"I THANK THEE FOR THAT WORD."
Smarting under the rebuke for its efforts to sow bad feeling between natives and foreigners, administered to it last evening, the Advertiser flies to refuge in a cloud of rhetoric this morning. It is very gratifying to us that one of the results intended has so speedily followed our remarks of yesterday. Of course, when our contemporary could not face the actual propositions advanced against its position, it had to adopt the usual style of tactics relied upon in that quarter, of misconstruing the sense of opponents' language. Where, for instance, the privilege of discussing national affairs was claimed for foreign residents identified with the country in every way but citizenship, the Advertiser makes a different matter of it by asking: "In what constitutional country, let us ask, are aliens permitted to control the Government, direct its policy, and nominate its members?" Misrepresentation aside, however, the above is the very question we are glad to have the apologist of the present Government ask. It is the question the country will thank it for propounding, but would be infinitely more grateful if the Government would honestly answer it. What constitutional country, indeed, presents the spectacle of Hawaii, as regards the origin and maintenance of its present administration? To adapt the words of our contemporary to the notorious facts—an alien controls the Government of this kingdom, directs its policy, and nominates its members. An alien had the preceding Cabinet aroused from their slumbers in the dead of night, to hand in their resignations at his peremptory dictation. An alien hawked Cabinet portfolios about Honolulu, and with difficulty could get them accepted by men who would be subservient to his will, or would enter the company in which he proposed to place them. An alien imported his private attorney, had him manufactured, without waiting for five years' domiciliation, into a Hawaiian citizen, and hoisted him into the position of law adviser to the Crown, where he could represent the said alien as "the power behind the throne." An alien has, throughout the tenure of that Cabinet of his handiwork, to the present moment, directed the policy of this kingdom in every particular wherein it had near or remote relation to his private interests. That alien's dictatorship shows symptoms of soon being overthrown, but a quarter of a century hence will not witness the nation freed from the burdens which it had imposed. "In what constitutional country," indeed, "are aliens permitted to control the Government, direct its policy, and nominate its members?" The Hawaiian Kingdom is the only one known to this deponent and probably to the Advertiser.

THE BURMESE WAR.
Last mail brought news of the prosecution of the British campaign in Burmah. Advices of the 18th and 19th Nov. were to the effect that the British had captured the city of Minihla, after three hours' firing from the floating batteries, armed launches and heavy guns on board the steamers. The British lost four men in killed and twenty-seven wounded. Some of the British shells accidentally set fire to the town, destroying it. As Minihla was the most strongly fortified position on the river, by its capture the way is cleared for the British advance to Mandalay, as the forts at Ava, twelve miles from the Burmese capital, are only slight structures compared with those at Minihla. On the 21st it was announced that the British expeditionary force had captured Magwe, a town of Burmah, on the left bank of the Irrawaddy river, thirty-five miles above Prome, having a population of about 10,000. Among the prisoners taken were three Italian officers serving in the Burmese army. Gen. Prendergast was then at Membo, and stated that fighting was expected at Sayaing.
