Policy sought for utility firms House moves to lower stiff reconnection fees

Manuel A. Tenorio

By Rafael H. Arroyo
Variety News Staff

THE HOUSE of Representatives has approved a bill that seeks to prevent utility companies from charging delinquent customers unreasonable reconnection fees.

House Bill 9-416, authored by Rep. Manuel A. Tenorio and five others, aims to set a reconnection fee policy for Commonwealth Utilities Corp., telephone firms and the islands' two cable TV stations.

The measure was passed on final reading during a session Monday after almost an hour-long debate. The vote was unanimous and it is now headed to the Senate.

"This is a consumer protection bill," said Tenorio in defending the measure on the House floor. "The purpose of this is to make sure companies do not make money from reconnection fees. This will limit the fees to the actual cost incurred in reconnecting," said Tenorio.

Although the legislation recognizes the importance of reconnection fees as a way to discourage delinquency among utility users, Tenorio said the present fees charged by CUC and cable and telephone companies seem to be unreasonable.

"I don't know what is involved in the process of setting the fees. I am not saying they are cheating but right now, I doubt whether it takes $150 or $20 just to flip a switch and have a customer reconnected," Tenorio said.

According to the Saipan lawmaker, he hates to see companies making money out of reconnection fees when the main point behind the policy is to encourage customers to be current with their accounts.

Currently, CUC charges disconnected customers $150 for reconnection while phone companies reportedly charge $20.

During Monday's session, Rep. Heinz S. Hofschneider lobbied for the inclusion of a provision in the bill to require that utility firms go easier on residential customers.

However, there was a con-

CHC to privatize pharmacy in '96

By Ferdie de la Torre
Variety News Staff

THE COMMONWEALTH Health Center's pharmaceutical services will be privatized next year, Department of Public Health Services Secretary Dr. Isamu J. Abraham disclosed yesterday.

In an interview, Abraham said the department is currently soliciting sealed proposals from licensed and qualified vendors who could provide comprehensive pharmaceutical services.

He explained that the services include prescription medications, over-the-counter drugs, medical supplies, as well as dietetic supplies.

Abraham said four vendors, mostly locals, attended a pre-proposal conference yesterday at the public health's continuing education room.

The DPHS top man said he and the other members of the committee—Angela M. Wardlaw, deputy secretary for Hospital Administration, Janice Stanley, acting director for Pharmacy Services, and Assistant Atty. Gen. Celeste E. Andersen—explained to the potential vendors what they can expect with the proposal.

Isamu J. Abraham

He said three to four prospective vendors have expressed interest in submitting their proposals.

"We will receive all the proposals this January...review it, make selections and make award," Abraham pointed out.

He said by April they expect the hospital's pharmacy to be privatized.

CHC is seeking a vendor who could provide on a 12-hour, seven day a week basis prescription drugs and supplies at the outpatients clinic.

The successful proposer should be able to engage in the retail sale of a broad range of prescription medication and health and personal hygiene products.

Abraham underscored the need to privatize the pharmaceutical services, saying they have not been able to provide easy access to patients when it comes to necessary drugs.

Palau opens consulate

By Mar-Vic C. Munar

TOP CNMI and Palau officials said relations between the two governments will further improve as the Palau Consulate Office officially opened yesterday.

"Although we've enjoyed a very good working relationship over the years, the opening of this office will insure even closer cooperation between our governments," acting Gov. Jesus Borja said in a speech during the opening ceremony.

Palau President Kuniwo Nakamura echoed Borja's remark.

"We cherish this good relations we have been enjoying and we hope to further strengthen it," Nakamura said in an interview.

He said the presence of the consulate office would also strengthen trade exchange between the two governments and mutual promotion of the two islands as tourist destinations.

The Palau Consulate Office is located on the second floor of Joeten Building in Dandan. Three personnel from Palau are manning the office. Yesterdays' opening ceremony was graced by top CNMI officials and their counterparts from Palau.

Nakamura said he will announce the name of the appointed consulate chief after the holiday.

The Consulate Office, Nakamura said, would be a "practical and apolitical type of office."

"It's not here to discuss politics but to address the problems of Palau citizens in the CNMI and to promote better relations with their host government," Nakamura said.

There are over 2,000 Palauans living in the CNMI.

Most of them, Nakamura said, have been on the island even before Palau became an independent Republic on Oct. 1, 1994.

Nakamura has a standing invitation to Palau citizens abroad to return home.

But several Palauans, Nakamura said, opt to stay in the CNMI because the Commonwealth offers better economic opportunities.

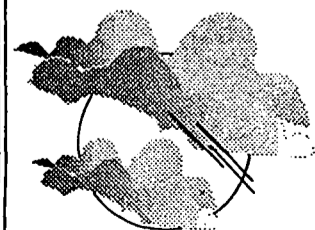

"Every time I come here, I witness fast economic growth and it always amazes me," Nakamura said.

In the same manner, Nakamura said, Palauans have contributed a

Federal shutdown to continue

By DAVID ESPO
WASHINGTON (AP) - In a battle without letup, President Clinton vetoed two bills that would have eased a partial federal shutdown, citing "unacceptable cuts" in key programs. A leading Republican demanded the White House "stop playing politics and start balancing the budget." With Clinton and the Republican-controlled Congress at an impasse, the fallout included a striking, 100-point decline on the stock market and mass pre-Christmas job furloughs for a quarter-million workers. "It's absolutely disgusting," said Walter Martin, sent home from his Labor Department job. "There's a lot of work to be done that's not being done." The impact of this shutdown was less pronounced

Clinton vetoes two remedial measures

than November's that furloughed 800,000. Clinton spoke with House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Senate Majority Leader Dole in midafternoon telephone calls, but said he didn't know if they would later meet. "I offered some ideas about how we might reopen the government and how we might resume negotiations" on balancing the budget, he said. "They agreed to take my ideas under advisement," Clinton said. The impact of this shutdown, affecting a quarter-million workers, was less pronounced than November's that furloughed 800,000. House Republicans, accusing

Clinton of intransigence on balancing the budget, said they had no immediate plans to offer legislation to reopen the government. Gingrich raised the possibility that lawmakers might be in session Christmas week. "For us to walk off now and take a vacation, giving up on balancing the budget, would be a tragedy that would haunt us the rest of our lives," said Gingrich, a Georgia Republican. Monday morning, the president wielded his veto pen against two bills that would have provided funding and reopened portions of the government, one for the Interior Department and other agencies; the other for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Environmental Protection Agency and the nation's space agency, among others. "They have sent me legislation that would give our children less clean drinking water, less safe food, dirtier air..." Clinton said as sixth grade science students looked on. "If I signed these bills, I would be condemning more than 10 million children under the age of 12 to living near toxic waste sites that might not be cleaned up for years." The same bill would have eliminated Clinton's national service program, while the other one he rejected would have scaled back spending on federal arts and humanities programs by 40 percent. The White House said Clinton would veto a third spending measure on Tuesday that seeks to cut his cops-on-the-street program. The president said the GOP was demanding he accept "seven long years of unacceptable cuts" as the price for balancing the budget. In reply, Republicans said Clinton had broken a commitment to negotiate a seven-year balanced budget using the Congressional Budget Office's economic forecast.

Survey cites dangers to world democracies

By GEORGE GEDDA
WASHINGTON (AP) - The world-wide movement toward democracy slowed somewhat in 1995, and its continued expansion is threatened by movements advocating extreme nationalism, Islamic radicalism and repressive capitalism, says a survey released Monday.

The survey, prepared by Freedom House, a New York-based pro-democracy group, said 61 percent of the world's population lives in "free" or "partly free" countries. The remainder resides in countries listed as "not free."

In 10 years, the number of democracies rose by 19 percent to 117. But for the past year, the study said, the only new entrants are Moldova and Kyrgyzstan.

