SUPREME COURT.

Chief Justice Judd sentenced W. Brauh, for embezzlement of the Typographical Union funds, to imprisonment at hard labor six months without costs. Ako, for larceny, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and be imprisoned at hard labor ten months.

The Supreme Court in banc as decided, in the submitted case of E. P. Oleson, master bark Ida, vs. Theo. H. Davies and Co., agents for Lloyds and Indemnity Mutual Insurance Co., as follows: We allow the plaintiff freight according with the accustomed rates for pickets, laths and short lengths, and also his necessary expenses for the removal from the dock, piloting and insurance of the cargo, but not for the expense for discharging the same, the charter party providing for the delivery of the cargo from the ship's tackle.

Chief Justice Judd at term this morning sentenced H. G. Stebbins, on his plea of guilty to forgery, to be imprisoned at hard labor six months and pay $50 fine. The indictment had been reserved from presentation, defendant being left off on his good behavior when sentenced, this term, for gross cheat. Having forfeited his chance the result is what is above stated. Stebbins begged the Court to allow him to leave the country, but His Honor could not do less than give him this comparatively light sentence—the offense making defendant liable to five years' imprisonment.

Before Mr. Justice McCully at chambers, Mrs. Annie S. Parke, executrix of the estate of W. C. Parke, had her petition granted for approval of accounts and discharge. Present: W. F. Allen and W. C. Parke. Receipts amounted to $42,460.61 and payments $41,228.92.

The owners of the barkentine Planter have settled with Nathan and Co. by paying $2600 and costs, for damages in mules killed on voyage from San Francisco by falling iron pipe.

Judge William D. Kelley of Pennsylvania died at Washington Jan. 9, in his 76th year. He had a remarkable career, beginning as a poor fatherless boy. While working at the jeweler's trade he studied hard, wrote for the press, and took an active hand in politics. He attained to the bar, the bench, and the Legislature, and was nicknamed "Pigiron Kelley."

THE CATHOLIC FAIR.

A Fine Success—Perfect Arrangements and Lucrative Result.

The Catholic Ladies' Benevolent Society is to be congratulated on its fair of yesterday afternoon and evening. Arrangements of a perfect description had been made by the ladies, the only deficiency apparent being in the matter of space. The Arion Hall, where the fair was held, was handsomely decked with flags, foliage, and flowers. The various booths and stands were charmingly designed and decorated. A large lot of useful and fancy articles was displayed, abundance of refreshments was provided, and the selection of flowers on sale was gorgeous.

Mrs. E. S. Cunha and Mrs. J. F. Bowler had charge of the first booth, where a great variety of attractive articles was exposed. The sales were brisk. The second booth, in the same line, was conducted by Mrs. Cowes and Mrs. Rodanet, being well patronized. Mrs. W. L. Wilcox had charge of the Hawaiian booth, having many attractive articles of native make to dispose of, which drew a steady throng of buyers.

Mrs. J. W. McDonald and Mrs. G. Walter conducted the refreshment department with ability. Miss Brickwood dispensed lemonade to the charity thirsty. Mrs. Sims dealt out "sweets to the sweet." Mrs. Kennedy served the cooling ice cream. Mrs. T. S. Douglas, with irresistible grace compelled the most Philistine to be esthetic for once with a button-hole bouquet. A corps of young ladies also drove a thriving peripatetic trade in the floral line. Miss Phoebe Herick lured many honest souls into a game of grab.

Mr. H. J. Nolte made a gift of the coffee. Mrs. Kennedy of the ice cream. The Royal Hawaiian Band played throughout the fair. The hall was incessantly thronged, a great many ladies and children being there in the afternoon. These, moving about constantly with their variegated dresses in the fairylike environment, completed a charming scene. The hall being granted free and the supplies being all gratuitous, all the proceeds, amounting to over $1100, go to the charitable object of relieving the wants of distressed and destitute Catholics.

PUBLIC MOONLIGHT CONCERT.

