EARTHWORMS.

Their Value to Land, Their Abode and Their Rootless Enemy.

The worms know well that rapid leaching of the soil which leaches the approach of a mole to their innocent burrows, and the moment they feel it rush wildly to the surface, prepared rather to face the worst than to wait the inevitable end.

A person unacquainted to the ways of worms might wonder that enough of them could be found in the comparatively small tract of land which such mole takes or occupies as his own to satisfy the needs of so voracious a creature.

The soil swarms with life. Vinegar kills worms, and where a barrel of vinegar has been accidentally spilled upon the ground the surface is sometimes positively covered before long by a thick layer of wriggling creatures which have come up to die, as it is the wont of their species.

It is the entire drama of nature on a small scale underground — remorseless, self-centered, unobtrusive, lowly, and exist, and exist in thousands, because there are myriads and myriads of dead leaves for them to live upon.

For many years my occupation took me to crowded political and labor meetings, generally held in rooms destitute of any means of ventilation.

As the first touch of cold air I took a deep inspiration and then held my breath for half a minute, in the meantime walking as fast as I could.

At the first touch of cold air I took a deep inspiration and then held my breath for half a minute, in the meantime walking as fast as I could.

I recommend this practice to public speakers, vocalists, entertainers and those who are obliged to frequent unwholesome local rooms.

A Congressman's Mail. Aside from the congressman's regular duties in committee and on the floor of the house, his correspondence hitherto has consumed the lion's share of his time, directly or by consequence.

The daily mail of some of the leading congressmen, and even of some of the most obscure ones, often amounts to 50, 75 or 100 letters, chiefly of an official nature.

A Cure For Damp Houses. People who are unfortunate enough to live in damp houses, particularly those in un-drained land, are apt to think that there is no help for them save in removal.

By the President of the United States of America: PROCLAMATION. While the American people...

On that day let us forego our ordinary work and employments, and assemble in our usual places of worship, where we may recall all our past sins, and where from grateful hearts...

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1893. RUMORS FROM THE ENEMY.

The STAR has assured itself of the accuracy of the report of what an eminent Royalist has said of the political hopes and plans of the ex-Queen.

Upon that point it merely says that the Royalist who talked to our informant is a leader of his party, is a personal friend of Mrs. Dominis and is a frequent guest at Washington Place.

While the subject matter of this man's talk is interesting and belongs as such to the press, we cannot, of course, admit (whatever Mrs. Dominis may have reported) that the United States' Minister is engaged in any political intrigue with the Monarchists or their leader.

It is the stale old trick of Liliuokalani and her friends to assert that restoration is just about to happen. This device has been used whenever there were signs of a native exodus to the Annexation ranks.

Indeed, no less than twenty-nine restoration days have been invented to coerce the party of the ex-Queen into a semblance of unity; and some plausible excuse has always been made for the failure of each to meet the expectations it had raised.

Consequently we must set down these last stories to the political strategy which has been of such service in the past.

However, in view of all the rumors that prevail, we hold it well that the Government is active and vigilant on the side of military defense.

It is wise to be always prepared, as befits Americans, to uphold the authority which, by right of the January revolution, was conferred upon the present administrators.

NATURALLY the burden of proof against the notorious embezzler, Wilson, will be withheld from print until it shall appear as part of the record of the courts.

We give today merely a side light on Wilson's career as Marshal—a beam or two from the bull's-eye lantern of Expert Low. From it the public may draw its own inferences.

All in all, Wilson's conception of Hawaii seems to have been that of a fat goose, and of his public duty the obligation to pluck it.

The Bulletin says that some one has circulated a paper asking the Provisional Government to retire. As names are not given we are at liberty to assume that the man is a Royalist.

Nobody else would go to such extremes even if he differed from the Government in matters of detail. When it comes to fundamentals the Annexation party is a loyal unit and may be depended upon to support the Provisional Government with spirit and zeal.

Does anyone doubt the political wisdom of the advice which the STAR tendered the Ministry last April to send the ex-Queen abroad to there await the settlement of Hawaiian troubles?

The Bulletin says that it has advice to the effect that President Cleveland's Hawaiian policy will be made known here in advance of the meeting of Congress.

The Midwinter Fair—which may be a midsummer fair before it opens—is getting a lively, and we hope a healthy boom in the San Francisco papers. At last accounts a great many fine and curious exhibits were promised it by Chicago space-fillers.

In spite of the hard times the enterprising California spirit is sanguine that the show will be a financial as well as a scenic success. It is regarded as a good omen that the World's Fair only ran $2,500,000 behind, when it might have been left in the lurch five or six millions.

If Kaulani comes back to her "little vineyard," the row between the factions in the female annex to the "Patriotic League" may break out more fiercely than ever.

It may have been for reasons of prudence or modesty that the League withheld signatures from the address, and hunched it on the sea of anonymity.

This from an anonymous writer is somewhat refreshing. WHILE Blount's report may be heard from in to-morrow's mail the chances are that it will not be given to the public until Cleveland's message is sent to Congress on the first Monday in December.

A SUCCESSFUL HOLD-UP. BANDITS PLUNDER AN ARKANSAS TRAIN.

The Robbers Hide in a Great Canebrake and Are Pursued by Officers and Bloodhounds.

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.), November 4.—Not since the days when the assassination of John L. Clayton was announced in the streets has such immense excitement prevailed in this city as was caused this morning by the news of last night's train robbery at Oliphant.

The robbery occurred at a lonely little sawmill station and a more desolate place could not have been found on the line.

Oliphant is situated in the largest and densest canebrake in the State of Arkansas. For fifteen miles on either side of the road is one continuous mass of almost impenetrable reeds.

There is little doubt that the robbery was committed by a band of men experienced in the business. Engineer Harriet says that the men who jumped on the engine and ordered him to throw up his hands showed unmistakable evidence of having had experience with locomotives before.

The train had not fairly stopped when the robbers began firing a fusillade from their Winchester. Two of the men jumped on the engine and Engineer Harriet and Fireman John Quarters immediately found themselves looking down the muzzles of rifles.

They were ordered to dismount, and were made to accompany the robbers with a gun placed at their heads. The brakeman and porter were also captured and placed under guard.

