FRIDAY August 5th.

POLITICAL reform can never be achieved by suppressing public discussion. The more thorough the agitation the more effective the reform is likely to be.

MR. MARCHANT has a word in to-day's Advertiser on the subject of the representation of mechanics in the Legislature. We do not hesitate to say, that intelligent labor as a class is unrepresented in the next Legislature, mechanics will live to regret it when it is too late to mend matters.

The project of the Government to place the balance of the six per cent loan in Honolulu is to be commended. It has been our opinion from the first that the entire loan could have been raised here upon better terms than in England, by simply issuing bonds as the money was required; but that would have left no margin for commissions and charges, and financial agents would have been unnecessary.

The Attorney General has still to be heard from in respect of doctors' certificates to opium consumers, upon which the opium licensee sells his poisonous drug. The unanimous ruling of the Supreme Court, delivered by Mr. Justice Preston, is clear and explicit upon this point. The public have a right to know whether breaches of the law by physicians, no matter who or what they may be, are to be condoned, and wretched Chinamen are to be dragged into Court upon every possible pretext. If this is a reform Government let it have sufficient courage to do its duty, no matter who may be hurt.

We cordially approve of the constitution of the Board of Health, and think that the appointment of the Secretary was a proper and fitting one. But we look for something better than this. One of the grievances against the late Administration was in relation to leprosy. It was charged that lepers were allowed to go at large, to the imminent danger of individual and public health. Now, let us ask, what has been done or attempted by the new Board of Health differing from the action of its predecessor? If it has made a move towards general segregation of lepers we are ignorant of it. This matter is in Mr. Thurston's department.

FREE SPEECH; FREE PRESS. Article 3 of the new Constitution reads as follows: "All men may freely speak, write and publish their sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that right, and no law shall be enacted to restrain the liberty of speech or of the press." This is all very well in theory; it would be very satisfactory if it were so in practice. It would be an insult to the intelligence of this community, however, to aver that freedom of speech or of publication has been permitted since the promulgation of the new Constitution unless to sound its praise. That instrument has never been subjected to discussion or criticism of any kind, it being tacitly understood that adverse criticism was dangerous, and that the expression of a doubt regarding it marked an enemy of public order. Now that military pressure has been somewhat relaxed, however, and that the Government have fixed a day for the general election under the new organic law, we hope and trust that the fullest latitude will be allowed for its discussion, with a view to amendment if necessary, or assent if it be found generally acceptable.

This is the safe and prudent plan. It will save a great deal of time hereafter, and possible trouble, if the inhabitants of the Kingdom go into the election with a clear understanding of what they are doing. We are led to make these remarks because of the attitude assumed by the Administration, through its official organ yesterday, when commenting upon the King's reply to the deputation from a mass meeting of Hawaiians who objected, we suppose, to alleged disabilities imposed upon them by the Constitution. The native people are denied the right of agitation and petition guaranteed them by the Constitution, old and new, by the Government organ. The language in which this intimation is made conveys a threat, which is wholly inconsistent with the guarantee of freedom of speech and publication in the Constitution. Is this wise, is it just? Will it tend to harmonize the races? Will it commend itself to the intelligence of impartial men at home and abroad? Surely native Hawaiians have some rights in their own country which they can stand upon, without fear of having "an extinguisher by the strong arm put upon the agitation of these people" as the "Gazette" threatens.

The misconduct of the Gibson Administration has nothing to do with this question. No one has a word to say against the popular movement that resulted in a change of Government, but in carrying out needed reforms there is danger of running into an opposite extreme and doing an injustice. The native people express no secret that the Gibson regime is ended; they do not complain that the power of the King has been limited in various directions; but they do complain that under the new Constitution they are denied equal rights with foreign residents, by reason of the property qualification attached to the franchise. If that grievance exists, let the matter be rationally and calmly discussed with a view to satisfying the natives, and not threaten to use the "strong arm" to put a stop to their agitation.

The country has got along very well so far, foreigners and natives living together harmoniously. It would be a greater misfortune if this condition should change through rash and inconsiderate conduct on the part of any one either in or out of authority. The Government must be held responsible, not for an appeal to "the strong arm" to stop agitation, which is out of the question, but for preserving intact the rights of the people, whether native or foreign.

