

EASY WAYS TO BEAT THE NEW ICE CREAM LAW

There is more than one way of skinning a cat.

Ergo there is more than one way of selling a frozen mixture of milk, cream, sugar, etcetera, than by calling it ice cream. At least this seems to be the opinion of some of the ice cream dealers who have suddenly ceased to handle this product, and instead have substituted a substitute with a new name which is guaranteed to fool your palate into believing that it is just the same thing that you bought for ice cream over the same counter only a week ago.

But it isn't—no indeed! That was ice cream, but this is "Frozen Daisy," or maybe it was "Frappe Custard," or "Cream Ice"—there are so many of these names and they're so confusing.

It's "Near Ice Cream" Now. At least one of the prominent soda fountains of the city now advises its customers, through a neat sign, that it doesn't handle "ice cream," but urges you to try so and so, and the Chinese boy behind the counter smiles broadly and with the nearest semblance to a wink possible to an Oriental visage, backs up the sign in urging you to try so and so in lieu of the ice cream which you have become accustomed to calling for.

There are other prominent confectioners, druggists, etc., in the city who have at least been thinking of some way of making "real" ice cream—ice cream that will have full 14 per cent or more of "butter fats" in it and which can be sold at a profit of 10 cents a dish or $2 per gallon.

Something in It. "They say" that this is perfectly feasible. One man knows of some convenient little tablets which put into a mixture of ordinary skimmed milk, sugar, gelatine, and flavoring will produce a beautifully "rich" ice cream, from which the government will be able to test out the full proportion of fats which the law says must be in ice cream.

Another man remembers reading in the Star that one of the large wholesale firms of the city is importing regularly large quantities of oleomargarine to be sold to cheap restaurants, and he remembers simultaneously that not so very long ago one of the biggest ice cream dealers of Los Angeles puzzled the dairymen for a long time by reason of the fact that he never bought any cream and yet his ice cream always came up to standard in butter fats. It was not until some detective work revealed the fact that plain ordinary oleo was the source of this "butter fat" that the storm broke, which, however, failed to wreck the ingenious dealer because poor blind Justice could not herself distinguish between oleo and butterfats when they were mixed up with other ingredients and frozen.

Fats Not Wanted. Another dealer in Honolulu does not believe that his customers really want a 14 per cent ice cream, and so he is thinking of being quite frank with them and posting a conspicuous notice in his shop and on his menu cards, something like this: "Our Ice Cream Contains 10 Per Cent of Butter Fats." He is only waiting to consult his lawyer to find out whether or not the law will refuse to let him use the name "ice cream" if the product does not come up to legal standard in the matter of butter fats.

Proposes Raising Price. Still another dealer sees in the agitation an opportunity to get the prices of ice cream raised about double what they are now. He is willing to buy his raw cream at $1 per quart and his milk at 40 cents per gallon, and make a good old-fashioned ice cream, but he believes in being paid for his trouble. He can't do this alone, because the fickle public doesn't care enough about the butter fat in its ice cream to pay him more than it can get the other kind for from his competitor just across the street. He hopes therefore that Food Commissioner Blanchard will whip this competitor into line, and be therefore stands ready to welcome all his competitors into an ironclad combine which will make the customer pay the freight.

May Import Ice Cream. A few of the dealers are even considering bringing ice cream ready made from the Coast, where it can be made much cheaper than it can here, owing to the difference in cost of ingredients. In all probability some experimental shipments will soon be ordered to test the feasibility of this method.

The Business Booming. But a significant feature is that all of the merchants appear willing to take their chances alone. Some of them would like to fight the law and see if they could not beat it on a technicality, honestly believing that a 14 per cent product is not demanded, and that the standard should be lower. But up to the present there has been no disposition to pool interests along this line. In the meantime, the consumer is probably getting better ice cream than he ever did before in Honolulu and is taking full advantage of the fact. Almost all of the dealers report a much simulated ice cream trade during the past week, which cannot be accounted for solely on the warm weather.

Japanese Plead Guilty. Two Japanese arrested on warrants sworn out by Food Commissioner Blanchard charging them with selling ice cream below the legal standard, pleaded guilty in the police court this morning and were each given suspended sentences for six months. The prosecution announced that inasmuch as it is very unlikely that any dealer in the city does not now fully understand the provisions of the law on the subject, no more suspended sentences are to be expected.

Commissioner Blanchard secured half a dozen or more samples again this morning, which he is testing for butter fat content. It is probable that several warrants will be issued later in the day as the result.

Kapiolani Estate, Ltd., Appeals To Washington

Kapiolani Estate, Ltd., has taken an appeal by writ of error from the Supreme Court of Hawaii to the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Territory of Hawaii, by Marston Campbell, superintendent of public lands, against Kapiolani Estate, Ltd., and several others including members of the firm of Hop-Sing Co. Appellant shows that the value of the land in controversy is $15,000. It also represents that the other defendants had declined to join it in prosecuting this writ of error. C. W. Ashford is attorney for petitioner. Chief Justice Robertson has signed an order allowing the writ of error, which stays all further proceedings in the case, upon the filing by appellant of a bond of $1500 in the Supreme and Circuit courts here pending the determination of the writ by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Twelve errors are assigned to the Hawaiian Supreme Court. One is on account of its sustaining the action of the Circuit Court in overruling the objection of defendants to the qualifications of Judge Whitney to preside at the trial, and in holding that he was not disqualified in having theretofore been counsel for the plaintiff in a case wherein the cause of action against this defendant was identical with that in the present case. Other errors alleged are the finding of $750 damages against the defendants and the finding that title to the land involved is in the United States of America and that the Territory of Hawaii is entitled to the possession thereof.

MERCHANDISE LICENSE CONTROVERSY SUBMITTED TO THE SUPREME COURT

An agreed statement of facts has been submitted to the Supreme Court by G. E. Smithies, plaintiff, and D. L. Conkling, treasurer of the Territory of Hawaii, defendant, to decide whether, under the provisions of Act 143 of the Session Laws of 1911, defendant should pay plaintiff the amounts set forth in the statement at all, in full or in part, and if in part what proportions of said amounts. The amounts in question are made up of fees paid by a large number of firms for merchant-discount licenses paid between June 14, 1900, and January 26, 1901. These payments were made under a law of 1896, which became void through the provisions of the Organic Act. Plaintiff claims that he has a list of persons, firms and corporations paying these fees to the amount of $18,938.78, who had assigned their claims to him. He was willing and offered to give defendants receipts for the respective amounts upon repayment thereof. Plaintiff makes two statements that other persons, firms and corporations until ordered by the Supreme Court to pay these merchandise license fees, do so.

JAPANESE SYNDICATE PLANS TO ESTABLISH RACING PARK AND GENERAL ATHLETIC SPORTS GROUNDS

A Japanese syndicate has been organized, with a capital of $25,000, to try and secure a lease on some land back of Oahu jail and in the direction of the quarantine station, for the purpose of building a half-mile race track and having regular racing in Honolulu. The land is owned by the Dowsett Estate and the Oahu Railroad Company, and it is expected that negotiations will be closed by the middle of next week and that the organization of a racing association will be gone ahead with immediately.

The plan is to have a polo ground and baseball diamond in the infield and make provision for other sports and spectacles.

The syndicate has arranged to have two representatives at every plantation on this island, and each camp will provide a horse, which will furnish enough runners to keep the track going, even if no outside entries were received.

It is the intention of the syndicate to invite the co-operation of all horse owners and those interested in horse racing and breeding on all the islands.

Chance To Test The Homesteaders' Bona Fides

The attorney general's department welcomes the news from Hilo that suits are to be instituted during the coming week by some of the Katwika homesteaders to force the government to give them patents to their holdings. A number of homesteaders have been denied patents on the grounds that they failed to carry out the terms of their agreements and were not bona fide settlers. They will now probably carry their cases into the circuit court, and the Supreme Court will then doubtless be asked to pass upon the question, regardless of how the circuit court decides it.

Attorney General Lindsay states that the sooner the matter can be gotten through the courts the better the government will be pleased, inasmuch as the results, whichever way they go, will be extremely helpful in making conditions for future land openings. The attorney general has compiled a large number of decisions on similar points as handed down by federal and state courts, and he expresses the belief that the government will be able to establish its right to require more than a merely technical compliance with the requirements imposed upon settlers.

KAIMUKI IMPROVEMENT CLUB VISITED BY CITY OFFICIALS

Waialae, Kaimuki and Palolo Improvement Club had a good attendance at its monthly meeting last night, held in the hall of Mr. Witherspoon's bungalow on Wilhelmina Rise.

