Be just and fear not: Let all the ends thou aim'st at be Thy Country's, thy God's, and Truth's.

MONDAY, JUNE 16, 1890.

The situation is serious, but on the whole, hopeful. It seems pretty clear that no corrupt or unworthy Ministry can command a majority in the House.

The only man in the country who has the brazen hardihood to scream about "selling the independence of the country," besides of course the famous two, is the Attorney-General. Bush-Wilcox-Ashford are our triumvirate of modern Rum-uns (Romans).

Bush and Wilcox have held in, this session on the whole, in a really surprising fashion. No wonder then that nature asserted herself at last. On Friday evening Wilcox split his throat calling for the blood of the Ministers, while Mr. Bush howled vociferously for their places.

There is not a single speech nor committee report, nor debate, nor vote to which the National Reform party can point as containing an indictment against the Ministry. One thing comes out clear in all the confusion. The case of the National Reform party against the Cabinet has ignominiously broken down.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ASHFORD conducted himself Friday night like a man who had nothing to fear and nothing to hope. He took off the gloves and villified right and left. The contortions of his despair, like those of the notorious Guiteau, relieved the situation of much of its seriousness. He was right, we hope, in thinking he had nothing to hope, and we congratulate his adopted country (he is a denizen) on his retirement into private life.

A CERTAIN member of the National Reform party lately said to one of the native members: "I suppose that you are going to vote to turn the Ministry out?" "For what reason?" "Ta—don't want any reason, Ministry must go anyhow."

"I don't care what side of the House the Ministry comes from, as long as we get a new Ministry."—Rep. Nawahi.

These two utterances are the text to which the conduct of the National Reform party Friday is the commentary.

THE National Reform party endeavored to turn the Ministry out, not because anything had proved against them, but because they had made up their minds that the Ministry must go. They remind one of the famous Kalkoff, who used to pray: "Oh, Lord, the Chinese must go." They wanted a change. The debate Friday was a farce. So far as the opposition to the Ministry is concerned, it was confined to abusive remarks from the Attorney-General and to foolish ones, such as we have cited of Rep. Nawahi's, from a few of the native members. Having referred everything to committees the party hastened to push the issue before the committees could report, as though they were afraid of the result of investigation, as indeed they well may have been. A few more majority reports such as that of Rep. Marquis, followed by a minority report like that of Noble Baldwin would have killed the party.

As a confession, the conduct of the National Reform party is interesting. It amounts to an admission that they are after the offices, as indeed some of them have the bald cynicism to concede. It is getting continually clearer that the chief offence of the Minister of the Interior and his colleagues was in keeping Cabinet positions away from the hungry. We would never make this charge if it did not already stand confessed by implication.

Memorial Day Services Observed in this City.

The combined lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows with the degree of Rebekah, a number of visiting brethren and ladies assembled at the Hall of Harmony Lodge on Sunday afternoon to commemorate their departed brethren, especially those who had been taken from them during the past year. Brother W. O. Smith occupied the chair, and presided over the meeting in a most acceptable manner. The services opened with the singing of a memorial ode, composed by Brother Alex. Mackintosh, after which prayer was offered up by Brother the Rev. Alex. Mackintosh acting as chaplain.

The chairman after a very able and pleasing introduction announced the order of proceedings and then read the edict of the Sovereign Grand Lodge concerning the appointment of the day which hereafter is to be observed early in June instead of in October as at first determined. Brother Smith then called upon Brother Atherton to commemorate the life of the deceased brother George C. Williams. Briefly and tenderly the career of Brother Williams was set forth, and his kindly and generous spirit seemed to rest among the assembled people.

In an interval Sister Petrie, Noble Grand of the Degree of Rebekah, read with clear voice and distinct utterance an appropriate poem called "Sorrow for the Dead" after which the chairman called upon Brother Mackintosh, P. G., to commemorate the life of Brother Blaisdell which was very feelingly done by that brother. Here some music was laid down on the programme, but owing to the indisposition of Mr. Wray Taylor, did not take place. Brother Emmeluth, P. G., in well chosen language and in a most paternal spirit commemorated the life of Brother C. J. Hardee, and Brother Savidge, P. G., was then asked by the chairman to commemorate the deceased Deputy District Grand Sires which was done by Brother Savidge in his usual happy and masterly manner. The proceedings were terminated by a benediction by the chaplain.