Conductor McNally only escaped, and the whole crew were forced to go through the train in advance of the robbers, so that the work of looting the passengers was unimpeded.

They tried to make the engineer and fireman open the express car, but they declined. When the door had been opened they endeavored to make Quarters open the safe, but he told them he had nothing to do with the safe.

The robbers inquired as to where the express messenger was, but Quarters replied that he did not know, though the messenger was standing beside him at that moment. Harriet and Quarters were in the charge of the robbers while McNally was firing at them.

Quarters said the robbers demanded watches as well as money, but if a man handed over a bad timepiece it was given back to him.

The robbers finally recognized Express Messenger P. B. Moore, who was standing in the car with the engineer and fireman, and compelled him to open the money safe, pointing two Winchester at his head.

There was another safe in the car containing jewelry, but this was not touched by the robbers.

All the time the robbery was going on in the train the four men stationed outside kept up a fusillade of firing. The express-car was perforated with bullets, and it is estimated that fully 200 shots were fired.

After the robbers had finished with the express car they went into the coaches. Four were still outside, two at each side, shooting and swearing.

Three inside marched the train crew into the car in front of them. Every man held up both hands. The colored porter came in first and was nearly frightened to death.

One of the men took up a position at the side of the coach near the door and leveled his Winchester at the heads of the passengers at that side of the car, while another took charge of the other half of the coach in a similar manner.

The third man, and he was a vicious, bloodthirsty-looking fellow six feet tall, took up a position in the aisle, leveling his revolver at the heads of the passengers. He quietly, indeed with almost modesty, informed the passengers that they had better proceed to visit up their valuables. He then proceeded slowly down the aisle, relieving every man of his valuables.

One hour after the news of the robbery reached this city Trainmaster Green, the only official of the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern road who happened to be in this city, began to organize a posse to send in pursuit.

Railroad officials were kept busy the entire day sending out telegrams to all sections of the State. Telegrams were received here during the day stating that fully 1000 men were in pursuit, and that the robbers had been trailed through the canebrakes of Independence county.

The courier reached here to-night, stating that three of the men, badly wounded, had been captured at James-town. One man turned out to be Jesse B. Roper, a notorious outlaw who murdered Sheriff Byler of Baxter county some time ago while resisting arrest, and for whose capture the last Legislature offered a standing reward of $5000.

Superintendent Peck of Iron Mountain says he is confident that the entire seven will be captured in less than twenty-four hours.

The remains of Conductor McNally, who was shot and killed at his post of duty, were taken from the ill-fated train upon its arrival here to-day to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. Deceased was a Knight Templar, and the commandery of this city took charge of the remains and escorted them to the depot to-night, where they were shipped to his sister, Mrs. Kate Shelan, at Cleveland, O. His life was insured for $50,000.

TO EUROPE AND BACK

THE COST OF A FOREIGN TOUR FROM THE UNITED STATES.

One Man Started Out With $100 and a Ferry Ticket—Economic People May See a Good Deal For $100—For $100 One May Travel Over the Continent.

It is customary to estimate the average amount of money spent by Americans on a trip abroad at $100. Yet it ought to be remembered by shallow pocketed and deep trained people who hunger for foreign travel, yet have not the thousand dollars, that most satisfactory trips can be taken for much less than half that amount.

There may be few who are willing to set out upon a European tour with $50 and a ferry ticket, like one Brooklyn man who did so and has never regretted it. Eighty dollars is rather a small allowance, but here is what it will do. Passages to Liverpool and from Amsterdam or Antwerp, steamer in both cases, railroad and other transit through Scotland and England, to Paris and through the Low Countries and a certain uncomfortable minimum of food.

Perhaps it isn't worth while to travel under such deprivations. A man under 25 years of age will vote yes, probably. Older than that, men care more for creature comforts.

Yet even such economy can be made more endurable by numbers. I know of a party of six young men from Harvard who took steamer passage in the Servia for a vacation trip. They just filled out passage tickets in one of the big rooms, took turns at washing their tin dishes and had lots of fun.

The necessary cost of first cabin passage to Liverpool and return is not less than $100 and may be much more, to which add nearly 10 per cent for fees. A great many dollars may be saved, however, by taking outward and homeward passage by different lines. Thus, if the trip is short one, sail to Liverpool or Glasgow; return from Antwerp or Amsterdam. If the trip is longer and includes Switzerland and Italy, sail to Liverpool or Glasgow (the latter if Scotland is to be visited); return from Naples or Genoa. Variety of interest as well as economy is secured by this plan.

The cost of the passage from Genoa or Havre is somewhat greater than from Liverpool, but the economy in time and travel ashore more than makes the difference.

An economically arranged tour ashore will save time and money by being direct as possible. Railway traveling, always in third class, will cost about 2 cents a mile and may be reckoned up before starting with a reasonable approach to accuracy. If points of interest do not lie near the line of route, omit them. There are several good ones. The economical traveler who has gone from Glasgow to Edinburgh by the Trossachs, seen Abbotsford and Melrose, stopped at Shakespeare country and seen Oxford, is ready to proceed to London, with whatever cathedral towns have happened to lie in his path—say Durham and York—and from London direct to the continent, not to return.

From London to Italy by Newhaven, Dieppe, Paris, Geneva, Lucerne, Venice, Rome, Naples, is a route practically direct. It omits the Netherlands and the Rhine, which ought not to be omitted. They can be included in a detour from Paris, in which case Switzerland is entered by Schaffhausen and Zurich. In either case—in any case—the journey's widest separated points should be the point of arrival and departure if possible. Of a trip not including Italy the port of return may be Havre or Rotterdam. In this case one goes south by the Low Countries and the Rhine, returning north to Paris, or vice versa.

