HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

MOUNTAIN VIEW ON THE VOLCANO ROAD TO BE SOLD.

V. M. Fulcher, of Olaa, the Purchaser—All Arrangements Concluded for the Transfer—Remarks on Coffee.

V. M. Fulcher, a merchant and prominent coffee raiser of Olaa, has been in the city some days concluding arrangements for the purchase of additional coffee area near his place of business—sixteen and a half miles on the volcano road, known as Mountain View. The property belongs to J. H. Wilson, of Hilo, who established it in connection with his stage route to the volcano for the purpose of breaking the up journey and furnishing refreshment to man and beast alike. There is a commodious building on the property, now being used as an hotel, together with out houses and stable room. The value of the place, however, lies in the seven acres of coffee, now in a bearing state.

Mr. Fulcher has about concluded the purchase of the tract, and came down here to confer with Land Commissioner Brown regarding the issuance of a Government patent to Mr. Wilson. There is nothing in the way of this being done, as all the conditions of the lease have been complied with.

It is the intention of Mr. Fulcher to conduct the place as an hotel, his store being but a few feet away. His family, however, will remain at the homestead, five miles further up the road, on which are some twenty-five acres of coffee in good condition.

"Everything looks remarkably well in Olaa," said Mr. Fulcher. "The people are enthusiastic over the prospects of coffee. It can be safely said that the experimental stage has passed. Those engaged in coffee raising up in Olaa have got a good thing, and they know it."

Mr. Fulcher will return home by the Kinaiu tomorrow morning.

MUSIC FOR THE LITTLE ONES.
The regular monthly social gathering of the Kindergartens took place on the Queen Emma hall grounds this morning. The Government band played from 10 to 12 o'clock. There were a number of spectators gathered at the hall.

ACCEPTS THE POSITION

MANAGER AHRENS TO DIRECT THE NEW PLANTATION.

Will Take Hold in February—Work Will Be Commenced at Once—Land Now Being Cleared—Bananas rooted.

Mr. A. Ahrens today notified First Vice President Dillingham and other officers of the Oahu Sugar company of his acceptance of the position of general manager of the new sugar plantation. He will not take hold until the latter part of February.

The Waianae Sugar Plantation, of which Mr. Ahrens is at present manager, have considered no one to fill the vacancy which will be made by the change. Mr. H. A. Widemann stated today that Mr. Ahrens has been with the Waianae plantation for seventeen years, ever since he first landed in Hawaii. He had made a marvelous success out of Waianae and would surely keep up his reputation by his management of the new plantation.

The salary attendant on the position of manager of the new plantation is said to be a large one.

Mr. Dillingham said this morning that work was commenced on the plantation this morning. Laborers are clearing 150 acres of the land of the banana trees and when this has been done will plant sugar cane seed. This will grow until July, when the first crop of 1,500 acres will be planted. This will grow until January 1, 1898.

Were it not for the lateness of the season a larger acreage might be put in.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Anonymous Writer Makes Charges Against a Teacher.

A diligent hunt has been inaugurated by the Board of Education for the author of an anonymous letter which found its way to the meeting table a couple of weeks ago. In the letter charges were preferred against Mr. Scribner of Hanapepe school. That gentleman has made a general denial of the complaints made. An agent of the Board appointed to investigate the matter reported yesterday that C. D. Pringle was in no way involved in the matter.

The salary of Miss Helen Severance of the Hilo school was fixed at $600 a year.

School Agent Lindsay at Hamakua filed his report of expenditures to the school houses in his district. He states that more money is needed for this purpose.

C. D. Pringle's application for the position of principal of a proposed new school at Kahuku was postponed.

The position of instructor of the Pohakupuku school was made vacant. The Kawaihoenuku school was ordered closed. Another school will be opened near by.

The Board has under consideration a suggestion to do away with the knife work in the Waimea Boys' School on Hawaii and to introduce agricultural work. Principal Vredenberg has given it as his opinion that agricultural employment would be better.

Principal Osmer Abbott, of the Lahainaluna school, was before the Board and gave information touching upon the wants of the school. This is an agricultural school and no other school on the islands is operated in the same way. Minister Cooper thought that a special appropriation should be made to this school. He asked that the matter lay over a week.

INCASED IN A COPPER JAR.

The Remains of the late Kate Field are incased and locked in a small cylindrical jar of polished copper. There is no inscription on the shining surface of the improvised urn. Passing over the top of the plain copper and through three little clasps, one on the cover and one on each side, is a narrow lavender ribbon, to which is attached a card bearing the customary record from the crematory, together with the name and dates. The ends of the ribbon are fastened together below the card by a disc of black sealing wax, upon which is the lettered impress of the "Odd Fellows'" crematory. A little brass padlock clasped through staples holds the cover securely in place.

"EVERY LITTLE HELPS."

The very smallest reduction made on staple dry goods at Kerr's means a great deal to purchasers. We are at present supplying about three-fourths of the population of Honolulu with dry goods, and are now straining a point or two to catch the remaining fourth. Will you help us to do it?

CHINESE IN THE SCHOOLS

YOUTHS FROM CHINA SENT TO BE EDUCATED.

Special Class to Be Formed for Chinese Above the School Age—Number of Scholars Weeded from Schools.

For some time past a question has confronted those who are in charge of the educational matters of the country which has caused them no end of worry. It was the question of what to do with the Chinese who have been crowding into the Government schools eager to acquire an English education.

A brief spell back, Principal Wells, of the Honolulu Chinese School, complained to the Board that his classes were greatly overcrowded and further that many Chinese were attending the school who were entitled to vote as far as age was concerned, several years ago.

The educational commissioners at once designated Deputy Inspector General Scott to look into the matter. Full authority to take the proper steps to weed out the classes was also vested in him.

Mr. Scott entered in upon this assignment this week. He assisted Mr. Wells in reorganizing his classes. In so doing nearly a dozen Chinese who were over the school age, were forced out of the school. In the future Principal Wells will receive no grown up Chinese in his school.

William A. Bowen, at the regular weekly meeting of the Board held yesterday afternoon, took steps to establish a school for the older Chinese boys. Rev. Frank W. Damon had kindly consented to tender the use of one of the rooms in the Mills' Institute for a school room, and Mr. Bowen suggested that Allen W. Walcott be made teacher. The school committee has the matter under advisement.

Minister of Foreign Affairs Cooper, who is also president of the Board of Education, states that the excellent advantages to secure an English education afforded by the Hawaiian Government, has attracted the attention of Chinese parents way over in the Celestial Empire and that they were rapidly bringing their children to this country on this account.

There are numerous private Chinese schools in the city which are maintained by the Chinese themselves. A club is formed and each pays his share toward paying for the time of the teacher employed.

SPECIAL COURT TERM.

Owing to the inability of some native witnesses to travel to Honolulu from Waialua, it has been decided to hold a special term at the latter place to dispose of a case that has been partially heard here. Judge Perry will preside. He, with Attorneys Robertson, Kinney, Stenographer Jones and Interpreter Wilcox, will leave by private conveyance early Friday morning. Court will be held during the afternoon, the party returning Saturday.

BRANCH STORE.

The firm of Castle & Cooke will establish a branch store the first week in February. Half of the new Waverly block on Bethel street will be occupied. A complete line of household goods and small hardware will be carried. There will be three entrances to the new store. It is likely that Mr. E. Benner will be placed in charge.

CIRCUIT COURT NOTES.

An Appeal from a District Court Judgment.

An answer has been filed by some of the defendants in M. F. Scott, et al. vs. Mrs. E. N. Pilipo, et al., bill for partition of real property in North Kona.

Ed A. Williams, by his attorney, Geo. A. Davis, has appealed from a judgment in the District Court, on a promissory note for $247.35 in favor of Ordway & Porter.

The Supreme Court met this morning to hear the case of H. Cannon vs. Henry Poor, but on request of counsel, adjournment was made until Monday.