Mechanical Representation. EN, ADVERTISER-SIR: I feel more than I can express for your timely remarks on mechanical representation in this day's issue. I failed to make some who were present at the meeting I called on Monday night last, who came without invitation, understand what was needed and meant by sending a mechanic into the House of Representatives, and I am sorry to say that the Government organ, whose reporter was present, failed to see, and still continues blind, to what I was endeavoring to do. The meeting was purely a private matter, to which a few of my own friends were invited by letter; but what was my astonishment to find, when the time arrived to meet my friends, a heterogeneous gathering, the one-half of whom I did not know. Still, I proceeded to business, thinking I might possibly find enough intellect about me to carry out my views, but with the exception of a very few I found nothing capable of making an impression on. As to those three parties who disclaimed any act of theirs as worthy of notice, I fully inforce the idea that they were duly and properly elected by their fellow companions, in meeting assembled, nevertheless.

I do not, in their name, vindicate the slur cast on the mechanics of Honolulu by the disclaimer referred to, but take the entire responsibility on my own shoulders. Stand or fall, my intentions were pure and honest, and if I failed to get sufficient intellect together to carry out my theory or understand it, I cannot help it. I am, etc., J. C. MARCHANT.

"SUFFER NOT A MAN TO PASS." "And They Made a Decree: That No Man Should Pass."

The interstate commerce bill having made free passage a thing of the past, so to speak, on the trunk railway lines, a new modus vivendi has been established between the newspapers and the railways. The newspapers propose to charge for all free notices of the railways and their noble managers, and the editor will be expected to pay for his ticket when he rides. The Chicago News announces the following as its new schedule for railway puffery.

1. For the setting forth of the virtues (actual or alleged) of presidents, general managers or directors, $2 per line for first insertion and $1 for each subsequent insertion. 2. For puffery expressed in choice English, with occasional French phrases or poetical extracts the whole with a palpable motive of honest enthusiasm, $2.50 per line, 50 per cent reduction on each subsequent insertion. 3. General passenger agents and division superintendents will be accorded half rates on the terms offered in rule No. 1. But in all cases where the title of colored is used regular first class rates will be demanded. 4. Thousand mile tickets on the basis of two cents per mile will be received in exchange for advertising done on our card rates, but these tickets must hold good on passenger as well as on freight trains. 5. No deviation from the card rates can be made in favor of parties handing us five cent cigars with the puffs they desire published. 6. For complimentary notices of the wives and children of railroad officials we demand $1.50 per line. We have on hand, ready for immediate use, a splendid assortment of this literature.

7. Poetry will be made to order at $3 per inch, agate measure. We are prepared to supply a fine line of heptameter puffs, also a limited number of sonnets and triplets, in exchange for 1,000 mile tickets. Epic poems, containing descriptions of scenery, dining cars, etc., will be published at special rates. 8. General superintendents sending requests for the suppression of news must accompany their requests with $10 bills-not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A mail will be forwarded to San Francisco by the bark Iron Crag, which sails to-day.

The Royal Mail steamship Mariposa is due this morning from San Francisco, en route to the Colonies.

California produce will be received by the Mariposa by H. E. McIntyre & Bros., corner of King and Fort streets.

Mr. Lowry will take charge of Mr. P. C. Jones' classes in bookkeeping at the Y. M. C. A., during the latter's absence.

By the Mariposa, Lewis & Co. will receive their usual consignment of fresh California fruits, fish and vegetables on ice. Leave your orders early.

If you want to have a good sea bath, take the "bus" and go out to the Waikiki bath house. Every accommodation will be found there.

The following names have been booked at the office of Messrs. W. G. Irwin & Co. to leave to-day for the Colonies by the steamship Mariposa: G. L. Danforth, Jr., and wife, and H. J. Agnew.

Will arrive per Mariposa to-day, plums, cherries, grapes, pears, apples, green-gages, apricots, etc., which will be offered for sale at the California Fruit and Poultry Market, corner of King and Alakea streets.

