LYRICS OF BOSTON CULTURE.

When the winds are waiting with a weird and dismal wail And the dimly flakes are flying on the pinions of the gale, When the force Atlantic billows, with a sullen, angry roar, Rush up the sandy beach and dash against the rock-bound shore, When from the Polar regions comes the frost king in his might, When we hear the storm winds shrieking through the tenebrous night, And for Christmas goose and turkeys local station-men shake the dice, And in suburban ponds men fish for pickered through the ice, When of smoking backwater pancakes men can scarcely get enough, It is then the gentle maiden wants a sealskin sash and muff.

SATURDAY : : : : April 2d. MORE LIGHT WANTED.

The "Herald" did not answer our polite inquiry regarding the proposed constitution of the Legislature, although it occupied more than a column of its valuable space yesterday in the attempt.

When discussing national politics it is always the better way to keep within the lines of common sense. Extravagant statement never serves any cause.

We are taken to task by our young and hopeful contemporary for saying that "we must take things as they are;" and we are told this is "an effete medieval doctrine."

WITCHCRAFT AMONG THE MAORIS. The last mail from New Zealand brought news of a double murder in the Poverty Bay district, the outcome of superstition among the natives.

witched by Nuku, and that he must die. Three young men volunteered to put Nuku to death. Cases of this kind are becoming rare in New Zealand.

Quite a different incident is reported in the same paper that chronicles this murder. It was the "turning of the first sod of the Rotorua railroad," near the scene of the recent volcanic outbreak.

The resignation of the Rev. J. A. Cruzan was accepted at his urgent request, at the annual meeting. A committee appointed to draft an expression of the feeling of the church has presented the following report:

WHEREAS, Rev. John A. Cruzan has tendered the resignation of his office as Pastor of the Fort-street Church, Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, and the church and society, have, with regret, accepted the same, they desire to and do hereby put upon record the following as an expression of their regard, and of the appreciation they have of the character of their pastor and of the value of the services he has rendered to this church and people.

As a preacher of the Gospel of our Lord, Mr. Cruzan has ministered most acceptably to this people for six years, and during that time he has been an earnest and faithful expositor of the word of God; an able and eloquent advocate of every interest and principle relating to the religious and moral welfare and good of this country; he has fearlessly exposed and rebuked public evils, while he has dealt tenderly yet firmly with the secret sins of the community; and special mention should be made of the vigor, energy and wisdom with which he has labored in the interest of temperance reform, and of the pre-eminent success which has attended his work in this direction.

In his efforts to helpfully reach and win the young people he has labored most effectively, and the numerous additions from this class to the church, as well as the large and active Society of Christian Endeavor, are among the trophies of his ministry here.

And this church recalls with gratitude the constant and sustained activity put forth on his part to reach the neglected classes of this city, striving to draw and keep them within the influence of the Gospel. And in this connection it would bear glad testimony to the high esteem and honor in which Mr. Cruzan has been held during these years by all classes of people, winning their confidence and favor, and known to all as a manly man as truly as a minister of Christ in all his intercourse and conversation with them.

In the more personal and delicate office of Pastor, we shall always remember that with tender love he has ministered to us in the Gospel in our joys and in our sorrows. He has baptized our children, he has solemnized our marriages, ministered to our sick, has buried our dead and comforted our bereaved, and always with such genuine sympathy and love as to win us to himself. His presence in our homes has always been a welcome one, and our children will lose a personal friend as truly as will their parents. And we cannot refrain from including here an expression of the love and admiration of this people for Mrs. Cruzan, who has so lovingly and tenderly aided her ministrations and labors to those of her husband, and of expressing the deep and heartfelt regret and sense of loss which this community feels as truly in losing her as her husband.

In parting, we shall bid them God-speed and pray that the Almighty Father may continue His favoring blessing towards them, and that wherever He shall call them to labor in His service, they may reap an increasingly abundant harvest for their Master.

W. C. MERRITT, WILLIAM R. CASTLE, CHAS. R. BISHOP, W. C. PARKE, Committee of Church and Society.

St. Andrew's Cathedral. The services at this church to-morrow will be: Holy Communion, 6:30 a. m. Morning Prayer, 9 a. m.; Holy Communion, with sermon, at 9:30 a. m. Preacher, the Bishop of Honolulu. Blue Ribbon League. There will be a meeting of the Blue Ribbon League at the Y. M. C. A. Hall this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The following programme will be given:

THE MOLTEÑO CASE. The Defendant Fined $400 for Selling Liquor Without a License.

Another crowded audience was in attendance at the Police Court yesterday morning to hear Police Justice Dayton sentence Charles Molteno for selling liquor without a license at the Kapiolani Bath House.

After the defendant had been told to stand up by the Court, Hon. Paul Neumann, who appeared for Molteno, said it was well known that he kept the Kapiolani Bath House, where a little dance and something else was indulged in. People went there for recreation and not for the purpose of finding a barroom. There was nothing to show he had carried on the business in a systematic way. As this was his first offense, and the penalty was only a money fine, the extreme rigor of the law should not be imposed. The prosecution will get the justice they desire by a cessation of dancing and drinking at this place. He asked that this be taken into consideration.