Ah Hing has appealed from a decision of the District Court, convicting him of playing che fa.

Ah King made a similar appeal against conviction for opium in possession.

EX-MARSHAL HOPKINS DECLARES HIMSELF FOR ANNEXATION.

He Has Signed the Roll—A Military Company Signs to a Man—Suggestion for the Military Meeting.

Since John Lot Kaulukou, attorney and ex-marshal of the Hawaiian kingdom declared himself for annexation Charles L. Hopkins, at one time marshal of Hawaii during the reign of King Kalakaua, has come forward and announced that he desires to see his country absorbed by the greater Republic.

Mr. Hopkins appended his signature to the annexation membership roll in the office of Mr. P. C. Jones. He states that he knows that annexation will be the best thing for this country and he believes it would be to the best interests of all Hawaiians. Mr. Hopkins has voluntarily promised to lend his hearty support to the movement.

A number of natives, and prominent ones, too, have gone over into the annexation columns during the past fortnight.

The military companies are beginning to send in their annexation lists. Company E signed the roll to a man. Capt. Zeigler's company will do likewise. The other companies already have good representations. The lists among the military will all be in next week.

It has been suggested by some annexation officers interested in the matter that it would be best for the military men who attend the annexation meeting next week to dress in civilian's clothes. No lines would then be drawn and it would be more of a general affair.

MUSICIANS WILL MEET.

Tonight is the time set for the reorganization of the Y. M. C. A. orchestra. The meeting will be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall. A leader will be chosen and the first rehearsal will be given, after the business has been disposed of. Every member of the orchestra, both old and new, is earnestly requested to be on hand this evening.

A FINE COLT.

Tom Hollinger is a happy man today and the possessor of a brand new and thoroughbred youngster of the equine species. His fine black pacing mare Gerster foaled a horse colt this morning, the sire being Creole. Tom is ready to make a match with any colt by the same horse of a like age, either as a yearling or two-year old.

CAPT. KANAE LEAVES THE FORCE.

Police Capt. Kanae was today dismissed from the police service by Marshal Brown. His successor has not been selected as yet.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Some Talk of a Match Between Local Players.

A number of tennis players were congregated on a downtown corner today talking over matters pertaining to the racket and ball. They were desirous of having a big tournament in May and were afraid that unless the officers of the Hawaiian Tennis association took some steps toward arranging for the meet very shortly that it would be impossible to have a thoroughly successful match, as the players would have no time in which to practice.

The tennis association has given one tournament since its organization. The Pacific Tennis, Valley and Berehana clubs make up the association.

TO COMPILE STATISTICS.

Health Agent Reynolds is to have an opportunity of furthering a pet measure of his, that of compiling statistics of births, deaths and marriages. He will visit the different islands shortly, for that purpose. Mr. Reynolds will endeavor to impress upon the different agents of the Board of Health the vital importance of making specific reports on the matter.

A CURE FOR LAME BACK.

"My daughter, when recovering from an attack of fever, was a great sufferer from pain in the back and hips," writes Loudon Grover, or Sardis, Ky. "After using quite a number of remedies without any benefit she tried one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and it has given entire relief." Chamberlain's Pain Balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. Sold by all druggists and dealers. Benson, Smith & Co., wholesale agents, H. I.

RECEIVE A SEVERE JOLT

BICYCLE RIDERS DISSATISFIED WITH THEIR TROPHIES.

War Now On Among the Local Athletes and Wheelmen—All Over the Distribution of Prizes—Awards.

There are "sore feelings" among the members of the Honolulu Amateur Athletic Club, and it is all over the distribution of prizes for the athletic and bicycle events at the field sports at Kapiolani park on Saturday. The bicycle boys claim that they have got decidedly the worst of it and they intend to play even at the first opportunity.

When the field day was first suggested, a dissension was created among the members on the matter of having the bicycle races in the program. It was finally determined to allow these races. Now that the sports are over, those who opposed the bicycle races from the first, have made their fine Italian hand felt by cutting down the prizes to what the bicycle members of the club call "an insignificant lot of rot."

A committee, composed of Charles Crane, George Angus and T. V. King, appointed to solicit the prizes, did not accomplish its work, owing to a pressure of time. Mr. Smithies was asked to make a canvass, which he did, collecting $110. The prizes were not determined upon until a meeting last evening in the Y. M. C. A. hall. Gold medals, valued at $5, and silver medals were awarded as first and second prizes in the athletic events. The bicycle prizes were decided upon as follows:

1. One mile novice—First prize: Trophy valued at $12. Second prize: Trophy valued at $6.
2. Half-mile Handicap—First prize: Trophy valued at $15. Second prize: Trophy valued at $5.
3. One mile Novelties—First quarter: Trophy valued at $5. Second quarter: Trophy valued at $5. Third quarter: Trophy valued at $5. Fourth quarter (race)—Trophy valued at $7.50.
4. One mile (3-minute class)—First prize—Trophy valued at $12. Second prize—Trophy valued at $6.
5. One mile invitation (not decided)—First prize—Trophy valued at $15.
7. Three mile Lap—First prize—Walker medal and trophy valued at $50. Second prize—Trophy valued at $5.
8. Tandem—First prize—Trophy valued at $15. Second prize—Trophy valued at $5.

Here is where the rub between the athletic and bicycle members of the club comes in. The latter claim that they have been faithful in their training. That they have neglected their Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's dinners, as well as deprived themselves of other pleasures in order that they might put up good races. Another contention is that they run the risk of smashing their wheels, paid out money for training and in a nutshell, the majority of the people were out to witness the bicycle races.

The Athletic Club has over $300 in the treasury and the bicycle boys want the club to expend some of this money in order that decent prizes might be presented.

But the majority of the club say "nay." They give it out cold that the money is going to stay in the treasury.

This explains the prevalence of "bad blood" in the H. A. A. C.

A spin to Waikiki and back was taken by the Meteor Club last evening.

say that what is objectionable to the palate (whether food or medicine) is of very little benefit to the system. This, probably, accounts, at least to some degree, for the failure of cod liver oil, to be of use in so many cases. Hitherto its nauseous, disgusting taste has been, to most people, an insuperable objection. This obstacle is now, for the first time, wholly overcome in Wampole's Preparation made from Fresh Livers which contains only the flesh-building and medicinal power of the oil. The taste and even the smell are thoroughly disguised. The most sensitive palate will no longer recognize its old abomination. In addition to the reconstructed oil, the Preparation has the rare curative virtues of the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry Bark. It enriches the blood, agrees with the digestion, repairs waste, renews strength and vigor and prevents and cures Fevers, Malaria, Rheumatism, Bowel Complaints, Scrofula, General Debility, Lung troubles, Skin affections, and all diseases due to impurity of the blood. It is a medicine worthy of the close of this brilliant century—something "up to date." See signature and trade mark on label. Gives results from the first dose. For sale by all druggists.

TWO ISLAND STEAMERS ARRIVE WITH SUGAR.

Coal Vessels Due—Alice Cooke to Be Cleaned—Bridge Spans for Hawaii—Capt. Soule to Visit Europe.

Very quiet day along the docks. A number of coal vessels are due. Steamer Kinan will sail on her regular route tomorrow.

The Coptic may be looked for from the coast any time tomorrow.

Brewer's dock is now occupied by the Ceylon, waiting to load sugar.

The schooner Alice Cooke went on the marine railway this morning for a cleaning.

At last accounts there were sixty vessels at San Francisco awaiting cargoes.

Anchor Row received an addition this morning by the Transit moving from Brewer's wharf.

The Waialeale arrived this morning with 3054 bags Kilauea sugar. It was transferred to the W. G. Irwin.

The James Makee came in from Kapa this morning with 2600 bags sugar. This was put into the brig W. G. Irwin.

The Lurline is at the Nuuanu street wharf. Capt. Brown said this morning he did not know when the vessel would leave.

Barkentine J. M. Griffith has commenced discharging her cargo of lumber for the Oahu Lumber Co. at the railway wharf.