Electric light polls have been placed in positions which are inconvenient to public traffic and dangerous to life from their liability to cause accidents to passing vehicles. The exercise of a little judgment and care would have rendered this complaint unnecessary.

A working gang was on the Waikiki road yesterday darning the surface in places along the section spoken of by the Advertiser. The gang proceeded leisurely, and if the prison labor is to be charged for, it will turn out to be a very dear job. It is to be hoped that the rock will be spread a little more evenly hereafter.

Mr. Lewis J. Levey, auctioneer, announces in to-day's Advertiser the sale of valuable real estate in Honolulu, the property of John M. Kepena, a bankrupt. The auction will be held at Mr. Levey's salesroom, corner Fort and Queen streets, to-morrow, Saturday, August 6th, at noon.

From the known value and desirable location of this property the bidding is expected to be spirited.

Mrs. Wray Taylor was buried yesterday from St. Andrew's Cathedral, which was newly filled by mourning friends. Right Rev. Dr. Willis, Bishop of Honolulu, assisted by Rev. Alexander Mackintosh and Rev. H. H. Gowen, read the very impressive burial service of the English Episcopal Church. The choir was in attendance. At the grave in Nuuanu Valley Cemetery the service was read by the Bishop, assisted by the clergy named. Many friends of the deceased placed wreaths upon the grave. Mr. Wray Taylor, husband of the deceased, is generally sympathized with in his bereavement.

Reform Club Meetings. A largely attended meeting was held at the Lyceum last night to organize a Young Men's Reform Club in the 5th Ward. A constitution was adopted, supported by 112 signatures, declaring its objects to be the maintaining of honest constitutional Government, and to assist in the election of Representatives and Nobles, and to support the political party who organized and carried into effect the recent constitutional reform. The organization is irrespective of class or creed, and the doctrine of majority rule is affirmed.

A number of resolutions were adopted, giving effect to the constitution, and Dr. J. G. Tucker was elected a delegate to represent the Club at a central committee.

Colonel Ashford, who was present, reported at the close that a similar meeting had been held in No. 8 Ward, and that Mr. William Wilder had been elected a delegate; also, that the proceedings conducted simultaneously in No. 6 Ward had resulted in the election of Mr. J. B. Atherton.

The new constitution. The P. C. Advertiser office has printed the new Constitution in pamphlet form. It is inserted in the "Honolulu Almanac and Directory," which also contains the old Constitution, and will be sold at the old price—fifty cents a copy.

BILL NYE'S BLASTED PASS. The War Between the Press and the Railways.

Hudson, Wis., April 1.—Arrived here last week just a little ahead of the biting blasts of the L. & N. By the L. & N. I mean to imply the interstate commission bill.

I noted with surprise that the new law had stimulated travel to a wonderful degree. On my way from the south, where I was during the winter, I noticed that the sluggish arteries of trade had already begun to palpitate, and crowds of people filled the cars on every train.

I said to myself, congress has at last solved this great question of financial stringency and broken the great dam that held capital captive. On the Piedmont Air line people crushed each other together in a mad attempt to travel. On the Richmond and Danville and E. T. N. and G., as well as the L. and N., humanity crowded day coaches and sleepers till the walls cracked. At Cincinnati I could not get a sleeping-car at all, and I had to telegraph twenty-four hours ahead to get one from Chicago. Everywhere, as far as the eye could reach, there seemed to be a wild and restless desire to get somewhere else. Several companies have to put on extra coaches to carry the eager tourists.

I arrived here just in time to witness the last moments of a northwestern pass as its spirit took its flight. Had I postponed my journey for a single day I would have been too late.

It was still young. Life was before it. Barely a quarter of the span of its life had been passed when it curled up and expired. It was a cute little thing, with an olive complexion and large, mournful, upper case eyes.

A few weeks ago I noticed that it did not look well. It did not complain of illness or pain, but I detected a condition on its back, and so I hurried home in order to be here in case it should expire. As soon as the conductor looked at it and felt its pulse he said that he could do nothing for it. The interstate commerce law is one of those things that will have to be tried before we can pass upon it. I presume, then, some claim that it is going to be very difficult to pass upon it even then. The thought occurred to me just after the gate keeper pushed me back yesterday and told me to go and get my ticket.