His Honor said: Molteno, you have pleaded guilty to selling liquor without a license. The beer, spirits, etc., seized at your place would form a very fair stock for a barroom. The glasses and other articles show that you had every convenience for mixing drinks, and I feel certain you have carried on this traffic very extensively. While licensed places are under a bond and pay a license, you are carrying on business without either. The bath house was only a prelude for selling liquor. After closing hours for licensed places, your place was made a rendezvous for persons of certain classes to meet and have a good time. Licensed houses for selling after hours are liable to forfeit their license and bond. I should not be doing my duty if I did not impose a heavy penalty. I fine you $400 and $3 costs. The liquor, etc., seized to be confiscated.

Mr. Peterson then asked that the case of keeping a disorderly house be continued until moved on, which the Court agreed to.

"Anglican Church Chronicle." The April issue of this publication is out on time, and is a very creditable production. The editor, in an article on "Unity," invites the congregations of Fort-street and Bethel Churches to unite with that of St. Andrew's Cathedral. The invitation is made in the most Catholic spirit, but it is doubtful if it will be so accepted. Uniformity is not the passport, nor the cross the sign of the Christian hosts at the close of the nineteenth century. If this were so, as "all roads lead to Rome," it is probable that the dream of a church universal might still become a reality. It will be interesting to hear what Fort and Bethel have to say on this subject.

Supreme Court. AT CHAMBERS—BEFORE PRESTON, J. FRIDAY, April 1st. In probate estate of D. L. Rames. The administrator's sale of real estate on March 31st was confirmed.

Police Court. BEFORE POLICE JUSTICE DAYTON. FRIDAY, April 1st. Keonium was brought up on remand from Thursday, charged with larceny of a case of condensed milk, the property of H. May & Co., for sentence. As one of the attorneys in the case was absent, it was postponed to the 2d.

Chas. Molteno was fined $400 for selling liquor without a license. Costs, $3. The same defendant, for keeping a disorderly house, was remanded until moved on. H. Parker, Thos. Traines and Poku were each fined $6 for drunkenness. As the latter was a policeman on duty, he was discharged from the police force.

Ah Sing, remanded from the 30th ult. for gaming, when he pleaded not guilty, withdrew that plea and pleaded guilty. He was fined $25. Costs, $1. A nolle pros. was entered against Ah Pau for the same offense. Henry Kaneauhi, charged with obtaining $250 from Alexander Robertson, the property of Mrs. S. S. Robertson, under false pretenses, was remanded to the 2d.

M. P. Copley, for violating rule 6 of the express regulations, was remanded to the 7th.

CIVIL CASES. Epa vs. Kahabana (w), charged with deserting her husband. Ordered to return, and the husband to pay $3 costs. Geo. Morris vs. E. Lycan, writ of possession. Continued to the 6th. F. M. Hatch for plaintiff, W. R. Castle for defendant.

Ting On vs. Jas. Stephens, assumpsit for $10. Judgment for plaintiff, with $4 95 costs. W. C. Parke, assignee estate of J. Lyons, vs. Yap Sin, assumpsit for balance of account, $13 12. Judgment for plaintiff, with $6 45 costs.

Wong Wing Boo vs. Sam Wai, assumpsit for $158 75. Judgment for plaintiff for the amount, with $14 46 costs.

Intermediary Court. BEFORE MR. JUSTICE PRESTON. FRIDAY, April 1st. John Alapai vs. Iolla Paakaula. Continued from the 31st of March. Heard, and decision reserved. W. R. Castle for plaintiff, defendant in person.

THE MAN FROM TOM'S RIVER. Who Does not Propose to Allow an Enemy to Land on His Coast.

You may have seen something in the papers about the coast defenses. The idea has somehow got abroad that our coasts ought to be lined with forts and guns as a warning to Europe against declaring war against us some morning before breakfast. Engineers have surveyed and reported, and congressional committees have sat and reported, and for about eight months we can get things in such shape that when the enemy's first iron-clad heaves in sight she can be saluted in proper style.

A lot of us were sitting in the depot waiting room at Trenton, and the only man who was reading a newspaper near the depot was a stranger entered with two satchels and a tall girl, chucked the baggage under a seat, walked the girl to another, and walked up to the man with the newspaper and asked: "Mister, is there anything in the paper about our coast defenses?" "No, sir," was the gruff reply. "That's singular. Have they given up the idea, do you think?" "I don't know what you mean, sir."

"You don't! Why, they've been talking for the last year about building forts to protect our coasts. I live down near the mouth of Tom's river, and I rather expect they'll build a big fort there. The way things are now England, France or Germany could declare war against us and land a force at Tom's river before we had our eyes open. They'd land right on my farm, and nobody knows the damage they'd do. Don't see anything about a fort at Tom's river, eh?" "No, sir."

