A CROP OF CANDIDATES

BUSH AND WISE HOME RULERS NOW.

Speaker Akina Said to Have Been Turned Down—Judge Kauikoua a Candidate for the Legislature.

J. A. Akina, Speaker of the House of Representatives, says he is "out of politics" and will not run for the legislature in the coming campaign. Rumor has it that Akina had deserted the Home Rule camp and would look for a nomination from the Republicans, but when asked about it Akina said that he didn't think he would run at all.

Akina was supposed to have his district in his pocket, as far as votes went, and he made a record last time for shrewdness and ability that outshone that of most of the members of his party. The Home Rulers, according to one report, "turned him down." In recent discussions of candidates, and Akina himself says he has decided to keep out. He is said, however, to have Senatorial aspirations, and the next few months may see him develop into a candidate for the Senate. Akina's district is on Kauai.

Among the candidates talked of in Home Rule circles are John Wise and John E. Bush, once members of the Democracy, but now both in the ranks of the Home Rule party. Wise was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention, and will live in history as the man who cast a deciding vote for 18 to 1 in the deliberations of the Democratic committee on platform. He is a Home Ruler now, and the party will probably put him up for the legislature.

John E. Bush was a Democrat, and he made speeches for the Democrats during the last campaign. He was in the House, and he declares himself a Home Ruler. He proposes to stick to that party, and though he has not announced himself as a candidate for the legislature, he does not deny that he has been approached on the subject, and may run.

Another well known native who will almost certainly run is Judge Kauikoua. He is a Republican and proposes to remain such. It was reported recently that Kauikoua was going over to the Home Rulers, but he emphatically denies that such is the case. "I have become a Republican and I believe in the party and shall stick to it," said the judge, admitting that it was not unlikely that he would be a candidate for the legislature.

WITNESSES JAILED.

Judge Robinson made an order yesterday for the detention of Alfred Krohn and Daniel Smith, who are wanted as witnesses in the George Ferris murder case. The witnesses are sailors and it is feared that they will leave the Territory. They will therefore be kept in Oahu jail until the case comes up for trial next August.

HAD ROUGH WEATHER.

The steamer Kaula arrived this morning from Punaluu and other western ports of Hawaii. She had very rough weather last week. On Friday she dragged her anchors at Punaluu and had to seek shelter at Hookona, where she remained until Sunday. The weather was so bad that she could not land all of her freight at Punaluu. Her foremast was ripped to pieces on the way home last night.

INTO BY-WAYS AND HEDGES.

The young men who feel that there are other places more attractive than Association hall on Sunday afternoons in the summer are to be hunted up in some of their favorite resorts the next few Sunday afternoons at four o'clock. The hall will be closed and the speaker and a number of workers and singers will be found in the shade of Maake Island, Kapiolani park. Dr. A. M. Smith, president of Oahu College will be the speaker, with a talk prepared especially to interest the soldier boys who are coming from Camp McKinley. Prof. Richards will be there with his organ and the secretary is hunting the city for a cornetist. Such people as happen to be in that end of the town at four o'clock are cordially invited to spend the hour there.

TO BUILD CUTTER

PEOPLE THINK HAWAII SHOULD GET CONTRACT.

Movement on Foot to Have Contract Awarded to Local Bidders—Already $200,000 Has Been Appropriated.

A movement is on foot to try and have the revenue cutter which is intended for the Hawaiian Islands, constructed at Honolulu. The idea is that inasmuch as the boat is intended exclusively for work down here she should be constructed here. Other sections of the union receive their pro rata of ship building and it is argued that as this is the first boat of the kind for Hawaii, this territory should be given the contract.

Already $200,000 has been appropriated for the construction of the cutter. This will enable the government to have an elegant little boat built, one which will be a credit to both the nation and the builders.

There are now no shipbuilding companies here but there are concerns which certainly can do the work and certainly who are capable of putting such a boat together.

There are numbers of places along the Water Front where the boat could be built. The hull is to be of steel. The plans and specifications for the boat have not been received here, so comparatively little is yet known of the requirements.

Applications are to be sent by the City of Peking mail for the specifications, and when they are received it is more than probable that effective steps will be taken by the parties interested to secure the contract for the construction of the new boat.

PLAGUE FIRE LOSS

MORE LITIGATION OVER THE POLICIES.

Claims That Condemned Property Was Valueless and Attacks on the Board of Health Authority.

Though several insurance cases involving the question of paying damages for the big fire of January 20, 1900, have been decided by the Supreme Court, there are more still in the lower courts, depending upon legal issues yet undecided, and yesterday Judge Humphreys heard and took under advisement several such cases. The Supreme Court has already held that the insurance companies are not bound to pay on policies which contain the clause, used by most companies now, protecting the companies from losses caused by any order of a civil authority. In the cases submitted yesterday, against the Royal Insurance Company, the New Zealand Insurance Company and the North German Insurance Company, the policies did not contain any such clause.

EXPECT KILAUEA TO BREAK OUT

SMOKE POURING FORTH IN DENSE VOLUMES YESTERDAY.

KAUAI BRINGS VERY STARTLING NEWS.

Learned Nothing of Outbreak of Mokuaweewoewo but Saw Red Reflection on Nights of Reported Eruption.

The steamer Kaula, Captain Bruhn, arrived this morning from Punaluu and Kailua with the news that Kilauea had begun to emit smoke at a furious rate and that the prospects for some volcanic action from that crater were brightening.

The column of smoke was noticed last Friday by Purser Clark and the various people aboard the vessel. It increased in volume until on Tuesday, it was pouring out in such quantity as to be plainly visible from the surrounding coast. In fact, the smoke increased steadily and yesterday morning when the vessel sailed from Hawaii, the smoke was denser than it had been at any other time. The smoke was very black in color and was plainer to be seen early in the morning than at any other time of the day, as the winds disperse the smoke clouds later in the day.

Advices from the Volcano house received at Kau were to the effect that the fire, which had been discovered at Kilauea last week, had disappeared but that the lava had begun to boil. No advices were received concerning the increasing volume of smoke but this condition was too apparent to require corroboration.

So far as the outbreak of Mokuaweewoewo reported yesterday from Hookona by Captain Townsend of the gasconer schooner, it is believed that neither Captain Bruhn nor Purser Clark of the Kaula heard of any such volcanic action. The clouds were so dense about Punaluu and Hookona however that the mountain could not be seen.

The statements of Captain Bruhn tend however to corroborate the story of some manner of eruption, for on last Friday and Saturday nights, the same nights mentioned by Captain Townsend, Captain Bruhn saw the skies red with the reflection of some light. He saw the reflection or whatever it was, as late as 11 o'clock. The red glow of some manner of eruption, extending all around the compass. This condition indicates that it was perhaps the after glow which has been in the heavens for some days past. On the other hand, the after glow is not as a rule, observable so late, generally disappearing about 8 p. m. This glow was more noticeable on Friday and Saturday nights.

No news of the reported outbreak of Mokuaweewoewo was learned from any of the natives at any of the ports where the Kaula touched.