City Officials Present. Supervisors Eben Low and Charles N. Arnold and Guy H. Gere, city and county engineer, arrived when the club was about ready to adjourn, having been delayed by a caucus over road work at the city hall. A motion of regret that the acceptance of the club's invitation to the mayor, supervisors and engineer had not been followed by attendance, and to invite the city officials to the next meeting, had been carried but before adjournment this motion was rescinded and a vote of thanks to the guests of the evening recorded.

Position of Club. In calling on Mr. Low to address the club the president stated some things as expressions of the sense of the meeting uttered before his arrival. The club was not acting in rivalry with any other improvement club to obtain favors for that district over other districts. Through its representation the Central Improvement Committee stood ready to back all improvement clubs in securing the rights of their respective districts. All that the club desired from the Territorial and municipal authorities was a fair deal. It had

THREE ACCIDENTS THIS MORNING

This morning was one of accidents, no less than three misadventures being brought to the attention of the police department.

Kobayashi, an employe of the Hawaiian Preserving Company, was working on a juice machine at Iwilei when his trousers caught in the cog of two wheels and his left leg was drawn into the machinery. The limb was horribly crushed and will have to be amputated. He was taken to Queen's Hospital.

A few months ago Kobayashi met with an accident in the same department, being hit on the head by a piece of machinery.

About 11:15 a. m. a Portuguese youth named John Quintal, riding along Merchant street on a bicycle, attempted to pass from behind between a dray owned by the Honolulu Construction Company and an auto standing on the makai side of the street.

His bicycle touched the automobile and fell to the ground, the rider falling under the rear wheels of the dray, one of which passed over his abdomen. He was removed to Queen's Hospital in the police auto, and is stated to be not very seriously injured.

Five minutes before the above accident, Martin Grune, turning down Bethel street from King and going in the direction of the postoffice, collided with W. Hoopili, who was riding a bicycle, and when the wheel was disengaged from the auto it was found to be in a perilous condition.

The rider, who was unhurt, went to the police station and Motor Officer Chilton took the matter in hand. He found that Grune was cutting the corner and would have issued a warrant for his arrest but for the fact that the driver of the auto elected to pay for the damage done, and by so doing side-stepped a warrant for heedless driving sworn to by Hoopili.

HILO MILITIA WON'T DISBAND

(Wireless to The Star.) HILO, Aug. 11.—The report of the militia threat to disband was greatly exaggerated. It arose from a petition signed by all the members of the local company requesting that the armory be not removed. Captain Fetter is very indignant at the story that his company threatened to disband.

RAW SUGAR HELD 4.98 NEW YORK

Alexander & Baldwin received a telegram this afternoon from their New York branch, saying: "Holders of raw are asking for 4.98c. firm. New crop beets 14s. 2 1/4d., parity of 5.02c. Buyers at quotations.

THE CESSPOOL PILIKIA AGAIN

The Board of Health is again having trouble with the notorious Waipio cesspools. It was thought a satisfactory arrangement for, but it seems that the undrainable sinks are again overflowing in spite of the instructions given by the Board of Health to the County Sanitary Board to keep them pumped out. Apparently the county excavator department isn't equal to the job, and the old conditions again prevail.

It is reported that the Bishop estate, which holds the original title to the land on which the nuisance exists, will begin action to annul the lease, under a provision in Bishop estate leases requiring that lessees maintain the property in sanitary condition.

THE SHINYO MARU, FINEST OF ALL BOATS ON THE PACIFIC

Year after year ample evidence is forthcoming that the small steamer is passing, and soon it will only be known in the history of the sea. Honolulu has had excellent opportunities to watch this development in marine architecture that is going on unceasingly. Almost daily there come details of a new levathan, and while the launching of the Mauretania and the Lusitania is still fresh in many minds, and while the Olympic is still creating wonder with her gigantic size as the largest vessel in the world, there are assertions that even a larger vessel is to be laid down.

But Honolulu has had an opportunity of witnessing this great progress of the shipbuilder's art, for in recent years the size and character of vessels trading to this port have undergone some great changes. There was a time when the Pacific Mail steamer China was a palatial liner, but now she is relegated to the ranks of the intermediate. Then followed the Siberia, the Korea, the Manchuria, the Mongolia, the Tenyo Maru and the Chiyo Maru, each vessel in its class being an improvement on its predecessor.

The latest word in shipbuilding, as far as Honolulu will know from personal observation, will be the new T. K. K. liner Shinyo Maru. From time to time word has been received of the progress made in her construction, and now arrangements are being made to give her a fitting reception at each port of call on her initial journey. From accounts that have reached this city, she will be a great addition to the Pacific fleet. Her fittings will compare with any, and the only respects in which she will differ from the Tenyo and Chiyo Marus will be in improvements that have since suggested themselves to the up-to-date company that is producing her.

There will be a palm garden on the new boat, that has not made its appearance on the other two liners. There will be wider and higher passages, but taken all round the progress of shipbuilding has not been great enough to make the Shinyo Maru vary to any appreciable extent. To see the Tenyo or Chiyo is to see the Shinyo, that is, externally. The lines of all three vessels will be alike. The fittings in all are elaborate, but the T. K. K. is a company that caters for the comfort of its patrons, and anything that will give greater pleasure is included in its ships. Popular officers are a material factor in the popularity of a ship, and these are to be found in the vessels of the T. K. K. fleet. To mention names may seem invidious, but the names of Purser Reed, Cavarley, Chapman and Grasett come to mind.

The Shinyo Maru has been described in these columns as fully as it is possible for any boat to be represented before she is completed. To describe the Tenyo or the Chiyo Maru as the Shinyo Maru would be rather misleading. But there are many points that are known, because they have been given out by her owners. The new steamer, like the other two liners that preceded her, was built at the Mitsubishi Dockyard and Engine Works, Nagasaki, and was only laid down after the directors had assured themselves that there was a real demand for another vessel of so fine a class. Her symmetrical lines will hide her enormous size. She is 550 feet in length, with a beam of 63 feet and a depth of 35 1/2 feet, and while these great figures will be appreciated on paper, as she steams into Honolulu somewhere near September 8 next she will not look anything like a giant ship, for she will be built as a mail liner and not as a freighter.

As turbine engines have proved successful in such boats as the Lusitania and the Mauretania, the Chiyo Maru and the Tenyo Maru, to say nothing of the success met with in ships of war, this class of propulsion is being relied upon for the Shinyo Maru. As stated in the Star, she has had a trial trip, and has developed a speed of twenty-one knots. To obtain this rate three propellers will be used, and steam is developed in thirteen boilers. Seventeen thousand horsepower is needed to get this great speed, and the propellers will perform 270 revolutions a minute. The advantage of carrying three propellers must be apparent to all, for the chance of being hopeless at sea through loss of blades or failure of one engine, is practically nil, as the ship could always make port in her crippled condition at a fairly good rate of speed.

off port at eight o'clock, and would arrive here tomorrow at about noon. The information that she has perishable cargo on board and will go either to the Channel wharf or the Oceanic was given in yesterday's Star. It is expected that she has some mail on board.

Wilhelmina Booked Up. The popularity of the Wilhelmina is attested by the booking that has taken place on her next voyage to San Francisco. Although she will not leave here until Wednesday next the booking has been extremely heavy. She should leave here a full ship, even allowing for the usual withdrawals, for it is certain that the places of all those who cancel will be filled by others anxious to go.

Honolulu Leaves Sunday. The Honolulu will return here on Sunday morning at an early hour, and will leave for San Francisco at ten o'clock. She will not take any cargo from here. She will be well patronized and will carry the mails. By her being put forward she will give another nail to the coast. Had she left on the 15th as originally planned, there would have been no advantage in sending mails by her, and the Wilhelmina leaving on the 16th would be at San Francisco just as soon.

U. S. Asiatic Torpedo Boat Flotilla. According to the Hongkong Daily Press, the Asiatic torpedo boat flotilla, under the command of Lieutenant Charles S. Kerrick, U. S. N., consisting of the torpedo boat destroyers Bainbridge, Dale, Barry, Chauncey and Decatur, will leave Cavite tomorrow (July 15) for a cruise in northern waters. The first port of call will be Hongkong, where the little boats will remain several days and then proceed to several Chinese ports before visiting Japan. An interesting feature of the summer cruise will be a visit to Vladivostok, which port has never before been included in the itineraries of the smaller vessels, and but seldom visited by ships of the fleet.

You all know how, in the old Greek period of mythology, quaint and bizarre creatures, created from the union of inspiration and imagination, roamed about the forests primeval, how goddesses tripped over leafy dells, how the intangible amorousness of the Olympian gods and their offspring wound in and out, shuttle-like, through intricate genealogies, forming fascinating and improbable patterns of stories and adventures for heredity.

One tale there is which carries in its fleeting glimpse because of its propinquity to modern ethics of society, for, could wings replace fchus, claws replace fingers, and hoofs and goat tails replace patent pumps and swallow-tails, little would be left to the imagination to complete the story of mythology.