"Well, that's singular. If this government expects me to get down behind a rock with my old shotgun and keep Europe from landing at the point, I don't want a kettle too much of one man. I'd fight to the death, of course, but the chances are that a hull navy could lick one high sighted man. So the paper don't say anything?" "Didn't tell you in the first place?" "Say, mister, you don't keep a copperabout coast defenses?" exclaimed the two-sachel man, as a red spot appeared on either cheek. "Not a copper, sir!"

"I thought so from the start! You live out in Michigan or Indiana or Illinois, and are trucked away in some hollow where the sheriff can't find you, let alone an invader of our sacred soil! Oh, no, you don't keep!" "Father!" chided the tall girl as she half rose; but he turned on her with:

"Mary, you keep shut! I've allus thought if Europe declares war again we'll have plenty of enemies right at home, and here's a case to prove it! Stranger, did you fit in the last war?" "None of your business, sir!" "There's his open hand, gentlemen!" said the two-sachel man as he turned to the crowd.

"When you had a man who don't keep how soon the hull of Europe jumps on this country you have found a man who'd dig up the bones of Washington and sell 'em to a junk man for $5!"

The man with the newspaper laid it down, got up and faced the other; if he would step out doors a minute. "No, sir, I won't!" was the prompt reply. "In the first place, I've got these two satchels to protect; if the second place, there's Mary; in the third place, I don't fight with no man who didn't fight in the last war. In the first place, I expect to see if there was anything in the paper about our coast defenses."

"And I said, no, you idiot!" "And you said you did it keep?" "Neither do I!"

"There's his hand agin, gentlemen! Will! I'm lying behind a rock at Tom's River, waiting to sell my life in defense of my country, here's a feller from Coon Holler, state of Indiana, who don't keep a cooper's copper but quick Europe kivers the site of New Jersey with the blood of our bravest men!" "I don't!" chided Mary again.

"Lemme alone, Mary! You know all about carpet rags and darning and housework, but you never heard the rumble of war. If Europe is going to jump onto this country I want to know who's going to shoot me in the back as I face the enemy?"

The man with the newspaper opened it and sat down with a dangerous glitter in his eyes, and there was a solemn silence for a few minutes. Then the Tom's River man edged over to Mary and they slid out doors together. "He he he!" through the door they looked to three or four of us, and as we went out he surrounded us and whispered: "Gentlemen, it's my solemn opinion that that feller is a janissary from Europe who has come over here to coax Uncle Sam not to put up any coast defenses. I want to say right here, and I want you to hear it and remember it, that if the enemy lands at Tom's River it will be over my dead body, and I won't be to blame for it."—M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

LONELINESS OF THE CZAR. Not a Man in the World More Deeply to be Pityed—The Nihilists.

There is not a man in the world more deeply to be pitied than the present emperor of Russia. The loneliness of kings, a loneliness naturally resulting from their place, which hardly admits of friendship, and does not admit of equality, is always terrible, and is frequently felt by themselves so severely that they break through all restraints of prudence and put up any conditions. I want to say right here, and I want you to hear it and remember it, that if the enemy lands at Tom's River it will be over my dead body, and I won't be to blame for it."—M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

Multitudinous Paltry-Twaddlers. William Winter denies the authenticity of an alleged interview with him published in a Boston paper. He says: "For thirty years I have labored in literature, and I have always respected and sustained the dignity and honor of my profession. It is no light thing that I now find myself entrapped and paraded as one of those multitudinous paltry twaddlers who fill the newspapers with the clamor of their gab and cackle and effluvia of their personal conceit."—New York Graphic.

Gliding Glass. A process for gliding or decorating glass with gold and silver has been brought out. It is stated to be a revival of an older process, or in other words the discovery of a lost art. The metal is precipitated on the back of the glass, and then coated with a protective composition which excludes the atmosphere.—Boston Budget.

A Wrinkle to Photographers. Photo Artist (to gourmand)—So, there, now keep quite still and think of your favorite dish!—Beiblatt. Counting by Telegraph. A young man in Boston proposed to a young lady in New York by telegraph, adding: "Answer yes or no at my expense." She sent him 600 words of explanation without coming to any conclusion. Very few girls will want to be courted by telegraph. It's too awfully sudden.—Detroit Free Press.

Habeas Corpus Case.

On March 30th Mr. A. C. Smith filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The petition showed that one Francisco P. dos Santos, a Portuguese subject, was unlawfully imprisoned, detained, confined and restrained of his liberty by the Marshal at Oahu Jail. That he was held in custody on the pretense of having been convicted of the offense of "hohea me ka mea make" and by virtue of a certain mittimus dated at Punalu the 29th day of January, 1887, directed to the Marshal and signed George Timoteo, Lunakaniawai. The petitioner is informed and believes that the said mittimus is not the original one upon which the said Francisco P. dos Santos was committed to prison for said offense. Objections to said mittimus are as follows: That the District Court of Kauai has no jurisdiction to try the offense "hohea me ka mea make" named in said mittimus; that there is no such offense known to our statute; that the said District Court has no jurisdiction to sentence to imprisonment at hard labor for an indefinite period for non-payment of fine without providing for the discharge of the prisoner in case such fine shall be collected out of the property of the offender; that the offense is not stated with sufficient particularity in the mittimus, etc.