It cited what it called three major obstacles to democracy's expansion: Red-Brown alliances - As communism's appeal wanes, Marxist-Leninist movements are abandoning calls for class struggle and increasingly advocate extreme nationalism, often characterized by xenophobic and anti-Western sentiments. The report noted that communist and successor communist parties have won or done well in elections in Poland, Hungary, Slovakia, Bulgaria, Lithuania, Belarus and Kyrgyzstan.

Extremist Islam - Islamic movements have failed in recent years to attain state power, but their willingness to engage in "mass terrorism" has destabilized many states including Algeria and Pakistan. Islamic extremism is on the march in several Asian countries, many of which adopt increasingly tough police measures resulting in erosion of political rights and civil liberties.

Authoritarian market transitions - A "particularly harmful" trend in East Asia is represented by the effort of Singapore's leaders to justify authoritarian transitions to free markets. China and Vietnam are taking a similar but more extreme route.

Of the 117 democracies, the report lists 62 as partly free because of wars, insurgencies and a disproportionate influence of the military.

In the 53 countries listed as "not free," 18 are given Freedom House's lowest rating for political rights and civil liberties.

They are Afghanistan, Bhutan, Burma, China, Cuba, Equatorial Guinea, Iraq, Libya, Nigeria, North Korea, Saudi Arabia, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan and Vietnam.

Video of Rabin assassination sold for $.39M

JERUSALEM (AP) - An amateur video showing the assassination of Yitzhak Rabin has been sold to Israel TV's Channel Two and the Yediot Ahronot daily for $390,000, Israel radio said.

Ori Chelouche, Channel Two's deputy general manager, confirmed the sale but would not say how much the station paid for the tape, that shows gunman Yigal Amir shooting the prime minister at pointblank range on Nov. 4.

The eight-minute tape was to be broadcast Tuesday evening, Chelouche told The Associated Press.

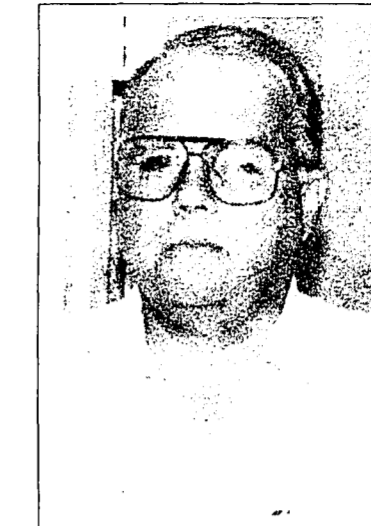

Chelouche said the foreign rights would be sold to the highest bidder.

'PNG' move may strain relations

By Mar-Vic C. Munar
Variety News Staff
The House of Representatives' move declaring union organizer Elwood Mott Jr. persona non grata in the CNMI "will not help improve the relations between the government and the workers," union counsel John Cool said yesterday.

Elwood Mott Jr.

John Cool

"I don't know why they (legislators) did that," said Cool, counsel for the Commonwealth Labor Federation. "I hope this is not another form of harassment against the union, otherwise, the US Congress could use this against the CNMI government."

Cool said the House's move came just when the union leader and labor officials reached the first step toward a better understanding of the movement.

"He (Mott) met with the labor officials last week and tried to explain what unionism is all about," Cool said. He would not give further comments.

Through House Resolution 9-

141 unanimously approved by the Lower House Tuesday, Mott was declared persona non grata for his union activities.

The resolution stated that Mott was organizing unions in the CNMI "for personal profits."

Mott, research coordinator of the Hawaii-based Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Local 5, told the Variety he was discussing the matter with his attorney. He promised to give a statement today.

Some legal observers opine that declaring Mott persona non grata in the Commonwealth might be legally questionable since he is a US citizen.

Interior Department Field Representative Jeff Schorr, on the other hand, said the House resolution could not bar Mott from coming back to the CNMI. Schorr said several US citizens were declared persona non grata by the CNMI legislature in the past years.

"Resolutions are not legally binding," he said. "While it expresses the feeling of the legislative body, it does not have any substantive effect on somebody's right to be here."

Schorr himself was declared persona non grata in 1987 "for unnecessary concern about federal presence."

The House had passed the resolution even before Schorr came to the island.

"When I arrived on the island a few months later, they passed another resolution welcoming me to the CNMI. It was a nice gesture," Schorr said.

Case on vs alien who threatened INO officer

By Ferdie de la Torre
Variety News Staff
THE SUPERIOR COURT found yesterday probable cause to warrant the filing of charges against a man accused of threatening an immigration investigator with a knife and machete.

At the hearing, the government asked immigration officer John Peter to take the witness stand.

Peter narrated how Marcelino reacted when he tried to enforce twice a court deportation order for the defendant.

The defendant is allegedly staying illegally in the CNMI. He has been living on Saipan for more than four years already.

Court information showed that last Nov. 30 Marcelino threatened to cause bodily injury to Peter by displaying a knife then approached the investigator.

Last Dec. 1, Peter again went to Peter's residence in Kagman to serve the order.

Marcelino, however, armed with a machete, approached Peter, prompting the latter to flee.

Marcelino, through counsel Juarez, waived reading of the information and advisement of his constitutional rights. He pleaded not guilty.

Guam lawmakers set to act on CNMI exemption proposal

By Rafael H. Arroyo
Variety News Staff
THE GUAM Legislature is set to vote on a resolution asking the federal government to allow the CNMI an exemption from the soon-to-be-imposed Guam Customs, Agriculture and Quarantine inspection service charges, Saipan Sen. Thomas P. Villagomez disclosed.

Thomas P. Villagomez

Charfauros

Villagomez, who was in Guam last Friday to attend a public hearing on the new airport charges, said Guam lawmakers are likely to adopt the measure in their next session.

If adopted, he said, it will now be up to the federal government to back up the proposal.

"We seek an exemption for our people traveling to Guam. This resolution basically seeks an assurance from the DOT that Guam would not be losing federal airport grants on account of the exemption," said Villagomez in an interview.

"It looks like the Guam Legislature is supportive of our efforts but the only thing that sort of bothered me is the projection that the exemption might cost Guam some $4.7 million. That projection takes into account all in-transit flights to Guam via the CNMI, including Japanese tourists going to Guam through Saipan," said Villagomez.

According to the Saipan senator, the exemption being sought by the Commonwealth is for inter-island travel of CNMI residents and not tourists coming to Guam through Saipan. He expressed doubts that the exemption would deprive the Guam government of that big amount.

Public Law 23-45, signed recently by Guam Gov. Carl T. Gutierrez imposes a $10 inspection service charge on every passenger arriving at the Guam International airport plus another $5 document fee per cargo consignment.

The new airport fees, to be shouldered by the air carriers, is meant to raise the needed revenues to fund a more aggressive Customs effort versus illegal drugs at the territory's ports of entry.

On November 29, senators from Guam and CNMI officials held an air transport summit on Rota owing to concerns about the proposed fee imposition.

CNMI delegates to the summit aired apprehensions about how the new fees would inhibit free travel between the islands of the Marianas as it could make inter-island air travel a bit more prohibitive in terms of air fare pricing.

"The immediate effect of this service charge will restrict air service to Guam for CNMI residents," the resolution read. "The service charge will significantly reduce the number of flights between the islands, thus causing a negative economic impact for Guam and the CNMI and ultimately causing the commuter airlines to cease their service due to increased costs of providing air service to island residents."

"Without regular air service to and from the islands, the quality of life, the economic development, including tourism and the well-being of the island residents would be jeopardized," the resolution added.

Resolution No. 340, introduced by Guam Senators Charfauros, Angel L.G. Santos and Vicente C. Pangelinan petitions the US Department of Transportation and the Federal Aviation Administration to ease its opposition to the exemption and allow a waiver of the fees on commuter airlines ferrying travelers from Saipan, Rota and Tinian.