In those days, when every leaf-stirring breath, every top on a tree trunk, every tinkling drop of a fountain spray hinted at dark, mysterious caperings of brain-born creatures and their godly fellows, there existed two woodland nymphs of maons and appalling beauty, their masses of raven and of golden hair proclaiming them nymphs of darkness and of light.

Their highly arched painted wings matched the glory of their hair, their hands and feet were claw-like, long and pointed, and as birds they glided in delicious irresponsibility throughout the woods.

Falling upon a festive scene wherein these maidens, dark and fair, danced to the music of a brook, a satyr chanced to hesitate, and so, according to the proverb, he was lost!

He was half-man, half-goat, with the latter's limbs and a human body, where human sentiments prevailed.

First his eye fell upon the nymph of night.

"I will revel," said he, with a wicked grin, "in the entanglements of her sable wings and hair. I will look deep into her pools of eyes!"

And her ravishing charms ensnared him in their dashing triumph.

But after a while he tired of his plaything, and casting her aside with the taunt of conquest, he sought the nymph of fair habiliments.

"She," said he, newly impressed, "is worthy of the gods. With her shall I be happy for the rest of my days."

And so he fell a victim to her subtle wiles, her laughing voice, her sunlit eyes and hair, drinking to the dregs the intoxicating ambrosia of love.

One morning he awoke and she was gone. And his lyre was gone, and the wreath of bright red berries and leaves of laurel to scent his morning bath, and all else he had treasured were gone!

Thus he who had conquered met defeat!

Today the environments are altered, but the conditions are the same.

In his evening clothes, feet wide spread in perfect assurance, hands thrust deep into pockets, he surveys two maidens, casting envious eyes in their direction.

Mayhap the blonde is first to capture him.

He watches her as she tosses her sable velvet chapeau showered with black willow plumes, as she shows her small white teeth in pretty mockery, and her tapering jeweled fingers; he revels in the magic of her papillon creation of clinging veil-like fabric and its riot of roses, and buttercups, its opals and butterflies.

But soon he wearies of her persistent attractions, and the attentions of other men, and courteously allows her to obtain a decree of divorce.

Not long after—not long enough to smother the rising gossip—he marries the brunette.

He watches her in her gorgeous peacock robe, clinging in its sheer effeminacy, emblazoned with a riot of antique exotic, sensuous jewels, exhalting Oriental splendor, her blue-black hair swept by a peacock plume, her star-eyes soft with coquetry.

And he knows his cup of pleasure is brimful.

One day, late, as is the custom, he awakens, and she is gone!

And his diamonds are gone, and his bank account is gone, as he realizes, when he arises from his fashionable couch, a somewhat sadder, but a wiser man!

SOCIAL NEWS OF THE DAY.

Miss Edith Cowles made a very charming hostess yesterday when she entertained at a surging party and luncheon at the Outrigger Club at Waikiki.

The girls met at this delightful clubhouse, donned bathing suits and spent the remainder of the forenoon in the "briny blue," enjoying surf-board sports, canoeing and swimming.

At half-past one a delicious buffet luncheon was served at small tables arranged in one of the picturesque hau tree arbors in the grounds. The luncheon tables were dressed in scarlet geraniums and maidenhair. Covers were artistically arranged for fourteen.

Those who enjoyed Miss Cowles' hospitality were Miss Lydia McStocker, Miss Julie McStocker, Miss Kathryn Stephens, Miss Alice Cooper, Miss Mary Schaefer, Miss Roberts, Miss Cordelia Walker, Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Roy Francis Smith, Miss Kuteman, Miss Ethel Spalding and Miss Ziegler.

Mrs. E. H. Cook has issued invitations for a bridge party at which this charming service matron will entertain at her home on Kinau street on Monday afternoon.

Sixteen guests enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Frederick B. McStocker yesterday afternoon when she entertained at a tea in honor of Miss Lydia McStocker of Philadelphia.

The drawing room where the bridge tables were arranged for those who cared to play was abloom with quantities of white asters and La Marque roses, heaped in jars of oriental pottery, and flanked on all sides by regal palms on teak-wood pedestals. Several ladies had brought their fine needlework, and these sewed and chatted on the Ewa lanai, which is always handsomely decorated by Persian rugs and hanging baskets and palms.

At five light refreshments were passed by Japanese maids in their gray silk kimonos and pink cherry blossoms in their hair, an exceedingly picturesque feature.

Among those present were Miss Lydia McStocker of Philadelphia, Mrs. Walter Cleveland Cowles, Miss Edith Cowles, Mrs. Wendell C. Neville, Mrs. Wilcox, Mrs. Roy Francis Smith, Miss Kuteman, Mrs. Arthur T. Marix, Miss Kathryn Stephens, Mrs. A. S. Humphreys, Miss Lydia McStocker, Miss Julie McStocker, Miss Pardee, Miss Maxea Magoon, Mrs. J. Alfred Magoon and Mrs. Robertson.

Mrs. Eben Low has issued invitations to a bridge afternoon at which she will entertain on Monday at her home on King and Artesian streets, in honor of Mrs. Hugh Jones and Miss Jones of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Visger, a sister of Mrs. Elizabeth Waterhouse, was the inspiration for a very dainty tea, at which Mrs. Frederick T. P. Waterhouse entertained from four to six o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The interior of the beautiful home of the hostess on Wyllie street was trimmed entirely in long-stemmed, pink roses fresh from the garden, and the exquisite pink and gold spotted Japanese lilies which are being used extensively these days for decoration. Masses of fluffy maidenhair concealing their cloisonne pots were interspersed, arranged on tall side tables and low tabourets as a background for the delicate pink of the flowers. The hostess was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Visger.

The tea tables, where dainty refreshments were served at five, were arranged amid palms on the lanai. They were trimmed entirely in blue violets in rock crystal bowls, while the guests were attended by the small grandchildren of the family, assisted by Oriental maids.

A very delightful feature of the reception were vocal solos, rendered by Mrs. Charles Weight, which were warmly appreciated.

Among those present were Mrs. Visger, Mrs. Elizabeth Waterhouse, Mrs. Charles Weight, Miss Adams, Mrs. Agnes Judd, Mrs. Luquai, Miss Pinder, Mrs. Andrew Fuller, Mrs. T. J. King, Mrs. Ewart, Mrs. E. W. Jordan, Mrs. Lees, Mrs. J. H. Soper, Mrs. Carrie Hazelden, Mrs. Jane Walker and Mrs. Frederick T. P. Waterhouse.

Cards have been received for an "At Home," at which Mrs. T. J. King will entertain from four to six o'clock on Thursday next at her home on Lunaillo and Pihoi streets in honor of her house guests, Mrs. T. V. King and Mrs. Charles Rice of Kauai.

Dr. and Mrs. Clifford B. High and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson will leave town on Monday for Tantalus, where they will spend the month of September at the W. M. Giffard residence.

Mr. R. H. Trent entertained at a very dainty luncheon in the private dining room of the Alexander Young Hotel on Tuesday afternoon in honor of a few distinguished visitors en route to the Orient in the Manchuria. The luncheon table was fragrant with clusters of pink duchess roses and soft lace maidenhair which were heaped in a cut glass basket, caught up and partially veiled by strands of pink illusion.

The guest cards were hand-painted scenes of the islands, garlanded with roses, and the courses of the elaborate menu boasted many choice Hawaiian delicacies.

Those present were Bishop and Mrs. Murrat of Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lincoln Howard, Reverend Mrs. Robert E. Smith, Professor Smith, Mrs. Richard Smart of Japan and Mr. Richard H. Trent.

A very pretty dance is to given this evening by the Outrigger Canoe Club at their clubhouse at Waikiki, which promises to be one of the most delightful affairs of the season.

The occasion is to revive interest in club affairs and to realize a fund for permanent improvement to the club.

A number of the smart set have shown great interest in the dance and a very large number are expected to attend.

No tickets have been issued, but an admission of fifty cents will be received at the entrance to the dance lanai, and the guests, after paying, will be presented with a small ribbon badge.

One of the best Hawaiian quintettes in the city has been engaged to play for the dancers, and as the floor is unrivalled, and the moonlight at Waikiki has reached its full beauty, a very large attendance will no doubt reward the boys of the club and the Woman's Auxiliary, who have spared no effort for success.

CALIFORNIA WINES.
IN GREAT BRITAIN

The present wine shortage in France should provide a favorable opportunity for the introduction of new brands of American wines into England.