A CHECKERED CAREER.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Mr. Kinney will be entitled to adopt a chess-board as his coat of arms, if he continues to add checks to his public record. A few weeks ago he was whooping up the rights of working-men, his agitation resulting in the workingmen organizing to secure those rights. Then Mr. Kinney turns round and slaps the working-men in the face, classing them (as he did at the fourth ward club organization meeting) virtually as a combination of red republicans and rabid reactionists.

Mr. Kinney on the same occasion said that the Reform Party was drawing near to the people. If the people have drawn away from the Reform Party, the natural thing is for the Reform Party to close up the gap by shifting its seat. That is the way I used to do when courting, if I thought Susan was only fooling.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The bark Hesper has been moored at the Pacific Mail Company's wharf to discharge her 1,148 tons of coal.
The bark S C Allen will load sugar for San Francisco after the departure of the bark Ceylon.
The brigantine Douglas and the barks Andrew Welch, H. Hackfeld, and C D Bryant finished discharging their general cargo to-day. The last named vessel will leave for San Francisco within a fortnight.
The American bkine Amelia, Captain Win Newhall, will sail for San Francisco en route to the Sound to-morrow morning or Sunday morning. She takes about 700 tons sugar. Mr McGraw, a young man who has been employed at the Honolulu Iron Works as assistant draughtsman, will take passage by her on his way to the Sound.

W. O. Smith and Henry Waterhouse.

What is now the First District of Honolulu furnished nine members of the last Legislature. It yields fourteen candidates to the present election contest.

THE retirement of W. L. Green from the management of the Western and Hawaiian Investment Co., and the succession of J. B. Atherton to the position, are announced.

His Majesty returned from Kailua by the W. G. Hall this afternoon. He was welcomed with royal salutes from the shore battery, the U. S. S. Mohican, and H. B. M. S. Champion.

THE cleansing of the city is being pushed by Health Inspector G. W.
C. Jones. There are now no indications of diphtheria. The death rate for this month will be found distressingly high.

THERE was a lengthy trial in the Police Court to-day, of a native woman charged with larceny of a watch and chain. She was discharged. There was one fine, $3, for drunkenness.

A MEETING called by Mr. Marques, N. E. P. candidate for Representative in District 3, will be held at the Honolulu Rifles Armory this evening.
Other candidates will speak and electors of other districts are invited.

BENITO IGNACIO fired five shots from a revolver, ostensibly at a cat. His aim must have been dangerously uncertain, for a woman has had him arrested for assault with a deadly weapon. It was murder so far as the cat was concerned.

At the close of registration in the second precinct, third district, yesterday evening, the rolls stood—for Representatives, 325; for Nobles, 180.
A few more voters may register this last day, with Mr. Henry Smith at the Government building.

keep good cigars?

Cigar Man—Certainly we do.

Jags—You're foolish; you ought to tell them.

THE REFORM PARTY.

Mass Meeting in the Fourth District—Large Attendance and Great Enthusiasm.

The old Armory was well filled yesterday evening, in response to the call for a mass meeting of the Reform Party. Many representative citizens from all over the city joined fourth district electors in the assembly.

Mr. J. H. Fisher called the meeting to order and nominated Mr. T.
C. Porter as chairman, who was elected by acclamation. Mr. E. O.
White was then called forward as secretary. Mr. W. L. Wilcox was appointed interpreter.