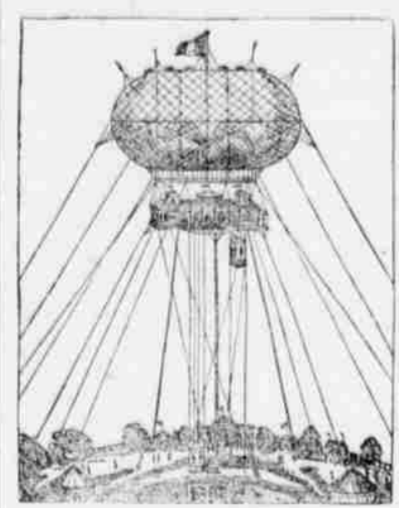

Food and lodging are much cheaper on the continent than in England. On the average an energetic traveler can get along nicely in perfect comfort, but not in "style," for $1.50 a day. Two, sharing meals and rooms, can make it on $2.50 a day, or even less with extreme economy. In Paris a dinner, "billon" in quantity and really not so very dreadful in quality, can be bought for 25 cents, a lunch for 20 cents, lodging and breakfast in the Latin quarter, the pleasant and most convenient part of the city, for from 35 cents to 50 cents. Out of a $1.50 allowance one can save a quarter or so a day to use on the road, where living is more expensive, as in Scotland.

Ocean passage, with fees, by cheap lines, $10 or upward; 2,500 miles of railroad fare at 2 cents a mile, $50; 60 days' living at $1.50 a day, $90; incidentals, whatever you like to make them; guidebooks, in which one should never economize, $15; reserve fund, $50. These are the chief essentials of a splendid continental trip, including a bit of Scotland, England, Paris, the Rhine, Switzerland (on foot) and a bit of Italy without the Low Countries, or the Low Countries without Italy, going by Glasgow and returning from Naples or Amsterdam. Altogether $390 should cover everything.

Such a trip involves some walking in mountain regions, patronizing cheap hotels, which are often the most homelike, and a total independence of laces, which is achieved by carrying one's belongings in a single light grip and striking out boldly for lodgings in every town by the aid of the guidebook's street map.—John L. Heaton in New York Recorder.

ANTWERP'S AIR CASTLE.

An Ambitious Project For the Next International Exposition. The next international exhibition will be held in Antwerp and will be inaugurated May 5, 1894. It will be a small affair as compared with the Columbian exposition, but strenuous efforts are being made to insure its financial and artistic success. All the buildings will be constructed of iron, zinc and glass and will be meritorious from an architectural standpoint.

ANTWERP'S CASTLE IN THE AIR.

Instead of an Eiffel tower or Ferris wheel, it is proposed to have at Antwerp a veritable castle in the air, the conception of an engineer named Tobiansky. It will be constructed of steel and bamboo tubing, covered with silk and sheet iron, and will be 90 feet long and have a floor space of 200 square feet. It will be suspended from a captive balloon at a height varying from 600 to 1,500 feet, according to the strength of the wind. The weight of the entire structure, including the balloon and all accessories, with that of 150 persons, will be about 16 tons, and it can be lowered to the ground in about 30 minutes.

The balloon will be anchored to the earth by four great vertical cables, and a large number of guy ropes are relied on to prevent its escaping from control. It will consist of two hemispheres of triple silk, divided into three cylindrical compartments. Its surface measurement will be 9,811 square meters and its volume 74,079 cubic meters.

The balloon elevators, each capable of accommodating 10 or 15 persons, will connect the air casts with the ground. From the dizzy elevation ordinarily maintained hundreds of miles of the flat Belgian country can be seen, and thousands of electric lights will gaily scintillate from the balloon as it hovers amid the clouds by night. Competent engineers pronounce the scheme feasible, and no doubt it will be liberally patronized by those to whom the apparent hazard will be an inducement rather than a deterrent.

LAWRENCE TALBOT NEAL.

He Has Been Comprehensive in Ohio Politics For Many Years.

It is said of Ohio's Democratic candidate for governor that his initials, L. T., stand for low tariff, and as Mr. Neal is the author of the tariff plank of the Chicago Democratic platform nobody will feel disposed to dispute this distinction. As Governor McKinley, the Republican nominee, incarnates the high tariff theory, we may expect some earnest tariff talk in Ohio this fall. Ohio is used to that sort of thing, however, and so is the Democratic candidate, for he has been talking tariff ever since 1865, when he was admitted to the bar at Chillicothe.

Very soon after he commenced practicing law Mr. Neal's townsmen elected him city solicitor, and he was subsequently promoted to the state legislature and to the office of prosecuting attorney of Ross county. In 1872 the Democrats of the Seventh district sent him to congress, where he served two terms. He was again a candidate in 1882 and 1888, but was unable to overcome the Republican majority in his district.

Mr. Neal was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, but was defeated by James E. Campbell by one vote. In 1891 he was again the most formidable rival of Governor Campbell in the Democratic state convention. Mr. Neal was a prominent candidate for United States senator in 1890, when Calvin S. Brice was nominated and elected. He was conspicuous in the Democratic national conventions of 1888 and 1892.

Lawrence Talbot Neal is of Revolutionary stock and was born at Parkersburg, W. Va., Sept. 22, 1814. He attended the common schools of his native town, and at the age of 18 became a clerk in a dry goods store. In 1832 he removed to Chillicothe, O., his present home.

GEMS IN VERSE.

The Fault of the Age. The fault of the age is a mad endeavor To leap to heights that were made to climb. By a burst of courage, or a thought most clever, We plan to forestall and outstep Time. We scorn to wait for the thing worth having. We want the moon at the day's dim dawn. We find no pleasure in toiling and saving. As our forefathers did in the old times gone. We crave the gain, but despise the getting. We want wealth—not as reward, but dower— And the strength that is wasted in useless fretting. Wouldst thou a forest or build a tower. To cover the prize, yet to shrink from the winning. To thirst for glory, yet fear to fight— Why, what can it lead to at last but sinning. To mental languor and moral blight?

Better the old slow way of striving. And counting small gains when the year is done. 'Tis to use our force and our strength contriving. And to grasp for pleasure we have not won. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Molasses Catches Flies. My Uncle Ephraim was a man who did not live in vain. And yet why he succeeded so I never could explain. By nature he was not endowed with wit to a degree. But folks allowed there nowhere lived a better man than he. He started poor, but soon got rich; he went to congress then. And held that post of honor long against much brainier men. He never made a famous speech nor did a thing of note. And yet the praise of Uncle Eph welled up from every throat. Now father was a smarter man, and yet he never won. Such wealth and fame as Uncle Eph, "the deestrik's favorite son." He had "convictions," and he was not loath to stake his mind— He went his way and said his say as he might be inclined. Yes, he was brainy; yet his life was hardly a success— He was too honest and too smart for this vain world, I guess. At any rate I wondered he was unsuccessful when My Uncle Eph, a duiler man, was so revered of men. When Uncle Eph was dying, he called me to his bed. And in a tone of confidence inhaled he said: "Dear William, ere I seek repose in yonder blissful sphere, I fain would breathe a secret in your adolescent ear. Strive not to how your way through life—it really does not pay. Be sure the saive of flattery soaps all you do and say. Herein the only royal road to fame and fortune lies. Put not your trust in vinegar—molasses catches flies." —Eugene Field.