It is possible that the volcano might simply have flared up during the two nights and then subsided temporarily. The fact that the light was not seen from the Volcano House is easily explained by the fact that Mokuaweewoewa over 12,000 feet in height while Kilauea and the Volcano House are about 2,000 feet and are about twenty miles from the other volcano. The clouds have been very heavy and thick about Hawaii for some weeks past and it is very probable that they obscured the view of Manager Waldron and others and prevented them from seeing the reflection of light which had been seen from the Volcano House on Friday and Saturday nights.

Diamond Head Charlie the local look-out saw the light on last Friday night. It seemed to him to be in an east by south easterly direction. The sky was very red. He does not think that it was caused by the reflection from a volcano. He says he has not seen the sky so red for a long time. He noticed the reflection as late as 2 a. m. of Saturday. The clouds finally shut it off from view.

It was thought that when the Kaula arrived here she might bring news either of a confirmatory character or else disproving the report of the eruption of Mokuaweewoewo but unfortunately the matter still remains unsettled with several features added as corroboration. Not until the Kaula arrives tomorrow will the question of whether the volcano did spring into fiery activity on the two nights of last week, the people of Hilo would certainly have heard of it by this time and the news will probably be sent on the steamer.

The unusually hazy condition of Hawaii caused by the numerous clouds and heavy mists have prevented the people on the western coast from learning positively about the reported outbreak and there is, as a result, nothing surprising in the fact that so little definite news has been brought by the vessels which have arrived from that part of Hawaii.

WIRELESS ONCE MORE

COMMUNICATION SAID TO BE ESTABLISHED.

S. S. Dickinson Says Cable Company Will Not Compete If Wireless Service Is Satisfactory.

The wireless system is said to be again in full force between this island and Maui the operation being more successful than before. Manager Cross states that he has succeeded in making the needed coherers locally and that they have proved eminently satisfactory. As soon as an operator can be trained in Hawaii, it is stated that communication will be established with that island on a stable basis.

Asked in connection with the reported outbreak in the crater of Mokuaweewoewo whether his company intended to establish cable lines radiating from Honolulu to the other islands, Mr. Dickinson stated this morning that it was not his intention to do so if the wireless system proved satisfactory. "Mr. Cross informs me that communication has been permanently established now to Maui and shortly will be to Hawaii. He invited me to look over the apparatus yesterday, but I was unable to find time. If that system is working we shall make no attempt to compete with it. I understand that there is a good deal of local money interested in the system and it is not our policy to hinder its successful operation in any way. Indeed as far as our company is concerned, we would feel sure have encouraged Marconi's efforts on the Atlantic rather than have discouraged them as our competitors did. Marconi will need a land system for transmission, even if he gets his messages across the ocean which I very much doubt. We have kept in close touch with his experiments all the time. It is doubtful in my mind whether the wireless telegraphy will ever be available over long distances for anything more than social messages where no code is used and the mistake of a word or so may be corrected by the context.

For shorter distances though the system seems to work perfectly and I think that Hawaii should prove an ideal field for its operation. The distances are just right and there seems to be no liability of disturbing influences. We had of course thought of an inter-island system, but if the wireless supplies the necessary want there is no necessity for our attempting to fill it.

A Japanese Peasant Who Wanted the Empress to Help Him Make His Fortune—Probably Insane.

YOKOHAMA, May 14.—A startling incident occurred yesterday in Tokyo as the Empress was returning to the Palace from the Peers' School in Nagata-cho, Kojimachi-ku, Tokyo, where she had been listening to a collection of songs sung by the pupils. When the Imperial carriage was approaching the official residence of the Minister of Finance at 5:30 p. m., an old man suddenly stepped forward from among the by-standers at the road side and attempted to present to the Empress a letter for which he was awaiting the end of a long bamboo stick. A policeman, standing near immediately arrested the man, and the Empress passed on without the incident having occasioned any alarm. The old man was taken to the Kojimachi Police Station, where on examination, he was ascertained to be a peasant named Sugahara Kumonaka, 51 years old, living in Kamidate, Kariyoko mura, Kuniyogori, in the prefecture of Iwate-ken. He was dressed in ordinary Japanese clothes, and wore the old fashioned top-knot on his head. He came to the capital in a month leaving his home on the 25th ult. As the result of the police examination it would appear that the man is suffering from some mental derangement. His object in endeavoring to present the letter to the Empress was to get a loan of 20,000 yen from Her Majesty for the purpose of making his fortune. In duplicate letter, however, the amount he wanted was put at 200. He was examined by a doctor in the Metropolitan Police Board yesterday evening. Inquiries will be made of his relatives and the old man placed in their charge.

MEMORIAL DAY IS OBSERVED

GENERAL CESSATION OF BUSINESS THROUGHOUT THE CITY TODAY.

EXERCISES IN MANY OF THE SCHOOLS.

Veterans of the Grand Army Hold Memorial Services at Nuuanu Cemetery—Judge M. M. Estee the Orator.

Decoration Day in Hawaii has always been made prominent beyond the memorial observances of the G. A. R. over their dead, and early this morning the first cars were filled with people laden with fragrant blossoms in wreaths and bunches with which to decorate the graves and revive the memories of their dead. While the custom is universal, it prevails to a large extent among the natives and Portuguese and for days beforehand flowers are tended and preserved for memorial day.

Shortly after daybreak this morning the cemeteries were redolent with the perfumed flowers strewn by loving hands and busy figures could be seen bestowing the blooms to the greatest advantage. Many of the wreaths and flowers this year are skillfully made from colored paper, the better to withstand the hot sun and keep the mounds of monuments, garlanded cannon and several days.

Throughout the city the Stars and Stripes float at half-mast, while engines in the harbor all do reverence to Memorial Day. As usual the stores have made allusion to the day in their windows, those of May & Company and Thurm's being especially appropriate and artistically arranged with wreathed monuments, garlanded cannon and stacked rifles.

At Nuuanu cemetery early this morning, where the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic is holding year by year, but still devoted in the loving memory of the comrades who fought side by side with them on bloody fields nearly forty years ago, have laid aside a green turfed plot for their companions, the turf was cleared with scrupulous care, the hatyards of the flagstaff hauled until the folds of the flag that those lying beneath the finger of its circling shadow had fought for, dropped at half-mast in the still morning. Seats have been placed for those taking part in the exercises, the orators, readers and staff officers of the executive. Arrangements have been made for seating the members of the De Long Post on the border of the grassy plot that will one day prove their own last sleeping place and over which today their chaplain will read the burial service and the ritual of the G. A. R.

The cemetery this afternoon will be crowded with those who have yearly shown their respect of the present generation for the spirit of the day. There is always a most cosmopolitan crowd in attendance. Informally, the veterans in their distinguished hats with the badge of honor, the first regiment of the National Guard, the Knights of Pythias, the Mounted Police, the Cadets from the Kamehameha school, and the representatives of the present regular army, the Sixth United States Artillery, the Territorial Band and the Kamehameha School band will be in attendance to set the time with the solemn airs of dirges during the long walk to the cemetery. Many invited guests have been especially asked and the government officials, including the staff of the governor will be present.