A number of bridge spans for Honolulu will be taken by the Lehua today. The Kinan will carry a lot for Hilo, to be used at Kawaiuea.

Capt. Johnson, of the S. C. Allen, recently presented Capt. Thompson, formerly master of that vessel, with a handsome gold watch and chain.

The dredger cutter is being repaired and other improvements made about the machine, including a coat of paint. The smokestack bears a carmine color.

Capt. Soule, master, and part owner of the Martha Davis, is to go to Europe after making another trip to the islands. The company in which he is interested is having a new iron vessel built over there and Capt. Soule has been selected to bring her out.

The British tramp steamer Aswanby, which recently arrived at Portland in ballast from Japan, left Astoria on December 30 for Australia, carrying a cargo of 46,668 barrels of flour and 10,364 bushels of wheat, the total value of the cargo being $231,118. This is the first steamer ever loaded at Portland for Australia with a similar cargo.

There is at present in France a tendency to work very large sailing vessels. A shipping firm which already owns a considerable number, has given an order for another group, and it is said that other firms intend to follow their example. These vessels pay well for many reasons, mainly because, as soon as they are launched from French dockyards, the shipping bounty is enough to defray the greater part of their cost.

The Collector of the Port at San Francisco is in receipt of the sailing regulations for the current year. With the exception of two minor changes they are the same as for 1896. It is now provided that all American vessels must have special clearance papers setting forth, among other things, the object of the voyage and the kind of weapons used by the hunters. Foreign vessels will not be permitted to hunt within the three-mile limit under penalty of seizure.

AURORA ON THE YUKON.

The Unwarming Light Flashes on Frozen Rivers and Great Snow Banks.

During the winter months the aurora on the Yukon is very brilliant and intensely beautiful. It commences early in the fall, and lasts with more or less brilliancy, throughout the long arctic winter. It generally commences upon the setting of the sun, although in midwinter it has sometimes been so bright that it was visible at noon while the sun was shining brightly. The rays of the light first shoot forth with a quick, quivering motion, are then gathered and form a great arch of fire spanning the heavens. It glows for an instant like a girdle of burnished gold; then, unfolding, great curtains of light drop forth. These royal mantles of bright orange, green, pink, rose, yellow and crimson are suspended and waved between heaven and earth as with an invisible hand. The rapid vibrations and scintillations of light and blending colors are intensely bewildering and superbly beautiful. The whole phenomena of waving wreaths, flickering flames, rays, curtains, fringes, bands and flashing colors, the strange confusion of light and motion, now high in the heavens, then dropping like curtains of gold and silver lace, sparkling with a wealth of rubies, sapphires, emeralds and diamonds, penetrating dark gulches and darting through somber green forests, lighting the wh'is landscapes as with a thousand electric lamps, form a very poor idea. This unwarming light, as it flashes along the frozen rivers, the great banks of snow, and reveals the huge mountains of glistening ice and black lines of fir, indeed, is of the purest arctic cast, and causes one to button his coat closer over his chest, and with a shiver he is glad to seek a light of less brilliancy, but one of life giving warmth.

At the breaking up of winter the hours of sunshine are rapidly increasing, and continue so until midsummer, when the sun beams forth 22 hours out of the 24, while on the high mountain peaks it is for a period of several days in June not entirely out of sight during the 24 hours. During the months of July and August the weather becomes very warm, and even hot, and miners are glad to seek a shady retreat in which to do their labor. After this period the hours of sunshine gradually decrease, until during the shortest days the sun shines but 4 hours out of the 24. But at this period the aurora is very intense and helps very materially in driving darkness from that dreary land. The thermometer goes down to 70 degrees below zero in winter, but the atmosphere is very dry, and consequently the cold is not so perceptible as one would imagine.—Alaska News.

Hawaiian Electric Company.

The cleanest, brightest safest and really, in the long run, the cheapest and best light for use in the family residence, is the incandescent electric light. Safe; nothing could be safer. A few days ago a prominent gentleman of Honolulu came rushing down to the office of the Electric Company and said: "Give me figures for wiring my house, and I want it done at once; no more lamps for me. Last night a lamp tipped over and it came so near setting fire to the house and burning my children and I take no more risks."

This is the sentiment of quite a number in the past few weeks, who have ordered their houses fitted with the perfect light. Just think it over and make up your mind that you want the best and safest light; send for the Hawaiian Electric Company and tell them what you want.

We have a complete stock of everything in this line and have just received a lot of the very latest designs in chandeliers.

THE WORLD'S SUGAR CROP
THE PRODUCT OF BEET SUGAR HAS BEEN INCREASING.

Cane Sugar Has Been Falling Off an Account of Trouble in Cuba—The Estimated Yield in Long Tons.

The sugar crops of the world do not mature at the same time, and the campaign divides the calendar year. The product of cane sugar has been falling off for the past two years, partly owing to the political troubles in Cuba, the chief source of supply, while the product of beet sugar has been increasing. The estimated yield of both kinds throughout the world in long tons for 1896-97 compares as follows with the supposed actual yield for 1895-96:

NUT MEATS.
The Varied Purposes For Which They Are Used.

Nut meats are used mostly for confectioners' purposes, but they are sold also for domestic use, for home cake and candy making, and for table use as dessert. The meats chiefly sold are those of English walnuts, pecans, hickory nuts, black walnuts, Brazil nuts and almonds.

Years ago, when the consumption of nut meats was comparatively small, the nuts were cracked by hand; now they are all shelled by patented machines of ingenious construction, varying in their methods of operation according to the kinds of nuts for which they are designed. Such nuts, for example, as pecans and English walnuts, the meats of which are formed in substantially uniform halves, are fed into hoppers from which they fall singly between knives so arranged that they cut only the shell, without cutting or marring the meat. From the cutters the nuts drop upon a sifter, constantly shaken, where the shells are shaken clear of the meats and thrown off. The nut meats are left entire, and they are seldom broken. The meats are then separated into halves to remove the thin partition that divides the nut.

Brazil nuts are put into machines that cut the ends from the nut. The structure of the Brazil nut shell is such that all or the greater part of the shell is usually detached by the operation of cutting off the ends. Whatever may remain is cut off with knives by hand. Hickory nuts are cracked in machines. It is impossible to get whole meats; there are likely to be some halves, but hickory meats are usually in fragments.

The various nut meats, when they have been taken from the shells, are put through a drying process in blowers to remove superfluous moisture. The meats keep better when properly dried. Nut meats packed for domestic uses are put up in half pound and pound paper boxes. The usual commercial packages of nut meats are 25 pound and 50 pound boxes and barrels containing about 150 pounds. Nut meats are also imported. Of the imported English walnuts about 60 per cent come in the form of meats. The filberts imported are shelled almost altogether. From this country pecan nut meats are exported.

The cultivation of nuts is increasing in this country, as is also the consumption of them.—New York Sun.

AT THE CHURCH DOOR

When he started west from New York, he said he was glad he was going to get home in the autumn.

That indicated a radical change of sentiment. During his five years' sojourn abroad he had frequently pictured his home coming, and these charming vignettes and pastels were invariably tinged with the brightness of the springtime. His was an imaginative temperament, and he had revelled in dreams of triumphal marches through avenues and drives where tender leaf and opening bud and fragile bloom, all radiant with the perfume of a newly awakened earth, nodded and smiled at him from either side, while admiring friends thronged round him with adulation and praise in recognition of the fame and honor he had won. It was in that season of the year that he had gone away, and his fancy had evoked beatific visions of a reunion with old friends, in whose company his genius should shine forth resplendent in contrast with their mediocre attainments. They had been inspired by no such heaven born aspirations as he, and it was only fair to presume that they had not passed the half way point of the ladder on whose topmost rung he was securely poised. That was the way he reasoned. He had intended to come back the spring after his pictures met with such a decided success in three European capitals, but his sister frustrated his plans.