MATERNITY HOME.

It is Successfully Opened by the King and Queen—a Fine Institution.

The Kapiolani Maternity Home, corner of Beretania and Makiki Sts., was opened to the public on Saturday afternoon. Their majesties the King and Queen drove up to the home punctually at 3 o'clock, the Hawaiian band playing the national anthem. A silk ribbon stretched across the veranda directly in front of the main entrance, was raised by two little girls and Their Majesties walked underneath it, the Home being declared opened. The front veranda was nicely decorated with flags and potted palms, while bouquets of the choicest flowers were to be seen in conspicuous places in all the rooms. The King and Queen, also H. R. H. Princess Liliuokalani inspected the home throughout. Mr. J. W. Robertson, Vice Chamberlain, and Mrs. Robertson were in attendance on their Majesties and Miss L. Brickwood on the Princess.

There are five bedrooms, one furnished by Mrs. T. R. Foster, one by each by the Widemann and Robinson families, one by Mrs. Canavaro and Mrs. J. I. Dowsett, and one by Mrs. S. Parker, Mrs. T. W. Everett and Mrs. E. P. Low. They all looked cozy and neat. In the dining room are hung pictures of the King and Queen. There is also a matron's room and a kitchen with range. Mrs. Johnson has been placed in the home as matron.

Quite a large number of ladies were out to inspect the Home, the lady board of managers taking particular pains to show them round. It is to be hoped that this beautiful new home will be largely availed of by Hawaiians.

The Band, under direction of Mr. Berger, played on the lawn from 3 to 6 o'clock, and refreshments consisting of tea, coffee, bread and butter and cake were served.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Seventeenth Day.

FRIDAY, JUNE 13.

Following is the continuation of the afternoon session, omitted in Saturday's issue for want of space:

Rep. Brown—What is the ruling, then? The President—That your amendment is out of order. There are other ways of disposing of a Minister. He can be impeached.

Rep. Brown—Thus, on your ruling, you can't impeach one without impeaching the whole of them. Mr. President, suppose a Minister who should be bribed could not the House dispose of that Minister without moving a vote of want of confidence in the rest? I say yes. The Attorney-General has quoted a resolution from the Legislature of '87, moved by myself. I asked the question with regard to Noble Hitchcock. Don't remember anything about Noble Castle. At that time I would have been glad to have the whole Cabinet voted out of office. Don't remember any vote of want of confidence being attempted. (Attorney-General: It was a vote of censure merely.) I think, Mr. President, that the Chair has made a mistake. It cannot be your ruling that the House cannot express its want of confidence in any single member except by impeaching him. I hate to differ from the Chair in its ruling, but in a matter of this kind a ruling disposing of the power of this House to deal with one member of His Majesty's Cabinet, it is necessary.