The dwelling place of the dead will be alive with humanity this afternoon representing all nations. To the Oriental Memorial Day is a holiday of the American nation not quite fully understood, perhaps, and the brightest of butterfly kimonos are brought out for the children an army of whom are brought to the cemeteries. English, German, French and Portuguese, natives and Orientals all dress according to their interpretation of the day and its meaning and join with the Americans in honoring their dead.

At the store of Quartermaster Deitz this morning floral tributes of green malle and brilliant, fragrant blossoms were brought in all this morning for the decoration of the graves of the George W. De Long Post and were sent out at noon to Nuuanu cemetery. The members of the Post will meet at 2 o'clock in Vineyard street and will form its parade line on Alakea, right resting on Beretania street, Judge Morris M. Estee will deliver the funeral oration, while Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be read by Mrs. W. W. Hall. A salute across the graves will be fired by the

DELAYED BY ACCIDENT

PEKING MEETS WITH BAD BREAK DOWN.

Forward Crank Pin was Cracked and Had to Be Disconnected—Vessel Brings Much Honolulu Freight.

The S. S. City of Peking arrived off the port last night shortly after midnight from the Orient. She was nearly two days late. The delay was due to a damaged crank pin of the forward cylinder. On May 19, two days out of Yokohama, Chief Engineer William McClure noticed that the engine was vibrating an unusual amount and an investigation disclosed the fact that the crank pin was cracked and every moment threatened to endanger the safety of the vessel.

In fact, had the damage not been discovered when it was, and the crank gotten loose, it might have done serious damage. The vessel had to be stopped so that Chief McClure could disconnect the shaft. After this damage had been repaired, the vessel resumed her voyage to Honolulu with only three cylinders, as the forward one had to be put out of commission.

The vessel brought 900 tons of freight for this port and three cabin passengers. She has a fair sized number of passengers for San Francisco. The vessel docked at the Pacific Mail wharf. She will not sail for San Francisco until tomorrow about 7 o'clock. She will take a fair sized list of passengers from Honolulu.

He passed through here several months ago on the Gaelic on a vacation to the Orient. He went to visit his son who is an officer on one of the British war ships in Asiatic waters.

Major Martin Mangrinn is a wealthy Montana man who has been enjoying life in the Orient for some months.

Mrs. Holdsworth who stops off at Honolulu is well known here. Her sister is the wife of the French consul at Shanghai.

Owing to the machinery being out of order and considerable steam being wasted, in consequence, the vessel will take from 8 to 9 days to reach San Francisco.

TIENSIN ADMINISTRATION.

RISE IN CHILL.

SHANGHAI, May 13.—The insurgents in Chihli have been entirely routed as the result of two days' fighting. Their ringleader was captured, and they suffered a loss of 1300 persons killed. The above reached here as an official report.

EMPOUNDED STRAY DOGS.

The dog catcher was at work first thing this morning and annexed many collarless curs before they were thoroughly awakened from their night's sleep. Six were gathered in within a few minutes on the corner of Bethel and King streets. The dogs were really thrown by the assistants and the dogs dumped into a big wooden cage mounted on a wagon. Several of the howlers thus impounded have seen better days apparently and may yet be rescued by lamenting masters and mistresses before their fate is sealed. The unlucky ones that boast neither owner, license or tag, will be kept and fed for a few days and then sacrificed for the enrichment of their country's soil by being turned into phosphates.

FAVOR SAILING CRAFT.

GOTHENBURG, May 18.—Wealthy shippers and merchants have combined to construct a fleet of first-class sailing ships that will fly the Swedish flag. This action is the result of a report made by the Nautical union, after long investigation, to the effect that the prevailing idea that sails must yield the sea to steam is based on misinformation.

The union declares that sailing ships on long, irregular routes are better investments than steamers. It explains that steamers have acquired a more favorable reputation than ships because the sailing vessels have been carefully constructed, while steamers have been built in accordance with the most modern ideas.

EMINENT EDITOR DEAD.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Edwin Lawrence Godkin, editor emeritus of the Evening Post, died in Brixham, South Devonshire, last night. The immediate cause of his death was a hemorrhage of the brain, which occurred on Sunday last. Mr. Godkin suffered a similar stroke two years ago, but recovered sufficiently to go to England in 1901. He spent last winter at Torquay, and moved to Brixham on the 2d of May.

Mr. Godkin was in his seventy-first year. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Foote of New Haven, Conn., by whom he had one son and one daughter, the latter dying in infancy. His second wife, Miss Katherine Sands of New York, survives him. His son, Lawrence Godkin, is a well-known member of the New York bar.

At the time of his retirement from active duties on the New York Post in the latter part of 1890, Godkin was the editor of New York journalism and one of the most respected and feared editorial writers in the country. At the time of receiving the degree of D. C. L. from Oxford, in 1897, a leading English writer declared him to be perhaps the most distinguished of living journalists.

Godkin was an Irishman, and after graduating from Queen's College, Belfast, in 1851 went upon the staff of the London News. It was as a correspondent of the paper that he came to the United States. In 1865 he founded the Nation in New York, and when that paper was merged in the Post as the weekly edition in 1882, he became editor of both. His vigorous attacks on Tammany possess now an interest that may be called historical. Up to the death of Charles A. Dana of the Sun, Godkin was his steadfast political and journalistic opponent, and no editorial battle has ever waged with greater determination or skill than theirs.

M. F. Prosser, the popular attorney of Lihue, returned from the Coast accompanied by his bride. Mr. and Mrs. Prosser were "at home" after May 15th and many called to wish the new couple much happiness.—Garden Isle.

KAWAIAHAO TO MOVE.

Kawaliahao seminary, the Pacific Theological Institute and the Mills Institute will probably be moved in the near future from their present site to a new site at Kaimuki. The members of the Hawaiian Board are considering this and other sites and will make a choice very soon.

CONSUL'S BODY FOUND.

NEW YORK, May 19.—A cable to the Sun from Fort de France says: American and English officers who have been searching the ruins of St. Pierre for the bodies of the United States and British consuls and their families, have found the remains of Prentiss, the American representative, and the members of the family, as well as those of the British Consul and family. They will be brought to Fort de France, where Prentiss will be buried with military honors.

The British cruiser Indefatigable left here this morning after having landed 120 tons of supplies for the sufferers.

The American collier Sterling started for St. Vincent, where she will land provisions and medical supplies.

The United States cruiser Cincinnati and the United States Government tug Potomac will be stationed here indefinitely. The Potomac will shortly go to the island of Guadaloupe to bring to this place the furniture, books, etc. of the office of the United States Consul there, Louis H. Ayne.

WILL HAVE ANOTHER CHANCE.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The Pacific Mail Steamship Company has put in another plea for the re-examination of the Chinese immigrants now in the detention pen at San Francisco, where they were committed by the Collector. In view of this latest appeal Assistant Secretary Taylor has given the Collector permission to take ten of those remaining at random and re-examine them as special cases. Whether any more will be re-examined will depend upon the percentage of this haphazard ten who succeed in making out a case for themselves.

TAMPICO FROM SEATTLE.

The freight steamer Tampico arrived yesterday morning from Seattle. She encountered rough weather for the first two days after leaving port, the cabins, mess rooms and alleyways being flooded. Her steam steering gear broke down during the storm but was repaired.