"I am going to California for several months," she wrote. "Don't come until fall."

The long anticipated home coming was gloomy enough to suit even his tastes, which delighted in those extremes of life that unite to form a harmonious whole. There had been blinding dashes and flurries of snow during the morning. By noontime those sudden outbreaks of the storm had been superseded by a strong steady wind that shrieked and whistled up and down streets and alleys and whipped into the faces of pedestrians the millions of sharp pointed icicles that looked out now and then from the leaden sky. Then, he had left New York two days sooner than he had planned, and his sister, who made all her arrangements according to schedule time, had gone out of town for a few days. Consequently the telegram which he had sent prior to his departure had failed to fulfill its mission. There was no carriage awaiting him at the depot, and the hired cab deposited him before a house whose pretty lawns had flown and taken the spirit of hospitality with her.

At 8 o'clock he found himself in the rooms of a young man who had been his boon companion in days gone by. That gentleman had been laid up with rheumatism for several weeks, and having been in no condition to read or to receive visitors he had but little to tell, but he was more than anxious to listen to a recital of the achievements and plans of the other.

The young artist was reticent at first. Presently the chiming of St. Andrews' pended out once more, and with their music came a desire to break through the barrier of reserve he had built round him after seeing abroad and to talk freely with some one. "Ah, the chimes!" he said, stepping to the window, which commanded a view of the church spire by. "They do my heart good. Somehow their notes seem vibrant with sadness today, but for all that they are welcoming me home. And what memories they awaken! Do you ever see Mary Conover? I wonder if she is organist there now?"

"I think she is," said the rheumatic sufferer feebly.

"You asked me a moment ago," said the artist, "what was my main object in coming home. I'll tell you. I have never acknowledged it to myself before. In fact, I don't know that it has ever been clearly defined. I think the playing of the chimes just now and brought out my objects and desires clear cut as a cameo. I came home to marry Mary Conover."

"To marry Mary Conover?" repeated the rheumatic blinly. "Why, I didn't know you were engaged."

"We're not, and never were. But I'm going to marry her." And the artist smiled. "You see, it was just like this: I had always admired Mary, and before long away I was on the point of proposing marriage, but after due consideration I decided that it was wiser to remain unmarried. I looked at it in this way: I knew that with proper study and application my future would be a creditable one. In other words, I knew that I had it in me to reach the summit of success and that wealth, fame and power would be mine. And I didn't know whether Mary Conover would be a fit mate for me when I attained all that. She was always the dearest, best and sweetest girl the Lord ever let live, but she was such a simple, quiet little thing that I thought I might find it policy to choose somebody better qualified to do honor to my station. It has taken me years to find out, but at last I realize that there is no other woman like Mary Conover. It makes no difference what else I may have, without her life will be incomplete. The probation must have been pretty hard for her, forced as she has been to conceal her emotions, but I won't keep her in suspense much longer. Hello! There's something going on over at the church. I think I'll go over and slip inside and see how the old place looks."

When he reached the streets, the chimes rung out the opening strains of "Lullaby" and through the windows of the carriage that had been driven up close to the curb he could see that the bride had come. The uninvited guests still retained their places waiting to catch one glimpse of the bride.

And presently she came. Half an hour later he went up to his friend's rooms.

"I staid away too long," he said. "I made a mistake. A woman can't wait forever."—Chicago News.

"Bell and I bid young Bannister an adieu to dinner at Radley's. They'll have no laughs on a single tone, but we took a private room—like yacht owners' fra' Cooves."

McPhee grinned all over and lay back to think.

"And then?" said I.

"We were no drunk in ony process sense o' the word, but Radley's showed me the dead men. There were six magnanims o' dry champagne an' maybe a bottle o' whiskey."

"Do you mean to tell me that you four got away with a magnanim and a half a piece, besides whiskey?" I demanded.

McPhee looked down upon me from between his shoulders with toleration.

"Man, we were not settin' down to drink," he said. "I lay no more than made us watty. To be sure, young Bannister laid his head on the table an' groaned like a bairn, an' Calder was all for callin on Steiner at 2 in the morn an' paintin' the galley green, but they'd been drinkin' the afternoon."—Rudyard Kipling in McClure's.

Have you a leaky gutter? If you have, make it perfectly clean and dry, apply a good coat of No. 3 P. and B. Paint over the leaky spots; then take a piece of stout Manila paper, or a piece of common cotton cloth, paint it well on both sides; lay it over the first coat, giving the whole a final coat, and there will be no more leak there. Or if the whole gutter is bad, make it clean and dry, and apply a paste of P. & B. Paint and Portland Cement.

WHAT HAWAIIANS KNOW.

The report of the Board of Education for 1896 shows that 5207 children of pure Hawaiian blood and 2,198 of mixed Hawaiian blood are being educated in the schools of the country.

The Kamehameha Boys' school, where the cost of the pupils is between $10 and $50 a year, and added to this must be the cost of clothes, washing and traveling expenses and a trifle of pocket money out of the one hundred and fifty pupils a large proportion are pure natives.

Facts such as these go to show that the Hawaiian native is willing not only to have his children attend the free school, where he learns English, arithmetic, geography, and the ordinary branches of a common school education, but it further shows that when the time comes he pays for an education above that of the common school.

That some children are assisted to these institutions "cuts no ice" in the matter, as the saying is. Many and many a young man in the United States and in England has been "assisted" through his college career by richer friends and has then won for himself a high place in the State.

What The Star wants to show, and has shown clearly, is that the Hawaiian is a fairly well educated man. That he has acquired the power of speaking and thinking in English. That he is intelligent, open to argument when properly advanced. Finally that no one can deny that he is fit for a voter.

A matter of sentiment keeps many Hawaiians from registering as voters now, but sentiment wears away and finally gives place to the cold logic of events. What has been done in this country is done, irrevocably. There can never be a return to the old status of affairs. The Hawaiians are beginning to thoroughly see this, hence the question asked as to their future status as voters in the event of annexation. The Hawaiian sees too that annexation must inevitably come, and is beginning to realize that it is the most politic move for the country.

Anyone who knows the Hawaiian, knows that he makes a good citizen. To read some of the ill-informed papers that preach against annexation one would think that the Hawaiian was to be classed as on a level with the Southern Negro. The Hawaiian is as much superior to him as a well educated American is superior to a low-class Mexican. There is no danger in receiving the Hawaiian as a voter.

JAPANESE VS. U. S.

The serious question of Japanese competition with the industries of the United States is constantly occupying the minds of the economists and the manufacturers of that country—that is, occupying the attention of the men who think and the men who work. Bradstreet's has a very valuable article upon the point. There had been a meeting of the Paterson silk manufacturers, Paterson being a center of that particular trade. The object of the meeting was that their views upon the tariff should be laid before the House Committee on Ways and Means.

In the course of the discussion it came out that the competition from "Japanese silk manufacturers was regarded as particularly threatening." The opinion was broached that the importation of Japanese silks under the guise of the products of other countries should be punished by imprisonment and fine, and a large majority of those present coincided.

The above quotation shows the feelings of only one branch of trade, but there is no doubt that many branches of trade feel the competition of the Japanese and should be up and stirring.

Another thing is that manufacturers should be true to themselves and their country. In the keen rush for wealth there is so much desire to acquire gain at any cost, that the business honor or lost sight of and only the nimble dollar is sought. This spirit it is that leads to adulteration of articles. The grocer sands his sugar, the Manchester cotton manufacturer loads his goods with size to give them undue weight, and so on. The American manufacturer has hit on a new plan, however. Everyone knows the story of the New England wooden nutmegs. But the present plan is no swindle in the goods. The goods presented are good goods. The only thing about them is that they have not been manufactured in the States. The brains and the machinery have been supplied by the United States, but the labor is done in Japan. It is evidently to this that the silk manufacturers refer when they almost unanimously wanted such action to be punished by fine and imprisonment.