His Excellency L. A. Thurston, Minister of the Interior, was the first speaker. He quoted Chauncey Depew of New York as styling the old Bourbon democracy as having learned nothing and forgot nothing, while the new democracy learned nothing and forgot everything. The speaker considered the Opposition Party of Hawaii like this in having learned nothing. They were familiar with the history of this country for years past, in its relations with France, with England, with the United States. The people had seen bloodshed through the teachings of that party the past year, yet the talk employed by the Opposition now was the same as that which incited this bloodshed. The question was a live issue at this election, of our relations with our great neighbor the United States. The Opposition charged that the Ministry were trying to sell out the country to the United States, and making faces to that nation to get her to gobble us up. They talked as if the United States were waiting for a chance to seize this country, forgetting the historical facts that abounded against such a notion. In 1839 a French man-of-war came to this port under the command of Laplace, and made demands for $20,000 damages in cold cash for purported injuries done French citizens. The Government had to hunt round for money to satisfy the demands, or allow the ship to burn down the town. At the mouth of the cannon they forced the Government to sign a treaty granting concessions to France most unjust to this country, stipulating that merchandise from France should never be charged more than five percent duty. In 1843 a treaty was made between England and France not to interfere with the independence of these islands. It was no treaty with this country, but between those two Powers for their own objects. Then in 1849 another French warship came in with demands containing ten specifications, on the refusal of which the King would be deposed and the islands seized. One demand was that all correspondence with France should be in the French language, the second that a French inspector should be appointed for the Catholic schools, the fifth that the offense of a boy who had dabbled in the holy water in the Catholic church should not be repeated, the sixth that compensation should be given for damage done by English sailors in a Frenchman's saloon after getting drunk on his own brandy sold them.
Further, the warship committed various outrages here, ending with stealing the King's yacht and taking it to Tahiti. Some of the demands were withdrawn, but soon after an agent of this Government had returned from France, where he was trying to secure a guarantee that similar outrages would not be repeated, another French warship arrived with another string of absurd demands. The Legislature then passed a joint resolution authorizing Kamehameha III, in the event of further annoyance, to seek the aid of some friendly Power, or take such other action as he deemed wise in any emergency. The speaker was now going to state some facts from the secret history of this country, which were known to very few people in this country. The King called the British Consul, General Miller, into consultation and offered to cede the islands to Great Britain in order to escape the exactions of France.
Consul Miller said it could not be done, owing to the treaty between Great Britain and France. The Government then laid the situation before United States Consul Severance, father of the present United States Consul-General here, and asked him if the United States would undertake the protection of the independence of the kingdom, and Consul Severance said she would (applause). He would now read the treaty then made with the United States, thus making it for the first time public.

We, Kamehameha III, by the grace of God of the Hawaiian Islands, King:

By and with the advice of our kubina nui and counselors of native chiefs, finding our relations with France so oppressive to our Kingdom so inconsistent with its rights as an independent state, and so obstructive of all our endeavors to administer the Government of our Islands with equal justice with all nations and equal independence of all foreign control, and despairing of equity and justice from France, hereby proclaim as our royal will and pleasure that all our Islands and all our rights as sovereign over them are from the date hereof placed under the protection and safeguard of the United States of America until some arrangements can be made to place our said relations with France upon a footing compatible with my rights as an independent sovereign under the laws of nations and compatible with my treaty engagements with other foreign nations; or if such arrangements be found impracticable, then is our wish and pleasure that the protection aforesaid under the United States of America be perpetual.

And we further proclaim as aforesaid that from the date of publication hereof the flag of the United States of America shall be hoisted above the national ensign on all our forts and places and vessels navigating with Hawaiian registers.

Done at our Palace at Honolulu, this tenth day of [L.S.] March, A. D. 1855 and in the twenty-sixth year of our reign.

(Signed,) KAMEHAMEHA.

(Signed,) KEONI ANA.