I then first realized that I was being rudely ground under the heel of a cold corporation that is devoid of heart, devoid of soul, devoid of noble thoughts, devoid of refined instincts, devoid of kind impulses, devoid of milk of human kindness, devoid of bowels of compassion.

From force of habit I walked up to the gate with a joyous nod and the old password, only to be coldly regarded as a man of straw.

But the railroads will get the worst of it, for I know that travel on some of the lines has fallen off since April 1. I can see it already. I have fallen off myself since the 1st of the month and others will do the same.

That is not all. A friend of mine who runs a paper, and whose paper got a yellow hue on Friday last, says that his columns are now open to those who wish to complain of the management of this road. He states that the first hot bill will be duly chronicled, and that he will no longer close his eyes to the wrongs we have heretofore suffered at the hands of this unjust and ruthless vampire that has been sapping the very foundation of our institutions and sneering its long, dark trail with the romantic and assert itself, "and when the train runs off the track and kills a lot of people who have led exemplary lives, his paper will hereafter tell why and how it was done. Heretofore he has not had sufficient help in the office, he claims, and he frequently ran short of type, but now he is going to give all the particulars of the first smash up that occurs on the road if the paper falls into the rotten hands of a "shiner" and on the following week.—New York World.

The One He Forgot. "John, I would like to invite my friend, Mrs. Smalley this evening. Will you be able to be in?" "No, my dear, I must attend a meeting of the Knights of Honor to-night."

"Well, to-morrow evening?" "I have the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and you know?" "What about Wednesday evening?" "Oh, the Old Folks meet that night, and on Thursday I have a meeting of the Chosen Friends to attend; on Friday the Royal Templars; on Saturday there is a special meeting of the Masonic lodge, and I couldn't miss that, and then Sunday—let me see—what is there on Sunday night, my dear?" "The Grand and Ancient Order of Juristia Fellowship."

"Why, I had forgotten, am I member of that—let me see?" "But you have forgotten another society, John." "What's that?" "Your wife's"—Boston Record.

The Millionaire and the Tramp. The millionaire and the tramp form the two extremes of American society, but in one respect they have a common quality—they are for the most part homeless. The homeless tramp, because of his dire poverty, vagabondage to any place that will give him temporary food and shelter. The homeless rich, because of what Matthew Arnold calls "baccated property," "close their houses" by the seaside, in the mountains and in the cities, and wander the world over in quest of pleasure. Both classes are itinerant, and both suffer loss because they are not rooted in homes, which "never so humble," or never so grand, give an anchorage to the human being and a chance for growth.—Mary A. Livermore in the Chautauquan.

A Mighty Big Thing. There are a good many ministers, who, if they were to bear in mind that remark of John Brown, "It's a mighty big thing for a man to do all he can," would presently find a notable increase in their congregations and in their power for good over them.—Chicago Advance.

BREYER GARDNER'S TALKS.

Valuable Suggestions on Hygiene—Unsatisfactory Johnson's Fears.

A communication from Niles, Mich., from a prominent colored barber, stated that the subject of hygiene was being very generally discussed just now, and he desired the Lime Kiln club to post him in all the leading points.

The secretary was instructed to mail him the following printed circular, issued several weeks since:

1. It is unhealthy for you to sleep in a room with a window in it.

2. De leadin' botanists of de aige concur dat dogs shouldn't be 'lowed to sleep under de bed in summer.

3. Some folk is healthy when they sleep in a nightgown, an' some isn't. Use your own judgment.

4. A pesson's feet should be washed jist as often as he kin afford de soap an' water. It ar' a good plan to scrape de soles wid an ole case knife.

5. Sweet cake, floatin' island, roast duck, quail on toast, les cream, cream puff, an' sich tend to produce nightmare an' consumption.

6. All pussions should take a bath when dey kin do so widout hurtin' deir feelins. Be keef' not to splash too much water aroun'.