Although there is only one brand of American wine prominent in the British market, it has met with a good demand on the part of English drinkers. It is on sale in most of the hotels and many of the restaurants in London and throughout England and Scotland. This particular brand has been sold in Great Britain since 1892, and although it has had a stiff fight against English prejudice and an ingrained preference for a French label when ordering wine, a steady increase in business was reported up to the time of the San Francisco fire, when enormous quantities of reserve stock wines were destroyed and the supply was seriously curtailed.

California wines, in the English market, come into competition chiefly with the French wines, which are the most popular here. Italian and Spanish wines have a limited sale, largely confined to the foreign-born population in London; so, also, the German wines meet with a specialized demand. In shipping to England American manufacturers should be careful to send wines closely resembling the French brands, and only the best of the product should be exported.

American wines are not sold in bulk, but are bottled in London by the representatives of the California manufacturers. This fact has made the work of establishing a large trade all the more difficult, as the profit to the hotels and restaurants is not so large as in the case of the wines they buy in bulk and bottle themselves. Efforts by the manufacturers' representatives to standardize the prices of their various qualities have met with serious opposition on the part of restaurant and hotel keepers. Several of the latter, when interviewed, declared that they would not carry the California wines at all were it not that there was a constant demand for them on the part of their English customers. They complained that their profit on American wines was much less than on the Continental beverages. At the same time they were quite frank in admitting that the regulating of price by the original sellers resulted in the American wines being better value for the diners than the Continental wines. On the other hand, the manufacturers' representatives say that there is at least 100 per cent. profit in their wines for the hotel and restaurant keepers and in most cases considerably more than that.—Commercial Agent J. D. Welpley.

THE ICECREAM QUESTION.

Thousands of bottles of five-cent ginger ale are sold in this city every day. If the law were to step in and compel manufacturers to follow the Belfast ginger ale standard, no more of this delectable drink could be sold for a nickel, at least not in bottles of satisfactory size. The price for a half pint of ginger ale would have to go up beyond the reach of people of small means, and their chance for a safely refreshing drink of it would pass.

Now our amended icecream law works in that same way. For years a cheap and wholesome icecream has been peddled about this tropical town and sold in fruit-stands and small eating-houses to the satisfaction of a great host. The law has properly conserved the purity of this merchandise. It has insisted that no poisonous coloring matter should be used in its preparation and it has not let it be adulterated or be sold in a dirty state. But the law insists that all icecream offered to the public should have a certain percentage of butter fat and, because of the cost, it now looks as if cheap icecream must go. This has come of treating icecream merely as a food and not at all as a refreshment. Any icecream with three per cent. of butter fat may be made as cold and quite as palatable to undiscriminating tastes as one of fourteen or twenty per cent. Most people who merely eat this delicacy to cool off or to pass the time, do not need assurance of butter fat; they often accept sherbet as a substitute for icecream, something which has no butter fat at all. Now are those who want mere refreshment to be denied? If not, it is an injustice to make no discrimination between various kinds of icecream and to insist upon a standard which makes this confection a food only, and as such a luxury for the well-to-do.

They used to do these things better in California. We recall that in Southern California years ago—and it is possibly true of that section yet—that you could buy standard icecream for one price and "hoky-poky" or "hanky-panky" icecream for another. You paid your money and you took your choice. If you wanted twenty per cent. icecream you could get it at large or fashionable icecream establishments; or if you wanted three per cent. icecream you could buy it from a wagon or in small places. This we are told is the way it is also done in England. Wagons go about and sell the cheap delicacy to the poor. The latter are not deceived nor are they poisoned. The business is a boon to the children of the street, just as it has been a similar boon here. Every well-meaning person has been glad to see the little fellows and little girls group about the wagon and buy cheap cornucopias. Assured of the purity of the materials the result was good for all concerned, but by classifying icecream as a food the children of the poor and the people of small means must now stand back and let the icecream go to the comparatively rich.

The next legislature should take this matter up and permit the sale of two varieties of icecream plainly designated, if it pleases, by some such description as "half-cream" or "part-cream," making the conditions of purity as strong as it wishes. Then everybody will be served and nobody, except possibly dealers who want a full cream price for a half cream article, will be dissatisfied.

MAKING THE RIGHT MIXTURE.

It has been a matter of regret to sociologists that the early Chinese labor in Hawaii was not encouraged to come with its women, and but for circumstances revealed in Dr. Clark's census report, public effort to secure the special immigration of Chinese women to Hawaii might long since have enlisted public interest. Some women, of course, came with the male immigrants, but until recent years the disparity of numbers between Chinese men and women has been very great. This social condition which helped to make family life "morally impossible or only immorally possible," as Governor Dole once said, is yielding to the increase of intermarriage between Chinese and Hawaiians.

We hail this as a good sign—one that may yet bring the Hawaiians into actual competition with the other races on this soil. It is a sad as well as a rough truth that the Hawaiian, unless supported by such a law as restricts public employment to citizens, cannot compete with any of the other races here. The trouble is that he lacks stamina. He is deficient in the qualities by which a man or a race makes a way in the struggle for existence. Experience has shown that the intermixture of the Hawaiian with the white race does not improve either. As a constructive agent in society a half-white is a failure. Whatever may be the individual exceptions to this rule, the part-Hawaiian whose other part is Chinese, is the one to meet the white man on his own ground. To his graces of speech and person he adds the energy, industry and acumen of his Chinese ancestors. The Hawaiian race, as a race, is dying out but a race derived from both the Chinese and Hawaiian has a future. The children of this type brought up in our schools and subject to our civilization will meet white children as foemen worthy of their steel.

MORE EMBELLISHMENT.

ARBITRATION IS RATIFIED BY SENATE.

New Treaty With Great Britain Indorsed in Full.

FOR PECUNIARY CLAIMS

Aldrich Will Testify in Lorimer Case—For Cholera News.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The Senate yesterday ratified with a full vote the treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain.

The clause for the adjustment of all pecuniary claims provides for their arbitration by a court composed of three impartial judges.—Advertiser, July 20.

It appears that we were all wrong in the idea that the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain had been ratified by the Senate. The alleged news came first to the Advertiser and that paper rendered it as above in such an "embellished" way that its public and its contemporaries were deceived. What really came to our morning contemporary was a statement that the 1895 claims of Hawaiian citizens were to be sent to The Hague. The Advertiser says that the dispatch was "hazy," in which case it would have been proper to say so and to give the public a chance to make its own interpretation as the Star has done in such cases. But instead of that, the opportunity to build up a great and interesting piece of news was eagerly seized in the apparent hope that it would turn out to be true. As a result those who were congratulating themselves upon a great event in history are left to look at each other foolishly.

This is a good example of what the Star has formerly complained of. Between the "well-stocked library," the imagination of the Advertiser's desk-man and the desire to make dispatches more interesting than those which the Associated Press sends, the Advertiser has often left its readers and contemporaries in doubt as to what is news and what is imagination or mere humbug.

So here we stand with the arbitration treaty hung up in the Senate. What is the matter there is surmised to be the opposition of the foreign vote in American politics. It is amazing that American politics should be subject to such an influence. When aliens have lived here long enough to become American citizens they should do the politics of America only. It is monstrous that prejudices inherited from Germany and Ireland and local to the politics of those countries, should ever prevent the United States from doing what is best for itself. Evidently our naturalization laws have been made too liberal. It is too soon to make a foreigner an American, if at the same time it is too soon to expect that foreigner to leave his European politics behind him.

But this is a digression. The point is, that the only morning paper should avoidably go wrong on great news. Like all papers, it may sometimes make errors in the interpretation of small Associated Press dispatches, but it has no right to take deliberate chances with important

The Poet Philosopher

The Journals of this awe-struck nation turned loose great gasps of admiration, when Togo, grim and silent man, the hero of the new Japan, came here to make a little call; men whooped for Togo, one and all. And what has Brother Togo done, that he so much acclaim has won? He corded up dead men in rows, and splashed in bloodshed to his nose. I would not lift my old straw hat to one with such a fame as that. Had I been loafing round in Rome when old J. Caesar ambled home, with plunder from a hundred towns, and blood upon his hand-me-downs, he would have made me tired and sick, and I'd have slugged him with a brick. The centuries have rolled away, but we are wolves, the same today as were the men of ancient Rome, who hailed the butcher coming home. That man is good enough for me who digs a well or plants a tree, or does some sane and useful thing, more comfort to the world to bring. I pass up Togo and his kind; I have a butcher in my mind who slaughters only pork and beef; I'll honor him, and call him chief.

news. Where is it in doubt it ought, in plain fairness, to impart that doubt to its readers and not deceive them in things of real significance.

THE COCOS ISLAND TREASURE.

There is no pursuit more fascinating than the search for buried treasure; no fiction more absorbing than that which has to do with hidden gold. Witness the human interest in "Treasure Island" and that incomparable romance "The Count of Monte Christo." Since the old pirate days, treasure seekers have abounded both in the flesh and in literature, and the wreck of the rich galleons of the Armada still attracts, as they did generations ago, eager bands of gentlemen adventurers.