Despair. Oh, I am sick at heart. The eye of day, The insistent summer sun, seems pitiless, Shining in all the barren crevices Of weary life, leaving no shade, no dark. Where I may dream that living waters lie. As pitiless as some shipwrecked man, Who, gazing from his narrow shoal of sand On the wide, unshelved round of blue and blue, Sees that full light is errorless despair. The insects' hum that stirs the silent dark Startles and seems to cheat me, as the tread Of coming footsteps cheats the midnight watcher. Who holds her heart and waits to hear them pause. And hears them never pause, but pass and die. Music sweeps by me as a messenger Carrying a message that is not for me. The very names of the hills and sky is obituary, and the lingering hours Wait round me dumbly, like superfluous slaves, — whom I want next but the secret news They are forbid to tell. —George Eliot.

A Pagan's Prayer. O Mother, I have loved thee without fear, And looked upon the mystery of change, Since first a child, in the closing year, I saw the snowflakes fall and whispered, "Strange." Because in these pale borderlands of fate Grief hath companioned me, I have not quailed. And when love passed into the outer strait I have not faltered, and thou hast not failed. For I have lifted up my heart to thee, And thou hast ever hearkened and drawn near. And bowed thy shining face down over me Till I could hear thee as the hill flowers hear. And I have cried to thee in lonely need, Being but a child of thine here and wrong. Till all the rivers in the hills gave heed, And the great hill winds in thy holy tongue— That ancient incommensurable speech The April stars and autumn sunsets know— Soothed me and calmed with solace beyond reach Of human ken, mysterious and low. Then in that day when the last snow shall come And chill the fair round world within its fold, Leave me not friendless in the gathering gloom. But gird thy arms about me as of old. With sleep once more in thy compassionate hands. Crown me a monarch as of many hills When I would rove the crimson valley lands, With all my vanished comrades of the hills. When that great storm out of the dark shall drive And bler the sun and baffle my release, Let not thy weary earthing faint nor strive, Faring beyond the tumult to thy peace. —Bliss Carman.

Her Day. He was a mighty, rolling river; She was a little, rippling rill; He was a mountain naught could shiver; She was a tiny, shifting hill. He was a lion, loudly roaring; She was a lambkin, loath to love; He was an eagle, proudly soaring; She was a gentle, cooing dove. He was a sturdy oak, defiant; She was a slender, clinging vine; He was a brave and brawny giant; She was a wee thing feminine. Ah, but the day when they went shopping She was the one who took the lead; She was the earth, so far outspicing Him that he seemed a mustard seed! —Washington Post.

A Sunset. A single sunset hath more brightness Than all the bonied pairings—kings possess. Take the raw moment ere the large sun sinks. Behold far hills and their mysterious links. Then Nature reveals in most glorious mood And shows her powers as if to shame our brood. —Clarence A. Huskirk.

Success. Those who succeed will always have their crown. While thousands just as noble, and who strive As eagerly to win the same boon, Find at the end no triumphant grave. They sink mid ocean and slumber into death. Or die forgotten in oblivion's night. —Walter Malone.

He that respects himself is safe from others. He wears a coat of mail that none can pierce. —Longfellow.

Legacies to an English Orator. Perhaps the most fortunate politician who ever lived in the matter of legacies was William Pitt, earl of Chatham. In consideration of his services to the country, the Duchess of Marlborough left him a legacy of £10,000. Some years afterward Sir William Pymont died, leaving the great orator a legacy of £3,000 a year. This fortune was quite unexpected, and Pitt never saw his benefactor in his life. —London Tit-Bits.

AN IROQUOIS WIGWAM

ONE OF THE ATTRACTIONS AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Six Nations Represented in True Aboriginal Style—The Civilized Trophies of Today—A Practical Exposition of Life Saving on the Lake Front.

The Empire State did a great thing when she added the Iroquois village to the ethnological exhibit at the World's fair and charged herself with the maintenance of the representatives of the Six Nations whom she sent hither to illustrate the manners and customs of their fathers in the time of Columbus. The village is down on the shore of the south pond, near the Forestry building, and its wigwams of barked bark roofed with elm, its council house and its other edifices are faithful reproductions of the primitive structures of those years ago.

LODGE OF THE SIX NATIONS.

Just as, for instance, is a final descendant of the famous chief whose great-grandson used to illumine our school records, while Chief Laporte came of a family that has been famous for centuries among his people, and the doubly suggestive appellation of Solomon O'Brien belongs to the grandson of old Chief Cornplanter, who was a friend of George Washington. Chief Jack of the Tuscaroras, the secretary of the Iroquois, is here, and also one of the champion runners of the world, Deerfoot, who raced in England years ago, and whose record for an hour has never been beaten.

The present civilization of the Six Nations is very much the same as that of the rest of the people in New York state. They have houses and schools like those of the white brethren, and many of them attend Christian churches of their own building. Some of them still retain their primitive religion, however, and a number of the old ceremonies, games and dances still survive, and the visitor may witness in the World's fair village the appeal to the Great Spirit, the joyous festival ceremonial or the grim war dance performed with the same fidelity to history that characterizes the material features of the place.

The Indians excel in the manufacture of pottery, baskets and beaded embroideries and are justifiably proud of their skill. They make mats out of corn husks that seem too good for ordinary uses, and their fans and embroideries display considerable artistic taste. They are allowed to sell their wares, and their method of business seems peculiar to people who have had experience with other dealers in savannah and curio. They are stolid and do not haggle. They state their price and are apparently indifferent whether you take an article or leave it.

To the ethnologist the village presents some rare food for reflection, and it is to be found not only in the relics, customs and ancient history, but also in the fact that the Iroquois are the only Indians who have come in close contact with civilization who are numerically stronger today than they were in the days when they possessed the land.

