FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1895.

The prophet of Maui needs some assistance.

"The greater harbor" for Honolulu is rapidly materializing.

Fish may now be added to the tiresome diet of flesh and fowl.

The Y. M. C. A. is enjoying what the lay brethren call a boom.

The Star must decline to publish a pamphlet on the cholera visitation. The book would sell, but the "scheme" in our judgement, is not a good one.

The condition of commercial Honolulu must be A. For six weeks scarcely a wheel turned in trade. During that trying period, when the resources of many must have been severely taxed, there was not so much as a restaurant closed. There has been but one failure of any account in Honolulu in two years. And that one house closed was re-opened by new men and is a prosperous establishment today.

It is now stated that the Government is considering a new form of treatment for Nuuanu stream, the scheme being to continue the wall near the St. Louis College so as to give the stream a straight-away course to the harbor. Today's Advertiser. The same paper continues that the plan may be a good one, but necessitates use of private property. This plan was adopted a week ago. It is the one urged in THE STAR. Its best feature is that it touches less private property than any other plan proposed.

There will be some special features with THE STAR tomorrow. The chief extra will be another art supplement. The subject is Wm. E. Gladstone and P. Clifford Rhodes has made a fine plate which has been placed on good paper in THE STAR's job department. It will prove an acceptable and valued souvenir. The Grand Old Man is shown seated on the deck of the well-known steamer Tantalus Castle. A gentleman of Honolulu who is a welcome occasional contributor to this paper has prepared for this supplement a thoughtful article on the subject.

The bright intellects suggesting that the dredger is maliciously and perniciously and with neglect and forethought being permitted to make an assault on the public health, are giving themselves a good deal of unnecessary worry. The dredger is going to kill contagion and destroy filth. The fetid ooze now resting in wait is to be drawn from its slimy bed, treated to disinfection and exposed to the sun. When it is decided to stop work with the odorous excavators and garbage wagons in the interest of public health it will be time to talk of placing the dredger in rotation row for the same reason.

LIEUT. PEARY sorrowfully states that he will not make another trip into the Arctic regions. Strong as he is and with a will of iron, he feels that another trial would mean certain death to him. He has used his reserve powers of both force and resistance till they are no longer to be depended upon. Peary has battled superbly in the interest of science, and his intrepid sorties into the dull and dreadful regions of everlasting mountains of ice and almost constant snow winds have commanded the admiration of the world. His last trip was practically a failure, despite the most courageous and determined effort. For days he and his devoted companions dragged themselves in the direction of their goal; with their only food scant rations from the store for the weak and starving sledge dogs. Lieut. Peary, in defeat, has the praise and sympathy of all who pay tribute of acknowledgement to earnestness and bravery.

UNKRANKING and cheeky scribblers and the doughty and delicately refined knights of the curb are about the only persons who comment on the private financial methods of members of the Hawaiian civil service. It is the fact that in the olden days the great majority of officials lived up to it not beyond their incomes. This was deplored, condemned, regretted, set down as shameful. It was most certainly ill-judged. Now that individual thrift, frugality and economy are the rule, the comment is even more pronounced and the criticism marked by taunting bitterness. Purses formerly tributary to lavish living cry out in their leanness and hunger. It is difficult to strike a safe, sensible, happy medium. Action on the hint to the sluggard in the fable is perhaps not bad advice to those who hunger for the profits in the trail of the spendthrift, for "There is no genius like the genius of labor. There is no reward like that which comes from energy, system and perseverance."

A Look Into the Future.

He was poor as far as having earthly possessions was concerned, though he had some salary, and the girl was worse off because she had no salary.

Yet he loved her.

Love is a roaring lion going about seeking whom it may devour.

The girl loved him also, but was tempered by judgment and the cost of house rent, clothes, social demands and that sort.

As previously mentioned, he loved her, and in time it came to pass that he proposed to her.

"But, dear George," she urged in the negative, "you only have $1,200 a year."

This argument rather surprised him, for he had an idea that $1,200 a year was not to be sneezed at.

"Well," he exclaimed, "we can live on that, can't we?"

She took both his hands in hers and looked straight into his large, innocent eyes.

"Live on it? Of course we can, you dear boy," she murmured, "but we would look too ridiculous for anything going around without any clothes on, wouldn't we, dear?" and her face went down all in a heap.—Detroit Free Press.

Rats.

A plan that will sometimes destroy a large number of rats is to fill a barrel partly full of water and cover it with an inch or so of mud. A hole is bored in the barrel a little above the mud, and the rats enter, sink through the mud and find a watery grave. In catching rats in steel traps great care is required to destroy the rodents. Traps need to be well covered and everything done to avoid raising the suspicions of the "varmints." Green rats refuse to eat poisoned bread and butter they may be lured with poisoned crackers, cheese or meat. Rats are shy and gummy creatures, but it is possible to "make game" of them.—New York Tribune.