The petition was heard yesterday before Mr. Justice Preston. After hearing arguments the Court orders that the prisoner is entitled to his discharge, as no offense known to the law is disclosed by the mittimus. S. B. Dole and A. C. Smith for the petitioner; the Attorney General for the Marshal.

A Decision.

Mr. Justice Bickerton has filed his decision in the case of A. J. Cartwright vs. T. W. Everett, administrator of the estate of E. Batchelor, deceased, and Catherine Batchelor, administratrix. This was an action of assumpsit upon a promissory note for $1,000 and interest; the said note secured by mortgage on the real estate of said Catherine Batchelor, said joint note being signed by Catherine Batchelor for herself, and as attorney in fact, for her husband E. Batchelor. A jury was waived, and defendant's answer was a general denial. On March 23, 1887, the defendant, by his counsel, filed an admission of certain facts, as follows: That E. Batchelor died in November, 1885; that the defendant was appointed administrator of the estate of the deceased; that on or about April 6, 1886, the plaintiff Cartwright duly filed the claim against said deceased's estate with the administrator within the time prescribed by law; that the defendant duly rejected said claim and refused to pay it, and plaintiff brought suit within two months after such rejection.

His Honor, after reviewing the evidence and citing authorities, gave judgment for defendant, with costs. W. A. Whiting for plaintiff, L. A. Thurston for defendant.

Old Folks' Concert.

A large audience was present at the Hawaiian Opera House last evening, the occasion being the Old Folks' Concert for the benefit of the Ladies' Benevolent Society. The whole of the performers who took part in the programme were dressed in costumes of "ye olden time." The ushers were also similarly attired. The programme consisted of choruses, duets, songs, etc., with an interval for the singers to step out and eat doughnuts. The different numbers were rendered with fine effect under the direction of Jeddahab Eliakim Yarnley. Hand-drawings of "Hallelujah," was particularly good, the accompaniment being played on the piano, double bass and two saxhorns. The audience was enthusiastic in its applause. The Ladies' Benevolent Society will receive a large addition to its funds.

Royal Hawaiian Agricultural Society.

At a recent meeting of the Committee of Directors of the above-named Society, charged with the management of the Stock Show which was to have been held next month, it was, after lengthy consideration of the subject, unanimously resolved, on motion made by Judge McCully, "that in view of (1) the recent reappearance of glanders; (2) of the prevalence of the hog cholera; (3) of the long continued rains of the past season, whereby cattle and young stock have greatly suffered; (4) and in addition, in view of the depressed condition of business at the present time, it is considered not advisable to hold the general Stock Show as had been proposed to be held next May. We recommend that it be deferred." There were present at the meeting His Honor Judge Bickerton (in the chair), His Honor Judge McCully, and Messrs. B. F. Dillingham, Chas. Lucas and J. S. Webb.

A meeting of the Committee of Directors of the society to whom was confided the charge of the Horticultural Show to be held early in May next, took place last evening. It was ordered that a programme of the forthcoming show be advertised in accordance with the resolution passed in December last, which was fully reported in the columns of the PACIFIC COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER at the time. This programme will be duly advertised next week. It was further resolved that, as the Committee of the Stock Show had decided to defer the same, there should be added to the horticultural exhibits a show of dairy produce, rice and other grains, poultry and birds. It was decided that members of the society should be admitted free to the show, and should not be required to pay entrance fees on their exhibits. The show is to be held in the second week of May, on a day to be hereafter named.

A resolution was also passed ordering a renewed appeal to the President of the Board of Education to set apart a day as Arbor Day, to be a special school holiday.

There were present at the above meeting Hon. A. S. Cleghorn (in the chair), Messrs. A. Jaeger and C. O. Berger.

The other business was of the usual routine character.

A Small Fire at the Honolulu Iron Works.

Last evening, about 6 o'clock, the fire bells rang out an alarm for a fire at the Honolulu Iron Works. The department turned out, but their services were not required.

PRESIDENTIAL LIFE.

MR. CLEVELAND'S HABITS OF EATING, WORKING AND RESTING.

How He Manages to Resist the Supposed Malarial Influences of the Capital City. A Methodical, Painstaking and Thorough Man.

The president is a regular man. To begin his day with his preparations for meeting the duties of the next day, he goes to bed about 12 o'clock, not punctually, but as punctually as the work he has in hand will permit. He takes a moderately warm bath before retiring. No matter how engrossing his work may have been during the day, he does not have to court sleep. He has always been, and is still, "a splendid sleeper." His rising hour is from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, but it is not difficult for him to abide his night's rest by an hour at the beginning or the end. He frequently, but not always, takes a cold bath on rising, and wears clothing of light weight. He never wears a heavy overcoat, even in the coldest of weather.