Charfauros in an earlier interview said the FAA had taken the position that Guam could not allow exemptions without jeopardizing federal airport grant monies.

FORUM A Meeting Place For Our Opinions... And Yours...

I Galaide

by John S. DelRosario, JR.

A STUDY conducted by Winzler and Kelly says the island's water source cannot support local water needs. Therefore, we must look into reverse osmosis or desalination to supplement conventional water source.

I'm reminded of a water program once offered by former Senator Herman R. Guerrero. It involves appropriating a $3 Million revolving fund to allow residents to build water catchments for their use especially during the drought season when city water runs dry.

Every member of a household needs at least seventy gallons of water per day, excluding water for laundry, etc. This use is limited to personal hygiene. Thus, a family of six needs four-hundred gallons per day.

As the population grows so does the need for more of this finite resource. You can forget about potable water. It's out of the question. Meeting the basic needs of the community on usable water remains a problem and the only alternative to resolve this thirty year old problem is to resort to desalination.

On the lighter side of things, a couple of the guys were discussing the hardship that the lack of water has imposed upon families with young school children. Next came the discussion on water conservation when a friend remarked: "I can help conserve water! I'll not take shower at least three days week". (Laughter). You become a domestic and public nuisance. Imagine your spouse and kids heading for cover whenever you enter the house with that strange body odor. Woe!

This entire debate on minimum wage, labor and immigration and taxes is more a form of Washington politics than it is ours. I mean, definitely we have screwed-up somewhere and pretend everything is perfectly fine. I suppose it's the Chamorro Way. No wonder we've survived every conqueror for more than five-hundred years.

Nonetheless, the scheme on the other side of the Pacific is to whip the Mariana Islands each time the Territory of Guam asks to be granted Commonwealth status similar to what's given the CNMI. Therefore, each time Washington becomes punitive then you know Guam is again knocking on its doors. It'll be quite a long ride, yeah?

As the Advisory Commission on Compensation reviews salaries for the chief executive and other higher-ups in government, there are those who take the view that the CNMI can't afford giving the governor a higher salary of at least $85,000 per annum.

This argument is fluid in that if the question is one of affordability, then we have no business giving judges $120,000 to $130,000 a year. We have our priorities confused in the sense that we refuse granting the chief executive a salary when in fact he appoints judges and every other departmental Tom, Dick and Harry.

Whether the governor is a Democrat or Republican we must grant him the reverence and prestige that comes with the office. He's the titular head of the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands who ascended into his post by a majority vote of the people. Doesn't he deserve a better salary than the altar boy's loot that we now give him? Get real people!

In fact, I'd like to recommend that the governor's salary be established at $150,000 per annum; Lt. governor, $130,000; chief justice of the supreme court and Washington Representative, $130,000; associate supreme court justices, $120,000; superior court justice, $100,000 and the same salary be given to the presiding officers of the legislature; associate superior court justices, $85,000 per annum; legislators, $70,000 a year. Everybody else must fall below this category with the exception of doctors attached to CHC.

****

Three local MDs were walking into the men's ward when an old man came out inching his way to the waiting area. They approached the patient and each asked a question:

Asked Dr. A: "I think you have a liver problem, right, pop?"

Came the terse answer: "Nope!"

Quizzed Dr. B: "I don't think so. It's probably a gall bladder, right?"

"Nope!"

Offered Dr. C: "Wrong, I think it must a stomach flu of some sort?"

"Nope! We're all wrong my children. I pooped in my pants!" (Laughter).

****

In Honolulu, a medical referee from here was asked by his doctor whether he has pain in his stomach. He quickly answered in the negative. All other questions were asked and still he answered in the negative.

An interpreter was brought to ease his fear. The interpreter was instructed to ask the patient whether he is experiencing stomach pain. He answered affirmatively.

Said the interpreter: "Pop, the doctor just asked whether you have any pain in your stomach and you answered 'no', why?"

Said he: "Because I'm hurting nai and he wants me to start painting. Doesn't he know I am very sick?"

Explained the interpreter: "No, pain is another word for ache or hurt".

Medical referee: "Then he should have asked whether I'm hurting, nai".

Watch your diction, doctor. We have patients who're very particular with their choice of words!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No to metal detectors in schools

Dear Editor:
I am writing to oppose the installation of metal detectors in our public schools on the grounds that they are unnecessary, ineffective and wasteful.

They are unnecessary because the few reported incidents, though alarming, could easily be handled through appropriate discipline, including sending offenders to an "alternative school."

Comparison to the federal count is misleading. At the Horiguchi Building, hardened convicts may be sentenced to multiple life sentences (or even death), providing motive for violence and needed security. This need for metal detectors does not exist at MHS and Hopwood.

Metal detectors are ineffective because they are easily evaded. For instance, a gun could be tossed over a fence or into a window. Non-metallic weapons would not be detected. If not used by highly-trained and skilled operators and maintenance personnel, they will not work properly.

Forcing our youth to endure a prison-like atmosphere with a single security entrance is not conducive to their intellectual development and emotional growth.

Metal detectors are wasteful because the money should be used toward education. If discipline is a problem, and it seems to be, the money should be used to start an "alternative school." All it would take is a room or two off campus. MHS teachers could teach one period there. This school could be used for students who have exhibited violence, truancy, on-campus drug or alcohol use, disciplinary infractions, or other behavior indicating a need for education in an "alternative school."

Even disturbed youth are entitled to an education and our best efforts to assist them.

But the maladjustment of a few must not be allowed to ruin the educational environment for all our youth, who are the future of the Commonwealth. Metal detectors on campus are unnecessary, ineffective, and wasteful - a step in the wrong direction.

Saipan Cable responds to Cody

Dear Editor:
Mr. Michael Cody's December 15 letter to the editor contained a number of errors about Tinian Cable TV. What hurts is that he was warm and friendly when our sales manager personally visited him November 30, and then attacked us in his letter Friday.

Contrary to his letter, we do not use secondhand tapes, or anything else, for that matter. The program playback VCR's and other equipment are not old, worn-out, and second-rate, as Cody claims. Instead, they are first-rate, and all relatively new, with the last eleven VCR's delivered last week.

The microwave transmitter to Tinian was damaged by Typhoon Wilda on October 25 and 26, 1994, and then by Typhoon Zelda. We ordered new parts from the Hughes factory, and found it had moved to Canada. The new parts didn't fix it, so our G.M. flew the transmitter back to California and shipped it to Canada on Thanksgiving day.

The factory completely overhauled it and returned it. There were delays in both Canadian and U.S. customs. The system still didn't work. Although the receiver had "self-tested" O.K., we determined the receiver must be the problem, and had the factory overhaul it, too.

The system was up again February 24. In the meantime, we played two taped channels free of charge, so Tinian Cable TV customers would have programs to watch. We didn't charge anyone while the microwave system was inoperative.

Mr. Cody complains that the rate increased when the service resumed. It didn't. It increased December 1st for Saipan Cable TV and Tinian Cable TV. He complains about our fourteen month special, which is the same special we have run on Saipan and Tinian since September. It is basically the same special we have had since 1976, except the two free months are at the beginning, instead of at the end of the 14 months. You can stop the service at any time, but if you do, don't keep the discount.

Mr. Cody says that "after all these years... a member of management finally visited Tinian". That, too, is wrong. We visited the system in 1985 before we bought it, when we rebuilt it, when we installed the microwave, and several times each year since. Every general manager, and practically every manager associated with Tinian Cable TV, has visited the island. Perhaps that doesn't count in Mr. Cody's eyes unless they personally visit him.