The Star was not aware of anything of this sort in the silk trade, but it was well acquainted with the fact in the Woolen trade. An Oakland firm has moved all its machinery over to Japan and made a contract with the Japanese Government for labor for a number of years at something like fifteen cents a day for men and nine cents for women. The writer quotes from memory and is almost afraid that the figures are somewhat too princely, but of one thing the reader may be certain, the contract does not call for higher figures.

If manufacturers will do this in the race for wealth and teach their competitors to beat themselves, it is really their own fault. None the less does The Star commend the action of the silk men of Paterson. It is high time that manufacturers in the United States should realize the immense and dangerous competition of the Japanese.

The Hagey Institute seems to be growing in favor. It claims to have treated over thirty cases with success. One or two of these are known to The Star and are up to the present, effective. But what The Star appreciates in the Institute is that its directors regard alcoholism as a disease. That is the true light in which to look at it. The day will come when the world will look back upon imprisonment for drunkenness as just as barbarous as imprisonment for insanity. We try now to cure the insane, and in many cases we succeed perfectly, in others we obtain lucid intervals, in others we fail. It seems more than probable that the same will be true of the efforts against alcoholism. But at all events intelligent action in this direction is to be highly commended, and for such due credit should be given to the Hagey institution.

That some of our readers will be shocked when The Star advocates cremation is to be expected. But there can be no doubt both of its sanitary usefulness and of its robbing death of its most unpleasant features to those who are left to mourn the death. It is a satisfaction to see that the cause is gradually growing and that so many cities in the United States possess crematories. The time will come when there will be such an institution in Honolulu. The above remarks come from reading a paragraph relating how the remains of Kate Field had been carried across the continent, and contrasting the same with the lugubrious details of a coffin.

Timely Topics.

JANUARY 20, 1897.

In our advertisement last week we announced that we would mention the new coffee machinery which arrived by the "W. H. Dimond."

We have been negotiating for the "Guatemala" Coffee Pulper for some time, it being recommended to us as especially adaptable for the coffee growers of these islands.

The Improved Guatemala Cylinder Coffee Pulper is conceded to be the most perfect machine yet devised for the purpose. Experience and the brilliant results which have been uniformly obtained with this machine, amply confirm all that has been claimed for it. To those who inspect this machine we wish to particularly call attention to the feed roll, which is a recent addition. The new adjustable gates in the breast plate enable it to pulp any size of coffee WITHOUT BREAKING THE BEAN. The arrangement of the hopper prevents pebbles and other foreign substances, which are sometimes found in coffee, from reaching the cylinder.

The approximate capacity of ripe coffee in the cherry per twelve hours is 5000 pounds. Weight of machine for shipping, 400 pounds. Height, 33 inches. The diameter of the fly-wheel, 22 inches, gives a rapid, and, at the same time, a steady motion.

The simplicity of the construction recommends it to all. With each pulper is furnished an extra copper drum and extra gates for the breast plate, without additional cost.

If you have passed our store at night during the past week you may have noticed lights burning and the force of clerks at work opening boxes and cases and marking up goods. The customers took up all the time the clerks had during the day, and the only time we have had to get on with the work is at night.

Lots of novelties have been brought by recent vessels from the Coast, and we are now ready for our spring campaign. The beauty of our novelties lie in their usefulness. There's no wear out to them, and each fills a want.

The Primus Oil Stove is the latest good thing to reach here, and it is destined to revolutionize the cooking industry. It burns nothing but kerosene oil and on the principal of gasoline, but without the danger. The Primus will boil water in three minutes.

Mann's Green Bone Cutter is not of much use anywhere but in the poultry house, and there it is a necessity. No other store in Honolulu handles this article.

Soap is wasted in the kitchen unless a Soap Saver is used. We have them made of wire and they are economic gems.

The Crown Self-Basting Roasting Pans are so well known as not to require mention beyond saying that we sell them.

The same thing goes with our Ice Picks—nothing like them have ever been sold here for the money or convenience.

Extension Toasting Forks belong in every house where toast is eaten.

DELICIOUS DELICACIES

If a wife wants to have her husband think as much of her as he does of his maternal parent she must look to the larder and see that it is provided with plenty of things for the inner man. But quantity in this instance is not the only essential; quality plays an important part in food articles.

You can fill a dish with peas, but if they are not of good quality they will remain full. We are now selling genuine Petit Pois in one and two-pound tins that are remarkably good, and cheap.

Another delicacy is Preserved Mushrooms—new here—and we are selling them to people who regard a good dinner as a requisite to happiness on this earth. Black English Mushrooms, and many French Mushrooms go a long way toward filling a man out around the vest pockets.

Another trifle worth thinking about is genuine English Jugged Hare. Where is the Briton who would not go a long distance for a lunch where Jugged Hare is one of the courses?

We have a store full of such things—too many varieties to mention in a week. Pickles of every sort—from the ordinary bottled to Batty's Nabob; Tipoo Sahib's Curry Powder; Orange Marmalade in stone jars; Cross & Blackwell's Jams in glass, and a thousand other things.

J. T. Waterhouse, QUEEN STREET, HONOLULU.

Those who know us best are well versed in the shoes we sell are far superior to the common run—yet their prices are higher than others ask, but because of the quality we have crowded into every shoe we sell. Let the shoes be a $1 or a $5 pair—they are the best in the market for the money—if you buy here.

HOSPITAL FOR CHINESE

WEALTHY CHINESE FIRMS BACK OF THE VENTURE.

Chinese Opium Smokers Will Be Treated—The Money Will Be Forthcoming at Once—Under Way.

A Chinese hospital for general purposes will soon be established in Honolulu. It will be built with money donated by prominent Chinese merchants of the city who have already got the enterprise well under way.

A meeting of those interested in the project was held today and the preliminary matters placed in charge of a special committee, consisting of Kat Poo, manager of Wing Wo Chan Company, Yin Kee Ngan, manager of Kwong Lee Yuen & Company, and Tong Ying, the wealthy Pearl City rice planter.

These men entered upon the work at once. They will select a site, draft plans for a suitable building and get everything in shape to present at a meeting of those interested in the scheme to be held next week. Mr.
Frank W. Damon will assist the committee materially in its work.

One of the features of the proposed new hospital is the establishment of a branch for the treatment of Chinese addicted to the opium habit.

The money will be forthcoming for the new hospital as soon as the preliminary arrangements have been agreed upon.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Steps Taken to Prevent an Impure Milk Supply.

All the members of the Health Board were present at yesterday's regular weekly meeting. President Smith occupying the chair.

A statement of receipts and expenditures of the Kapiolani Maternity Home, for the month of December, as presented by Mrs. Emille Macfarlane, treasurer, showed the former to be $1986.69, with total expenditures of $300.70, leaving a balance on hand of $1685.99. Total receipts for the past year, $5036.59, expenses for the same period being $3352.60, leaving a balance on hand Jan. 1st of $1685.99. Fifty-four patients were cared for during the year.

Dr. Walters, of Lihue, Kauai, was granted leave of absence for two months.

Messrs. H. Hackfeld, as agents for the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, notified the Board that a complete fumigation plant had been transported by that line to Hongkong.

Consul Shimamaru asked for the rate of mortality among Japanese for the past year. He desired the data for a report to his government. This request brought out the information from President Smith that, owing to no official record being available, it would be impossible for the Board to furnish reliable information. He thought it would be advisable for Executive Officer Reynolds to visit the other islands and gather statistics of births, deaths and marriages.

In reply to questions Dr. Monsarrat spoke of making examination of all dairy cattle to ascertain if tuberculosis existed. A quantity of tubercu-line had been ordered. The Board decided to have inspection made of all the cows of the different dairies. Drs.
Emerson and Mansarrat were named as a committee to attend to the matter. The Board then went into executive session.

Sales Talk

With Hood's Sarsaparilla, "Sales Talk," and show that this medicine has enjoyed public confidence and patronage to a greater extent than any other proprietary medicine. This is because it possesses greater medicinal merit and produces greater cures than any other.
It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that Tells the Story.