Elder Unsatisfactory Johnson secured the floor to make an inquiry. He had read in de papers dat de Adventists had predicted de ending of de world on May 28. It was a matter which made him a little anxious. He didn't care to live here after de world had ended up. He had some debts to collect in, and he wanted to remove his family across into Canada before de calamity occurred. If de club had any official information to give him he would be greatly obliged.

"Brodder Johnson, do you know how by-law No. 278 reads?" asked de president.

"No, seh.

"Well, it reads dat any member of dis club who believes dat de world am gwine to eand up kin be fined all de way from forty cents up to $10,000."

"I didn't know it!"

"No, I suppose not. After de meetin' adjourns I want to see you in de cloak room. I want to feel de your head an' try an' find out what has softened it. Meanwhile I kin assure you dat dar am no cause fur alarm. Jist go right ahead haulin' ashes wid dat ole mule o' yours by day and hangin' 'roun' de co'ner grocery o' nights, an' den let de 28th day of May worry you a bit."

The elder sat down with a sigh of relief, and acting upon de whispered advice of Samuel Shin, he slid softly out while de Glee club were singing and thereby escaped de contemplated "feeling."—Detroit Free Press.

The Post Won the Bet.

Author (humbly)—I see that de price paid for Tennyson's Jubilee ole was $10 a line. I don't expect, of course, dat dis little effort of mine would be—

Editor (sarcastically)—Oh, you don't! You are too modest, sir.

Author—But if you will kindly insert it in to-morrow mornin's paper I'll willingly pay you de regular advertising rate of fifty cents per line. Here's de money—$10.

Editor (with deep feeling)—My dear sir, on looking over de poem I find it full of merit. I'll take it.

The author, having made a bet of $50 with de rival publisher around de corner dat his poem would be accepted, walks out of de office $40 ahead.—Chicago Tribune.

Au Hevoir.

Judge—Your time has expired. I hope I shall not see you here again.

Regular Customer—Not see me here again? Why, boss, ain't going to resign your posish, are you?—Tid Bits.

A Frugal Mind.

The following has often been told as a joke, but it really happened in a town cigar store de other day. A gentleman whom we will call Smith was buying a ten-cent cigar when a seely acquaintance, who may be called Brown, came in and was invited by Smith to have a cigar. He of course accepted de cigar and Smith laid down twenty cents in payment. At dis point Brown got in his fine work. Turning to de dealer he asked if de cigars jist bought were not sold at de rate of three for a quarter. On de dealer replying dat they were, he fished out a nickel, and laying it on de counter remarked: "Well, then, I'll take de third cigar, if it is all de same to you." And he did, to de unspeakable astonishment of Smith and de dealer.—New York Tribune.

A Simple Nuisance.

First Omaha Domestic (recently lauded)—They do have some queer things in this country.

Second Domestic (ditto)—Include deir do that. Phat wan did yez see last, Mary?

"It's a queer sort uv a clock de missus put in me shapin' room. It makes niver a bit of sound all day an' all night till about 6 o'clock in de mornin' and den it rattles as if it wad take de roof off. It's all I can do to get any sleep after it at all, at all."—Omaha World.

Grant's Journals To Be Published.

Col. Fred Grant is busily engaged in editing de journals of his father's tour around de world. It is his present plan, seconded by de wishes of Mrs. Grant, to publish dis interesting narrative on his own account. Under de contract with de publishers of Gen. Grant's memoirs de general stipulated dat none of his papers should be made public for three years from dat date. It is not said whether dere has been any misunderstanding with de publishers of de present work, but it is known dat Col. Grant is opposed to entering into any more such arrangements. The journal, judging from a general knowledge of its contents, will be exceedingly interesting. It treats upon notable men and things, and de court of St. James to de throne of de mikado.—Philadelphia Times.

One of de Kentucky Yankies.

I was in a hotel in Washington a few days past, when a man went by of no especial appearance. Said one, mentioning his name: "There goes probably de ablest business man in California." Said I: "Where did he come from?" "Why, he came from Kentucky. He was one of de Kentucky Yankies, and a Kentucky Yankee can skin any Yankee on de globe."—Gath's Letter.

It is better to wait for a coal train to go by than to crawl under it while in motion.