Mr. Cody asks what the justification is for charging the same rate as Saipan Cable TV. It is fairness. Before Saipan Cable TV bought the system, the old rate was higher. After we rebuilt it and put in the microwave, we kept the same rate, and several years ago lowered it to be the same as Saipan.

His last statement that Saipan Cable TV doesn't care about the "little people" is undeserved. If we hadn't cared about Mr. Cody, we wouldn't have come by to see him while we were on Tinian. In Saipan Cable TV, we care about every customer, and we don't consider anyone "little people".

Thanks for letting Saipan Cable TV correct the record. To you, Mr. Editor, and all the readers of the Marianas Variety, we wish you Felis Navidad yan Anu Nuevo Prospero!

Sincerely,
Rick Novak
Vice President, Operations
Tropic Isles Cable TV Corp.

High Court rules on assault case

By Ferdie de la Torre
Variety News Staff

THE SUPREME Court has denied a petition by two brothers "linked" in the San Roque shooting last August seeking the dismissal of a criminal case against them.

In a 12-page decision, Justices Marty W. K. Taylor, Ramon G. Villagomez and Pedro M. Atalig also denied the petition of brothers Juan and Jose B. Babauta requesting, as an alternative, to direct the Superior Court to vacate its order setting the trial date, and to hold preliminary examination.

The request to vacate is now moot because the date set for trial, Dec. 4, has passed.

The Babautas applied before the Supreme Court for a writ of mandamus in an attempt to dismiss the criminal charges against them citing that the lower court allegedly failed to provide them preliminary examination.

The petitioners contended they are entitled to preliminary hearings under the U.S and Commonwealth Constitution. The justices said under the U.S. Constitution, two pretrial determinations must be made with respect to all criminal defendants.

They said first the 4th Amendment requires that a probable cause be made by a judicial officer if there will be a significant restraint on the accused's liberty following the arrest.

In this case, the justices said the petitioners arrests were supported by warrants signed by a Superior Court judge.

The justices pointed out that the Babautas challenge neither the validity of the warrants nor the lawfulness of their arrests with respect to the issue of probable cause.

Second, the justices said the Due Process Clause of the Amendment requires that suspects be brought, without unreasonable delay, before a judge for an initial appearance following arrest.

The purpose of this appearance is to advise the arrestee of the charges against her or him, and of her or his rights.

The justices said the petitioners made initial appearances in Superior Court at their bail hearings on the day of their arrests.

"They make no contention, and the record before us does not support an inference, that their due process rights were infringed with respect to their initial appearances," said the justices. The justices emphasized that the purpose of the preliminary examination is to determine whether there is probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed and that the accused committed it.

Juan, the alleged target in the San Roque shooting, was arrested with his brother Jose by the police in connection with the assault and battery charges filed by the government.

Investigators believed that the assault incident that reportedly occurred during a cockfight in Talafofo area last June 11 triggered last August shooting in San Roque.

Two persons were wounded in that shooting. The prime suspect, Donald Babauta, was later arrested.

THE Coastal Resources Management will sponsor a scientific expedition to the northern islands of Maug and Pagan early next month.

CRM director Manuel C. Sablan said the one-week expedition, aboard the CNMI boat Challenger, aims to survey the marine and coral resources as well as the flora and fauna of the islands.

Sablan said the CNMI government is interested in collecting scientific data on the islands, citing a University of Guam marine lab finding that "there were two plants that were endemic to Maug."

"In addition to that, they found some sort of an amazing thing, because one endemic plant from Bonin Island (in Japan) was also found on Maug, which is really rare."

Bonin Island, some 100 miles further to the north, is near Okinawa.

Sablan said that some 10 known species of bird live on Maug. "We want to corroborate this and reinforce it if in fact there are additional species that are existing over there now."

"We're also interested in having archeological investigation, since no archeological report has ever been done on the islands of Maug," he said.

"We could probably find in regards to archeological artifacts that could give us some insight into how our ancestors or the early Chamorros lived or whether in fact they have been inhabited by numbers of people," he said.

Maug, which is about 280 nautical miles from Saipan and takes about a day to reach by boat, is at present uninhabited, but according to Sablan, when he went to Maug 15 years ago, "I saw that there was some evidence that people did go over there...."

He also said he had read a historical account of a priest that "there's supposed to be a treasure buried somewhere in the Marianas. And the clue that he gave was that you could see three islands at one time. Maug definitely qualifies as that."

The treasure—most probably precious metals such as gold and silver—was supposed to have been buried by British pirates.

Maug is a group of three islands that form into a circular pattern creating a deep harbor. It is the second northernmost islands in the Marianas chain.

Sablan said the Japanese used the harbor when the CNMI was under the Japanese and that there is a remnant of a Japanese-built weather station there.

Sablan said the Maug harbor is an ideal protective haven for ships from inclement weather.

The exploratory team—composed of marine and environmental officials and experts from the CNMI and scientists from the University of Hawaii and University of Guam—will stop over in Pagan on the way back.

The team will stay there for a day or two, while it will be in Maug for three days, Sablan said.

"We would like to do a general assessment on the island of Pagan—take a look at the reefs and at the impact of the wild life up there," he said.

He said there had been reports of illegal fishing around the island, which is 173 nautical miles north of Saipan and which takes some eight hours to reach by boat from Saipan.

The team will test the waters for chemicals used in fishing.

Also, there is concern about the defoliation of the island because of abandoned cattle and wild goats and pigs roaming, Sablan. "They consume a lot of vegetation."

Sablan said there is a need for a conservation program to "protect the island environmentally."

Pagan was declared a disaster area when its volcano erupted in 1981. Since then, the island has become uninhabited because the declaration has not been rescinded.

According to the CRM head, who is also chairman of the CRM board, the northern portion of the island is not well-vegetated as a result of the volcanic eruption.

Erratum

PSS breaks ground for Kagman school

THE Public School System hosted a ground breaking ceremony yesterday for a new school in the Kagman II homestead.

Located on the site of an unused communication center, the building will include a classroom and restroom.

The new facility will also be home to the Kagman Head Start project. Head Start is an elementary preparation program for underprivileged children ages 3 to 5.

When completed in the fall of 1996 the school will accommodate approximately 20 students.

According to acting Head Start coordinator, Maria Persson, a community assessment indicated a need for the center. Currently Headstart students must travel to distant San Vicente, Tanapag or Garapan.

Persson said it took the assistance, cooperation and hard work of the Public Lands Commission, the Public School System, Department of Public Works, and the Commonwealth Utilities Corporation to make today's ground breaking a reality.

She added that previous Governor Larry De Leon Guerrero and current Governor Frolan Tenorio also provided vital support.

MHS student's bag, money stolen inside classroom

A STUDENT claimed that her bag containing money and other items was stolen inside a classroom at the Marianas High School Monday afternoon.

Acting Public Information Officer Sgt. Edward Manalili said the 17-year-old girl left her bag inside the classroom.

When the girl returned after a few minutes, she discovered the bag was missing.

The bag contained a wallet, $189 cash, personal check, makeup kit, and other items.

In another police report, a woman complained that a coffee maker was allegedly stolen at the DEQ Office in Lower Base over the weekend.

In Susupe, a 35-year-old man sought police help after an unidentified man allegedly poked a handgun at him Monday afternoon.

The complainant said he approached a vehicle parked in front of his residence to inquire.

The passenger of the vehicle instead poked gun at him. The vehicle then fled.

In Kannat Tabla and Kagman, burglars broke inside two houses and ran away appliances in separate incidents Monday. (FDT)

REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL

PSS RFP 96-001

The CNMI Public School System is seeking proposals from insurance companies for the provision of insurance for the fleet of PSS vehicles and an umbrella policy for our employees when they are performing business for the PSS in their personal vehicles. The PSS is seeking all risk physical damage insurance at full replacement value of each vehicle plus public liability insurance with minimum coverage of $500,000 per accident, $500,000 aggregate bodily injury and $100,000 property damage liability.