So it is with no surprise that we hear of another expedition going to search Cocos Island. There is some reason to believe that a great treasure lies hidden there. Centuries ago the Cathedral at Lima, which held the spoils of Spain, was pillaged by pirates that carried millions of value to a secret place in the North. That hiding place is believed to have been Cocos Island. The pirates who went there left some traces and then sailed away expecting to return, but fate was against them and those who did not perish at sea or die on the scaffold were never able to get back. The survivors all agreed that the treasure had been buried on Cocos Island and though widely separated some of them left maps that pointed to one locality of that desolate lair.

The evidence seemed so good that the British government permitted Admiral Palliser, who commanded the station at Esquimalt a few years ago, to take his flagship there and make a systematic search. The new treasure-seekers who are going to Cocos Island on the old bark Hesper, will find many excavations to testify to the industry of the British crew. But they will be exceptions to the common rule of more than a hundred years if they find any treasure; besides whatever success might attend their efforts would take them into the courts as contestants of Peru, which will be a claimant for any large part of its lost property that may be brought to light.

Maps have always proved unreliable in authentic treasure-hunting operations. No sea captain, situated as the pirate chiefs were, would leave any exact data as to where they had hidden their loot. Such a man was far more likely to draft a map with some mental addenda. For example, if he set down the exact location of a landmark, he would put his treasure at a certain distance from that landmark, keeping in his own mind or in cryptic memoranda the number of feet away and the precise points of compass followed in making the actual cache. If he lived he could find the place; if he didn't live then he was willing to let the treasure stay in its grave. One must dig through a whole locality to find out the pirate's secret; he may be sure that he has no exact data in hand. As for rough maps made by common seamen, they can only be approximate.

Nevertheless the treasure of Peru must be somewhere. It was not taken to any of the world's markets. Much of what the Peruvian Cathedral lost was in the form of fabricated gold, like candlesticks and figures. No signs of these have ever appeared. No ingots made from them have ever been found. Somewhere the property is hidden. Perhaps one day some poor searcher will accidentally stumble upon it, or it may even yield to a systematic search, but the chances are that it will never again glisten in the sunshine. Pirates planted deep.

LITTLE INTERVIEWS

DR. MACKALL—Three good names appear in danger of being overlooked for president of the Board of Health. Allow me to mention Frank McStocker, Charlie Hustace and Charlie Chillingworth.

G. G. SCHWEIZER—I understand that the Food Commissioner thought I bought my ice cream from the Palm Cafe, and that's why he pinched me instead of some real dealer. I possibly will buy my ice cream in the future.

PURSER GRASSETT (T. K. K. S., America Maru)—I am glad that I did not get the new liner Shinyo Maru, as she is too big. I am quite content with a little boat like the Nippon Maru. The new boat will no doubt be a popular boat, for she is certainly a fine liner.

JOSH TUCKER—The Alewa people will get their land patents as soon as the survey office can get out the necessary descriptions and other necessary clerical work can be done. These patents are as good as government bonds and guarantee every owner every inch of land called for.

R. H. TRENT—"Moving pictures of the leper settlement" are referred to in a letter I have received from Michigan, together with mention of a man who is collecting funds for the lepers all over the world. I don't know exactly what it means, but it raises a suspicion of graft. There are no moving pictures of our leper settlement and the lepers here need no charity from other places.

ATTORNEY GENERAL LINDSAY—I shall be exceedingly glad to have the Kaiwika homesteaders, or other homesteaders on Hawaii whose patents have been withheld, institute a proceeding in the courts by which we may establish for all time a number of points that have never been passed upon here. There is nothing personal in my feelings in the matter, but it will save trouble in opening future lands to have these questions settled now.

A. F. COOKE—The San Francisco Call is in error in stating that the temperature of Kilauea was never taken until a week or so ago by Prof. Perret. In 1909 Prof. Daly of Boston made a series of tests with a spectroscope and ascertained that the temperature ranged from 540 to 1250 degrees, and during exceptional activity reached as high as 1500 to 1600 degrees. I think that the record of these experiments is on the book at the Volcano House in Prof. Daly's own handwriting.

WHAT CURES ECZEMA.

We have had so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are many so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.

Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.

Because—It cleanses, soothes and heals the skin, clearing away pimples and blotches over night.

Because—It enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.

Because—The records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of the most serious cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.

Drop into our store today, just to talk over the merits of this wonderful Prescription. We will also explain the value of D. D. D. as a household remedy. Benson, Smith & Co.

The weather there is delightful all of the time, and especially attractive in the moonlit sea view from the verandas. This week there is to be a full moon. It is one of the attractions that lures the public Haleiwa ward. The trains go direct to the door and there is excellent bathing and boating within a stone's throw. The excellent beach brings people from Honolulu to enjoy the delights of the bath.

"Waterhouse Trust"

Land of Puupueo Manoa Valley

When a man buys something useful which at the same time is steadily increasing in value—he is twice fortunate. It is only a little over ten years ago since the pioneer settler on the land of Puupueo made his home there. Then there were none of the many conveniences required by the exacting suburbanite. Now all the advantages that can possibly be asked for are procurable: Mountain spring water, telephone, electric light and Rapid Transit service and gas for cooking.

BE TWICE FORTUNATE and purchase one of the most desirable house lots to be had within three miles of the capitol.

THE FUTURE OF THE RUBBER INDUSTRY—CHANGES ANTICIPATED

(By Herbert Wright.)
London Times, Weekly Edition, July 14.—Great Britain leads easily in point of acreage under rubber in its own possessions, and is closely followed by the Dutch East Indies in area, but not in age. The Dutch planters did not take up the cultivation of Hevea on a large scale until it had been proved a success on adjacent British territory; and, in fact, much of the area under Hevea in Java, Sumatra and Borneo is owned by companies registered in England and Scotland. Germany has planted Hevea in Samoa and New Guinea, and Manihot and Funtumia in Africa. During recent times many of the producing or well-advanced estates in German colonies have been taken over by London companies. This is only one of the ways in which the new plantation industry has altered international conditions in the tropics. Great Britain seem likely to increase its control over supplies of rubber in the East, for while it is true that the United States are credited with conspicuous activity today in Sumatra, this country must continue to lead, since it is already in possession, in Ceylon, Malaya and India alone of more than half the world's total planted acreage, a good part of which is already producing.

RECORD-BREAKING FOREIGN TRADE

The foreign trade of the United States during the fiscal year ending June 30 reached a total of $3,576,676,480, which figure far exceeds that of any preceding year and compares with $3,301,932,150 last year, $2,974,931,328 in 1909, $3,055,115,138 in 1908, $3,315,272,503 in 1907, the previous high record, and $2,976,125,946 in 1906. Of this vast total, exports accounted for $2,048,591,392, which exceeds by a very considerable margin any previous year's total, last year's exports amounting to only $1,744,984,720, while in 1909 they were $1,663,011,104, in 1908 $1,860,773,246, in 1907 $1,580,851,078 and in 1906 $1,743,864,506. Imports amounted to $1,527,985,088, a falling off of $28,962,342, from the $1,556,947,439 of last year, but were much larger than those of any other year, comparing with $1,311,920,224 in 1909, $1,194,341,792 in 1908, $1,434,421,425 in 1907 and $1,226,562,446 in 1906. The most favorable feature of the statement is the large excess of exports over imports, this amounting to $520,706,204, as against only $188,037,920 last year, $251,090,880 in 1909, $666,431,564 in 1908, $446,429,653 in 1907, and $517,302,054 in 1906.—Dun's Review.

and Property on the West Coast of Vancouver Island" and "American-Owned Ships Flying Foreign Flags." In the last named article, which is by Robert Dollar, of the Dollar Steamship Company, of San Francisco, is found the following:

"A carefully prepared list of American citizens who are known to own ships sailing under foreign registry shows 20 large vessels, including the largest ships afloat. Their gross registered tonnage amounted to 1,300,487 tons. It is impossible to get a complete list as the vessels stand in the names of foreigners or foreign corporations, so it is quite safe to say there are at least 300,000 tons more. This would make 1,600,000 gross tons, being just about double the tonnage owned by Americans and flying the American flag and engaged in foreign commerce.

"This should bring very forcibly to even those who are not engaged in foreign trade that there is something radically wrong when forty of the large shipping companies who are prohibited by our laws from successfully operating these ships under the flag of their country are compelled to put their property in the name of a foreigner to get the protection of the flag of his country."

Puget Sound Second to New York.
Seattle Post-Intelligencer: The records of the custom house during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, show that the shipping interests of Puget sound have made a most satisfactory increase and that the amount of tonnage engaged in the foreign trade was the largest in the history of the district and that it is exceeded by only one port in the United States, that of New York.