UPSET IN HARBOR.

While three of the Lyle boys were sailing in the yacht Mailhini yesterday afternoon the craft capsized. One of the Young boys went to the rescue and the Mailhini was righted.

SEARCHING FOR BAGGAGE.

Significant Orders Issued by the Treasury Department.

The following circular relative to the searching of baggage has been issued by the Treasury Department, for the direction of the various collectors and inspectors.

"The Department is in receipt of a number of letters which indicate an impression, on the part of some persons at least, that it is proposed to examine personal baggage only when suspicion is aroused.

"This is erroneous. There must be no relaxation in the protection of the public revenues, and the smuggler must have no easier road to travel than prior to the issuance of the recent circulars. The sole object of the modifications of the rules was to avoid petty annoyances and to give a somewhat more liberal construction to the statutory provisions for the admission of personal effects. Neither the declaration nor actual personal inspection will be waived, nor will the courtesy of the port be extended to any persons (other than those specified in Department Circular No. 20 of March 5, 1901), in such manner as to exempt from declaration and inspection.

"Let the law be enforced kindly but firmly, and let no favoritism be shown in the administration of the customs laws."

TERRITORIES MUST WAIT.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—There is little chance, from the present outlook, of any statehood bill passing the Senate at this session. Inquiry among the Senators both the Eastern and Western, and including members of the Committee on Territories, in charge of the statehood bills indicates that the hopes of Arizona, Oklahoma and New Mexico must be deferred. A Senator close to the center of things who did not want to be personally entangled in the matter said: "Nothing will be done this season. Arizona and New Mexico are not ready for statehood. Whenever they are spoken of for statehood the history of Nevada and Utah is brought up. I know the Senate will not admit Arizona and New Mexico yet. Oklahoma is perhaps entitled to statehood and, if alone, she would stand a good show. But it would not be pleasant to admit her and shut out the other two, after the House has voted to admit all, so all three will have to wait."

BRITISH ARMY.

NEW YORK, May 20.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: The Daily Mail understands that the system under which British officers are educated and trained is condemned in the most emphatic and sweeping terms in the unanimous report of the commission appointed over a year ago to inquire into the entire subject. The report is believed to be an amazing document. Among other things, the committee asserts that once an officer has gained the rank of captain his subsequent advancement depends upon anything but knowledge.

ARE SHORT LIVED

"I've been pitching ball for seven years—42 years of that time professional, and I never was any better pitcher as I am this year," says Wiley Platt, the only southpaw on Comiskey's club. "If I don't make good now it's because I'm pitched out, and I'll quit the business for good and all. "If I can go the pace two years more I'll be done. That is my only fault as a left-hander. Nine years in as good as the best of them go in fast company. Why? Well, I hardly know unless it is that our pitching arm is nearer the heart than on a right-hander and wears out quicker. I know more left-hand pitchers die of heart failure than right handers, and my only wonder is that all baseball men don't die of heart failure—they have so many games of that nature.

"I have all the curves and shoots and as much speed as I ever had, but I find that is harder every year to get control of the ball. That is my only fault right now. Try as hard as I'm a mind to, I can't get that first ball pitched to the batter over the plate, and that's the one of all that ought to be a strike. Practice with the home team doesn't get a pitcher anything in the way of control for he can't pitch to his teammates. The only way I can gain control is to go in the box and work for all I'm worth against the opposing team. "It's a peculiar thing that no left-hand batter likes a left-hand twirler. Take Burkett and Hedrick of the St. Louis team, which the Phillies had their own hit me. I've got them fated. And get those two out of the way and the Browns are easy. Wallace is a good stickler but he alone can't win the game and he never did hit me anyway. "In all the time I've been pitching major league ball I've never lost a game in St. Louis. For some reason the teams in that city have never been able to get next to me. Now take Win Mercer, of the Detroit club. He pitched for four years against the Washington team before he won a game with them and then for three years they couldn't beat him. "Only once that I know of have I been badly beaten and that was by Pittsburgh in '99. Jess Tannehill did the work for the Pirates and beat out the Phillies last year. The Phillies had four errors chalked up against them that day, so it wasn't all bad pitching. "There's one thing I can't understand about pitching, and it's truer about southpaws than right handers. That is when a fellow feels fine as silk, has good speed and control and all the bends, and slants you can think of, and then gets pounded all over the lot. Another day he'll feel rotten, has no speed control is poor and the benders won't break, and then he'll go in, because it's his turn, and will shut out his opponents with, perhaps two or three hits. I've done that very thing time after time and I can't figure it out."—Chicago Daily News.

DISCORD IN THE STEEL TRUST. NEW YORK, May 19.—A special meeting of the stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation was held in Hoboken today to consider resolutions adopted by the directors providing for the retirement of $200,000,000 preferred stock and the issuing of $200,000,000 new bonds. Resolutions authorizing the changes were adopted and the secretary of the meeting announced that 80 per cent of the preferred and 75 per cent of the common shares were announced in favor of the plan. Before the resolutions were adopted Samuel B. Strong of Providence protested against the plan. He said he believed that a good many stockholders who had sent proxies to the meeting had never had an opportunity to see the contract between the corporation and J. P. Morgan & Co. relative to the underwriting of the new bond issue. He moved that the meeting adjourn for a month so all could learn about the plan. The motion was lost. C. H. Verner of Boston entered a formal protest against the carrying out of the plan for exchanging preferred stock for bonds. He objected on the ground that there was no authority of law for the corporation to change its stock for bonds and further, that the act of the New Jersey Legislature permitting the company to make this exchange was unconstitutional and void. The protest was placed on file. George Richter Jr., who said he represented holders of 7000 shares of stock, protested against the proposed payment of 4 per cent commission to the underwriters of the issues of $250,000,000 bonds.

BEEF TRUST ENJOINED. CHICAGO, May 16.—The temporary injunction asked for by the Government against the members of the so-called packers' combine is now in force. It was issued this evening by Judge Peter S. Grosscup after the close of arguments in the United States Circuit courtroom. The order gives the relief prayed for in the bill filed by District Attorney Betha on May 10th. It is so wide in its scope that if the packers or their agents continue with their present alleged uniform arrangements they will be taken into court on contempt proceedings and the burden of proof will be on them to show that they have not violated the order in any particular.

MARTINIQUE

According to the information issued by the Bureau of Statistics the success of Martinique as a colony is not great. This is at variance with the generally preconceived idea that Martinique was immensely rich. Of course upon such a subject the Treasury Bureau of Statistics must be thoroughly informed or it would not issue information which will be taken all over the world as authoritative. While many of the French Colonies have been successful and prosperous, those of the West Indies by reason of their small area have proved, says the Bureau, not only a burden financially, but have been unsatisfactory in the demands which their representatives have made and continue to make upon the mother country.