The Chinese friends have paid out in total disability claims to members nearly $1,000,000, and in the past six months over $25,000 in claims that have reached the age of 75.

A BODY IN THE BAY.

REMAINS OF A CHINESE FOUND FLOATING THIS MORNING.

Was a Recent Arrival. Young Man Had a Relative Here—An Autopsy Held.

A dead Chinaman was found in the bay off Brewer's wharf about 5 o'clock this morning. A Custom House guard was the first to see the body. He reported to the Station house and the corpse was fished out.

The man's name was Ah Sam. He arrived from China by the Belgic on a six-months residence bond. He was just twenty-one years of age. He has a brother here. The brother keeps a shop near Hotel and Maunakea.

Ah Sam disappeared at 9 o'clock Wednesday night and had not been seen since. He lit a punk and went away bareheaded, saying he was going for a walk.

No circumstances can be traced to indicate suicide. The brother says the boy had acted queer for several days, and he thinks he was not mentally sound.

A post-mortem examination was held at 8 o'clock. Doctors found no evidence of foul play.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that Ah Sam came to his death by drowning in the bay of Honolulu.

SAY SAKI IS SCARCE.

JAPANESE LIQUOR AT A PREMIUM IN THE LOCAL MARKET.

Advance in Price—Cause of the Famine—Some Speculations as to the Future.

Saki is scarce in Honolulu just now. Several saloons have none for sale. It has been selling for thirty cents "per lot," a dime advance, for some time. One dealer is working for still another raise.

The advance has moderately reduced the consumption. Many natives are switching off to beer. Japanese cling to their national brew despite the raise in price. Haole saki toppers, with red noses, take their beverage to one side and acknowledge no "chims."

The Rio de Janeiro had several hundred tubs aboard, but it went on to San Francisco. This shipment, however, will be expected to reach here at the end of the month.

The China brought with it a quantity of saki, but it was refused to take it at Yokohama.

One prominent firm has about sixty tubs of saki in the warehouse. There are but a few tubs in the Custom House. The latter came by the terrible Belgic. Its condition, sanitary and otherwise, is unknown. Saki turns to vinegar in a short time. If their condition is not known, they are thrown away. Some, if not all, of the saki in the Custom House is believed to be already ruined. If this be so there is hardly a week's supply of the article in the city.

The other islands have no saki. Large quantities are consumed in plantation districts. Honolulu supplies the demand. For some weeks the cry "send us saki" could be heard every where. When the quarantine is raised it is believed there will be none in the country.

There is something queer about the local trade in saki. A dealer seldom hawks down his own wares, but the wares of other dealers are taken. He condemns it as filthy and detrimental to the health of the consumer. He frequently refuses to sell it, and will refuse it to a drunkard quicker than any other intoxicant. Wholesale men are equally positive in condemning it. Two big firms strongly object to carrying it in their stocks. The demand, however, they say, forces them into the business. The report of the liquor committee of the Legislature on this traffic will be awaited with impatience by a large number.

Go to the Women's Exchange, 111 King street, for home made pot, cabbage, pie, etc. Also fine Hawaiian and Portuguese work, curios, flowers, pictures and much more.

IN KOOLAU. Leading Citizen's Visit From the Other Side After Two Months.

Wm. Henry of Kaneohe was in town yesterday for the first time in two months. Mr. Henry has been active in Koolaau in all cleaning, and precautionary work. The health of the district is good as ever. In fact, there has been an unusually small amount of illness. There was some slight inconvenience in the matter of supplies and at times there was the greatest anxiety for friends in Honolulu. Kaneohe town has never been a neglected place and the cleaning required there was easily accomplished. There has been no talk on fish in Koolaau and many native and foreign residents have been extremely anxious to get over the fall on that account.

Companies A and H turned out forty-five and forty men respectively for drill Thursday evening. A was drilled on the street by Captain Smith. H was instructed in riot drill by Colonel McLean. C will drill at the Armory this evening.

You can put up the most delicate fruits, uncooked, by using Antiferrous, and in six months they will be natural in appearance and taste as when first picked.

New Channel Damaged. As against several dozen, on the present banks, there are three propped up by the proposed straight channel for Nuuanu stream. C. A. Brown is one of these. His interest is $3000. Another owner has $500, and Father Valentine will accept lien land. The old claim amount was nearly $100,000.

ARE INDIGNANT. Japanese Make Protest Against the Crack Litter.

Japanese merchants and others will hold a big mass meeting over the old fire house, corner Nuuanu and Beretania at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. Posters announcing the gathering have been put up all over Chinatown. It is an indignation meeting against the S. S. China. Five or six prominent Japanese have been invited to speak, and the Japanese club will send a speaker. The grievance against the China is that she brought to mail from Yokohama, but brought two passengers from there and landed them at this port. It is understood that a statement of grievances will be sent the agents of the company.