Minister Thurston—I support the appeal not from personal feeling, but because the ruling strikes at the power and prerogatives of this House. They have the right to act absolutely unless some law denies it. I say to you, gentlemen of the Opposition, you may think you may get a partisan advantage to-day, but beware, you are making laws for the country, you are sworn to do your duty regardless of party advantage for the time being. Now, what does the ruling propose to take out of the hands of the House, the power to do that which it may think of use to the country. It is not to-day nor to-morrow but for the future. You don't know when danger will strike. The Attorney-General has stated that Article 41 takes away from this House the power to inquire into the conduct of individual Ministers. How can you torture the article into any such meaning? Now Mr. President, it is an elementary rule of construction that the greater includes the less. Another rule is that where a clause is held to restrict powers it must be specific. Legislation has all the rights which are not specifically taken away from it by the constitution and it certainly is not the language of this article. The Attorney-General cites a resolution as he claims confirming his view. Now I say that that resolution has nothing to do with the matter. He is right in supposing that the action of the Attorney-General in the other resolution to which he has referred to, was a proper occasion to condemn the entire Cabinet and I will show you why. Nobody here wants to establish the theory of the unity of the Cabinet more than I. For four months we have struggled with the Attorney-General to establish the principle of unity of the Cabinet. He would not hear of it. Now he wants to establish that principle. He is afraid to face the consequences of his conduct, is playing the baby act, and wants to drag the whole Cabinet down as a consequence of his own illegal and revolutionary acts. Now Mr. President and gentlemen while unity of Cabinet action is established here and in England the other principle is equally clear. If one officer does an act and the others approve, they are responsible. (If the Attorney-General paid the money to Hitchcock and Castle and the Cabinet supported him, then the Cabinet is responsible.) But if any Minister does an illegal and unconstitutional act, the other Ministers do not approve it, they are not responsible. Now this is a comparative new question here, but in England they have been over it over and over again with Cabinets of all sorts, and it is clearly settled. I have before me Todd's Parliamentary Government in England, vol. 1, p. 456, stating that every Minister can be held accountable for personal misdeeds. In another passage it says every Minister is directly responsible for the advice he tenders his sovereign. Mr. President, you could not get a quotation more applicable to this question than that of the Attorney-General given by the Attorney-General contrary to the advice of the Cabinet which we complain of. How can the House get at this question? It is a sealed box to them and why? Simply because the President of the Legislature rules that they cannot investigate it. In this book there is section after section, page after page, chapter after chapter giving instances. In one case it says notwithstanding the rule that the Cabinet are responsible as a whole, the ancient rule is still in force making individual Ministers responsible for personal misdeeds for which the Cabinet declines to assume any responsibility. I might multiply the quotations but I will only make one more. If the Cabinet voluntarily assume responsibility they are accountable if they are implicated. But otherwise not, and it is not reason or common sense nor justice to hold men responsible for the acts of others which they have been trying to prevent. If one member of the Cabinet went out and stole $10 according to this rule the House could not notice it without voting the whole Cabinet out of office. It may be said that in England that they have no written constitution. No, but the law is the same as ours. They are governed by precedent and so are we. I must again appeal to this House and to the opposition members whether opposed to me or not, to stand up for the privileges of this House. I do not believe this ruling was given maliciously, but in ignorance of what the English law is. Now that it is given it is the duty of the House not to support it but to sustain the rights of this House. If the ruling is supported the House deprives itself of the power to consider the conduct of a single Minister. I think the point might have been raised to some one besides the Attorney-General. When the question of his conduct and ours comes up to be considered he tries to choke it off. Mr. President, I think I would have died in my boots before I would have put myself in such a position. Now gentlemen of the loyal opposition, for I believe you are loyal, as loyal as I am, through your views are different, the question before you is not whether I am right or he is right, but whether you can consider it at all. I think that I have worked for three years night or day—I have never shirked to have this question considered.

Minister Ashford—The Minister of the Interior thinks it unwise for the House to let go the right to investigate the conduct of one Minister, but I contend that the House never had any such power. The Minister thinks I am afraid. Who is afraid? I am not. The Minister of the Interior wrote this amendment, if I am not mistaken, to choke off consideration of his own conduct. The Minister thinks it unfair for the House to take any partisan advantage. Who is trying that? Do I try to evade responsibility? I stand ready to fall with the rest, but I cannot do so until I have had my name and name of my party put on the mask and parade their lofty patriotism with the resolution of last night's caucus grinning like a codfish from their pockets. The Minister says the ruling takes away a privilege of this House. Mr. President, the House never had any such privilege until this Constitution, and if this Constitution does not grant the power, then it does not exist. He has cited a work by Mr. Todd. I have a great respect for Mr. Todd; he was a Canadian who had been near England as I have. Now, there never was a want of confidence in the English Parliament of less than the whole Cabinet. This is only a pace with the conduct of the Minister of the Interior and his friends. They want to go to the United States and to the United States for their protection. Mr. President, I have read a little English history myself, and I maintain that not once in modern times has any such vote been directed against less than the whole Cabinet. The Minister suggests it would be disastrous to the House. Now, if we strike out House and substitute Minister of Interior, that would be what he had in his mind. It is of no consequence to me whether the appeal is sustained or not. The Minister has pounded the table with great force. He wants my rights investigated. How about his own? I am in bad company and I admit it. They got bad after I came in, and when I was away they got worse. (After making a number of remarks about the treaty, the speaker did not go on to play the baby act. I am not going to cry over spilled milk. I am willing to go down when there are four men here who can do more for the interest of the country than these three do. I am willing to take my appeal from the House to the people, and I invite the Minister of the Interior to meet me there.)