The French colonies in America are not of large extent. They consist of Guadeloupe and Martinique, together with adjacent islets, which form part of the chain of the lesser Antilles. At the extreme end of the chain, on the mainland of South America, is French Guiana, with its ill-omened convict station of Cayenne, while some little distance from the coast is the still more ill-omened Devil's Island, rendered infamous by the miseries of Dreyfus. The other French Colonial possessions are away up north of the Southern Coast of Newfoundland, and are composed of the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

Martinique has an area of 381 square miles and a population of about 100,000 of which number about 5,000 are laborers brought from India and over 5,000 laborers from Africa; also about 500 Chinese immigrants. The remainder of the population is largely native negroes, the white population numbering in all about 10,000. A large share of the interior of the island has never been brought under cultivation, although it has been occupied by the French almost constantly since 1636, a period of 267 years, the only interruption in French control being the period from 1794 to 1802, when the island was held by the British. Slavery existed until 1848, when it was abolished in this as well as other French colonies. Notwithstanding the fact that a large part of its interior has never been brought under cultivation, the island is described by Reclus as "one of the most densely populated spots on the globe; on the arable lands people are packed as closely as in such industrial centers as Lancaashire, Flanders, or Saxony."

The government of Martinique consists of a local legislative body composed of natives which has the power to pass laws applicable to the exercise of political rights, the regulation of contracts, matters relating to wills, legacies and successions, the institution of juries, criminal procedure, recruiting for naval and military forces, and the methods of electing local officers in the cities and towns. The governor and other officers are appointed by the French Government, which also makes the tariff laws of the island, as is the case with reference to its other colonies. This and the other American colonies of France have a much larger share of self-government than any other of her colonies, and are each represented by a senator and two deputies in the French legislative body corresponding to the Congress of the United States.

These large powers of self-government and of participation in national legislation are the subject of open criticism by French economic writers. Leroy Beaulieu, perhaps the most distinguished of French writers of the present day upon economic subjects, in his "Colonization chez les Peuples Modernes," says:

"As regards politics, we have introduced French liberty into our colonies; we give them civil governors, admit their representatives into our Parliament, and while all these reforms are excellent in themselves, it is unfortunately to be feared that they will in practice result in abuses, and that unless the mother country is very watchful those very powers which she has granted to her colonies will become powers of oppression. The deputies whom Martinique send to our parliament were only ignorant of the malice, prejudice and ignorance of the blacks. The weak executive power in France allows itself to be intimidated by these deputies and sends out to the colonies cowardly and incapable governors whose indecision of character feeds the more or less barbarous hopes of the native population of the island."

In dealing with the conditions brought about by the frightful disaster at St. Pierre and probably over the whole north end of Martinique, there will be political troubles when the final settling down takes place. Its population is terribly crowded, and a crowded population is apt to be a turbulent population. The population of the Hawaiian Islands was, according to the last Census 154,000, spread over an area of 5,240 square miles. The population of Martinique is 100,000 crammed into an area of 381 square miles. This area is less than that of Maui, 728 square miles, Oahu 600 square miles or Kauai, 544 square miles. As was pointed out in an article in these columns yesterday the bulk of these people live from land to mouth and their distress will be serious unless small holdings can be found for them some where. It is evident that only a small percentage of the indigenous negroes work on the plantations, and none of them steadily. This is shown by the fact that laborers have had to be brought from Africa and from India. There are serious economic problems in the West Indies which will have to be faced after the forces of nature have ceased warring.

CUBAN CONGRESS.

The new Cuban Congress which is now in session consists of course of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives. The Senate consists of twenty-four members of whom half go out at the end of four years and the other half at the end of eight years. If there has been no designation before election as to which senators will remain for the long term, and which for the short term, these are the makings of quite a little disturbance in the Cuban Senate and the majority will have a picnic.

But this is not the only possible chance for a strong political struggle for mastery by some dominant party. There are sixty-three representatives, and as Representatives hold tenure of office for four years, half of the members of the House are to go out at the end of two years. But how are you going to get at the half of sixty-three. No patriotic Representative would wish to be the sixty-third member and have to be cut in half. Again if it is not decided before election who is to go out, there are the elements of jolly little row in the House of Representatives, and it will come before the Senatorial row.

There will be an immense amount of work for the Cuban Congress to get through. There are finances to regulate and taxation to be settled. The status of Cuba with the rest of the world will have to be settled by treaty. Provision will have to be made for diplomatic and consular establishments. There will be the appointment and ratification of officials which will consume time. The various salaries will have to be adjusted. If the Cuban Legislature settles its work it will do well. If it wastes its time in party struggles and recrimination, it will do as badly as the first legislature of the Territory of Hawaii did, which would result in setting back the country for a couple of years, and accomplishing nothing. There will probably be enough conservative men in the Cuban legislature to prevent such conduct as we had to complain of. Cuba is on probation and every one wishes her well.

Kimura, who murdered a Japanese woman at Waiailua, has made a confession of his reasons for doing the deed. Even if the confession be a genuine statement of fact, which may be reasonably doubted, it goes to show how utterly careless of life some classes of Japanese are.

If Bennett Burleigh's telegram containing the single word "returning" is really meant as a signal to his paper that peace has been agreed to, it will go down in the annals of journalism as one of the cleverest evasions of the censorship that has ever been carried out. There certainly seems no other solution of the telegram, because Burleigh would certainly not return if there was still war-correspondents work to do.

The anarchists have been having a mild picnic in Europe within the last few days. There has been an attempt to blow up the old Emperor of Austria, who might be left in peace for the few remaining years of his life, and there apparently was a plot to finish up the King of Spain at the very outset of his career. He would have thought that even an anarchist would have held his hand over the Emperor of Austria, for if ever a human being has had dismal tragedies in life it is Francis Joseph of Hapsburgh. Murder, suicide and military execution have carried off members of his family, and these are enough horrors to supply the motif of one of the gloomiest and most heart-lacerating of Greek plays such as Sophocles or Euripides wrote. But the anarchist has only a sea of blood before his eyes, and strikes aimlessly, no matter who the person may be.

The study of Mokuaweweo has been carried out with considerable zeal, from the time W. W. Hall made his descent into the crater between thirty and forty years ago to Dr. Guppy's visit and lengthened stay in 1896 or 1897. Every savant interested in volcanic phenomena has visited the summit crater, but it is no holiday trip. The atmosphere is extremely rarified, wood, water and provisions have to be carried up for miles over the rough lava stone which form the summit, and the wind frequently blows a hurricane, while there are heavy fogs. Dan Logan was of a party which went to the summit from the Kapapala side in quite recent years. His account of the trip was published in the Bulletin. Two German savants preceded the Logan party in the early nineties and obtained some wonderful photographs. Dr. Guppy stayed a fortnight on the crater edge and published some account of his experience in the Advertiser and the Star. When the crater of Mokuaweweo spouts and fills, the lava does not run over the crater's rim, but breaks through the weak sides, as it did in 1859 when so many people travelled to Hawaii to see the flow. Charles L. Rhodes of the Star traced the whole flow on foot and wrote an historic account of it. Mokuaweweo is very far from an extinct crater.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The semi-finals of the mixed doubles will be played this afternoon on the Pacific courts in the following order: Mrs. Gunn and A. T. Brock against Miss L. Ward and A. R. Cunha at four o'clock, followed by Mrs. Ivora and E. R. Adams against Miss Horner and C. A. Elston. It is still somewhat early to positively pick winners but the Horner-Elston combination looks the strongest and should be playing against Miss Ward and Cunha in the finale. These will be played on the Pacific courts tomorrow afternoon.