The exhibitions of the United States life saving service are especially interesting to inland people. Those who live on seacoasts have opportunities enough to familiarize themselves with the maneuvers, though of course there are thousands of them, too, who know nothing of the service but what they read. The exhibitions are given on the slops of the lake just off the north end of the Manufacture building and are valuable illustrations of the work and worth of the service, though they lack the impressive accompaniments of hurricane winds and mountain waves.

A mast is rigged up about 800 yards from shore to do duty as a wreck, and a man perched in the cross-tree is the person to be saved. The lifeboat, mounted on wheels, is hurriedly drawn down the beach, hastily launched and quickly rowed out to the mast and back again. In illustrating the use of the life line a small brass mortar is used. A bomb from this carries out a line that drops across the yardarm of the mast. The shipwrecked man pulls on this, and with it draws out a rope, which he fastens to the mast. Those on shore then lighten it up and send out the "breaches hay," which is something like a pair of lunnet cables, the lower end of which is looped, and in this the man is hoisted ashore.

LIFE SAVING DRILL.

Skulls, scorpions, tarantulas, rattle snakes, horned toads and Gila monsters are not usually considered humorous things, but it is hard to avoid smiling at them when they are seen among the curies of the dead letter office in the postoffice exhibit. They are certainly the oddest kind of dead mail matter, though not the only dead things in the exhibit, which includes a team of stuffed dogs that used to haul mail in upper Michigan in the winter. They are dressed tuggen to a toboggan, and beside them is a wax figure of the Indian who drove them arrayed in a heavy woolen costume and snowshoes. There are many other curious things in the postoffice display, which is altogether calculated to give one an increased respect for a 2 cent stamp.

C. T. BAXTER. AU BOIS DORMANT. The wood did sleep, and drowsy were the leaves— All hooded, close and hid. There was no stir, no sound of vagrant bird Nor any light, save as perchance the blind Might see through closed lid. The sleeping wood had dreams—a dream of Pan. (Oh, fawns and wood nymphs sing!)— A riot dance, a flickering flame of green And flying lights alight on the leafy screen. The wood god still is king. —E. F. Mosby in Kate Field's Washington.

WORTH WHILE.

Lipsey there, Lord, that when it comes to me To win or lose I'll follow truth and show Or choose instead to win, as better worth My pains, some chafing economic use of earth— Grant, too, Great Father, from a hard fought field. Forward and behind, upon a battered shield, Home to obscure endurance to be borne Rather than live my own mean gains in scorn.

Far better fall with face turned toward the goal At one with abloom and my own worn soul, Than ever come the coward's self reproach When to succeed at last is bid to fail.

Now ends to win and there with be content— Save me from that! Direct thou the event As with thy will. Where e'er the prizes go, Grant me the strength that thy soul may grow. —Edward S. Martin in Scribner's.

A SON'S EPIGRAPH.

The news of the Merrihue's arrival in Hampton roads and of her first day's flight before she cut the Monitor reached Washington on a Sunday afternoon. The telegram was brief but explicit. The ironclad was in complete control of the roads. Messengers were hastily dispatched, summoning the chiefs of bureaus to a council at the navy department. One of those messengers, sent in search of Commodore Smith, found that officer on his way home from church, and he knew that the commodore's only son was first lieutenant of the 11th Infantry.

"There's been a long, wild epiphany, many of them, but not every father could be so sure of his son's character as to honor his memory before receiving the news of his death with such a tribute as that. 'Joe' was indeed dead, as modest and as brave a man as ever drew sword in a good cause.—New York Tribune.

"Don't count on the rich men of this city to buy your pictures," said a well known art dealer to an ambitious artist who was talking of bursting upon the New York public. "They won't do it. And to tell you the truth," he went on, "in all New York there are not more than 150 persons who buy pictures, and they are not the men you know—who, in short, if they had opera tickets for a certain night, would throw them aside for the sake of visiting some good paintings."

"But that's a small art-loving public for a large town!" "Yes, it is, but it's the fact, I tell you the men who will buy your pictures if they like them are the salaried men, head clerks, junior partners—men who when they like a picture like to very much and are willing to deny themselves for the sake of owning it."

"As a rule, it is not the married man who will take your picture. I could count on less than all my fingers the men of well known wealth who buy pictures in New York. They will commend, but they won't buy. They can afford to go higher, and that means to go abroad."—New York Sun.

The Toad in the Moon.

The red men who inhabit the whole western continent, between the Rocky mountains and the Cascade range believe that the spots on Luna's face represent the form of a gigantic toad, and tell the following story to substantiate their queer ideas: In a time long past a little boy, being desperately in love with a toad, went one evening one night and prayed that the moon might shine brightly on his adventure. His prayer was granted, and by the clear light of the moon he was pursuing the toad and had almost caught her when, as a last chance, she made a desperate spring for the face of the moon (which appeared much nearer than common) and succeeded in reaching that luminary, where she sets until this day in plain view of all the wolves of the world, which nightly howl in their agony whenever they think of how the toad outwitted their ancestor.—St. Louis Republic.

A Surprise.

He knocked at the back door of a suburban house, and the cook opened it. He was a sinister looking fellow, and she held on to the door. "Lady of the house?" he inquired gruffly. "No," replied the cook. "Man of the house here?" "No." "None of the people in?" "None but me," and she tried to shut the door.

"A w, come off," he growled, setting his foot against it. "I guess I'll come in and have a good feed. Step lively, now, or I'll grab you." She let go the door, and the tramp forged in and fell into the arms of a big policeman, who was coming the cook, contrary to orders.—Tit-Bits.

The Question of Good Eyes.

Native Patagonians, like other savage people, have very keen eyes for certain things—things which their modes of life have made it indispensable that they should notice. In other words, they are special-ists, and as a matter of course they excel in their own particular line. But it does not follow that they have better eyes than are possessed by men of civilized countries. Set one of them to find a reversed "e" in the middle of a printed page, says Mr. Hudson, and the tows would run down his brown cheeks, and he would give up in search with aching eyeballs. But the proofreader can find the reversed letter in a few moments and never strain his eyes in the least.—Youth's Companion.

How He Collected It.