All advertisements of Hood's Sarsaparilla, like Hood's Sarsaparilla itself, are honest.
We have never deceived the public, and this with its superlative medicinal merit, is why the people have abiding confidence in it, and buy Hood's Sarsaparilla almost to the exclusion of all others.

Customers Want Hood's.

"We order Hood's Sarsaparilla in large quantities and it is the only blood purifier which a druggist can buy in large quantities without risk. It is selling very rapidly and customers who buy it once are sure to call for Hood's the next time. We believe Hood's Sarsaparilla must possess true merit in order to retain its popularity. Its sales exceed all similar preparations and its praises are often heard."

ATROCITIES IN CUBA

HOW GENERAL WEYLER CARRIES ON THE WAR. A Pit Filled With Slaughtered Human Beings—The Work of Spies—Eight Persons Cruelly Murdered.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—A Key West, Fla., despatch to the World says: Evidence of the awful butcheries at Guanabacoa accumulate daily. Advice from Havana report that a great pit, filled with corpses and human fragments, was discovered Monday in a cane field not more than a mile from that place.

A careful investigation revealed at least twenty whole bodies and many more legs and arms, other parts of the dismembered bodies being missing. Of the bodies remaining entire four were those of women, three of young misses, one of a girl not more than 10 years old, four of boys and the rest of men. Permission to bury the remains was brutally refused, with a threat that if this slaughter was complained of, many more would be added to what the Spanish officials called the "Cuban dirt-pile."

The edict refusing permission to remove furniture and other things, unless asked for twenty-four hours previously, is taken advantage of by the Spanish soldiers to wreck buildings and revile and insult, if not kill, persons suspected of Cuban leanings. Some families in the poorer section of the city, who did not know of the edict, started to move Sunday night. After they had loaded their furniture on wagons the police and soldiers fired on them, killing eight persons, including several innocent passersby. In the official report it was stated that the troops had been attacked and several rebels had been killed.

A girl's school, near the center of the town, was entered by the troops one day last week and the principal, an elderly Cuban born woman, was compelled to kneel to the officer in command and beg pardon for using translations of text books printed in the United States. The girl pupils were insulted and rudely treated, until the school was broken up in disorder. A complaint to the commandant only excited laughter that "such a little thing" was complained of.

Havana is much agitated by the rumor of a victory by Gomez's troops, of the successful crossing of the trocha into Pinar del Rio, and of several routs of Spanish troops. Gen. Weyler is execrated on every hand, but on account of the severe censorship, and Weyler's system of spies, no one dares say a word aloud. Everyone thinks his neighbor a spy, and little can be learned from anyone. Spies by the hundreds attend the open air concerts, and the least dissatisfaction expressed is used as a pretext, and the victim is thrust in the Cabanas or Morro Castle, most likely never to be seen by his friends or kindred.

Resident and Citizen. The words resident and citizen are often used interchangeably in popular speech, but where exactness of statement is required the terms cannot be made synonymous. A verdict was obtained in the United States circuit court for injuries received in an accident. The case was appealed by the corporation. In reviewing the bill to formulate the appeal the lawyers of the company found that the plaintiff was alleged to be a "resident" of a certain state, and they claimed that a "resident" was not necessarily a "citizen" as required by law. The presiding judge sustained this view and set aside the verdict and likewise permitted the bill to be amended. The suit was the coupon compromised, and as a result the plaintiff received a few hundred dollars instead of the thousands secured by the original verdict.—Youth's Companion.

Persons who are troubled with indigestion will be interested in the experience of Wm. H. Penn, chief clerk in the railway mail service at Des Moines, Iowa, who writes: "It gives me pleasure to testify to the merits of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For two years I have suffered from indigestion, and am subject to frequent severe attacks of pain in the stomach and bowels. One or two doses of this remedy never fails to give perfect relief. SPANIARDS HIGHLY EXCITED. The London cable item today has the following: "The Cuban resolutions in the United States Senate would be regarded here as a little more than a useful safety valve for the jingo sentiment did not the Madrid telegrams show the highly inflammable state of the Spanish populace. It suggests that they drink Rainier Beer and keep cool. On tap or in bottles at the Criterion.

THE LONG TRAIL.

Tim O'Connell was the hardest rider on the Rio Grande. All the cowboys had one opinion of him. When one wanted to boast, he would say:

"I can ride a lost as far in a day as old Tim O'Connell." Or they described the endurance of a person by saying, "He's almost as tough as old Tim." The "almost" was invariably used, for none presumed to say anybody could do anything fully as well as old Tim. They knew it was not in human nature to do so. He was the ideal beyond which the cowboy imagination never dared pass. Why, even old Timberleg once said, as he sat shaping a new leg one night:

"Tim O'Connell, sirs, is the toughest man I ever saw. I'll be shot full of holes if he ain't got a spirit like rawhide and a body like—like—well, like this here wooden leg of mine. It'll wear and wear and never show a splinter till it's at once it'll drop off and there will be an end of it."

Old Tim came to Enchal when he was a middle aged man—came riding into the frontier on a hungry looking horse and a jaunty saddle. He turned the beast out and traded the saddle to Bill Tomlinson for a good horse. He made a new saddle with a jockey seat from a pair of old leggings and asked Bill for a job, and Bill hired him. He was set to riding the creeks, and he rode day and night and worked so hard Bill said to him one day:

"Tim, you needn't work so hard. You'll kill yourself."

"Ruther be dead 'n poor all my life," answered Tim. "And a man what won't work'll die poor." So he went ahead working hard as ever. I was going to say "harder," but he could not.

But that was 20 years ago, and between then and now he had kept on working, but not getting much richer. Bill Tomlinson lost his ranch, and Tim was thrown out of a job, but his reputation as a worker got him one the next day. He accepted the first offer and set to work so hard he never saw the rich opportunities open for him. Soon after he had gone to work for Scott Parkinson, Bill Tomlinson happened along near where Tim was guarding a bunch of steers and said:

"Why, Tim, you could have had a better job than this. You work too hard. Pretty soon you'll be dead and nothing to look back to but hard work."

"Better be dead 'n poor," retorted Tim, "and a man what won't work'll die poor."

Well, it happened that Bill failed to get his affairs straightened up and had to live with Parkinson himself. Parkinson made Tim boss, and Bill was only a cowboy. There never was such a boss on the ranch. The cattle grew fat with careful herding, and the cowboys grew lean. Bill would be set on watch at night, and Tim would roll up in his blanket. But if Bill would stop riding round the herd, no matter what time of night—if he stood still so long as ten minutes, he would hear Tim's voice roll down the blanket:

"Ride around 'em, Bill!" so that Bill got to thinking Tim never did sleep. There was no way of arguing with him about excessive work, for he invariably replied, "A man what won't work'll die poor, and I'd ruther be dead 'n poor."

The long trail that led round the whole ranch was 70 miles in length. Most of the cowboys made it a two days' jaunt, but Tim, who rode it at frequent and irregular intervals, made it in a day. He would say at breakfast:

"I'm going down the long trail today," and one or another of the boys would venture: "Tim, you oughtn't to make that in one day. It's too long for an old man. Some day you'll come riding in from the long trail dead."

"They said it just to hear him draw out: 'Better be dead 'n poor any time.'"

Tim failed to get up one morning. Bill had gone to sleep on watch that night and stood still an hour, and Tim never called at him. He awoke with a start and hurried over to camp fearing the worst. He found Tim all alive with fever. The boys tended the old man all day. Toward evening he brightened up and suddenly jumping to his feet said:

"Why, I'm well as ever, sirs. And I guess I'll ride down the long trail tonight, being as I've rested all day. The moon is bright, and it will be a cool trip."

There was no use remonstrating, so just as the others rolled up in their blankets for the night—all but Bill, who had the watch—Tim mounted and started down the long trail.