In response to this project request, we ask that individuals or firms provide a brief description of their experience providing fleet insurance and the reinsurance which they carry as an insurance provider. Responders are also requested to provide any other information they consider pertinent in a brief narrative.

Proposals must be received no later than 3:00 p.m. Friday, January 05, 1996 at the PSS Procurement & Supply Office located on the ground floor of the JTV Building Room A-1, As Lito Road, Saipan, MP 96950. All proposals should be addressed to William S. Torres, Commissioner of Education and labeled "RFP96-001". Proposals must be delivered with an original and a duplicate.

A twenty five U.S. Dollars must accompany the proposal submitted. The twenty five dollars maybe a certified check, a cashiers check, or other forms acceptable by the Public School System Treasurer. All checks must be made payable to the Treasurer, CNMI Public School System. All proposals must also be accompanied with the companies business permit.

The Public School System reserves the right to reject any and all proposals and reissue an amended project request, request for additional information from any individual or firm submitting a proposal in response to this RFP, negotiate a contract with any individual or firm selected for providing this service in response to this RFP, and waive any non material violation of the rules of this project. The Public School System will not reimburse or pay for any of the costs incurred in the preparation and submission of a response to this request. For additional information on this project, please contact Tim Thornburgh at telephone number 322-6405.

PREL gets DOE contract

HONOLULU - U.S. Senator Daniel K. Inouye's office has announced that the Pacific Region Educational Laboratory (PREL) has been awarded a contract to operate a regional educational laboratory by the U.S. Department of Education.

The contract is for $12 million over a five-year period ending November 30, 2000.

According to PREL's executive director, John W. Kofel, the money will be used to continue operating the laboratory program.

Over the next five years, PREL will build on networks it has already established throughout the Pacific to assist educators and communities in developing and implementing improved strategies for effective schools that are appropriate for Pacific children, teachers, parents, and communities. A heavy emphasis is placed on conducting applied research to further inform school improvement.

In addition, the laboratory will increase its assistance in developing appropriate technology capacities throughout the region. Technology programs will focus on facilitating communication of, and dissemination and access to educational information and products, including PREL's and its constituents.

four months to 'produce' the drugs," he said.

The secretary said privatization will reduce government subsidy to CHC and stimulate the economy.

"I believe that privatization increases the level of health care services by having private organizations participate with us," Abraham said.

Starting next month, the CHC's laboratory will start operating as a private lab by the Clinical Laboratories of Hawaii Inc.

The DPHS had already privatized the nursing recruitment, management of Rota Health care, security services, linen and laundry services, yard maintenance, and housekeeping services.

With the privatization scheme, Abraham earlier said the government is saving 30-35 percent it normally spends in hiring labor personnel.

"We are not preempting companies from assessing fees but the bill we passed mandates them to only charge what is actually costing them. They would be required to qualify their fees and show what is costing them to re-connect," said Hofschneider.

The bill ended up being passed basically in the same original version that Tenorio submitted.

moved to refer the bill back to the House Public Utilities, Transportation and Communication Committee. The motion was defeated.

"There was no government-to-government communication," Nakamura said. "Now that we're here, communication will be a lot easier."

So far, the Palau president said, there were not any serious problems in which Palauans have been involved.

Nakamura, Borja said the presence of Palau Consulate office on Saipan "is a sign of your concern and this office will assist your people in numerous ways."

Borja promised that his office would assist the Palau Consulate staff "in any way possible."

Trial of Rabin 'assassin' begins

By DAN PERRY
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - The deeply religious Jewish nationalist who stunned the world by assassinating Yitzhak Rabin goes on trial for murder Tuesday morning.

Yigal Amir, a 25-year-old law student, surrendered to police at the site of the Nov. 4 shooting and has confessed to killing the Israeli prime minister in hopes of stopping the peace process with the Palestinians.

The prosecution's seemingly rock-solid case is bolstered by this week's revelation that there is an amateur video of the assassination that, according to journalists who saw it, shows Amir lunging at Rabin and shooting him in the back at pointblank. It is to be broadcast Tuesday and later presented as evidence.

Still, the trial is expected to be one of the most dramatic in Israel's history.

The assassination caused a national trauma among Israelis weaned on the notion that Jews essentially stand united against the Arabs. It has also led to a crackdown on extreme right-wing groups and a reassessment of internal security concepts that left Israel's leader so fatally exposed.

But Amir's political calculation appears to have backfired: Rabin's successor, longtime peace advocate Shimon Peres, has accelerated peace talks with Syria and proceeded with Israel's troop pull-out from much of the West Bank - land many religious Jews like Amir believe was promised by God to Israel.

Amir's lawyers have said he might not plead guilty and are expected to ask for a two-month recess to prepare their case. Even if he does plead guilty, there will be a trial before the three-judge panel led by Edmond Levy to determine the sentence.

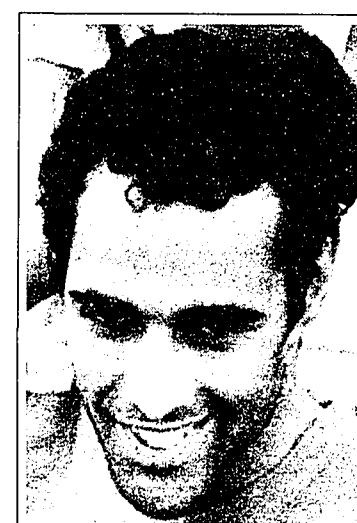

If convicted, Amir's mandatory sentence is life in prison. The death penalty in Israel is reserved for Nazi war criminals and offenders who harm state security, such as spies.

Amir's mother Geula said Monday she planned to attend the trial, telling Israel TV that while she disagreed with his methods, Yigal "is still my son."

Amir is represented by lawyer Jonathan Goldberg, who immigrated seven years ago from Houston, Texas, and lives in a West Bank settlement, and Israeli partner Mordechai Offri.

According to the indictment submitted two weeks ago, Amir decided sometime after the first Israel-PLO accord, signed in 1993, to kill Rabin. The charge sheet said he recruited his brother Hagai, 27, and a friend, Dror Adani, to help him.

They considered ambitious ideas like blowing up Rabin's car or firing an anti-tank rocket into his apartment, but in the end Yigal Amir settled on shooting Rabin with his 9mm Beretta pistol, the charge sheet said.

Yigal Amir

After attempting and failing to approach Rabin three times, Amir decided to try again at the peace rally.

Hagai Amir and Adani are also under arrest and are to be tried separately on conspiracy and weapons violations in the Rabin assassination. The Amir brothers and Adani also were charged in a separate indictment with setting up an underground group that planned to attack Palestinians and set fire to their homes.

On Monday, the amateur video showing the assassination was sold to Israel TV's Channel Two and the Yediot Achronot daily for $390,000, Israel Radio said. An advertisement on Channel Two said the footage would be broadcast Tuesday at 8 p.m. (1800 GMT).

Also Monday, the head of Israel's Shin Bet secret service and five senior agency officials received warnings from a commission of inquiry into the assassination that they may be held responsible for security lapses that enabled the killing.

Gov't orders newsman out of China by Dec. 28

By CHARLENE L. FU
BEIJING (AP) - The Chinese government on Tuesday accused a German reporter of "negatively influencing German public opinion about China" and ordered him to leave the country by Dec. 28.

Henrik Bork, Beijing bureau chief for the Frankfurter Rundschau, was informed in the early morning hours by the German government after last-ditch efforts by the German Foreign Ministry failed to reverse the Chinese decision.

The Chinese government said it was not expelling Bork. However, it refuses to renew Bork's press credentials, which expire on Dec. 28. Without the press credentials, Bork cannot get a visa to continue working in China.