"If you think you've got such a dead sure thing on that claim against me, why don't you sue me for it?" asked the man with the scabbled chin. "I could sue you and collect it easily enough, and you know it," replied the man with the bushy eyebrows, "and I would have done it long ago but for the reason that it would have brought your other creditors down on you like a thousand of brick. I don't want to break you."

ONE DOLLAR A WORD.

Famous Men Who Can Easily Get This sum or Writing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—There are a number of men who have no reputation as writers who would be able to command at almost any time higher rates for magazine or newspaper articles than almost any of those literateurs who have gained fame by reason of their writings. Mr. James M. Keene, who is well known as one of the most successful and picturesque of those men who deal in Wall street in New York city, has been many times asked to write over his own signature upon any topic which he chose and to name his own price, which would cheerfully be paid. As Mr. Keene sometimes has found his fortune appreciate as much as 100,000 in a single day, it is easy to see that if he charged for such service in proportion to his earning capacity he would receive an almost fabulous sum for an article from 2,000 to 5,000 words in length.

The only occasion since those early days of his poverty, when he made his living as a newspaper writer, that Mr. Keene overcame his disinclination to write was in the summer of 1872, just after he had held at bay an army of Wall street speculators, having sustained the market single handed for an entire day, backed by gold which his California friends sent to him, and thereby unquestionably prevented such a panic as this country has not seen excepting possibly in 1857.

The strain upon his nervous system of thus maintaining the market against the combined assault of frightened investors and speculators was so great that a few days after Mr. Keene was stricken with an illness which threatened to develop into paralysis of the brain. He was removed to Long Branch as soon as it was possible to lift him from his bed, and there, after some difficulty and through the offices of the late Sam Ward, Mr. Keene consented to give an interview for publication. Mr. Ward labored with him for more than two hours before the great operator consented.

At that time Mr. Ward was entertaining his nephew, F. Marion Crawford, and had been so highly pleased with a story which Mr. Crawford told him of an experience in India that he advised the young man to write it out and that he would see that it found a publisher, and thus it was that the story which made Marion Crawford famous, "Mr. Isaacs," came to be written and printed and Crawford's career determined.

Mr. Keene was greatly interested in Mr. Ward's narration to him of this tale, which had not then been printed, and he told Mr. Ward some of the early California experiences of his which seemed quite as marvelous as did the story of Mr. Isaacs, and it was then that Mr. Ward said to him: "Mr. Keene, if you were not a great speculator, you might become a great novelist."

Mr. Keene finally received the representative of one of the New York newspapers. He lay upon his bed, which was in a quiet room of one of the Long Branch hotels. The room was very airy and light, and it seemed impossible to believe that the man who lay there content apparently with the almost humble surroundings of this 10 by 12 room was able, if he chose, to buy the hotel and its contents for a sum in excess of a million dollars.

He began slowly to dictate. It seemed as though he weighed every word. He frequently changed a word in order to put in its place another which would more clearly express his meaning. When a sentence or a paragraph had been written down, Mr. Keene would ask to have it read over, and when this was done he repeated it several times, his patience and care being quite as great as characterized Ruskin or Russell Lowell when they were engaged in prose composition.

Thus for five hours this great financier lay there composing a word in his article. The mental strain was exhaustive both upon Mr. Ward, who was present, and upon the newspaper reporter. Once during the interview a telegram was brought to Mr. Keene from his office, and he opened it, read it and tossed it upon the table with no more concern than though it had announced a most trivial matter to him.

This article appeared the following day in print. It was the sensational publication of the month. It was reprinted either in whole or in part in a great number of newspapers. It commanded attention not only from financiers, to whom every word uttered by Mr. Keene and since upon financial matters was received with absorbing interest, but it also made a deep impression upon literary men on account of the singular purity of its English and the lucidity and felicity of its style.

The editor of the paper in which the article appeared would gladly have sent Mr. Keene a check for $2,500 for it, but the great financier did not and would not write for pay. He earned a fortune while he was dictating that article, for the telegram which he received announced that a sudden appreciation that day in a line of stocks held by Mr. Keene was so great that if he chose to sell his profits would be $150,000.

Ex-Speaker Reed has only recently been tempted to write, and for his writings he has received a price quite as large as the handsome sum once paid Mr. Gladstone by an American publisher for a magazine article. Governor McKinley was offered $1,000 for a 1,000 word article; Governor Russell of Massachusetts a sum almost as large, but for a little longer article. Secretary Carlisle, if he could find time to write, could materially increase his income by so doing, and there is not one of the more prominent politicians and financiers who could not more than match the earnings of some of the greatest of the litterateurs, provided only they were willing to accept of fees which have been made to them. It is noticed, however, that the timidity or repugnance which usually prevents men of affairs about writing for the public prints is very rapidly passing away.

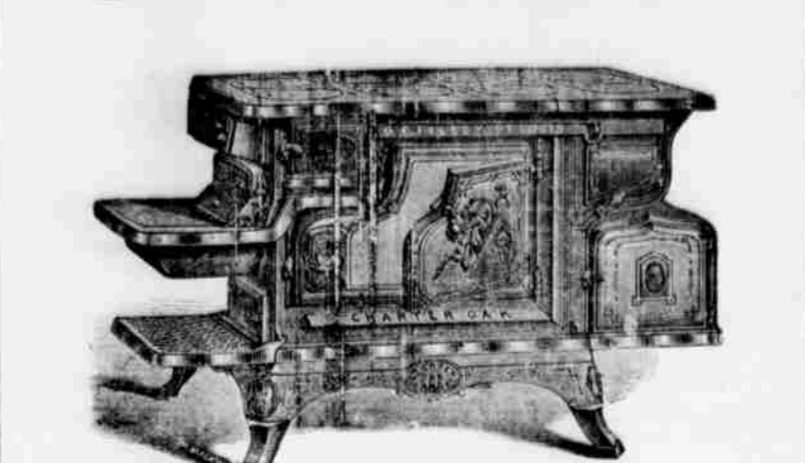

Saw a Snake Five Miles Off.