Breakfast is ready at the White House at 8:30, and the president never waits in vain for an appetite for this first meal of the three that satisfy and sustain him. Fruit, oatmeal or some other cereal food, chops, beefsteaks, eggs, fish, with coffee and rolls, make up this meal. Then comes the morning in the library, where the president receives most of his business visitors standing, moving from one to the other in a circle until all are disposed of. Two days of the week—Tuesdays and Fridays—break in upon the routine for other days. On three days he goes down into the East room at 9 o'clock to shake hands with people who call to pay respects. In this way his time is occupied until luncheon is announced at 1:30. This meal is plain—cold meat, bread and butter, a relish, potatoes, green tea, green tea and again fruit. Dinner is served at 7. It is only an ordinary meal of soup, fish, an entrée and a roast, with a simple dressing, and fruit, for the president enjoys fruit at every meal.

In addition to the beverage named as being used at breakfast and luncheon the president drinks but little wine. Wine is never on the White House table except there be guests present. An erroneous impression has obtained regarding the president's tastes in this respect. Lager beer or ale are used by him very rarely. The president uses tobacco. He smokes not more than two cigars a day and these after dinner, when he goes up to the library to resume his work after a chat with the White House family.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECREATION.

Of recreation he craves and enjoys little. He walks about the house a great deal, up and down his office during business hours, when receiving and directing visitors. Occasionally he strolls through the grounds after breakfast, in company with his wife. At 4 in the afternoon he lays aside his work and risks out for an hour or two. Since he has acquired a country home his drive is usually toward this place, where he finds opportunity to walk about and gratify the interest he feels in the improvements that have been made, and in enjoying the beautiful view of the city and surrounding country that is to be had from the porch. Very infrequently, indeed, he goes to the theatre. He does not indulge in games of any sort. No cards have been played in the White House since he became an occupant of it. There is a billiard table in the basement, but it has never been used by Mr. Cleveland.

In his work he is methodical, painstaking and thorough. He writes altogether with his own hand, even the briefest notes, personal letters, messages and other communications to persons and public officers. The stenographer and the aid of dictation are for saving help only, he has not yet called to his assistance. Whatever he takes hold of he finishes, alone or in consultation with his advisers. Having reached a conclusion he is tenacious of it, and will not reverse it until after a reconsideration of the subject as careful as the original consideration. His work, however absorbing and momentous, does not cause insomnia. The cares of the day end with him.

He is a great stickler for plenty of fresh air, often working in moderately cool weather in his office with all the windows open. He is not sensitive to changes or slight draughts. He never has a cold, and but for the occasional reappearance of an old enemy, rheumatism in the knee joints, he would have very little use for medical advice.—E. G. Dunnell in Herald of Health.

Costumes of African Chiefs.

As for the costumes or "complets" of the native chiefs, a kind of ballet dancer's petticoat of filthy grass, perhaps the least said about them the better, there being, indeed, so little to say anything about. These garments become beautifully less as one goes farther into the interior, assuming the proportions of a miniature Masonic apron, and finally dwindling into moccasins. But the method of converting bark into cloth, though so well known, is really an interesting process, as shown in Capt. Storms' collection. He possesses a strip of common bark, fibrous and woody, of which all the lower bark has been removed and beaten until it has spread itself out into about two square yards of tough, leathery, flexible substance, something like a blacksmith's apron. The natives do understand a kind of coarse, primitive weaving of the cotton fibre into a rough, canvas like texture; but the bark cloth is the most easily made, and therefore the most in vogue.—Chicago Tribune.

Dinner Parties at the Hotel.

It is becoming a part of the social programme to give one's entertainments, unless it is a small dinner party or luncheon, at some restaurant or hotel. The excuse is that "society" turns the house inside out, upside down, and it is such a bother the hostess gladly avails herself of the handsome rooms in a fashionable hotel, rather than to be put to so much trouble. People who live in big establishments, designed with special reference to the frivolities of social life, rather scorn the subterfuge practiced by owners of "bijou" houses; but the fact takes, nevertheless. Every one cannot include a ballroom in the ground plan of his or her town residence.—Chicago Herald.

use Florida Buzzards.

On the coldest morning of our late disagreeable spell of weather the fishermen built a large fire on a point projecting into the river from Emma Square, and after warming themselves, went on with their fishing and left the fire burning. Returning after a time they were surprised to see a group of some fifty or sixty buzzards standing about the fire, kicking up all sorts of antics. Not understanding such proceedings the boats were rowed up pretty close, and the occupants watched the birds for some time. It was a very cold morning, and the birds would stand with one side to the fire until it was warm, and then they would deliberately turn around and warm the other side. Those on the outside of the group would get so eager to get within the warmth of the fire that they frequently jumped the birds on the inside, usually into the flames, and the struggle was waged fierce and bitter for advantageous position.—Palatka News.