Bork is the seventh Beijing-based foreign correspondent ordered out of the country since 1986. The last expulsion was of Andrew Higgins of the British newspaper The Independent in September 1991 after he reported on a secret document.

The ruling Communist Party has long made clear that it considers foreign journalists enemies of socialism and agents of capitalist ideology. Reporters are routinely followed when they meet Chinese contacts and must get government approval if they want to leave the capital for reporting.

Bork's de facto expulsion follows a high-profile China trip by German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who was widely criticized at home for visiting Chinese military bases.

Bork, 34, has reported from China for the major German daily for four years. A fluent Chinese speaker, he had previously studied in China and has a 10-year association with the country.

"There's more here than just my job," said Bork, who said he wept after a meeting with an official of the Chinese Foreign Ministry on Friday.

In a written statement, he called the order to leave China "an attempt by the Chinese government to intimidate all Western journalists in Beijing."

"The Communist government's decision will certainly damage China's image abroad and therefore is bad news for the Chinese people, for whom I feel deep sympathy," he said.

Bork said Foreign Ministry officials in charge of foreign journalists had told him that his reporting was consistently "biased and negative," that his articles had "attacked personalities of the People's Republic of China," and that he had traveled through China using a false name and concealing his status as a journalist.

Bork said the charge of attacking Chinese personalities appeared to be a reference to a 1994 article about Chinese Premier Li Peng shortly before Li visited Germany.

In that article, Bork said Li ducked questions about his role in the 1989 military crackdown on the Tiananmen Square democracy movement even before he had arrived in Germany. Bork also called Li a dictator.

The article reportedly infuriated Li, who was met by protestors in many places during his tour through Germany. The Chinese leader even canceled some visits to avoid protesters.

Bork said the Chinese officials who were blamed for failing to warn Li of anti-Chinese sentiment and the possibility of protests produced him as a scapegoat.

But the Chinese government apparently waited until after Chinese President and Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin visited Germany in July and Kohl's November visit before moving against Bork.

German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel intervened on Bork's behalf, writing a letter to his Chinese counterpart, Qian Qichen, in which he warned that an expulsion could reduce public support for Bonn's "straight and forward-looking China policies."

Germany, in contrast to the United States, has been circumspect in its criticisms of China's human rights policies and other sensitive issues. "With regard to the further development of Sino-German relations, I would consider it incomprehensible and downright harmful if the Chinese government would expel a German correspondent," Kinkel's letter said.

Cabinet revamp looms in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - The National Assembly endorsed President Kim Young-sam's appointment of a new prime minister Monday, setting the stage for an extensive government reorganization.

In a move that has been anticipated for weeks, Kim sacked his prime minister last Friday and named Lee Soo-sung, a reform-minded college law professor, to the post. He said that a major government shuffle would follow.

Lee's appointment was overwhelmingly approved by the single-house parliament, which is controlled by the governing party.

Local newspapers said the 24-member Cabinet would resign en masse Tuesday to give the President a free hand to reorganize the government, a move that was also expected to affect the presidential staff.

The shakeup was seen as part of Kim's efforts to defuse a political crisis touched off by major scandals involving two of his military-backed predecessors - Roh Tae-woo and Chun Doo-hwan.

In South Korea, Cabinet shakeups are often used to divert attention from major political scandals or infrastructure disasters.

The shakeup is also seen as part of Kim's efforts to prop up his popularity ahead of important parliamentary elections in April. His governing party suffered a major setback in June local elections.

The outgoing prime minister and other Cabinet members to be replaced are reportedly being asked to run in April elections.

Roh, president from 1988 to 1993, went on trial Monday for allegedly taking bribes for a $650 million slush fund he operated during his term. If convicted, he faces up to life in prison.

His immediate predecessor, Chun Doo-hwan, is also in jail for allegedly masterminding a 1979 coup. If convicted, he faces the death penalty.

Chun on hunger strike

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Weakened from a long hunger strike, disgraced former President Chun Doo-hwan may have to be hospitalized soon, reports said Monday.

The 64-year-old Chun was in the 16th day of a hunger strike Monday, protesting what he perceived to be political retaliation. He was arrested Dec. 3 for masterminding a 1979 coup that brought him to power. Since his arrest, he has refused all food except water. Prison doctors were closely checking his health, which reportedly was deteriorating rapidly, Chun's aides and local newspapers said.

"I could hardly hear his voice," Chun's lawyer-spokesman Lee Yang-woo told reporters after visiting him at Anyang Detention House outside Seoul Monday.

The ex-president also had difficulty sitting up, and is unable to even read in bed, his family said.

No action at least for this year US House shelves anti-terrorism bill

By JIM ABRAMS
WASHINGTON (AP) - Eight months after the Oklahoma City bombing, the U.S. House of Representatives' Judiciary Committee has abandoned hopes of getting an anti-terrorism bill through Congress this year, lawmakers said Monday.

The bill, promoted with a sense of urgency and strong White House backing after the bombing attack last April, has been stalled in the House by an odd coalition of some of its most liberal and conservative members.

The withdrawal of the legislation, passed by a 91-8 vote in the Senate last June, was "a victory for those in the Congress, Republican and Democrat, who cherish our most fundamental civil liberties," said Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, ranking Democrat on the Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Roscoe Bartlett said the delay was needed to ensure careful and constitutionally proper legislation. "Every time we have passed legislation as an emotional response, we have regretted it later."

Bartlett, who opposes gun control, denied Democratic suggestions that Republicans wouldn't back the bill until they got a repeal of an assault-style firearms ban passed last year, when Democrats controlled Congress.

But Rep. Charles Schumer contended the bill was being delayed over the assault-style weapons issue, saying, "The NRA is holding America hostage to the benefit of terrorists."

The $2.1 billion package would expand federal powers to combat domestic and foreign terrorism has met opposition both from conservatives and liberals concerned about government intrusions into private lives and the erosion of civil liberties.

The original bill would have made it easier for federal agents to conduct wiretaps on groups linked to terrorism, created a special court to deport aliens suspected of terrorism, barred groups linked to terrorism from raising funds within the United States and required that tracing materials be added to plastic explosives.

People go back home after fire in Cape Town

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) - A smelly, yellow residue stained the streets of a Cape Town suburb Monday after a weekend sulfur fire at a nearby chemical plant.

Two people died and more than 2,000 were evacuated from the Somerset West area on Saturday night and Sunday after piles of a brittle sulfur compound caught fire and emitted a choking cloud of gas.

Most people returned home by Monday morning as a steady rain washed away the yellow residue that smelled like rotten eggs.

Police Capt. Wicus Holtzhausen said reports of a third death caused by the chemical fire could not be verified. He identified the two dead men as Andrew Williams, 54, and his brother Ronnie, 47, who both suffered from asthma.

More than 100 people were treated at local hospitals for minor ailments related to breathing the sulfur dioxide, a corrosive gas that irritates the eyes, nose and lungs.

The gas was released late Saturday when a brush fire ignited a giant sulfur stockpile at the AECI chemical factory, police and company officials said.

Firefighting crews assisted by 12 bulldozers and three helicopters extinguished the blaze by midday Sunday, said Pete Harries, chief fire officer of the Cape Metro Council.

An AECI official said the company would consider compensating local residents for any damage caused.

"I want to say how dreadfully sorry I am that a community we had relations with for almost 100 years should have been discomforted," said Boet Coetzee, the AECI managing director of operational services.

"We cannot operate as a company if we don't have trust with the people around us," he said. "We need to see how we can restore that trust."

Chris Nissen, a provincial legislator who visited the evacuees Sunday, called the location of the AECI plant and a second chemical company's factory "really bad apartheid planning."

He said the factories were already in place when the former white-minority government forcibly moved mixed-race South Africans from other neighborhoods around Cape Town in the 1970s.