A few days ago Mr. James M. Neal, a Georgia farmer, ascended the tower hill tower at Sandersville with a friend to try a new telescope. When Mr. Neal drew a focus on his plantation, which is five miles north of Sandersville, he remarked to his friend, Colonel Fleming, that he was satisfied with the telescope. He then shifted it to his pasture. He observed a great commotion among his cows, and upon adjusting the focus to a misty he noticed that a tremendous rattlesnake was the cause of the trouble. He quickly handed the instrument to Colonel Fleming, descended the iron steps, mounted his horse, and in a short while reached his place, where he found two of his cows lying dead from the effects of the serpent's bite. He found the snake and killed it. It had 14 rattles and a button.

Not to Be Misconstrued.

The sound of the old man flagellating a carpet in the back yard nerved the youth in the front parlor to seek to make himself understood. "Do you?" With every symptom of anxiety he leaned toward the girl of his choice. "Look with favor upon my suit!" A smile disturbed the delicate curves of her lips. "Yes," she answered, and his being thrilled with the glad tidings, "I do, I may be looking at the northwest corner of the room immediately above your head, but that is owing to the congenital strabismus which afflicts me. You will accept this explanation, I trust. Thank you." In the falling light he printed a kiss upon her brow, and their throats were plighted.—Detroit Tribune.

EXTRACTS FROM EXPERT LOW'S REPORT.

Single Increase of Expenses Under the Administration of the Marshal.

From his long and guarded report upon the business methods of the Marshal...

Comparing the receipts of the Oahu Prison as shown in Attorney-General's Report...

In checking up the detail of the accounts of January, 1893, when there are no further individual receipts...

In comparing the pay rolls on file in the Attorney-General's office with the Fine book I find the totals compared...

The foregoing comparison shows a marked increase in the supplies of police being an excess of expenditures over the period...

That of incidental, police station, showing an excess of about $6000.

That of horse feed account, an excess of $1251.

Out of this total of $1883 31 the sum of $107 35 was expended for hay and grain used at Waikiki...

An increase in the expense of telephone rentals of $1833 75 being 200 per cent more than that expended during 1890.

This miscellaneous account shows an increase of some 120 per cent of the expenditures for 1890.

Under the classification of traveling expenses I notice the following items that look irregular:

February 16, 1891.—Paid expenses of Deputy Attorney-General Charles Crighton in attending the Third Judiciary Circuit Court, Kauai, Hawaii, for November term, 1891.

February 16, 1891.—Paid expenses of A. P. Peterson while at Kauai attending November term Third Judiciary Circuit Court.

Under the classification of horse hire: February 16, 1891.—Paid horse hire for A. P. Peterson to volcano and back while at Kauai.

Under the head of passage and freight: Paid A. P. Peterson to and from Kauai, W. G. Hall.

Under the pay of police, my simplest way of giving the information you desired was to tabulate the classification of pay rolls.

The total amount paid to Specials and Detectives named in pay rolls which I have checked was, viz:

During Marshal Hopkins' Incumbency (8 months) $1311 00

During Marshal Wilson's Incumbency (13 months) 7116 80

$8427 80

The Attorney-General Whiting having said that I cannot see the pay rolls or individual vouchers for the monies drawn upon his and the Marshal's voucher, I can only call your attention to the amount of monies so drawn.

The total amount of monies so drawn for the pay of Specials and Detectives not named, for which there are no pay rolls other than the Attorney-General's and Marshal's voucher during Marshal Wilson's incumbency was on account of:

Pay of Police Honolulu $2320 00

Pay of Police Hawaii 132 00

Pay of Police Kauai 302 50

$3774 50

The voucher drawn on the pay of Kauai police states that it was for detective service on the Nelson-Bushong murder.

There are no vouchers from either the Sheriff of Kauai or Hawaii for the amounts drawn under the pay of police for those islands as specified above.

The monies paid for Specials and

From the report covering the conduct of the Marshal's office, we extract the following: In comparing the receipts of the Oahu Prison as shown in Attorney-General's Report...

In checking up the detail of the accounts of January, 1893, when there are no further individual receipts, the portion belonging to the informers being received for by the Marshal...

In checking the individual receipts or vouchers for this disbursement of $1,752 05, I find them in order up to the month of January, 1893, when there are no further individual receipts...

In comparing the pay rolls on file in the Attorney-General's office with the Fine book I find the totals compared, not to respect whatever was paid to individual receipts.

Every pay roll, from March, '90 to February '92, showed some slackness of system, either by no receipts or by officers or clerks receiving for other orders...

In one instance one of the officers was credited with $14 20—his rate of wages the difference of 48 80 being added to the footing in ink...

William Wilson, who was charged with the larceny of six bottles of beer from the Merchants' Exchange saloon, will have his trial to-morrow.

THE CHAMPION HERE.

ONE OF HER CREW DIED THIS MORNING AT TOMBOURNE FOR JETTY'S GRAVE.

H. B. M. S. Champion, Captain Eustace Rooke, arrived here about 9:30 o'clock this morning, after a passage of sixteen days from Esquimaux, which place she left on the sixteenth instant.

The only event occurring worthy of note during the Champion's voyage happened on the second day out, when a heavy gale was encountered. The ship rolled thirty-five and thirty-six degrees, and during this time a locker on the upper deck broke away from its lashings and crushed the legs of an able seaman named Butler.

Besides the boat presented by Her Majesty to the natives of Pitcairn Island, the Champion brings a handsome tombstone to be placed at the grave of Chief Engineer E. J. Jeffries of the Garnet, who died here last March.

When the Champion came in this morning she saluted the Hawaiian flag with twenty-one guns, which was replied to by the shore battery of four guns under command of Lieutenant Coyne.

The dredger has nearly finished work along the side of Brewer's wharf. As the deepening of the water there and the extension of the wharf are improvements long needed, it is thought that, when in good shape, Brewer's wharf will be about as much frequented as either of the large wharves.

The mother of Rud Kinney, a minor, has petitioned for letters of guardianship over his estate, which consists of property at Waiaina, valued at $2000.

In the matter of the bankruptcy of W. H. Daniels of Waikoloa, Maui, the assignee, E. W. McChesney, has petitioned the Court for allowance of accounts, an order to pay final dividend and for an order of discharge as assignee. There is the sum of $249 21 remaining in his hands.

The case of Mori, a Japanese gambler charged with vagrancy, is on trial this morning.