LADIES' NURSE

He Knew the Meaning of Cards. Our preacher has got about as many eyes in his head as anybody, and as he sat near my secretary his fingers meandered to a deck of beautiful cards that the girls forgot to hide, and as he shuffled them he said, "Well, this is an age of pictures. I never saw so many, and some of them are too lovely for anything; but these are different from any I have seen. What are these for, young ladies?" I saw their cunning embarrassment and came to their relief in his hand. "These are my lecture tickets," said I. "Oh, yes, I see," said he; "this one with five spots admits a family of five, and this one with ten spots a family of ten." "Exactly so," said I, "and those with pictures are complimentary for the preachers." "I understand," said he, "and so I will just take two or three of these home with me," and he slipped a queen and jack in his pocket. "Those cards," said I, "are reminders of many things. There are four kinds, which reminds us of the four seasons. The spade reminds us that labor is the leading trump in this world's affairs; the club that we must be aggressive and force our way; the diamond that money is a good thing to help, and the heart that, after all, riches and labor and force are worth nothing without love. There are twelve of these picture cards, which remind us of the twelve months in the year, and fifty-two cards in the deck, which tell us of the fifty-two weeks in the year, and—" "And," said he, interrupting me, "there are just 365 spots in all, which reminds us of the number of days in the year." Right then I surrendered, for I saw he knew as much about a deck of cards as I did, and I expect he has played many a game in a gully or behind his father's barn.—Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

A Crime By Telephone. A prominent young unmarried physician in West Nashville is said to be on the war path, or words to that effect, as regards a certain friend who broke into his chambers a few nights since. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning, and very cold, when, in his dreams, he thought he was in Baltimore on Sunday morning, while the bells were ringing with all their might from every one of the hundred steeples which rise into the air around the City of Many Churches faded away, and he came to the consciousness that the telephone had been rattling for about five minutes. Jumping from his bed, with the eager expectation always attendant on a sudden call, the doctor rushed, with bare feet, over the cold floor and shivering yelled out, "Hello." "Hello, doctor! Have you got any instruments, or are you prepared to dress the wounds of a man who has been cut all to pieces with a hatchet?" "Oh, yes, oh, yes," quickly responded the physician, as visions of his favorite practice came to his mind, "where is the man?" "All right, doctor, I am much obliged. If I come across a man cut to pieces by a hatchet between now and daylight, I'll let you know." The doctor hasn't found the fellow who telephoned him, neither has he found a man cut up by a hatchet.—Nashville American.

DICK AND HIS DOG. Old Dick was like his dog, 'twas said, In every particular, And upright were the lives they led, Their ways were purp-and-Dick-and.—Merchant Traveler.

Pretzel's Premium. Show us the woman who can get off of a horse or steam car when in motion, with her nose in the right direction, and we will furnish her a husband in twenty minutes.—Carl Pretzel in National Weekly.

Just Like Men. They have a dispute over billiards, And decide to settle it in the dark.

Brevities. It gets late very early now nights.—Detroit Free Press. A teacher in a San Francisco public school was informed by a lawyer at 2 o'clock p. m. that she was heir to $20,000. He expected to hear her whoop and see her grab her bonnet and run, but instead of that she calmly replied: "I will wear the class in geography, lick three boys and be at your office in an hour."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Severe. A Hingham lady, who, having complained of being unable to tell her mince pies from her apple pies without testing, was advised to mark them. She did so and complacently announced: "This I've marked 'T. M.'—'Taint Mince,' and that I've marked 'T. M.'—'Taint Mince.'"—Hingham (Mass.) Journal.

How They Differ. Men are strange creatures. They will waste an hour hunting a collar button instead of having an extra supply and letting their wife find the missing one. You never see a woman look for the pin she drops. Her husband finds it when he walks around in his bare feet.—Philadelphia Call.

Characteristics of Fish Oils. Mr. A. H. Allen, in a paper on oils read in the American association, said that shark and fish oils are often unappreciated, and hence are not fatty ethers. He believed them to contain cholesterine, like cod liver oil. The fixed oils can be separated into groups, but we know no process for separating a mixture of lard and cotton seed oil.—Boston Budget.

TRICKS OF HORSE TRADERS.

A Horse Whose Owner Will Make Some-thing of It. "I've got a trick horse in my stable at this moment," said my friend, the veterinary surgeon and trader, "that will make me big money before people get onto his tricks. Snider's coming to try a trade with me to-day, and if you wait till he happens along you'll witness the hull racket. Ah! here's the Jim dandy now, as I'm a sinner!" Snider is a milkman who varies the monotony of dairy devices by occasionally resorting to traders' tricks. I make this statement on the authority of people who own lactometers and have swapped horses with Snider; not necessarily to cast any reflection on the gentleman's probity or his public usefulness. "How do, Snider? How's the colt?" "No better, Doc." "Guess I'll have to take him myself, Snider." "But the size of it, Doc." "Gimme $50 to boot and my new mar's yours." "Lemme hev another look at that new mar, Doc, 'fore I close." The new mare was brought out and Snider went over her very carefully. "She looks all right, Doc." "Sound as a fresh egg, I'll warrant, Snider." "I guess I'll risk her in other ways and go you. Here's the coin. Take the colt and gimme the mar." "You gimme the colt and take the mar, Snider! That's the way to put it! Hyar, Lou, move!" The Doc yelled this last at his animal and administered to her a vigorous kick on the flank at the same time. The mare, heretofore lively and obedient, suddenly stood still and planted her four feet in the soil as if she meant to stay root.

