regard for our public and private interests that we can never forget.

The joint resolution of annexation guarantees perpetual union; the non-application of American public land laws to our limited public domain; the use of land revenues for the sole benefit of our population for educational and other public purposes, and the payment of our public debt.

Upon these guarantees and the principles of the constitution of the United States and the friendship of the American people for Hawaii, has the Territorial Act, the groundwork of our new civil system, been builded.

Our Legislature and our Judiciary are restored to us without fundamental changes; American citizenship, manhood suffrage and representation in Congress are conferred upon all Hawaiian citizens; only Hawaiian citizens may qualify for the office of Governor or other offices under the Territorial government; our laws are substantially retained, save such as became unnecessary under the new conditions.

Hawaii has no longer a separate independence, but it is now a component part of an independent and powerful nation. Its limitations are slight and its freedom of action large enough for the present. Its fundamental law affords a large measure of self government and protects us from the rule of strangers.

In our composite community the great world races are well represented: Polynesian, Anglo Saxon, Frank and Turanian. Because of this the difficulties of government are much increased. For the protection of the representative and other phases of modern civilized government, it has been deemed essential to refuse citizenship to representatives of the Chinese and Japanese nations which together form a large part of our population, although some of these are undoubtedly well qualified for the duty of citizenship.

The arbitrary denial of the franchise and consequent representation to these places upon the rest of the community whether as voters, or legislators, the courts or the executive, the considerations of the interests of these unrepresented persons. Neglect of this obligation would not only be an injustice to them but would inevitably menace the welfare of all.

As a corrective to race prejudice, our educational system reaches all children of whatever nationality. The Chinese child may pursue Chinese studies at some part of the day or night, but he must take up his English lessons in regular school hours. As a result the boys of our public schools of all nationalities compete with each other in their school room work and play ball together on the play ground. By the time they are grown up their race jealousies have substantially melted away.

The pressing demands of agricultural corporations for cheap field labor, together with their great influence, will continue as in the past to be an obstacle to the development of such a citizen population as shall safeguard the political future of Hawaii. The two enterprises are mutually hostile. The one is interested in men as machines, the other as factors in the development of the state.

As the control of such corporations gradually passes into the hands of those who are without the restraining influences of local and traditional associations, and are not interested in the social growth of the Hawaiian community, this danger may become more threatening than heretofore.

Every one who is resident here, not merely to amass wealth, but to live a home life and perhaps to bring up children who will necessarily become attached to the country, its climate and its social life, is most vitally interested in having this matter rightly solved. This means that it shall not only be possible but settled beyond all question, that no moneyed interest shall be allowed to stand in the way of the development of a pure family life in any part of the territory of Hawaii; either by the enforcement of unfavorable conditions upon the field laborer, whereby family life is made morally impossible or only immorally possible or by opposing the settlement of the small proprietor. Indifference of government or employers to the inalienable rights of men, women and children to an ideal home environment must result, sooner or later, in the reprisals of natural justice.

Our shores and mountain slopes offer a fertile soil and an infinite variety of landscape, sufficient and suitable for the homes of such citizens and enough of them as shall assure honest and capable government and statehood in due time.

The land policy of the Republic of Hawaii, whereby public lands are opened for settlement in small holdings, should be continued by the territory with such changes as experience has shown to be necessary, and carried on with vigor and earnestness in the hope that many Americans may be led to transfer their homes from the mainland to Hawaii.

This future is something to work for, wisely and persistently. Business is shortsighted and will not strive for the ideal result unless it pays to do so. Let us convince it that it will pay to do this, in dollars and in the higher values also; and in the meantime, let the citizen and his representative aim to prevent enterprise from doing the least thing against the interests of the body politic.

Two other great enterprises will especially enlist the thought and energy of the Territory—the improvement and extension of highways in a measure consonant with prospective needs; and the creation of municipalities. This will require the profoundest study and an honest public spirit, that such governments may perform a useful service and not become sources of civil corruption and thereby oppressive to those within their jurisdictions.