"Never saw Tim's eyes so bright," said Jim Proctor. "He looks as if sickness did him good."

"I'd kill an ordinary man," said Bill as he rode to go on watch, "but Tim'll ride in in the morning sitting straight up in his saddle."

And, sure enough, he did. The boys were at breakfast when Bill called out: "Here comes Tim!" And there he did come in the distance, joggling along on a gentle rack, sitting up straight in the saddle and never moving a hand, and rode on down the long trail over the homestretch quietly, as if he had only been out for a little exercise.

Presently he neared the camp, but he stopped at the corral, and his horse put its head down and began eating hay with the other horses. Tim sat there, unconcerned, as if in deep thought.

"Better come and eat breakfast," called Bill. But Tim paid no attention, and pretty soon Bill walked over to the corral, and as he laid his hand on Tim's bridle band he called out in alarm:

"Why, boys, Tim's dead!"

And, sure enough, Tim did sit there in his deep saddle dead. There was no telling how many miles his cold hand had held the rein as he rode down the long trail, but he had come to the end of it at last.—Cincinnati Post.

Repatriee. In the midst of a stormy discussion a gentleman rose to settle the matter in dispute. Waving his hand majestically, he began, "Gentlemen, all I want is common sense." "Exactly," interrupted another; "that is precisely what you do want."

But Sir Edward Clarke's retort in the Jameson trial is still more to the purpose. The attorney general had argued against Sir Edward Clarke's points as being contrary to common sense. Sir Edward objected. "Then you think," said the lord chief justice dryly, "that common sense has nothing to do with a legal point?" "No," replied Sir Edward, with that quickness and felicity which never fail him; "I am only of Archbishop Whately's opinion, who said that 'common sense is an authority to which every one appeals on any subject he does not fully understand.'"—London Standard.

Morality in Colors. "You talk about Deacon Bonsett's virtues! Why, they tell me that the last time he went to New York he painted the town red."

"Red, eh? Well, that should be a cardinal virtue, shouldn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE POCKET KODAK

Was the Photographic Success of 1895.

In the hands of the absolute novice it produced a larger percentage of perfect pictures than any camera, big or little, had ever produced before. The "cartridge system" did away with the necessity of a dark room, and made photography simple and easy with a Pocket Kodak.

JOHN INGERFIELD.

By JEROME K. JEROME.

(Copyright, 1896.) CHAPTER I.

If you take the underground railway to Whitechapel road (the East station), and from there take one of the yellow tram cars that start from that point and go down the Commercial road past the George, in front of which stands—or used to stand—a high flagstaff, at the base of which sits—or used to sit—an elderly female purveyor of pigs' trotters at a halfpence apiece, until you come to where a railway arch crosses the road obliquely, and there get down and turn to the right up a narrow noisy street leading to the river, and then to the right again up a still narrower street, which you may know by its having a public house at one corner (as is in the nature of things) and a marine store dealer's at the other, outside which strangely stiff and unaccommodating garments of gigantic size flutter ghostlike in the wind, you will come to a dingy railed-in churchyard, surrounded on all sides by cheerless, many-peopled houses. Sad-looking little old houses they are in spite of the tumult of life about their ever open doors. They and the ancient church in their midst seem weary of the ceaseless jangle around them. Perhaps, standing there so many years, listening to the long silence of the dead, the fretful voices of the living sound foolish in their ears.

Peering through the railings on the side nearest the river, you will see beneath the shadow of the soot-grimed church's soot-grimed porch—that is, if the sun happen, by rare chance, to be high enough and strong enough to cast any shadow at all in that region of gray light—a curiously high and narrow headstone that once was white and straight, not tottering and bent with age as it is now. There is upon this stone a carving in bas relief, as you will see for yourself if you make your way to it through the gateway on the opposite side of the square. It represents, so far as can be made out, for it is much worn by time and dirt, a figure lying on the ground with another figure bending over it, while at a little distance stands a third object. But this last is so indistinct that it might be almost anything, from an angel to a horse.

And below the carving are the words (already half-obliterated) that I have used for the title of this story.

Should you ever wander of a Sunday morning within sound of the cracked bell that calls a few habit-bound, old-fashioned folk to worship within those damp stained walls, and drop into talk with the old men who on such days sit, each in his brass buttoned long brown coat, upon the low stone coping underneath those broken railings, you might hear this tale from them, as I did, more years ago than I care to recollect.

But lest you do not choose to go to all this trouble or lest the old men who could tell it you have grown tired of all talk, and are not to be roused ever again into the telling of tales, and you yet wish for the story, I will here set it down for you.

But I cannot recount it to you as they told it to me, for to me it was only a tale that I heard and remembered, thinking to tell it again for profit, while to them it was a thing that had been, and the threads of it were interwoven with the woof of their own life. As they talked faces that I did not see passed by among the crowd and turned and looked at them, and voices that I did not hear spoke to them below the clamor of the street, so that through their thin, piping voices there quivered the deep music of life and death, and my tale must be to theirs but as a gossip's chatter to the story of him whose breast has felt the press of battle.

John Ingerfield, oil and tallow refiner, of Lavender wharf, Limehouse, comes of a hard-headed, hard-fisted stock. The first of the race that the eye of record, piercing the deepening mists upon the centuries behind her, is able to discern with any clearness is a long-haired, sea-bronzed personage, whom men call variously Ingo or Inger. Out of the wild North sea he has come. Record observes him, one of a small, fierce group, standing on the sands of desolate Northumbria, staring landward, his worldly wealth upon his back. This consists of a two-handed battle-axe, value perhaps some 40 stycens in the currency of the time. A careful man, with business capabilities, may, however, manipulate a small capital to great advantage. In what would appear, to those accustomed to our slow modern methods, an incredibly short space of time, Inge's two-handed battle-axe has developed into wide lands and many head of cattle, which latter continue to multiply with a rapidity beyond the dreams of present day breeders. Inge's descendants would seem to have inherited the genius of their ancestor, for they prosper and their worldly goods increase. They are a money-making race. In all times, out of all things, by all means, they make money. They fight for money, marry for money, live for money, are ready to die for money.

In the days when the most saleable and the highest priced article in the markets of Europe was a strong arm and a cool head then each Ingerfield (as Inge, long rooted in Yorkshire soil, had grown to) was a soldier of fortune, and offered his strong arm and his cool head to the highest bidder. They fought for their price, and they took good care that they obtained their price, but, the price settled, they fought well, for they were stanch and true men, according to their lights, though these lights may have been placed somewhat low down, near the earth.

Then followed the days when the chief riches of the world lay tossed for daring hands to grasp upon the bosom of the sea, and the sleeping spirit of the old Norse rover stirred in their hearts, and the lit of a wild sea song they had never heard kept ringing in their ears, and they built their ships and sailed for the Spanish main and won much wealth, as was their wont.

Later on, when civilization began to lay down and enforce sterner rules for the game of life, and peaceful methods promised to prove more profitable than violent, the Ingerfields became traders and merchants of grave men and sober life, for their ambition from generation to generation remains ever the same, their various callings being but means to an end.

A hard, stern race of men they would seem to have been, but just, so far as they understood justice. They have the reputation of having been good husbands, fathers and masters, but one cannot help thinking of them as more respected than loved.

They were men to exact the uttermost farthing due to them, yet not without a sense of the thing due from themselves, their own duty and responsibility—may, not altogether without their moments of heroism, which is the duty of great men. History relates how a certain Captain Ingerfield, returning with much treasure from the West Indies—how acquired it is, perhaps, best not to inquire too closely—is overhauled upon the high seas by a king's frigate. Captain of king's frigate sends polite message to Captain Ingerfield, requesting him to be so kind as to promptly hand over a certain member of his ship's company, who, by some means or another, has made himself objectionable to king's friends, in order that he (the said objectionable person) may be forthwith hanged from the yardarm.