"Take her off, Snider!" exclaimed the Doc, putting away his $50. "I'm in a hurry." Snider proceeded. But the mare wouldn't. He coaxed, he jerked, he slapped, he shoved, he prodded. The mare was as immovable as a stone fence. Schemes of various kinds were resorted to to waken her up, but all in vain. Then Snider, sweating and swearing, decided to give it up as a bad job. He accordingly delivered himself of his most solemn oration: "Doc, you know well that if there is anything—this—earth I hate worse'n Satan, it's a darned balker. You've got one onto me this trip. Call the decker off, an' say it's only a colt!" "Can't think of it, Snider!" quietly replied the Doc. "A bargain's a bargain. Take the mar 'n' gimme the colt, an' you'll see 'em." "Take 'em!" exclaimed Snider. "Don't you see an earthquake wouldn't budge the brute. Say, Doc," he proceeded in a more conciliatory tone, "I'll drop $25 on the deal and never say another word about it. Come!" "Well, said the Doc thoughtfully, "I hate to give back good money I win on the square spec; but seein' it's your, Snider, here's half yer boot and the trade's off. Git back to yer stall, Lou!" and by a magic touch the balky mare was made to frisk into the stable without another word.

Where it Grinds the Editor. "Tell me, O Aristarchus, tell me, by the shield of Pallas Athene, what find you in the exchanges this day that you brisly apply your never to be satiated and early devouring shears." "Of a truth, O Mnestheus, the times go hard, for neither on the all thundering editorial pages, nor in the columns of the argus eyed local reporters, nor yet even in the from every where selected miscellany can I find matter worthy to be culled for our all pervading sheet. And, by the gods immortal, I do esteem it to be cruel fortune that at this time, when news is scarce and advertising slow, it is required of me to bring to the altar of the remorseless printers fresh and piteous hecatombs of reprinting!" "You speak true things, O Aristarchus, wielder of the nimble scissors! But, by the dog, how hardly shall it go with me, who, when these papers bear me no word provoking pointers, am forced to sit me down to gaze at the four walls and to have of mendacious Mercury the aid which he alone with his inventive arts can bring!"—Eugene Field in Chicago News.

Shanghai's Population and Climate. The population of Shanghai is 500,000 Chinese and 4,000 of all other nationalities, including about 1,100 British males, 250 each of Germans and Frenchmen, and 125 registered American citizens, the rest being women, children, Japanese and Bagdad Jews. These figures are taken from the census of last year. The climate varies from skating in the months of January and February, with marrow-freezers from the northern plateau, to over 90 degrees day and night for a spell, perhaps, of a week in July and August, the thermometer standing as high as 140 out in the street at midday and going sometimes a little higher when a sandstorm from the far-off desert of Gobi sweeps by. Heavy and frequent rains fall all the year round, and the tail end of a typhoon will now and then uproot a few trees and blow the corners off buildings. Shocks of earthquake are sometimes a cause of excitement, but these are not nearly as frequent or severe as in Japan.

Girl Graduate's Essay on Patriotism. One of the sweet girl graduates who recently skipped out of school life bedecked in gauze and almost smothered in flowers lavished upon her by admiring friends, read an essay on "Love of Country." After quoting the entire well remembered lines beginning "Breathes there a man with soul so dead" she added about a dozen prose lines of her own composition, in the course of which she reported that the dignified professor, to whom the essay was originally handed for inspection, in September and October the undertaker has to close his photographic gallery in order to give undivided attention to the more serious and paying business of arranging and boxing dead bodies. Seven years is considered the maximum term which a man of the best constitution should spend in China without a trip home.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Indisputable Proof. "The teacher wanted to box my ears this morning," remarked Johnny Fizzlepop. "How do you know that he wanted to box your ears?" asked his mother. "If he hadn't wanted to box my ears he wouldn't have done it, would he, eh?"—Texas Siftings.

A REMARKABLE FEMALE SURGEON.

