Six boat days were lost because of bad weather, six days lost due to a holiday, five days lost while repairing fishing gear, three days lost because of boat repairs, three days while crew was held in for security purposes and six days lost when Japanese were repatriated. Despite the loss in boat days the total production showed an increase of 6,600 pounds over January. The production for February included 14,756 pounds of Mackerel, appearance of this bait necessary to catch tuna. It should be noted that the appearance of this bait at this time of year is unusual and that the Japanese never caught tuna prior to the later part of March. The Japanese continued to fish until 27 February with the Chamorros accompanying them. The Japanese were then released for repatriation. The Chamorros have never attempted tuna fishing and it is hoped they absorbed some of its intricacies from the Japanese. Production will drop sharply since there are only two Chamorro boat crews.