THE HOUSE NAVAL BILL

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD HALF THE NEW SHIPS.

Pacific Coast Loses Its Four Per Cent Differential—But May Bid on More Than One Vessel.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The House bill and bears gored and mangled the naval bill today so that the chairman could barely recognize it. The Pacific Coast was keenly interested in the proceedings, and its members watched the mauling process, occasionally jumping into the arena themselves.

The net result of the day's activity was a decided change of policy in warship construction. Half of the new vessels are to be built in the Government yards. The 4 per cent differential long enjoyed practically as a monopoly by the Union Iron Works was lopped off, and hereafter, if the bill goes through the Senate as it stands, Pacific Coast builders will be forced to compete with eastern yards on an even basis, without any allowance for the higher price of materials or labor.

There is one consolation in the situation for the Pacific Coast contractors, however. They are not restricted to one vessel, as the bill originally stood. This provision was stricken out. Now, if any contractor bids low enough, he may get all the ships except those ordered built in the Government yards, and, if he happens to be a Pacific Coast contractor, all these ships might be constructed on the Coast. In brief, the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts are treated exactly alike.

Roberts of Massachusetts offered an amendment, drafted by Metcalf, providing for the construction of one battleship, one cruiser and one gunboat in the Government yards. It precipitated a long debate, but finally triumphed, though the chairman of the committee of the whole, Sherman of New York, had to be overruled. He sustained the point of order against Roberts' amendment and Roberts appealed. The chair was defeated, 198 to 79, as counted by the tellers. Then the amendment was adopted by a viva voce vote, and the bill reported to the House, which speedily adopted the amendments and passed the bill. The California members stood solid on the amendment for the construction in Government yards.

Metcalf declared that the striking out of the differential would paralyze warship construction on the Pacific Coast and tend to destroy private shipbuilding enterprises. Representative Coombs found it unnecessary to offer the amendments he had prepared, as striking out of the provisions included in Mudd's point of order eliminated also the restriction against the construction of more than one of each class of vessels on the Pacific Coast.

THE ART IN BUSINESS

CREATIVE IMAGINATION INVOLVED IN AMERICAN BUSINESS.

American Genius Finds Excitement Charm and Color in the Plain Walks of Business Life.

"The idea of business in a country that has reached the height of its development is a dry-as-dust affair. It is the miserable system of keeping what one has, a system in which the temperament and the imagination do not play a part. The American, however, puts imagination into business. Business is the art of this country. To the American of affairs there is in his work excitement, charm and color. To him it is not a matter of mathematics, but of the creative imagination. Great processes, great inventions, great corporations—the organization of such things requires genius. Nobody is stupider, more avaricious and more economical in a small way than a French peasant or a German hausfrau. Nobody is more economical, less avaricious and more economical in a big way, than a great American inventor, financier or business man. Through his brains, production becomes cheaper, and consequently more abundant; and more good to the common people thereby accrues than by all the small savings ever saved since civilization began. It is better to be able to make than to save, and to make such a large outlay in money, energy and brains is necessary. To save pennies is a sign of commercial incompetence and national decline. When an individual or a nation begins a system of housekeeping on a small scale, it is a sign that the life-blood is ebbing. Old people, drier and less resourceful than young people, are notoriously more economical. They, like old nations, want to hang on to what they have, rather than strive for more. The wisdom of the French peasant consists in keeping down his expenditure and the size of his family to a point where the nation as a whole is weakened. As Bacon said, 'He that hath a state to repair may not despise small things,' and perhaps the decay of the country is the cause, rather than the effect, of French economy. Anyway, the two things hang closely together.

RIG AND LITTLE BOB

Big and Little Bob Fitzsimmons are becoming familiar figures on the streets of San Francisco, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The lanky, freckle-faced, good natured prize-fighter and his seven-year-old son, with hands gripped together, are ambling about everywhere these days. The father has nothing to do save wait for an opportunity to meet James J. Jeffries, and the son has nothing to do at all. So, with the leisure this gives them, they are making an inspection of the city more complete in character than tourists usually indulge in.

The two Bobs walked through Chinatown the other day, took a stroll about the Mission, saw everything on Market street from the ferry to Third street, and looked long and hard at the wide stretch of scenery visible from the tower of the Chronicle building. Later they stood in front of the ladies' entrance to the Palace Hotel while the elder Bob consulted a city guide. "Where do you want to go next, son?" he asked. "To bed," solemnly replied young Bob. "I'm tired."

This was a contingency the father had overlooked, but he accepted the situation as any parent should and took the youngster to his room, tucked him in bed, and went down to the big central court to rejoin his friends. "I forget that boy is only 7 years old," he said. "I guess I walked him about twenty miles this morning without thinking what I was doing. I just grab him when I start out for a stroll and I don't turn him in until it occurs to him to kick. It's lucky for me his mother don't know that."

Bob was asked if he was keeping himself in good physical condition and he replied with emphasis: "You bet I am. I could go in the ring tomorrow and make a good showing if I had to. If these people who think I'm too old to fight would put in one day with me they'd change their minds. I was never in better shape in my life."

Then Bob indulged in a brief double shuffle on the tiled pavement and said: "I'm going to walk out to the Cliff House now. Do any of you fellows want to come along?"

THE SUGAR QUESTION.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—George R. Mose, a sugar broker, testified before the Committee on Relations With Cuba today that Havemeyer was not interested in certain plantations in Cuba as had been alleged. He said there was about 450,000 tons of sugar stored in Cuba now. The Cubans, he said, believed concessions would be made and accepted the Platt amendment on that account.

When he asserted that the Cubans had discontinued work because many of the people did not have the money with which to go on, Senator Teller asked: "Will you tell me any firm in Cuba that has suspended operations and has not ground its crop?"

"I cannot," "No, nor anybody else," remarked Teller.

John Farr, a sugar dealer, contradicted statements made by Leavitt as to the countervailing duty, saying Cuba got all the benefit of it, as did other cane sugar producing countries. He said if the present low prices of sugar continued the production in Cuba would be much less. In Jamaica, he said, forty-seven estates had failed last week; in San Domingo the growers are in the throes of possible bankruptcy, while in Demarara the estates probably will last a year or two.

BURNED THE CHURCH.

The destruction by fire of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Fresno, California, followed at short intervals by two more fires in the parsonage, pointed strongly to arson. Now the mystery has been solved. Rev. George Miller, the pastor of the ill-fated church, had adopted a ten-year-old boy from the Children's Home Society of California at Los Angeles, and this youngster, whose name is Walter Kernehan, had on various occasions manifested his dislike for preachers. He repeatedly asked Mr. Miller why he did not do something else besides preaching, and, after the church fire, was known to have said: "Now you'll have to do something besides preaching." This and similar remarks led Chief of Police Morgan to make an investigation, which produced conclusive evidence of the boy's guilt as an incendiary.