The King who thus ceded to the United States the independence of this country was Kamehameha, the King who gave the people their lands, the greatest King this country had from Kamehameha I, and he did it because he trusted the United States. The French warship shortly afterward cleared out, and it was an interesting fact that the U. S. S. Vandalia (so long in this port before going on her ill-fated visit to Samoa) was in port at the time and did valuable service to the Government. Under that treaty special flags were made of the American flag sewed above the Hawaiian flag, and Marshal Farke had one ready to hoist on the fort when ever the Frenchmen landed. That treaty was in the hands of Daniel Webster, Secretary of State, and by keeping still America could have what the Opposition charged the Ministers with casting sheep's eyes across the water for now. But, no, the American Government said that Hawaii was forced into this situation by France, and therefore it would be ungenerous to take advantage of the kingdom's extremity.
So it was through the generosity of the United States Government that the Hawaiian flag has continued ever since to float over this country.
(Great applause.) The speaker briefly recited the story of the seven months' possession of the islands by Great Britain in 1813, better known than the French episode from the celebration for a great many years of the restoration of the Hawaiian flag. It was at this time that an American Admiral, when his salute of the Hawaiian flag was protested against by Lord George Paulet, replied that if this commander did not like his saluting he could lump it.
(Laughter and applause.) Great Britain by Admiral Thomas nobly atoned for the humiliation of this kingdom at that time, and she had been a good friend to this country ever since. But when they looked at what England had done under that treaty with France, and how the United States acted, could there be any doubt as to what nation was our best friend? (Applause.) The Foreign Office was full of correspondence from the time when the American missionaries came, down to the last mail when despatches arrived promising a guarantee of the kingdom's independence, against all countries, itself—the United States —included. (Loud applause.) Yet the Opposition had the cool impudence to tell us we must go to France for a guarantee of our independence (laughter). They charged Thurston and Damon and other "damned missionaries" with trying to sell the islands. He could tell them that the men who were doing all they could to make the country lose its independence were Robert Wilcox and other "patriotic" leaders who were stirring up trouble. It would not take many thirtieths of July to destroy the independence of the country, for such disorder would not be tolerated by friendly Powers without their stepping in to interfere. (Loud applause.) The Opposition had a long platform with some good things in it, but their candidates instead of discussing the platform were abusing the other candidates. Referring especially to Robert Wilcox in this connection, the speaker related what he had done for this man on his return from Italy. He got him a place in the water works bureau at $100 a month, but he declined it because it involved keeping a tally in feet and inches, when he had been educated in metres. (Loud laughter.) And Wilcox slowly walked out of that room to despair and revolution.
(Loud applause.) It was that young man's complaint that he was recalled when two years were lacking of his nine years' course, and he supposed that if he had gone on paying $2,000 a year for his education, he would return able to translate metres into feet, and they would be very proud of him in his Italian uniform. (Laughter.) The BULLETIN said there were no issues before the people, but he thought it made a good deal of difference to them whether the country should continue to be governed as it had been during the past two years, or have Wilcox sitting in the Government building in his Italian uniform, and Bush alongside of him making bridge contracts. Mr. Thurston sat down amidst loud applause.

Hon. Alex. Young was introduced as the man at the head of the mechanical industry of the country.

Mr. Young disclaimed that he was disgruntled, as had been represented, at not receiving a nomination.
The matter was left to the convention, and all should be satisfied with the result as he was, although having expected to be nominated. By the illustration of what wise men would do in private affairs, he urged the wisdom of selecting experienced men to conduct our public affairs. The Opposition expected Wilcox and Bush would bring the millenium, but oranges need not be sought on prickly pear bushes (laughter). "Can an Ethiopian change his skin, or a leopard his spots? Then how can a man accustomed to evil learn to do well?" On the other hand, there was not a man on the Reform ticket to whom untold gold could not be trusted. Their platform was one that he did not wonder should be stolen. It was a great treat for him to have heard the bit of history given by Mr.

Thurston, but it only confirmed what he knew before. The Opposition charging the Reform Party with trying to sell the country were like the moles whose presence could not be discovered but for the dirt they threw up (laughter). Viewing the progress made under the Reform Government, he did not believe that one man in the party desired to see the country anything but independent. They knew who was the country's best friend. He was a Britisher but did not wish to see the country under British rule (applause). They were charged with being traitors for trying to increase relations with the States. He had lately been on Uncle Sam's territory and knew that Uncle Sam did not want this gem of the Pacific.
He did not know who were the "damned missionaries," unless they were those who tried to pay their quarterly accounts (laughter); but it seemed what was meant was all who had any interest in the country.
He would sooner have his throat cut than do anything that would make this country any harder for the Hawaiians. It was not altogether the Opposition that misrepresented them, but the mean tools that party had to work with—those miserable falsifiers, as he had to describe them, although he had not intended to say any hard things that night.
Native Hawaiians should not believe the election charges that the Reform Party wanted to sell the country. None of them wanted but that the Hawaiian flag should wave over the islands for thousands of years.
The Opposition made a great handle of the Chinese question—that was what knocked him out he believed (laughter). He was not killed, however, but as strong for the party outside as he would be in the House.
The Reform Party was prepared to give what could have been best session only for the unfortunate absence of Messrs. Kinney, Baldwin, and Foster. It would have been got, anyway, if Mr. Kinney had introduced it, in the first place, in the shape in which it was left. The speaker had been villainously misrepresented and vilified on this question by men from whom other things should have been expected (applause). He was confident the Reform Party if given a majority would satisfactorily deal with the question. He was not disgruntled although a little disappointed, but would vote the straight ticket and hoped they should all do likewise. Yet, if any of them were inclined to do any scratching they should be careful what they were doing, as two different terms mean could not be crossed without spoiling the ballot for both. (Applause.)