The number of American vessels entering during the fiscal year was 1,261 as against 1,158 in the preceding year. Entrances of foreign vessels show a much greater gain, the lumber being 1,523, against 1,343 in the preceding year, or a gain of 180 vessels. The total amount of tonnage engaged in the foreign trade of the Puget sound district, including American and foreign craft, is 2,150,055 tons, an increase of 383,405 over the fiscal year of 1910. The increase in American tonnage is only 2,770 tons, while that of foreign craft is 379,635, which bears out the oft-repeated statement that American vessels are rapidly being driven from the sea insofar as our foreign commerce is concerned.

The clearances for the year were: American, 1,348, representing $15,087 tons, a falling off of 10,663 compared with last year, while the clearances of foreign craft were 1,543, with a tonnage of 1,478,848, or a gain of 255,265. The total number of vessels clearing during the year, including American and foreign bottoms, is 2,922, with a tonnage of 2,293,935.

Since 1905 foreign bottoms have been gradually gaining in the matter of handling the commerce of Puget sound. In that year American tonnage clearing was 998,680 against 495,025 foreign; in 1906 American 862,425, foreign 837,900; in 1907, American 898,989, foreign 837,900; in 1908 American 1,073,247, foreign 586,647; in 1909 American 1,032,785, foreign 1,026,999; in 1910 American 825,747, foreign 1,225,583; in 1911 American 815,987, foreign 1,478,848.

STOCKS BRISK WITH ADVANCES

Advances nearly all along the line mark one of the biggest lists of the Honolulu stock exchange in a long time. Sales between boards were all at unchanged prices, excepting that Honolulu Gas sixes advanced from 99½ bid to par sale for $10,000. Hawaiian Commercial and Sugar, from $39.50 reported for fifty shares, brought one-quarter more on the board in sales of ten, five, 100 and thirty shares. Oahu was reported unchanged at $31 for ten shares, but on the board advanced one quarter for five and twenty shares, going up an eighth more for three lots of five each and another eighth to $31.50 for twenty-two shares. Waiakua advanced three quarters to $112.75 for twenty-five and twenty shares on the board. Ewa gained a quarter in a sale of twenty-five shares at session for $32. Oahu Railway and Land advanced a point to $11 for five and twenty shares.

Sales without change, reported and session, were fifty Hawaiian Pineapple at $38.50; ten, twenty and 100 Honolulu Brewing and Malting at $21; 150 Olaa at $5.75; ten Pioneer at $206; thirty, 500, five and twenty-five McBryde at $6.75; five Hutchinson at $16.

PASSENGERS ARRIVED.

Per bark Andrew Welch from San Francisco—Mr. and Mrs. Gray, Mrs. and Miss Rogers, Arnold Langdon, H. McIntosh and H. Trustow.
America Maru on Last Lap.
The America Maru came in here yesterday from the Orient, and left again this morning at six o'clock for San Francisco.

The handsome little vessel will call here again on September 5, and that will be her last appearance in these waters under the flag of the T. K. K. The Nippon Maru has been removed from the run temporarily, to be overhauled, and her place will be filled by the new liner Shinyo Maru. The Nippon Maru will come back on the run after she has been renovated, and the America Maru will go over to her new owners, the O. S. K.

The changes were begun by the exchange of pursers. Popular Purser Cavarley was taken from the America Maru at Yokohama, and will come on here in the Shinyo Maru, due on September 8 from the Orient. His place on the America Maru was taken by Purser Grasset. It was never known, not definitely at all events, who would get the position on the new liner. Grasset and Cavarley were both spoken of freely as being the men in line. Grasset expressed pleasure at escaping the distinction. He likes the ease of a little ship like the Nippon Maru.

Cavarley will be a material factor in making the new boat popular, for he is undoubtedly one of the best liked pursers coming into this port. He is courteous and obliging to all, his object seeming to be to make everything as comfortable as possible. It is certain that all will join in congratulating him on having attained the position, which was thoroughly merited. The America Maru yesterday had very few white travelers aboard. She brought here one cabin passenger—K. Hirasawa—two in the second-class and seventy-nine in the steerage. Of these fifteen were Chinese, nine Filipinos and the remainder Japanese. There are eight through cabin passengers, fifteen in the second-class and 108 in the Asiatic steerage.

The Honolulu cargo totaled 740 tons of general cargo, while for the mainland there were 2290 tons, which included some valuable shipments of silk and tea.

U. S. Sailor's Body Found.
The body of a man was found in Yokohama harbor on June 27, but it had been so long in the water that identification is difficult, says the Hongkong Daily Press. The corpse, however, is supposed to be that of Alvin Root, gunner's mate on the U. S. cruiser Albany, who was missing when the vessel left.

EXPECT GOOD BASEBALL SEASON AND WILL SUPPRESS GAMBLING

"The outlook for the second series of the Oahu Baseball League is very bright," said Charlie Chillingworth this morning.

"The decision to allow three of the clubs to enlist new players will open up the game and create better ball.

"Under the new ruling, Mike Harder will be able to pitch for the Hawaiians and Bushnell for the Portuguese, which should buck those two nines up considerably.

"There is some talk that the three Chinese players on the Star nine may withdraw from the league games, as in view of their proposed island and mainland tour the All-Chinese want to keep together as a team.

"We are determined to stamp out gambling at the games of the Oahu League, and with that end in view have engaged the services of a detective, who will report to the management of the league, which will act on his report.

BALLENTYNE SAYS UKULELE PATROL MEMBERS MADE TROUBLE

Watson Ballentyne and Edmund Melanphy, of the Outrigger Club, both got in touch with the Star office this morning and each gave his views on the matter of the failure of the club to enter a team for tomorrow's swimming races.

Melanphy said: "It wasn't a case of cold feet at all that a team wasn't entered. We lack available material, and there isn't enough club interest, that is the trouble. I did telephone to Mr. Soper asking him to let us enter every event with a blank team, but that was done in order to satisfy the members of the Ukulele Patrol, which had been clamoring to be allowed to take part in the sports. They are nearly all little tads and of no account as swimmers, though of course they could take part in a gladiatorial contest or obstacle race.

Watson Ballentyne's statement was as follows: "Melanphy and I talked over the matter of entering a team two weeks ago and decided not to, as so few men were turning out and the material in sight was so poor. There were not enough names handed in to make it worth while to post a notice to the effect that there would be no team entered.

"All this fuss has been made by a few disgruntled members of the Ukulele Patrol. Alexander Hume part in the sports. They are nearly all little tads and of no account as swimmers, though of course they could take part in a gladiatorial contest or obstacle race.

Over the world they are seeking a scrapper. Some man of iron with kick like a mule. North, South, East, West, they are scouring the backwoods Hunting for someone o'er pugdom to rule. "Down with the dingie!" is their truculent war cry— Hughie McIntosh and Tommy O'Rourke; Meanwhile the white hopes are tackling the problem— List to their typewriters, hark to their talk!

White hopes, they never grow weary. They bob up serenely by hill and by sea— Palzer and Kaufman, Morris and Lester, Oh, fight it out white hopes, where'er you may be!

In Sydney they're offering a premium for white hopes. In far London town they are eagerly sought. The market is firm with a strong upward promise (Tom Sharkey one in Jim Barry just bought). Langford and Johnson meanwhile rest and wonder Who their next victims are going to be. Jeanette and McVey con the ranks of the white hopes, Then shake their black sides with an infinite glee.

White hopes, all airy, some beery, You make us a-weary, you give us a pain— Bombardier Wells, Jim Flynn, Lang, Gunner Moir— Oh, give us a proper white champion again!

H. M. AYRES.

THE OUTRIGGERS' LACK OF ENTRY

The morning paper quotes Watson Ballentyne as saying that "the talk of going round to John Soper at the last moment is a fake."

This in connection with the failure of the Outrigger Club to enter a team for tomorrow's swimming events.

The information to the above effect printed in yesterday's Star was published on the best authority, having been obtained from no less a personage than Mr. Soper himself.

Ballentyne now declares that he resigned as captain of the Outrigger Club shortly before he joined the Hui Nalu, and that owing to lack of material there was no possibility of the Outrigger Club entering a team.

Edmund Melanphy, captain of the club, explains the non-entering of a team by his statement to the effect that the club lacks swimming talent.

Other prominent members of the club insist that Ballentyne was expected to enter a team and express themselves in no uncertain terms with regard to his having gone over to the rival organization.

Johnny Conlon, recognized as the bantam-weight champion of this country, plans to take a trip to England to meet Digger Stanley for the world's title.