GOVERNOR ALTGELD

EDITOR STAR.—John Brisbane Walker, in the Cosmopolitan, has written a sympathetic but somewhat dismal sketch of the late John P. Altgeld of Illinois. In this while certifying to Altgeld's sterling and unshakable honesty, and his great ability in many respects, Mr. Walker says he was one of the most unpopular of men, giving as a possible reason for this alleged unpopularity that his ideas were probably ahead of his time.

As one who enjoyed a personal, and in some respects, intimate acquaintance with Governor Altgeld, I must dissent from Mr. Walker's statement that Altgeld was an unpopular man. Of course popularity is a relative term, relative both as to degree, and to time and place. Whatever may have been Altgeld's popularity or want of it elsewhere, he was certainly not unpopular in Illinois, where he was best known. Outside of Illinois he was known principally as "the man who pardoned the anarchists." In Illinois he was known for more nearly what he was than that phrase, unaccompanied by a knowledge of the surrounding circumstances, would seem to indicate, and his memory will long be cherished.

As to his popularity, it may be stated that in 1888 he ran on the Democratic ticket for congress in a district which included the northern part of Chicago, the University town of Evanston, and an adjoining agricultural county. It had been a Republican stronghold for years. A Republican nomination was considered equivalent to an election. He canvassed the district as it had seldom been canvassed. If it had not been for a slightly cracked quality in his voice he would have become one of the greatest orators of his time. He had every other qualification, wide and accurate information, a mind well stored, keen insight into human nature, a sense of humor, lofty imagination, a splendid diction, keen reasoning powers, and a presence and manner that impressed hearers with a belief in his honesty. The result of that election was so close, that it was several years before the Republicans again considered the district a safe one.

Two or three years later he was elected a judge of the Superior Court of Cook County, by a decisive majority, but resigned from the office before his term had expired. In 1892 he was the Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois. In that campaign he made a complete canvass of the state speaking in every one of the 101 counties in the state, and in most of them more than once. It was in this campaign that he was opposed with the alarm "If Altgeld is elected, he will pardon the anarchists." His reply to this was characteristic. He said "If I am elected, and a petition for the pardon of the anarchists is presented to me, I shall consider it; and if I think that they ought to be pardoned, I will pardon them." Thus in a sense, the question of whether the anarchists should be pardoned, was submitted to the people of Illinois, who were most nearly interested in the question and knew most about it, and by them passed on. Altgeld was elected and took office in January, 1893. Some months afterwards, a petition for the pardon of the anarchists was presented. Governor Altgeld appointed and announced days on which he would give the subject hearings in his court several times a month, and any person who desired to be heard on the subject, either for or against their pardon, either orally or in writing, was given every opportunity to be heard. Scores of people were heard. They came from all classes of the community. The states attorney who prosecuted, and members of the jury who tried the anarchists joined in the request for pardon. There was very little opposition to their being pardoned. Finally after months of opportunity for hearing, it was announced that the anarchists would be pardoned on Thanksgiving Day. Not a daily paper in Chicago raised a voice of objection. Scarcely a voice of disapproval was raised throughout the state. The pardon was acquiesced in and approved by nearly the entire people of Illinois.

It was not until more than a week afterwards, that the Chicago Tribune, whose management had a personal difference with Governor Altgeld, entirely aside from politics, thought the pardon a matter of sufficient public interest, to justify an interview with Judge Gary, the judge who presided at the trial, and sentenced the anarchists. Judge Gary is an eminent jurist, and an honest man. But he was then a man advanced in years, and it had been noticeable for some time that his expressed opinions regarding the anarchists had been gradually growing more bitter. Moreover, he and Altgeld had had a violent difference during the time that the latter was on the bench. While I would not say, nor do I believe, that what Judge Gary said in this Tribune interview about Altgeld and his pardon was either due to old age or consciousness to his former difference with Altgeld, the fact remains that such difference had existed, and that Judge Gary's utterances regarding the anarchists grew much more radical as time separated them from the trial.

But even this interview, violent as it was against Altgeld and against his pardon of the anarchists, fell flat at the time, and attracted little attention from the public. It was not until the campaign of 1896, when Governor Altgeld again ran for governor, when a greater effort if possible was made in Illinois to defeat Altgeld than to carry the state for McKinley, that it was resurrected and made to do duty as a campaign document, not so much in Illinois as in other states. It was used where the circumstances of the pardon were not known, as an argument against Bryan, as showing that he was on a ticket supported by anarchists. Whatever its effect elsewhere, it had little effect in Illinois, where Altgeld ran ahead of Bryan, and received more votes than he did in 1892, though he was defeated.

Few governors of Illinois have been more genuinely popular in Illinois, or more deserving of it than Governor Altgeld. It must be remembered that he was the first Democratic governor the state had had for over thirty years. There had been a generation of Republican officials in every department of the state government. All who were in the appointive office, or who hoped to be, or who had been and hoped to be again, saw an end to their tenure or their hopes. There was an instant cry through every means of reaching the public ear, that the public service was to be debauched. This cry was in large measure an honest expression of thought. It would be strange if men who had served in a thirty year period of Republican state administration should not feel that to turn over the administration to the opposition party was dangerous and direful.

Governor Altgeld was confronted at the beginning of his administration with peculiar difficulties. Various elements had contributed to his election. All these elements were entitled to recognition in appointments. The result was that there were many appointments made which might justly be called bad ones. No one knew this better than Governor Altgeld. But the political necessities of every such, demanded recognition of the various elements which had contributed to the party victory. But while Governor Altgeld felt obliged to make appointments that he knew and honest judgment did not approve, he did not allow himself to feel obliged to keep men in office after they proved themselves unworthy. The result was that the demands of party victory being met, he was soon at liberty to make removals for cause, and fill vacancies on merit. And this sifting process went on so rapidly that it was not long before the state administration, in every department, was in the hands of men worthy and the recipients of public confidence, to such an extent that the very first year of his administration showed marked improvement in efficiency and economy in all departments and in all institutions, over preceding years, and the public service of Illinois was benefited as it never could have been by one administration being succeeded by another of the same political faith, because no administration however strong, could have made the clean sweep, that a change of party dominance demanded, a clean sweep that while it removed many men of excellence, also swept out of existence abuses that had become respectable by age.

Governor Altgeld, under stress of political necessity, appointed some bad men, but he kept no bad man in office, and the people of Illinois know and recognize that fact.

Of Altgeld's political career since he was governor, and which Mr. Walker has in his mind when he said Altgeld was unpopular, this may be said. Altgeld sought to remould the tendencies of the political elements which were groping for advance in municipal and civic administration, and to align them to definite, rational and attainable purposes. It is not in his mind that he became a candidate for mayor of Chicago. That he was not elected, was not because he was not popular, but because the time was not ripe for it. The wonder is that under all the circumstances he polled as large a vote for mayor as he did. The people did not follow him, not because they did not have confidence in him, but because they had not had time to be fully convinced of the wisdom of the course he proposed.

Governor Altgeld had the magnetism of honesty combined with great ability. Wherever he went he compelled confidence and admiration. He could mould men in the mass and individually. In his administration his personality dominated throughout all the agencies of government.