Apartheid ended with historic 1994 elections that put President Nelson Mandela's African National Congress in power.

State radio said the sulfur, a brittle solid used in the making of explosives, had been stored at the AECI factory since the apartheid era. Anti-apartheid sanctions had prevented South Africa from buying weapons abroad, so the country built up a large arsenal.

Salinas brod charged for enriching himself

By JOHN RICE MEXICO CITY (AP) - A federal watchdog agency has filed an illegal enrichment charge against Raul Salinas de Gortari, the brother of Mexico's former president, and fined a former prosecutor fighting extradition from the United States a whopping $21 million.

The actions reported Monday by the comptroller's office added new fuel to the scandal of alleged murder and corruption at the top levels of Mexican politics.

Raul Salinas, the brother of former President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, is already in prison. He faces charges of murdering the September 1994 murder of his former brother-in-law, Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu, a former state governor who was secretary-general of the ruling party.

Carlos Salinas, not charged in any of the crimes, left office Dec. 1, 1994, then left the country in March, his reputation tattered by an economic nosedive most Mexicans blame on his policies. He is widely rumored to be in Cuba.

Mexican prosecutors say they have found at least $123 million in Raul Salinas' foreign bank accounts, in addition to a host of investments across Mexico.

But the new complaint covers only the period when he was a mid-ranking government official, 1983 until 1992, and did not specify the size of Salinas' holdings at that time.

"We still do not have all the assessments of the real estate and we have to make other calculations," Gustavo Ponce Melendez of the comptroller's office told reporters who asked about the size of the fortune.

"But, obviously, there is a disparity between the income he declared and the amount" of his holdings, he said.

Raul Salinas' lawyer, Eduardo Luengo Creel, insists his client is innocent and came by the money honestly. But his office failed to provide an explanation within the 10-day period set by the comptroller's office.

Swiss officials say they believe $84 million held by Raul Salinas there under an alias is related to laundered drug money. They arrested his wife, Paulina Castanon, on Nov. 15 when she tried to withdraw some of the money, but released her last week, saying she apparently had played only a minor role.

Since her arrest, Mexican newspapers have carried daily photos of Raul Salinas' alleged properties.

Meanwhile, the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party said it would begin taking testimony Tuesday on a motion to expel the Salinas brothers from the party.

The controller's office also said it has taken new action against Mario Ruiz Massieu, a former deputy attorney general accused of tampering with evidence in his own brother's death to protect Raul Salinas.

After he was questioned, Mario Ruiz Massieu left for the United States, where he was arrested in December 1994 on currency reporting charges, which were later dropped.

He remains in jail facing extradition requests.

The agency said Mario Ruiz Massieu would be banned from public service for 20 years and fined about $21 million for the unexplained wealth he has allegedly amassed.

Those administrative actions come on top of criminal charges of illegal enrichment filed earlier.

The agency said Ruiz Massieu had U.S. bank accounts worth $9.3 million, Mexican accounts with the equivalent of more than dlrs 1 million and real estate in the two countries worth several hundred thousand dollars.

In American courts, Ruiz Massieu's attorneys have argued that his income was larger than listed because of special bonuses for good work from the president and attorney general.

A U.S. magistrate in Newark, N.J., has already rejected three extradition requests against Mario Ruiz Massieu, and on Friday, Mexican prosecutors admitted a flaw in the evidence in their fourth attempt.

They must give notice Tuesday whether they wish to continue. Carlos Salinas has said he knew nothing of his brother's activities, though some officials say they warned him about possible problems.

Hunt on for more dead sea scrolls

By ARIEH O'SULLIVAN
QUMRAN, West Bank (AP) - The hunt for more biblical-era Dead Sea Scrolls got under way as teams of volunteers shoveled earth out of four newly discovered man-made caves.

The first scrolls, written at the time of Jesus, were discovered not far from the caves in 1947 by a Bedouin shepherd and helped shed light on the origins of Christianity.

"We may see history in the making again," said Angela Crow, of Kansas City, Missouri, one of a dozen American, Canadian and Israeli volunteers digging Monday under blue desert skies.

Archaeologist Hanan Eshel from Bar Ilan University found the four undisturbed caves this summer. That took his colleagues by surprise, because the area had already been extensively surveyed and excavated.

Eshel has said there is a sense of urgency to the work, because Qumran may be handed to Palestinian control as part of peace negotiations.

Even before the latest excavations began, Palestinian authorities demanded that Israel stop digging in the West Bank, which they call "last-minute plundering."

The fate of Qumran is to be determined in negotiations scheduled for May, said Yitzhak Magen, the chief Israeli archaeological officer in the West Bank. Until then, the Israelis will continue to dig.

Eshel said Monday that the caves, their openings smothered in rubble, were very likely to hold the treasures.

The caves are about 200 yards north of the ancient village of Qumran, which was inhabited by the Essene sect believed by many to have written the scrolls.

Eshel noted that the newly discovered caves are carved in marl, a crumbly mix of clay and limestone, similar to one of the earlier caves that contained 530 of the 850 Dead Sea Scrolls.

The archaeologist also pointed to ancient footpaths leading from Qumran to the mouths of the caves.

"These trails showed they used the caves. I'm not sure we'll find anything, but it is our duty to check, because even the smallest fragment of a scroll can help us reconstruct how they lived," Eshel said.

The prospects so excited Magen Broshi, former curator of the Dead Sea Scroll collection at Israel Museum, that he came out of retirement to help lead the excavation.

The first scrolls were found between 1947 and 1956 in 11 caves near Qumran. The collection of manuscripts contains the oldest known texts of the Old Testament, as well as messianic prophecies and moral teachings that shed light on the development of Judaism at the time of Jesus and the origins of Christianity.

Many of the volunteers were excited just being part of the excavation along the shores of the Dead Sea.

"This is Quuumran, man!" said Pete Keuper, a 32-year-old teacher from Santa Maria, California, who is studying at the American Institute of Holy Land Studies.

Heaving a stone out of "Cave C," the heavy-set Keuper grunted: "It's awesome to be a part of history."

Asked if he believed there were any scrolls to be found, Keuper broke into a broad grin and said: "I played Santa Claus, and they say he isn't real too."

The dig is expected to stop in early January, and then resume for another two weeks in February, Eshel said.

"There is something very magical about the term Dead Sea Scroll. It evokes a mystery built up over the years," said Seymour Gitin, director of the W. F. Albright Institute of Archaeological Research in Jerusalem.

And people love a mystery."

STELLA WILDER YOUR BIRTHDAY

By Stella Wilder

Born today, you are often interested in the unusual and the bizarre, and you will parody these interests into a career that is both lucrative and exciting. Contentment, for you, depends upon the freedom to explore life as you choose. Like most other Sagittarians, you are prompted by an eagerness to learn, explore, and live life to the fullest. You don't like to be confined to an office for long, and you prefer work that takes you to the far reaches of the world. At the very least, you'd like to explore your own corner of the globe.

your daily guide.
THURSDAY, DEC. 21
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You may encounter someone who wishes to challenge you before the day is out. Make sure to prepare well in advance.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Give yourself a chance to explore your territory today. You have been too hemmed in lately, and freedom beckons.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Your impulsive nature may get you into one or two out-of-control situations today. Use caution at all times.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — You will get a revised version of an important event today. As a result, you will develop a greater understanding of what really happened.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may want to take time out from your routine today to check on the progress of someone you've recently taken under your wing.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — There is no reason to hold back today, especially when you are facing a familiar opponent who knows most of your tricks.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — If you make changes quickly and with subtlety, the rewards may exceed your considerable expectations. Togetherness will be important at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — At some point today, you may see someone who brings back memories that will enrich your thoughts and feelings at this time.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Teamwork will yield great results at this time, but you may have to take charge briefly to get through a moment of confusion today.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — You will have a chance to strut your stuff today, but you may have to wait some time until you get the chance again. Make this time count!
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — While others are taking their time, you can pick up the pace and get ahead of the game. Do not wait until the last minute to explore your options.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Practice may not make perfect today, but it can get you within reach. You still have a few fine points to smooth out.