Mr. S. M. Kaaukai said he would consider himself fortunate if he received the votes of half the gentlemen present. By naive illustrations that kept the audience roaring, he imparted advice to the electors as to the choice they should make. The Opposition speakers by their language indicated they thought that there were not enough people in the country who used bad language. They said some good things but drifted into foul talk and discussion of the country's independence. If such events as those of the 30th July were continued, then their independence would surely go.
Oppositionists said the country would lose its independence through the success of the Reform Party, but failed to show how that was to happen. The improvements in the country made under the Reform Party proved that the talk of the Opposition was idle. He was now going to assume the cheek of asking them to vote for him next Wednesday (laughter), and it would be their fault if he should be left. Vote the Reform ticket and don't forget Kaaukai (laughter and applause).

Mr. Jas. F. Morgan received an ovation on coming forward. He told of a remark made to him by a candidate for Noble on the National Reform ticket at the first of the campaign, that their side would use honorable tactics. Look at them now—the speeches of Wilcox, and denials of them in their paper, the BULLETIN—the stirring up of race prejudice by other candidates. One of the Noble candidates said the night before that the Hawaiians were slaves, using Rienzi's address to the Romans. Could anything be more ridiculous?
(Laughter.) The speaker gave an instance from a recent sale of the advance that had taken place in property. Mechanics had his thorough sympathy and he was sorry to see the position some of them had assumed, but one of the Union had told him they were getting sick of it —the concern was being run for and by a half-dozen—and while he and others would not come out now they would vote the Reform ticket (applause). He had been accused of being in favor of Chinese, but he could prove he was a white man.

When a petition was circulated by the Chinese asking the King to veto the Chinese Accounts Act, he refused to sign it along with other merchants; but only the house of H.
Hackfeld & Co. and himself had held out, the consequence being that he was boycotted in Chinese business several months (great applause). He preferred the candidacy for Representative to being on the Noble ticket, because he liked to have a man to beat. The speaker referred to a canvass against him on the ground that he sold mortgaged lands. This was in the regular course of his business for which he showed a license. He would, however, show them the relations the "little red lion" of the fourth ward bore to mortgages, and proceeded to read a list of mortgages, with interest ranging from twelve to eighteen per cent, on which Mr. Lucas was the mortgagee. He had his business to attend to, but for the rest of the campaign he should run a menagerie, and use his best endeavors to cage that "little red lion" and clip him. (Loud laughter and applause.)

Mr. T. J. King proposed that the foreigners present should show Mr.
Kaaukai how they would stand for him on election day, and nearly all present rose and cheered for Kaau-kai. Then, with cheers for the candidates, the meeting dispersed.

Views of the British Press.

The Equitable shows figures equal to those of the national balance sheets of some very respectable-sized States.—[The Insurance World of London.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society is a colossal institution. It is unique in its position and marvelous in its record. It occupies the highest place among kindred institutions.—[The Irish Insurance Banking and Financial Journal.

It is no use disguising the fact that the Equitable holds a remarkable position among the Insurance offices of the World. It does a larger business, holds a larger surplus and gives a better contract than any other company.—[Leamington Spa Courier.

With the pitiful system of state insurance in Germany compare what is done by some of the great private Assurance Companies, by the greatest of them all, for instance, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.—[Dudlin Lyceum.

The largest of American Life Offices and therefore the largest in the World is the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U. S.—[Fairplay of London.

The office that has done the most in promoting safe and liberal Life Insurance is the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U. S.—[London Society.