Captain Ingerfield returns polite answer to captain of king's frigate that he (Captain Ingerfield) will, with much pleasure, hand any member of his ship's company that needs hanging, but that neither the king of England nor any one else on God Almighty's sea is going to do it for him. Captain of king's frigate sends back word that if objectionable person is not at once given up he shall be compelled with much regret to send Captain Ingerfield and his ship to the bottom of the Atlantic. Replies Captain Ingerfield, "That is just what he will have to do before I give up one of my people," and fights the big frigate—fights it so fiercely that after three hours captain of king's frigate thinks it will be good to try argument again, and sends therefore a further message, courteously acknowledging Captain Ingerfield's courage and skill, and suggesting that he having done sufficient to vindicate his honor and renown, it would be politic to now hand over the unimportant cause of contention, and so escape with his treasure.

"Tell your captain," shouts back this Ingerfield, who has discovered there are sweeter things to fight for than even money, "that the Wild Goose has flown the seas with her belly full of treasure before now, and will, if it be God's pleasure, so do again, but that master and man in her sail together, fight together, and die together."

Which incident, and it is well authenticated, goes far to prove that the Ingerfields, hard men and grasping men though they be—men caring more for the getting of money than for the getting of love—loving more the cold grip of gold than the grip of kith or kin, yet bear buried in their hearts the seeds of a nobler manhood, for which, however, the barren soil of their ambition affords scant nourishment.

The John Ingerfield of this story is a man very typical of his race. He has discovered that the oil and tallow refining business, though not a pleasant one, is an exceedingly lucrative one. These are the good days when George III is king and London is rapidly becoming a city of bright night. Tallow and oil and all materials akin to them are in ever growing request, and young John Ingerfield builds himself a large refining house and warehouse in the growing suburb of Limehouse, which lies between the teeming river and the quiet fields, gathers many people round about him, puts his strong heart into his work and prospers.

All the days of youth he labors and garners, and lays out again and garners yet again. In early middle age he finds himself a wealthy man. The chief business of life, the getting of money, is practically done. His enterprise is firmly established and will continue to grow with ever less need of husbandry. It is time for him to think about the secondary business of life, the getting together of a wife and home, for the Ingerfield's have always been good citizens, worthy heads of families, open handed hosts, making a brave show among friends and neighbors.

John Ingerfield, sitting in his stiff, high backed chair, in his stiffly but solidly furnished dining room, above his counting house, sipping slowly his one glass of port, takes counsel with himself.

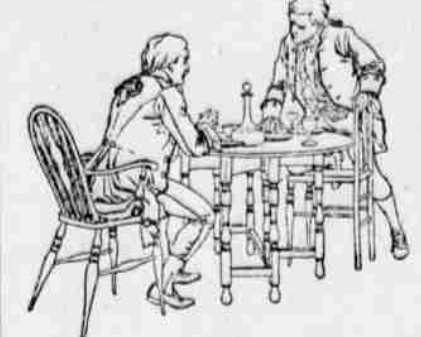

What shall she be? He is rich and can afford a good article. She must be young and handsome, fit to grace the fine house he will take for her in fashionable Bloomsbury, far from the odor and touch of oil and tallow. She must be well bred, with a gracious, noble manner that will charm his guests and reflect honor and credit upon himself; she must, above all, be of good family, with a genealogical tree sufficiently unbraided to hide Lavender wharf from the eyes of society.

What else she may or may not be he does not very much care. She will, of course, be virtuous and moderately pious, as it is fit and proper that women should be. It will also be well that her disposition be gentle and yielding, but that is of minor importance, at all events, so far as he is concerned. The Ingerfield husbands are not the class of men upon whom wives vent their tempers.

Having decided in his mind what she shall be, he proceeds to discuss with himself who she shall be? His social circle is small. Methodically, in thought, he makes the entire round of it, mentally scrutinizing every maiden that he knows. Some are charming, some are fair, some are rich, but no one of them approaches near to his carefully considered ideal.

He keeps the subject in his mind and muses on it in the intervals of business. At odd moments he jots down names as they occur to him upon a slip of paper which he pins for the purpose on the inside of the cover of his desk. He arranges them alphabetically, and when it is as complete as his memory can make it, he goes critically down the list, making a few notes against each. As a result, it becomes clear to him that he must seek among strangers for his wife.

"You don't mean that you would put me in prison?"

ranges them alphabetically, and when it is as complete as his memory can make it, he goes critically down the list, making a few notes against each. As a result, it becomes clear to him that he must seek among strangers for his wife.

He has a friend or rather, an acquaintance, an old schoolfellow, who has developed into one of those curious social flies that in all ages are to be met with buzzing contentedly within the most exclusive circles and concerning whom, seeing that they are neither rare nor rich, nor extraordinarily clever nor well born, one wonders "how the devil they got there?" Meeting this man by chance one afternoon, he links his arm in his and invites him home to dinner.

So soon as they are left alone with the walnuts and wine between them, John Ingerfield says, thoughtfully cracking a hard nut between his fingers: "Will, I'm going to get married."

"Excellent idea. Delighted to hear it, I'm sure," replies Will, somewhat less interested in the information than in the delicately flavored madeira he is lovingly sipping. "Who's the lady?" "I don't know yet," is John Ingerfield's answer.

His friend glances slyly at him over his glass, not sure whether he is expected to be amused or sympathetically helpful.

"I want you to find one for me," Will Cathcart puts down his glass and stares at his host across the table. "Should be delighted to help you, Jack," he stammers in an alarmed tone. "Pon my soul I should, but really don't know a single woman I could recommend: 'pon my soul I don't."

"You must see a good many. I wish you'd look out for one that you could recommend."

"Certainly I will, my dear Jack," answers the other in a relieved voice; "never thought about 'em in that way before. Daze say I shall come across the very girl to suit you. I'll keep my eyes open and let you know."

"I shall be obliged to you if you will," replies John Ingerfield quietly, "and it's your turn, I think, to oblige me, Will. I have obliged you, if you recollect."

"Shall never forget it, my dear Jack," murmurs Will, a little uneasily. "It was uncommonly good of you. You saved me from ruin, Jack—shall think about it to my dying day."

"No need to let it worry you for so long a period as that," returns John, with the faintest suspicion of a smile playing round his firm mouth. "The bill falls due at the end of next month. You can discharge the debt then, and the matter will be off your mind."

Will finds his chair growing uncomfortable under him, while the madeira somehow loses its flavor. He gives a short, nervous laugh.

"By Jove," he says, "so soon as that? The date had quite slipped my memory."

"Fortunate that I reminded you," says John, the smile round his lips deepening.

Will fidgets on his seat. "I'm afraid, my dear Jack," he says, "I shall have to get you to renew it, just for a month or two. Deuced awkward thing, but I'm remarkably short of money this year. Truth is I can't get what's owing to myself."

"That's very awkward certainly," replies his friend, "because I am not at all sure that I shall be able to renew it." Will stares at him in some alarm.

"But what am I to do if I haven't the money?" John Ingerfield shrugs his shoulders. "You don't mean, my dear Jack, that you would put me in prison?" "Why not? Other people have to go there who can't pay their debt."

Will Cathcart's alarm grows to serious proportions. "But our friendship," he cries, "our—"

"My dear Will," interrupts the other, "there are few friends I would lend £300 pounds to and make no effort to get it back. You certainly are not one of them."

A Little Knowledge

Is a Dangerous Thing.

A person unacquainted with Bicycle construction attempting to dismantle a wheel or effect a home repair will often do more damage in five minutes than a skilled mechanic can repair in a day. The mechanism of most Bicycles is very intricate, with left hand lock-nuts and very fine threads, which will slip if the least bit overstrained.

Many of the parts require special wrenches to turn them, of which we have a large assortment, together with the other tools used in Bicycle construction, and a skilled mechanic to do the work.

We make a specialty of repairing Bicycles. No matter how badly used up they are we can put them on their wheels again. Our work we guarantee. Our charges are moderate. We don't want the earth—only a chance to live.