Rep. Kalua—Only question before the House is whether ruling of President is in violation of Article 41. If it is, the House, together, and seems to me the President's ruling. I move the previous question. Carried.

Rep. Brown says—I want eyes and noses called so that voters may mark my name on the name who surrendered their rights.

Rep. Kalua—Have the Ministers right to vote on this question? The President—Certainly.

Rep. Kalua—Aole. Minister Ashford protested. President—I rule they have no right to vote. Minister Thurston—I wish to enter my protest against the way in which the Chair makes rulings, simply because the crowd makes a shout bandying about the rights of Cabinet Ministers. The Constitution says Cabinet Ministers shall vote on all questions, except a want of confidence in themselves, and I claim the right to vote, although as a matter of delicacy I shall not vote, but I protest against the ruling of the Chair.

Noble Widemann—This is virtually a question of want of confidence. Rep. Rosa—The Chair ruled that the Ministers can vote, and I think that the Chair has no right to change its rulings. And with all due respect, I think it is unfair.

President—I rule as I did in the first place, that the Ministers have the right to vote. The eyes and noses were followed. The following members explained their votes: Noble McCarthy—I wish to explain my vote. I am not in favor of the amendment, but I believe now after hearing the argument (I did not so think when I came in) that the House has a right to vote on this question. Rep. Kapahala—I wish to explain my vote. I am not in favor of the amendment, but I am not in favor of the ruling, because I believe in the right of the House to censure a single Minister.

Rep. Kaula—When my name was called, I said "mahope." Mahope has come, and now as it makes no difference, I will not vote.

Rep. White—As it is not going to make any difference I shall not vote "Yes." Ruling of the Chair is not sustained by a vote of 27 to 19.

Rep. Nawahi moves resolution adopted without amendment. Rep. Brown—Motion is out of order. Rep. Nawahi moves amendment be indefinitely postponed.

Rep. Brown—Motion is out of order. The amendment must be put. Noble Widemann—The honorable member lays down the law again. I question it.

Noble Macfarlane—I move to lay on the table. Rep. Brown—That motion is out of order. Noble McCarthy—I call for the question on the amendment. Noble Baldwin calls for eyes and noses. Minister Ashford—This amendment is an indictment against me in my official capacity. I have not minded it, because I know of the malevolence of that little clique and faction which has directed it. I have no fear of a vote of want of confidence. It is no dishonor, unless in a matter of peculation. It is this amendment to focus everything on my own head, and the reason is that I have had the audacity to advise His Majesty contrary to the opinion of my esteemed colleagues. It is sought to attach censure to me because forsooth I violated the Constitution. I have all ways thought that constitutions are made for governments, not governments for constitutions. But I deny that I have violated the Constitution. I claimed to have the right to advise His Majesty. But they claim that I persisted in my opposition after three gentlemen up stairs had stated that they thought three men were sufficient to conduct the business of the Cabinet. So I did, but I considered that this was an expression of opinion merely and not declaratory of the law itself, and this is the view of the Supreme Court itself with regard to such expert opinions. As an illustration simply I will state that I advised as the law adviser of the Minister of Finance not to appoint C. L. Carter to sit on a Board of Tax appeals, as unconstitutional. Nevertheless, he made the appointment, but if I had claimed that his conduct was revolutionary and unconstitutional, he would have thought I was very radical indeed. If the full facts were in the possession of the member from the First District he would not have moved this amendment. If the principle is adopted that the Ministers are bound by the opinion of the Supreme Court, constitutional government is at an end in this country, and we shall have a despotism controlled by the Supreme Court. I submit that I opposed the signature of His Majesty, but I claim that the Supreme Court cannot put a gag in my mouth. I will advise as I think right. It was necessary for me to take the course I did to prevent the Ministry from binding the country hand and foot, and delivering it over to the United States, and I shall continue to resist placing the sovereign rights of Hawaii in the hands of the United States or of any other country. As I remarked they are times when the Government must rise superior to the Constitution and for this position I have the authority of the lamented Abraham Lincoln. Mr. President, I make two points. 1. That I did not violate the Constitution in advising as I did. 2. That if it was justified in my opinion to sign on the first point, I would have resisted the opinion of these gentlemen and kept the Hawaiian flag afloat here no matter if there had been a constitution with a hundred and eighty articles forbidding it. I leave it to any fair-minded man in each of my voice to say whether we have not reached a pretty pass if a Minister of the Crown is to be impeached because he has endeavored to keep the Hawaiian flag from falling in the dust beneath the American flag. What opinion will foreigners have of a country which impeaches a man for striving to preserve its independence? Mr. President, there is really only one question involved in this amendment launched against me, whether I was justified in endeavoring to save the country from this Treaty. I leave it to the House, with the assurance that I would act as I did again, if the occasion should offer.