A happy feature of our late period of civil discussion was the usual survival of friendly relations between individuals of divergent political opinions and consequent public action. Few friendships were broken on this account or social relations disturbed. Mindful of this, I feel the utmost confidence in calling upon all of whatever name or opinion, to allow the political irritations of recent years to disappear in the shadows of the past; and, turning to the future, to join hands in the creation of an ideal commonwealth out of our complex conditions.

Our outlook is most auspicious. The shores and islands of the great Pacific ocean have already become the theatre of a drama, the successive acts of which will affect the mutual relations of the nations of the world.

The great powers are massing their forces in this ocean for the protection and development of their commerce and the promotion of national prestige.

Hawaii is the one mid-ocean refuge of the North Pacific—a half-way house where all passers by must stop for refreshment.

A stately procession of ships carries our products around the stormy cape to the Atlantic shores of the United States, another to the Pacific Coast. Our harbors are already inadequate for our commerce. Hawaiian agricultural enterprises, easily leading the world in the relative production of our main crop, is as yet far from its climax. Our climate, the joint production of the sun and the trade wind acting over a thousand leagues of sea, and the loveliness of our mountain scenery are a perpetual invitation to the denizens of all latitudes. Hawaii is fore armed by its past experience for this new essay in government. The honorable competition of sister Territories, the hope of Statehood, and the glorious history of America must inspire her.

Let us take up this work with enthusiasm, and be worthy of the confidence which Congress has in us.

Let us keep forever upon our great seal our old national motto—"the breath of the land endures in righteousness"—and always remember that private character is the real foundation of national strength.

The Anti-Trust Amendment.

Reports from Washington of yesterday, outlining the probable course of Congress, are to the effect that an adjournment will be taken as early in June as possible and that in order to avoid delay no legislation than the passage of appropriation bills will be considered except the anti-trust measures, which are regarded in the house as matters of urgency. There are two of these measures, one a bill in charge of Representative Overstreet amending the Sherman law and the other a resolution of the Judiciary Committee proposing an amendment to the constitution conferring upon Congress power to deal with trusts and to pass laws for their regulation.

The constitutional amendment is so much the more important of the two measures that it completely overshadows the other and occupies almost all the attention given to the subject. As reported the proposed amendment declares:

Section 1. All powers conferred by this article shall extend to the several States and Territories, the District of Columbia and all territory under the sovereignty and subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Section 2. Congress shall have power to define, regulate, control, prohibit or dissolve trusts, monopolies or combinations, whether existing in the form of a corporation or otherwise. The several States may continue to exercise such power in any manner not in conflict with the laws of the United States.

Section 3. Congress shall have power to enforce the provisions of this article by appropriate legislation.

It will be noted that the first section authorizes Congress to define, regulate and control trusts not only in the States, Territories and the District of Columbia, but "in all territory under the sovereignty and subject to the jurisdiction of the United States."

The phrase is clearly intended to include such colonial possessions as the country has acquired or may hereafter acquire and to put an end to any controversy concerning the right of Congress to legislate under the proposed amendment for such possessions. This is therefore something new in the language of the constitution if not in law and will doubtless be one of the most generally discussed features of the resolution.

The argument for the amendment is that experience has proven that a proper regulation of trusts cannot be effected by separate State action.
 The evil is national and the remedy must be national. It is claimed by members of the Judiciary Committee that the second section, which contains the essential part of the amendment, does not introduce any new principle of government, but is only a new application and an amplification of the principle involved in the interstate commerce law and that therefore the amendment is not to be regarded as in any way a radical departure from the recognized scope of Congressional action.

The attitude of the Democrats toward the resolution is curious. The leaders of that party have for years past declared that trusts should be regulated by Congress and Bryan has been loud in promising the people what he would do if elected President and given authority to deal with trusts. Now, however, there is confusion in the camp. Since the Republicans have shown a williness and an ability to grapple with the trust problem the Democrats have suddenly discovered that the thing is dangerous. Some of them assert the resolution is a trick devised to rob Bryan of his campaign thunder and others declare the amendment will violate State rights and deprive the State governments of authority over corporation charters.

In fact the Democrats desired the anti-trust issue to remain open as a subject for vague declamation and denunciation and the action of the Republicans in giving a definite form to the issue has found the Bryanites incapable of agreeing among themselves how to deal with it.—S. F. Call.