Graduating at the Age of Twenty-Six, She Goes to Egypt. The death is announced in Cochinchina of a remarkable female surgeon, whose career was very extraordinary, an experience that no other woman has ever had. Beginning as a waitress in a little drinking shop of the Quartier Latin in Paris, she passed, while still very young, through the usual experience of Parisian life, and became connected with a medical student who frequented the shop. Her instinct was irresistible. No sooner did she come in contact with his books and instruments than she fell upon them and literally devoured the knowledge they contained. She availed herself of his teachings, too, and drew from him everything he learned, so that by the time she had reached the age of 26 she presented herself for examination as surgeon, and passed the ordeal brilliantly and triumphantly. She soon recognized the field that lay open before her in the Egyptian harems, to which male surgeons were not admitted, and where women suffered unspeakable torments for the lack of proper attendance. At Cairo she speedily established a large practice, and had every prospect of doing well, but her habits of dissipation had been formed early, had become rooted and were unacquarable. Her career of vice ended finally in an Egyptian madhouse, and here suffering in the most horrible place as great as her excesses had been. After six months of this severe but salutary regimen she recovered her mind, but never forgave her heartless and disreputable Levantine friends who had hastily thrust her out of sight and mind into the horrors of an insane asylum. Her career in Egypt was over, but she could not return to Europe, and nothing was left her but the French possessions in Asia. She made her way out to the French colony in Cochinchina, where her talents and her beauty, which despite the life she had led in Egypt and her sufferings in the mad house, had never failed her, won her instant recognition and she was in great demand among women. The old queen mother of Annam had been blind for years and had with delight the prospect of relief held out to her by the French physician. Mme. Ribart died suddenly the day before the operation was to be performed, the result, as supposed, of the strains upon her health which her Egyptian experiences had entailed. She was still young and had prospects of reconquering the past, for her talents in her difficult profession were great and undoubted. Probably no European woman ever knew so much of the inner life of the harem in the east and its dark side as this ex-griette.—New York World.

Bad Chinese Boys in San Francisco. So far references has been had only to the older class of hoodlum Mongolians. There is another class, no less dangerous to society, to be found among the Chinese boys, many of whom are members of industrious families. The example set by the older roughs is imitated as closely as it is possible for those of tender age to follow in the footsteps of their elder "cousins." To be bad, thoroughly and irrevocably bad, is their highest ambition. They pick up American profanity readily, and use it with a freedom and frequency that would drive the most devoted American hoodlum to despair. But it is not on their profanity in the use of oaths or filthy language that the young pagans rest their reputation for wickedness. It affords them a certain pleasure to mingle with the Sunday school youths of their own race and to throw a few bombshells of profanity now and then, while the Christianized Mongolians raise their eyes in holy horror. But this is only fleeting joy. To sport a weapon of offense in the shape of a knife or pistol, and to display it on all occasions when the eye of the police is not upon them, is a pleasure smacking more of delightful outlawry, and it is enjoyed to the full by the bad young man in Chinatown. A knife having a four-inch blade and a short, thick handle—one of those wicked looking knives that cut both ways and must be carried in a leather sheath—is the delight of the Mongolian hoodlum. The sheath is generally fastened to a strap about the waist, and is concealed from view by the outer garments. Such knives have been found in the possession of Chinese hoodlums under arrest many times. It is, indeed, doubtful if the majority of the class under discussion do not carry a weapon of this kind, and sometimes two or three, with a pistol to boot. The more closely he resembles a walking arsenal the better the young pagan is pleased with himself, for he can then easily convince the Chinese that he is a very, very bad young man.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Advertisements. FREDERICKSBURG BREWING COMPANY'S EXPORT LAGER BEER SAN JOSE, CAL., U. S. A. A CALIFORNIA PRODUCTION. The Fine Exhibit Made at the Fair by the Fredericksburg Brewing Co. Lager Not Surpassed. One of the most novel and unique exhibits of the Mechanics' Fair was that of the Fredericksburg Lager Brewing Co. It was in the form of a tower, the roof being formed of hop vines, while around the sides were arranged the various packages of the famous Fredericksburg Lager Beer. This company was the pioneer in the manufacture of lager on the Coast. After overcoming many obstacles they have succeeded in producing an export Lager Not Surpassed. By any other made in the United States. A proof of this is seen in the fact that the goods are sold as far East as Chicago, despite Eastern competition. How can they do this after paying freight over 3,000 miles of railroad, it may be asked. In the first place hops are better and cheaper here than in the East; again, California barley is the best grown in the United States; but the chief reason is the superior quality of the brew. As they use only the finest artesian water and the very best material, and have all the best and latest machinery, they are able to produce an article that DEFIES COMPETITION. Their Export Lager is so perfect that it will keep any number of years in any climate, and is sold largely in Mexico, Australia, the Islands, South America, and in short throughout the Western Hemisphere. In three years their output has quadrupled; last year it amounted to 33,000 barrels, and this year will exceed that amount. Since writing the above we learn that the Fredericksburg Brewing Co. was awarded the first prize, a silver medal, "for the best Export Lager," also the first prize, another silver medal, for the "best Lager Beer."—Journal of Commerce, San Francisco.

Having been appointed SOLE AGENTS for the Hawaiian Islands for the above celebrated Brewing Company, we are now prepared to fill all orders for the trade and family consumption at bedrock figures. FREETH & PEACOCK, 23 Nuuanu Street, Honolulu. P. O. BOX 504. [369 dec 23 d-w] BOTH TELEPHONES No. 46.