Fuad Reveiz kicked his third field goal, a 38-yarder with 6:42 remaining but Young led San Francisco on a clock-killing drive and the Vikings didn't get the ball back.

Down 21-0 after the first quarter, Minnesota came back to make it 27-27 when the Vikings turned San Francisco's fourth turnover into a 6-yard scoring pass from Moon to Jake Reed midway through the third quarter.

The score was set up by Adam Walker's fumble, recovered by Esra Tualo at the San Francisco 19.

San Francisco struck for 21 first-quarter points and the game had the look of a blowout, but Minnesota answered with a 20-point second quarter and trailed just 27-20 at half-time.

The Vikings were held without a first down and forced to punt four times in the first quarter while Young hit Rice with two scoring passes and Dexter Carter returned a punt 78 yards for a touchdown.

Carter, San Francisco's first-round pick in 1990 who rejoined the team 24 points as Utah beat the Nets for the second time this season and 14th in the last 16 meetings. John Stockton added 11 points and 10 assists for the Jazz, which overcame an early 12-point deficit by shooting 52 percent from the floor.

Kenny Anderson had 21 points and 10 assists for New Jersey, which lost its third straight, and second in row at home after opening the season at the Meadowlands with seven straight wins. Armon Gilliam added 18 points and 11 rebounds for the Nets, who made just 10 second-half baskets.

second game, 15-13, and later the tie breaker, 11-7. It was Retton's first tournament.

The doubles event finals was an all-Guam contest, with two Guam teams—Frank Rios with Larry Angeles and Ricaro Rosario with Juan Palomo—capturing both final berths. Rios and Angeles defeated Rosario and Palomo in two games, 15-11 and 15-5.

Guam team's coach Frank Rosario secured top honors in the masters event when he defeated John Joyner, 15-6 and 15-11. Rios was originally scheduled to play against Richard Pierce in the masters, but Pierce did not make it in the competition due to a last-minute off-island commitment.

In the final medal tally, Japan won two first places, CNMI won two second place medals, while Guam won four first place and four second place medals.

Out of 17 CNMI players, only Joyner and Retton competed in the finals.

49ers overpower Vikings, 37-30

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings stood no chance against Jerry Rice.

In the fifth highest yardage total by a receiver in NFL history, Rice had a career-high 289 yards and caught three touchdown passes Monday night, leading the playoff-bound San Francisco 49ers to a 37-30 victory.

It was the sixth straight win for the 49ers, who led 21-0 after one quarter and then had to hold off the Vikings.

Rice, who finished with 14 catches, overtook Herman Moore of Detroit to set an NFL record for most receiving yards in a season. Rice will take 1,695 yards into the regular-season finale against Atlanta. Moore has 1,581 with a game to go.

Steve Young threw for 425 yards, completing 30 of a career-high 49 passes for San Francisco (11-4).

The win gave the 49ers a first-round playoff bye and they could sew up home-field advantage with a victory at Atlanta. The 49ers had a bye and home-field during last year's Super Bowl run and clearly want all the advantages again.

Minnesota's loss allowed Detroit to clinch a playoff berth. The Vikings (8-7) can still qualify for a postseason berth with some help from other teams and by beating Cincinnati next week.

Rice, who caught touchdown passes from Young of 8, 46 and 31 yards in the first half, had a 41-yard reception to set up Jeff Wilkins' tie-breaking 20-yard field goal with 4:20 remaining in the third period.

He got behind Dewayne Washington for a 52-yard completion to help set up Young's 6-yard scramble for a score putting San Francisco up 37-27 with 12:14 remaining.

Guam players rule X'mas racketball tiff

PLAYERS from Guam dominated the three-day 1995 Holiday Racketball Tournament, taking home eight of the 12 top honors in the competition held at the Nikko Hotel last weekend.

Twenty nine players—four women and six men from Guam, three women and 14 men from the Commonwealth and a pair from Japan—competed in the open, women's, B, C doubles and masters events.

Hirome Maeda, a lady player from Japan played exceptionally in the tournament with 30 games in 15 matches capturing two titles.

Maeda won the open and women's open.

Ranked number 13 in Japan, Maeda defeated Guam's national champion Larry Angeles in a first-to-15 championship game.

During their first encounter, Maeda defeated Angeles in a three-game match. Maeda took the first game, 15-14. Angeles bounced back in the second game, 15-11, but lost to Maeda in the tie-breaker, 11-6.

In their second encounter, Maeda likewise won the first game, 15-6. Angeles took game two, 15-12, but Maeda again won the tie-breaker, 11-6.

In the women's event, Maeda defeated Guam's Anicia Leon Guerrero in two straight games, 15-3 and 15-8.

Guam players bested their rivals in the B, C and doubles events.

Two players from Guam, Tom Camacho and Ricaro Rosario, both clinched the two finals berth. Camacho won over Rosario in two straight games, 15-5 and 15-6.

In the C event, Lucy Cruz of Guam scored a come-from-behind victory over Commonwealth's Gono Retton in a three-game final match.

Retton won the first game, 15-12, but missed his chance for a straight victory when Cruz won the

Orioles sign up Roger McDowell

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roger McDowell and the Baltimore Orioles agreed to a one-year contract Monday, becoming the third pitcher to join the team in less than a week.

McDowell, 34, made 64 relief appearances for the Texas Rangers last season, second in the American League to the Orioles' Jesse Orosco. He was 7-4 and had a 4.02 ERA.

During his 11-year career, McDowell has played with the New York Mets, the Philadelphia Phillies and the Los Angeles Dodgers. He started his major league career with the Mets in 1985.

In 1986, he won a World Series ring on a Mets team led by Davey Johnson, the new Orioles manager. Jesse Orosco and Randy Myers, also with Baltimore for next season, were in the Mets bullpen.

Baltimore also traded a pair of prospects Sunday night for Kent Mercker, the Atlanta Braves No. 5 starter. Mercker, 27, was 7-8 with a 4.15 ERA last season with Atlanta.

Last Wednesday, the Orioles agreed to a two-year contract with Myers. He led the NL last season with 38 saves while pitching for the Chicago Cubs and will be the Orioles closer.

Tzsyu-Pineda fight set for January 20

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Undefeated Kostya Tzsyu will defend his International Boxing Federation junior-welterweight title against Colombian Hugo Pineda at Parramatta Stadium on January 20.

The bout will be the second title defense for Russian-born, Australian-based Tzsyu, who won the title from American Jake Rodriguez early this year and defended it against another American, Roger Mayweather.

Tzsyu originally was scheduled to defend against Pineda in Cartagena, Colombia, on Nov. 27, but refused to travel—citing concerns for his safety.

Tzsyu initially was stripped of the title by the IBF, then reinstated after taking legal action.

His manager, Vlad Warton, said Tuesday that the ring will be set up in the middle of the football stadium in Sydney's western suburbs with 8,000 seats available around the ring in addition to the 20,000 grandstand and hill positions.

Tzsyu, 25, has a 15-0 record, while Pineda has a 27-0-1 log.

The bout will be the first world title fight sanctioned by a major body to be held in Sydney for five years.

Tzsyu said he was glad arrangements for the bout finally are in place. "I didn't think I would ever fight Pineda," he said. "But everything has turned around and I'm very happy to fight in Australia."

Warton said the undercard also would include a 10-round junior-welterweight bout between Tzsyu's sparring partners Hector Lopez of Mexico and Corey Johnson of Detroit.
