Dear Friends:

I send my warmest aloha to all of you gathered here tonight to celebrate the opening of the new Astronomy building. I sincerely regret that my responsibilities in Washington do not allow me to share with you the festive spirit this occasion merits. You can each be proud of your association with the University of Hawaii--an institution which has through its sixty years in the Islands encouraged exploration in all fields and fostered the pursuit of knowledge among the citizens of our State. I wish you a most enjoyable evening in these beautiful surroundings and hope that the Institute of Astronomy will have a long and rewarding future.

Aloha,

DANIEL K. INOUE