In personal intercourse he was simple, courteous, sincere. I think the best index of his character was the fact that of the scores of newspaper men I know, who by the course of their work came into real acquaintance with him during his public and political career, I know of scarcely one who did not become his sincere friend and admirer, irrespective of differences of political opinion, or of antagonism between the papers they represented and the governor. I know no other public man of whom this is true in the same degree. To me, it is an irrefutable test of good manners and genuine greatness. R.

THE MAN WHO WROTE CYRANO

CHICAGO, May 21.—Judge C. C. Kohlsaat, in the United States District Court today, issued a perpetual injunction against the production in the United States of Edmond Rostand's play "Cyrano de Bergerac" in the suit brought against Richard Mansfield and A. M. Palmer by Samuel Eberly Gross, the millionaire Chicago real estate broker. The Court, in its order, ruled that Mr. Gross was also entitled to an accounting of the profits from the play, but Mr. Gross waived this right and accepted $1 as satisfaction.

FREDERICK J. AMWEG, M. Am. Soc. C. E., Engineer and Manager.

W. R. CASTLE, JR., Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Gross is the author of a drama entitled "The Merchant Prince of Cornville," the leading character of which was distinguished by the big nose that made Cyrano famous. This drama, Mr. Gross maintained, was printed for private circulation some time before the appearance of the celebrated French play, and according to expert testimony, was the basis of Rostand's work. In court numerous parallels both of action and language were shown. The most important of the similarities in the two dramas was the wooing by proxy of the leading characters in a balcony scene—made notable in Cyrano by Mr. Mansfield's production.

BENVEH (Col.), May 21.—Richard Mansfield made the following statement this afternoon regarding the injunction issued by Judge Kohlsaat in the suit involving the rights to "Cyrano de Bergerac": "The decision of Judge Kohlsaat can have no effect upon the presentation of 'Cyrano de Bergerac' beyond the fact that Mr. Gross will receive royalties in the future instead of Mr. Rostand. What effect it will have in France is an entirely different matter, but it may probably result in the Theater Francaise and the great American and European artists overwhelming Mr. Gross with orders for plays and Chicago will in future be the center of another new industry."

DR. STEWART RESIGNS. BOSTON (Mass.), May 17.—It came as a surprise to the musical element of Boston today to learn that Dr. H. G. Stewart, organist at Trinity Episcopal Church, has resigned and will return to San Francisco. It is understood that Dr. Stewart's resignation is due to the fact that he is not in sympathy with the choir, which the vestry of Trinity has decided upon having. J. Wallace Goodrich, a prominent Boston musician, has been called to succeed Dr. Stewart.

BOSTON PHOTOS ADMIRER. MOSCOW, May 17.—Boston professional and amateur photographers are brilliantly represented at the photographic exhibition here. The pictures of the Americans are attracting much attention and admiration from Chinese, Japanese, Austrian, German, French, British and Austrian artists who are attending the exhibition. The Russian Artistic Photography society in evidence of its appreciation of the high character of the American exhibit has decided to take part in the photographic exhibition at Boston in August.

NO LOSS OF TIME. I have sold Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for years, and would rather be out of coffee and sugar than it. I sold five bottles of it yesterday to threshers that could go no farther, and they are at work again this morning.—H. R. Phelps, Plymouth, Okla., U.S.A. As will be seen by the above the threshers were able to keep on with their work without losing a single day's time. You should keep a bottle of this Remedy in your home. For sale by all dealers. Judge Humphreys this morning signed a decree in accordance with his decision in the case of John Kidwell vs. Frank Godfrey, ordering the latter to deed the Manoa property involved to Kidwell, also an injunction restraining Godfrey from prosecuting a suit to quiet title, now in court.

J. W. HALL'S DEFENSE

The trial of the J. W. Hall case was resumed before Judge Robinson this morning at 9 o'clock. C. H. Brown, a member of the Grand Jury, which presented the indictment, was called by the defense, to testify as to an alleged discrepancy between the date given by Mrs. Holt before the Grand Jury and the date given in the trial. It appeared that there was a month difference between her two statements. Kinney objected for the prosecution to the testimony, on the ground that it was not proper to attempt to impeach the witness without first confronting her with the discrepancy, but the testimony was allowed to go in.

The defendant took the stand as the last witness. He told a detailed story of the events of the day of the alleged assault upon the Holt girl, his narrative agreeing with that of his daughter and Mrs. Hall.

During a recess Juror Cooke took his wheel and rode to inspect certain premises involved in the case. When court resumed session, Judge Robinson observed him showing a diagram to another juror, and inquired about it. On finding out what Cooke had done the court suggested that all the jurors should make the similar visit. Kinney wanted to take them to each of the places described by the various witnesses, but De Bolt objected, and it was finally agreed to allow the case to proceed, without any such visits.

The witnesses for the defense were brought forward to show that on the night when the complaining witness stayed away from her home she was at the Hall home, and slept with Hall's young daughter. The latter testified to the girl coming to see her, remaining all day and leaving for home at night, only to return and say there was no one at home. It was stated that Hall had telephoned to the Holt residence to let the Holt family know where the girl was, but J. R. Holt and others in the house denied having received such a message.

The next morning Hall drove the young girl to see his new house in Kewalo, where the crime was alleged to have been committed. Mrs. Hall and the defendant's daughter testified that the young Holt girl asked to be allowed to go, and that Hall proposed that his wife go too. Mrs. Hall did not want to go, and Hall and the young Holt girl drove to the place together.

There were several witnesses in and about the house, waiting at the time, and they testified to seeing Hall and the girl visit the place. According to the girl's story it was here that the crime was committed. Most of the morning was spent here by Hall and Miss Holt, and shortly before noon Hall drove back to his home for lunch. The Holt girl came back alone. Then she went to her home where Holt scolded her for staying away all night, and she went and promised not to do so again. This was all that happened at that time, and it was not until weeks later that the alleged events of the day were learned by the Holt family, with the result that Hall was arrested.

Mrs. Hall sat by her husband during all of the hearing yesterday. The case attracted quite a number of listeners who appeared to enjoy the hearing, and the courtroom was well filled, most of the time during the trial. The complaining witness did not remain about the court. She was brought by Sister Albertina, and looked after by the latter. Several times during the taking of her testimony it was necessary for the court to adjourn, as the young girl appeared to give way, and could not be persuaded to answer questions. She told a story clearly implicating Hall, but differing in some respects, it is stated, from the story she related to the Grand Jury.

The evidence in the Hall rape case closed this morning, and arguments are on this afternoon.

Delicious Soda

Quality in soda is everything. Customers say ours has the flavor, snap and fiz that they enjoy and can't get elsewhere. But you are a good judge of soda. Pretty good idea to follow the crowd that comes here day after day. Must be some reason for it—there is! Soda is only a trifle. Most merchants treat it as a trifle. But with us this has the same careful attention that every other department of our business receives. We spare neither pains nor money to make it right. The water is carbonated on the premises. Fresh cream made daily from cow's milk; fruit flavors used exclusively. From start to finish it is absolutely right. Next month we move to our new store, Ehlers' block, Fort street, where more room can be spared for soda. We have some agreeable surprises in store in liquid refreshments. After we are well settled we will have an opening day, when every lady will receive a souvenir and free soda to everyone all day long.