Rep. Kolt. Wilcox—I was elected to come here and try the whole Cabinet, not merely one of them. The Ministers and members of the House have all taken the oath. I say all the Ministers are guilty, not merely one. Some think the Minister of Finance is not guilty. I say he is just as bad as the others. If not, why does he continue the opinion stealers in the Custom House, men who committed murder on the 30th of June. So the Minister of Foreign Affairs has withheld documents. The Supreme Court is just as bad. It is rotten and the Chief Justice is one of the conspirators. To the Attorney-General who is he? A stranger who holds office by virtue of a revolution. The Minister of the Interior and the others deserve to be shot. That is what they really deserve. I should be in favor of a proper treaty, not such a one as the Ministers propose. The present treaty was procured by King Kalakaua himself, and those benefited by it have turned around and taken his constitution away from him. The Ministers ought to be court-martialed and shot. That is what ought to be done. One is as bad as another and I am in favor of proceeding against them all.

Rep. Nawahi—This is like an indictment against four persons. The amendment is directed against one. One Minister has pleaded guilty. The others not, but they have admitted a great many things, enough to convince everybody. The people are tired of this squabbling and the only way to get rid of it is to dismiss them all. After I was elected I was asked what I was going to do. I said I was going to see what they had done, and if it was all right I would keep them in. I never saw anything like this squabbling before. I think it is disgraceful and the only way to stop it is to turn them all out, as they are all equally bad. I think the Minister of the Interior wants to stick to his seat. Enough has happened in this House already to make him resign, but it seems as though he was glued to his seat.

The House took a recess until 7:30 p. m.

Hog and Poultry Remedy

A Certain Cure for the Diseases of

HOGS AND POULTRY

1st. It puts your pigs in first-class condition. 2d. It stops cough, and regulates the bowels. 3d. It will keep sows healthy during pregnancy, and superinduce a sound progeny. 4th. It will arrest disease in every instance, if administered before the vital parts are beyond the reach of aid. 5th. It destroys worms and hastens maturity. 6th. It is a thorough preventive. Feeders who use it all the year round have no disease among their swine. 7th. It will repay its cost many times over in the extra pounds of pork it will make without extra feed. Hogs treated with it will gain two or more pounds, while others are gaining one. The reason is it regulates the digestive functions and enables the animal to convert every particle of food eaten into pork, involving no waste. Hundreds of testimonials from breeders in England, Germany, Scotland, Ireland, the United States, New Zealand, and Australia.

GEO. W. LINCOLN,

THE WELL-KNOWN BUILDER, IS STILL IN THE FIELD AS A CONTRACTOR, and is now better prepared to do any and all kinds of work pertaining to contracting or any other class of work belonging to his trade, in the same good and workmanlike manner as heretofore; having curtailed my shop expenses and still retain plenty of room to do any and all kinds of work appertaining to the building trade that may be entrusted to my care. I am enabled to do the same at very low rates, to suit the extremely dull times, and at the same time bearing in mind that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well.

Thanking the public for past favors, I remain respectfully yours,

GEO. W. LINCOLN.