Local and Needs Employment. EDITOR STAR: I've been in these Islands eight years. I've been foremost at the front with my gun during this period three times. I've always been with the people, too. I've never ginned against them on any occasion like some others have. Nevertheless that seems to cut no figure; for to-day I walk the streets in need of work, while men that were armed by Wilson to shoot me down on the 17th of January last have been taken into the fold and fondly nursed.

This is not one case of the sort, but many. Where is the gratitude shown for these services? I say it is not proper, and as long as the Government sees fit to pursue this course they will probably succeed in making good Royalists out of Annexationists.

There are a few good men who have repeatedly lifted up their voices about these things, but it is cried down by others and by Government officials, too. It is a pity there aren't more men in the Advisory Council like Emmeluth, Waterhouse and a few others of their kind. Surely, these things cannot always remain.

Yours, etc., H. A. JONES.

Lilikoiwai as a Witness. Royalists say that the ex-Queen does not intend to respond to a subpoena in the Wilson-Smith libel suit, having been advised by an authority, "higher than the Supreme Court," to pay no attention to the service. In that event matters will come to a head very fast on these islands as the defendant will insist on his rights and contest the claim that Mrs. Domains is above the law. Undoubtedly she will be called to the stand and will be brought there unless a foreign government intervenes.

In the Supreme Court. In the case of the Hawaiian Sugar Company vs. The Waikapu Sugar Company, Chief Justice Judd has sent down a decree in which it is ordered and adjudged that neither said Waikapu Sugar Company nor said George W. Macfarlane is entitled to an account for profits for use and occupation of any portion of the land owned in common by said parties which said Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar Company had in its occupation on or before June 16th, 1891. The matter in dispute after that date is referred to Henry Smith, as master, to determine.

Washington Place Guarded. Friends of the ex-Queen applied yesterday for a police guard at Washington Place. Accordingly two blue-coats were detailed, one of whom is on duty in front and the other in the rear of the ex-Queen's premises. It is alleged that she is in fear of her life, though no one is known by the authorities to have threatened it.

The Honokaa Jail. Bids were opened in the Interior Department to-day for the construction of a jail at Honokaa, as follows: H. Defries, $1975; Archer & Trask, $2100; Henry Hall, $2675; P. A. Anderson, $1716 50. The contract was awarded to the last-named bidder.

There must be blood in the present moon judging from the number of assault and battery cases in the Police Court. There were three more arrests this morning for fighting.

About a hundred of the Kamehameha boys had a drill on Palace square this afternoon.

The California Feed Company

Feed Company

We have been compelled to make this change on account of our fast increasing business. We now carry a very large stock, as we import by the ship-load, and do our own buying. We will still keep our old place at Lolo. The Hawaiian Bank Mauna Ala will be here about December 1st, 1893, with another full cargo of selected Hay and Grain for us. We thank our friends for their liberal patronage in the past three years. We hope by strict attention to the wants of our patrons to merit a continuance of the same. We will keep in stock the very best to be had in our line, and at prices as cheap as the cheapest. We do not want the earth, only a small portion left to us. Give us a trial and we will treat you right. If you want good fresh Hay and Grain ring up 121 on both telephones.

Aim at the Drake

And you are bound to hit some of the ducks. This is perfectly the same with

Wampole's

Tasteless

OF

Cod Liver Oil.

It aims to cure Consumption, Hits the Mark, too, and it most effectually breaks up Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness and all Throat and Lung troubles that cause this disease.

It is natural logic to conclude that if WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION OF COD LIVER OIL has power to prevent Consumption, it surely is able to cure these lesser emergencies.

This vigor-making, fat-producing preparation is Absolutely Tasteless, in so far as Cod Liver Oil is concerned. All you notice is a delightful flavor of Wild Cherry and Anise.

But the purest Norwegian Cod Liver Oil is there all the same. It is a great blood enricher. Best of all it is a natural food that in its stomachic effects actually assists its own assimilation.

In Pulmonary or Bronchia troubles it is unequalled. No one doubts the value of Cod Liver Oil, but not every one is able to take it.

WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION

Removes the nauseous objection and actually makes Cod Liver Oil palatable.

Tons & Tons & Tons of NEW GOODS

have been pouring into our Store and Warehouses the past few weeks Ex. barks "Paul Isenberg" and "J. C. Pfleger" from Europe, and the different steamers and sailing vessels from San Francisco. Our stocks of heavy goods, such as Black and Galvanized Chain, Galvanized Sheet Iron, Sheet Lead, Pig Lead, Sheet Lead, Lead Pipe, Lamp Chalk, Shot, Bar Iron, Etc., has never been so large and complete as it is to-day. Fence Wire—Our stock on 4-5-6 black and 4-5-6-9-12 galvanized is very large, and we claim it is as fine a lot of wire as ever came to the country. However, we don't ask you to take our word for it if you don't wish to, just come in and we will let you cut a piece off of any coil and put it in our big vise upstairs and you can twist it, bend it, tie knots in it, and test it to your heart's content, and after you have done this and asked the price of it, you will be pretty sure to buy some.

Galvanized Buckets and Tubs, Sauce Pans, Tea Kettles, Ball Bluing, Crown Soft Soap, Fine Clay and Day & Martin's Shoe Blacking we have plenty of now, and our stock of Galvanized Flexible Steel and Iron Wire Rope is complete from 3/4 to 4 inches. Hubback Boiled and Raw Linseed and Castor Oil, White Lead and Zinc, Red Lead and Oxide, Colza Oil and Stockholm Tar, all came by the "Isenberg" in fine order and are offered at low prices. Now is the time to have your Coffin trimmed; the hundred sets of "Coffin Furniture" just received are going off like "hot cakes."

The new "Pumping Plant" works well and you can get all the water you want, so you want one of our new Lawn Sprinklers. It is the best Sprinkler ever sold here, no parts to wear out, as it does not revolve, and is good for either light or heavy pressure of water.

Electrical Goods.—Our stock is more complete than ever, and we have five men hard at work wiring houses for Electric Lights. We can furnish wou the fixtures, shades and lamps in any style, and if we wire your house you can feel sure it is done according to the latest Underwriters' rules.

Game is said to be plenty. We have the right kind of Schultze, Wood, or Black Powder Cartridges to get big bags with.