JORDAN FOR MORE SPORTS

R. A. Jordan, one of Honolulu's oldest and keenest sportsmen, speaking this morning of the proposition that the Chamber of Commerce should arrange sports and entertainments for the masses on the occasions of public holidays, said:

"I don't think that is a matter which comes within the province of the chamber. It is a matter, however, which in my opinion would come within the local branch of the A. A. U.

"This organization could not only provide us with enough clean sport to go round when we have a day off in which to enjoy ourselves, but could also see to it that there is no clashing of dates and attractions.

"I am and always have been deeply interested in sport from the days of long ago, when I bred and raced my own horses for the love of the thing and for the interest I took in horse breeding.

"I don't believe that we, as a community, take enough interest in sport. Playing the game and watching it played are both beneficial in their way. Sport makes for health, and if the community went in more for sport the health of the community would be better.

"By all means let us have something to do or see when a holiday

SPORTDRIFT

A race has been arranged for August 26 at the Athletic Park between Jimmie Fitzgerald, who will run ten miles, and Soldier King, Nigel Jackson, and a newcomer named Zinz. King will run five miles and the other two two and a half miles each. There will probably be a preliminary to the race in the shape of a baseball game between the Fifth Cavalry and the All-Chinese nine.

Competitors in the swimming meet tomorrow will be required to wear full swimming suits, with or without sleeves.

Interest will center in the hundred yards swim at tomorrow's aquatic carnival.

Among the starters in the hundred yards swim will be such fast performers at Duke Kahanamoku, W. A. Roseman, L. Cunha, G. Murray, J. Ferguson, D. Center, E. Center and Orback.

The local Foresters are arranging a game of baseball to be played on October 15, after the completion of the Oahu League's second series. The Court Lunailio and the Court Camoes will furnish the opposing teams and after the game there will be a luau. The Camoes can call on the services of such sterling players as Joy, Soares, Freitas, Bushnell and several other shining lights of the local diamond.

Packy McFarland has had seventy-five fights, with forty-nine knockouts, four draws and the rest of the decisions in his favor, and no cauliflower ears or a broken nose to show for it, either.

Ned Donnelly, one of England's old-time scrappers, died the other day at the age of seventy years.

Harry Lewis has canceled his proposed trip to Australia under the auspices of Promoter McIntosh.

Owen Moran declares that Welsh, McFarland or K. O. Brown would have no chance to defeat Wolgast.

Tom O'Rourke believes that Al Palzer is the best of the white hopes.

Tom Sharkey, the old-time heavy-weight fighter, has turned manager of pugilists, and has taken Jim Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, under his wing. "Comes round, whoever may be chosen to arrange it."

WILLOW BALLS FOR POLO GAME

The rules and regulations covering the games of the polo tournament which starts tomorrow include one notable innovation.

This year the games will be played with willow balls instead of bamboo root balls as has been the case in previous tournaments. The balls must not weigh over 2 1/2 ounces.

The use of willow is called for by the international competition rules.

There will be no measuring of poles in this year's tournament, the rule requiring such measurements being obsolete as far as international rules are concerned.

Beside the perpetual challenge cup presented by Wichman the players will have something else to work for this year, the California Feed Co. having presented a handsome silver trophy to become the property of the team winning it three times.

A force of men are at work on the Moanalua field this morning putting it in the best possible shape, the ponies are waiting, and the Kanaal and Oahu players are eager for the fray.

OAHU BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETS

The Oahu Baseball League had a meeting last night and some important business was transacted.

Barney Joy, D. Deaha, Bushnell and H. Chillingworth will alternate as umpires during the second series, Sam Chillingworth and Hampton not caring to take on the job again.

In order to strengthen the teams of the league it was decided to allow three teams to sign up new players.

Bushnell has been signed up by the Portuguese Athletics and the Hawaiians will sign Mike Harder and V. Ayau. The former is a pitcher of considerable ability and the latter a clever shortstop.

J. Aylett, Bill Meyer, Platta and Nascimento will grace the list of the Stars in future. Meyer and Platta come from Ewa, the former being a pitcher.

The first games of the second series will be played on Sunday afternoon and will be as follows:

Hawaiians vs. P. A. C., and Stars vs. J. A. C.

RUBBER INDUSTRY

duced 1600 tons of plantation rubber last year, as against seventy-five tons in 1905, and that the East—mainly Malay and Ceylon—turned out 1800, 3850 and 8230 tons respectively in the years 1908, 1909 and 1910, point to the likelihood of conspicuous developments in the next three or four years. There are possibilities in the raw rubber industry and the rubber manufacturing trade which very few seem to realize. I have traversed many parts of the East and have spent several years compiling statistics relating to the producing capacity of Hevea trees of various ages in the tropics. I believe that in the most favorable parts of Malaya a yield of one ton per five acres will ultimately be annually obtained; in less favored parts of Java and Ceylon I estimate the yield at one ton per ten acres; for reasonably good estates in Sumatra and South India I anticipate the yield to be between the two estimates here given. In other words, deducting a certain percentage from the world's planted acreage, I estimate that the balance in full bearing will each year yield far more than is now annually produced from wild sources. The island of Ceylon alone should, unless some unforeseen disaster overtake it, annually yield from its concentrated 200,000 acres more rubber than is or has ever been yearly obtained from the whole continent of Africa. Furthermore, Malaya and Ceylon alone should yield within five or six years annually produce more rubber than the whole of Brazil and Central America gave us last year.

Important Changes Imminent.

It should be clear from this that the day is near at hand when the balance of power in the crude rubber market will be considerably changed. Brazil has hitherto had the monopoly and the officials there know how the country has prospered from the revenue from rubber alone. Africa has, unlike Brazil, been largely dependent upon vines as sources of rubber, and the lessened production noticeable, especially during the past few years, is regarded as hopeless. Both Brazil and Africa alike realize that the shadow of huge plantation supplies is upon them, and that sooner or later the abundance of rubber will have its effect on price. Inferior-grade Africans, which make up a good part of that continent's supply, must suffer first; then the better grades from bushes and trees other than Hevea, and finally must come a struggle between rubber from the wild and from the cultivated forms of Hevea. The supply, in the event of low prices, will be most seriously curtailed from Africa; it will also be evident in tropical America, but not in the same degree. The Brazilian authorities are giving all possible aid and encouragement to those concerned with the collection of rubber in that part of the world, and their country can always be relied upon to give a fair yield. Complete extinction of the wild rubber crops from the forests of Africa or America there cannot be, in virtue of the existence of a population in both areas which must find some means of employment. Yet a curtailment in supplies from wild areas is a certainty, when Eastern plantation crops shall be coming over at the rate of 3000 tons per month.

Hitherto London has not ranked as of much importance as a center for rubber, Liverpool having always held the first position. Now a change is already evident. Most of the plantation companies are owned by companies whose interests more or less compel them to sell their produce in Mincing-lane. This business will continue to grow as the yielding capacity of estates increases, while that of Liverpool will, in consequence of lower supplies from Africa and Brazil tend to lessen. Most London brokers, when asked what prospects they have of dealing monthly with 3000 tons of plantation rubber, seem disturbed. No time should be lost in preparing the way for the disposal of such quantities, for they will be upon us much earlier than most people imagine.

Morning Cable Report

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The passage of the veto bill by the House of Lords yesterday is declared to be the most momentous change in the English government since the passage of the reform bill. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury spoke for the bill just before the vote was taken. He declared in the course of his address that failure to pass the bill meant the alternative of the election of 500 peers, which would make, he said, "The House and country the laughing stock of the British dominions beyond the seas."

The galleries were packed and much excitement prevailed as the vote was taken. The Commons resolved to provide for the payment of a salary of $2000 a year to all members.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Senator Cummins yesterday charged the members of the monetary commission with extravagance and delay. Senator Burton, a member of the commission, admitted that the commission was extravagant and suggested the discontinuing of the salaries of the members.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—A ruling handed down today from the attorney general's department that in all shipyards where government work is done the eight-hour day rule must prevail for the employees.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Henry C. Frick, one of the multi-millionaires of the steel trust and other great corporations, has retired from the directorate of the Union Pacific railroad. It was announced here yesterday that Mr. Frick would, in all likelihood, also retire from the other boards of directors with which he is connected.

OTTAWA, Can., Aug. 11.—The government yesterday awarded the contract for the building of the first section of the proposed Hudson Bay railroad to tidewater.

KAIMUKI CLUB

been shown to the meeting that the assessed valuation of property in the district was $1,700,000. The suggestion had been made in the meeting that the board of supervisors might apportion a certain amount a month for road work in the district, to be expended on such roads as the club should select.

Supervisor Low's Remarks.

Mr. Low could hold out but little prospect that anything could be done at present for the district. County finances were not in a flourishing condition. He thought Kaimuki had been pretty well treated and that the needs of many other districts were at present more urgent. From a long memorandum of complaints and requisitions he showed what a formidable amount of work was required all over the Honolulu district. Kaimuki was on the list with its various roads needing attention, and before he sat down Mr. Low promised that an effort would be made to do something in this district.

Quizzed by Members.

Having volunteered to answer any questions, Mr. Low was interrogated at some length by H. T. Mills, Ed. Towse and others, and in response gave much information about the available road funds, fixed and overhead charges, etc. He stated that a new system of records of work was being started and in a month he would be able to give the club and the public a definite statement of how the road funds were expended.

County Engineer Explains.

Mr. Gere assisted Mr. Low in the explanations and corrected a prevalent misapprehension relative to "overhead" expense, showing that this had been confounded with "fixed charges." The plant was not too large for the work. Contract versus day's labor was discussed. Mr. Gere stated that certain kinds of work could be done cheaper by the county than by contract. Outside, after the meeting, Mr. Gere said that where the chief factor was labor the contract system would have some advantage, but where material figured larger than labor the county could make a more economical job. While the county supplied the material it did so at cost price, whereas the contractor had to figure on a percentage of profit on his material.

Fire Station Favored.

Mr. Arnold thought something might be done for Fifth avenue, for which the club had been urging improvement. He was strongly in favor of having a fire station at Kaimuki, on the site under discussion, favored by Chief Engineer Thurston, near the reservoir. Although the previous speakers had somewhat exhausted the road question, Mr. Arnold made a very favorable impression on the meeting.

Property Valuation Doubles.

Before the arrival of the visitors, A. F. Clark read a statement showing the assessed value of property in the district to be $1,700,000, and Z. K. Myers showed from the old records of the club that the valuation five years ago was $800,000 and odd. Taus it was seen that the valuation had doubled in the period mentioned. Mr. Clark also produced a statement that the Kaimuki Land Co., had built eleven miles of roads for $23,000.

Contractor vs. County.

Mr. Gere, on hearing this statement repeated, observed that if the county started building non-macadamized roads there would be a howl from the whole district. He was informed in reply that, in some cases, cheap roads that would make the homes of many people fairly accessible would be acceptable in place of none.

Water Works.

A communication was received from Marston Campbell, superintendent of public works, stating that $125,000 was available this year for water works improvements and inviting the club to appoint one of its members to consult with him about the water requirements of the district. G. W. R. King was accordingly appointed by the president, with unanimous concurrence, as the club's representative.

The Mosquito Nuisance.

Mention was made by the president that the mosquito nuisance, after a period of almost entire absence, had returned worse than ever. He suggested that a special committee be appointed to investigate the cause and if possible find a remedy.

It having transpired that the area of the city mosquito inspection ended at Kapahulu road, on motion of Mr. Towse it was voted to request the Board of Health to add the Kaimuki district to the area.

The proposal of a special committee was adopted, the president naming James Rocks, Charles S. Crane and Ed. Towse as such.

Mr. Rocks said ditching was the remedy needed. Concentrate the water of the breeding places and treat it with the larvae-destroying process.

Travel Talk.

W. L. Howard, who lately returned with Mrs. Howard from an extensive tour, starting with an illustration from India to point remarks on local improvements, drifted into an interesting narrative of many things he had observed in the Orient. Good roads centuries old in India, avenues arched with trees of species that flourish here, the artistic gardening of Japan, etc., were pleasantly described.

Change of Secretary.

Robert Anderson resigned the office of secretary on account of removal from the district. His resignation was accepted in a motion expressing great regret and voting him the hearty thanks of the club for his able, long and faithful services.

James H. Fiddes was announced as the unanimous choice of the board of directors to succeed Mr. Anderson.

E. H. Boyen promised a report from the membership canvassing committee in the near future. Circumstances had delayed its work.

Mr. Witherspoon, who had kept fruit punch and lemonade in circulation during the session, received a vote of thanks before adjournment for having entertained the club.

THE THEATERS

Bell Trio Drawing.

The Bell Trio have proved extremely successful at the Bijou Theater. At an early hour last night the house was crowded. They were heartily recalled several times. They are certainly excellent singers, and their stay at the Bijou should be a long one.

Johnson & Wells are still in the bill, their dancing proving as popular as ever. The Elldid troupe of cyclists will open at the Bijou theater on Monday next. They come here with a big reputation, and there would not seem to be any fear about their being able to sustain it. They are said to be leaders in their line of business, and there is some comedy imparted to the turn that will improve it a lot.

The Empire.

The Empire has lost none of its popularity. The bill is a good one. The Reeves will finish up their successful season on Saturday evening. Gorham & Phillips and Lottie O'Malley are as big favorites as ever.

Next week's program will see some changes, but what they are can not yet be told. The Marama from Australia might bring some talent for the Honolulu Amusement Company, but so far Congdon has not been advised by wireless whether there is any on board or not. Anyway, his coast lines are now in order, and he will be receiving acts all along from there, so there will be no dearth of turns in future, unless something untoward happens.

Bijou Matinee Tomorrow.

The usual big matinee will be held at the Bijou tomorrow. Doors will open at two o'clock and the performance will begin at half-past. All the talent appearing at the theaters of the company will show, and the bill will be one of excellent vaudeville.

The Savoy Tomorrow Night.

The Savoy will be open tomorrow night. There will be some special features, and a splendid collection of star films will be shown. This popular house should be well patronized tomorrow night, for the bill to be presented will justify a big attendance.

MILITIAMEN MAKE A BLUFF

Report has reached here from Hilo to the effect that in case the armory site is moved from Walluku street, where it is at present located the Hilo National Guard company will disband by way of showing its disapproval. Adjutant General J. W. Jones scouted the idea. He states that he does not believe that any proportion of the Hilo guardsmen have even made any such threat, and points out that the only way in which a national guard company can be disbanded is through proclamation of the governor.

In case the company should refuse to respond for duty in case of an emergency it would be liable for mutiny, and if the members neglect or refuse to attend drills as prescribed according to the regulations every member so negligent is liable to court martial and dismissal from the organization with dishonor. This entails also loss of citizenship, in all respects similar to the punishment meted out to deserters from the regular army, except possibly that of imprisonment.

CENTRAL UNION SENDS ANSWER

Hon. Peter C. Jones, Rev. Oramel H. Guifick and Rev. William B. Oleson, the committee appointed to draft a reply to the letters of greeting brought by Dr. C. J. Ryder to Central Union church from Nehemiah Boynton, moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches of America, Dr. Cyrus Northrop, president of the American Missionary Association, President Nash of the Pacific Seminary, and others, have forwarded a reply. It is addressed to the officers and friends of the American Missionary Association, and says:

"We, the members of the Central Union Church of Honolulu, representing the Congregational churches throughout this Territory, are grateful for the coming of Dr. Ryder to Hawaii, and appreciate the written greetings which he brings from our Christian friends of the mainland.

"Such greetings bind us to our fellow workers across the sea with a new sense of intimate Christian fellowship. We wish him to bear with him, on his return, the heartiest expression of our fraternal love and sincerest assurances of our gratitude for the messages sent us.

"We especially appreciate the thoughtful interest of the executive committee, in arranging Dr. Ryder's visit to this portion of the field of the A. M. A.

"His invaluable services while among us will make more real the tie that binds us all together in the cause of our common Lord and Master."

In the police court this morning Alina Kua, who wooed fickle fortune by the demijohn route, or, in other words, illegally sold liquor, was sent to jail for thirty days.

Gavini Pras, a black, black Porto Rican, was sent to jail for two months on a charge of vagrancy.

Mr. Pras got peeved with a Hawaiian youth and chased him round a Vineyard street block at the edge of a razor.

K. Nugal and K. Sunifugi, two 3 per cent butter fat ice cream vendors, had sentence suspended for thirteen months in their cases.

The court remarked en passant that the season for suspended sentences in this connection had been declared closed, and that in future all offenders against the pure food law, whatever their color, creed, sex, nationality or condition of servitude may be, will receive something substantial in the way of a sentence.

Once upon a time, a man who was too economical to take a paper, sent his little boy to borrow the copy taken by his neighbors. In his haste, the boy ran over a four dollar stand of bees, and in ten minutes looked like a watery summer squash. His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and, failing to see a barb-wire fence, ran into it, breaking it down, cutting a handful of flesh from his anatomy and ruining a five-dollar pair of pants. The old cow took advantage of the gap in the fence, got into the cornfield and killed herself eating green corn. Hearing the racket, his wife ran, upsetting a four-gallon churn full of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole "flock." In her hurry she dropped a seven-dollar set of teeth. The baby, left alone, crawled through the spilled milk into the parlor and ruined a twenty-dollar carpet. During the excitement the oldest daughter ran away with the hired man, the calves got out and the dog broke up eleven sitting hens.