"Sir," exclaimed irate Mrs. Bluffs, as she gathered her skirts about her, "I told you to stop at dis crossing. What do you mean by carrying me by? I'll give you to understand dat I'm Mrs. Bluffs."

"Ah, very happy to meet you, Mrs. Bluffs!" Tom Johnson.—The Judge.

Bill Arp Goes Fishing.

I am going fishing to-morrow and stay all day. I will rig up a big wagon and take de children along and a basket of lunch, and we will fish and frolic and gather flowers and eat and talk and laugh and get dirty all day long. The signs are all right, for de dog wags in bloom and de wind is in de south, and it is de dark of de moon, and I think I see myself jist jerking de big bream from under de log. Carl knows every hole in de creek and he can catch more fish than I can and don't try half as hard. Jesse wants to pick flowers, and I've promised her she may wade in de branch, but her mother don't know it. Jesse comes to me and Carl goes to his mother for favors. What a pity it is dat grown folks can't be children once or twice in a while and wade in de branch too. De next time Judge Blackley goes to Screamer mountain to be a boy again and get barefooted and make hickory whistles and chestnut files and catch spring lizards and crawfish and climb trees for birds' eggs, and make black ants fight, and run ground squirrels to their holes and dig angelica and kill snakes and wreck hornets' nests and fight yallerjackets, I'm going with him. I'm tired of playing man all de year long without a recess. It is a sort of hypocritical life. I envy de children. De Scriptures say "unless ye be as one of dese little ones, ye shall not go to heaven." So it's time to begin, and therefore I'm going a fishing.—Atlanta Constitution.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

"Isn't that de gentlemen who paid our fare and was so polite de other night?" she asked in a whisper. "Yes." "And why does he treat us so coolly to-night?" "Hush! he has his reasons. That's his wife with him."—Detroit Free Press.

Faith Beyond Sight.

Each one of de two comedians, Messrs. Robson and Crane, has a little son, and deir are profound admirers of one another, albeit deir are as unlike as black and white. Master Stuart Robson Crane is a prodigious reasoner, while on de other hand Master William Crane Robson is as practical and as matter of fact a lad as you could expect to meet in a Sabbath day's journey. Out at Omaha de other day de Crane youngster was telling one of his customary whoppers.

"Yes," said he, solemnly, "when I was in Ipswich last summer I saw a boy lick John L. Sullivan."

"You don't believe it, eh?" asked young Crane.

"Oh, yes," answered Master Robson, in prompt loyalty to his little playmate, "oh, yes, I believe it if you saw it, but I wouldn't believe it if I'd seen it."—Chicago News.

Triumphant as Usual.

Omaha Wife—Yes, dat's de way it goes. You'll be sorry some day you didn't take my advice. If my first husband had done as I told him he would have been alive to-day.

Second Husband—Oh! He would! I suppose, but if I remember aright he shuffled off dis mortal coil about 10 o'clock in de mornin'.

"I told him over and over again to stop smoking, and he wouldn't do it."

"Well, he didn't die of tobacco if I know anything about it. He was blown up in an explosion."

"Yes, he sat down on a keg of powder with a pipe in his mouth; so dere now."—Omaha World.

A Correct Diagnosis.

Young Man (to medium)—I want you to tell me what de matter is with me.

Medium—It will first be necessary to deposit $1 to precipitate de spirits.

Young Man (solemnly)—A dollar goes.

Medium—You do not sleep well, you have bad dreams and you are gloomy and meditate suicide every day.

Young Man (in great surprise)—Correct.

Medium—Take dis sealed envelope—open it only in de privacy of your room—within you will find a diagnosis of your disease.

Young Man (one hour later, opens envelope and reads)—Pie for supper.—Philadelphia Call.

The Unappreciative West.

New York Girl—And you really were a guest at de castle of an English lord?

Omaha Man—Yes, I happened to have business with him in connection with a land syndicate, you know.

"How lovely it must have been. And you really dined and slept in an old baronial castle?"

"Oh, yes."

"It must be de very brightest page in your memory, isn't it?"

"Well, I didn't catch cold and didn't get bitten."—Omaha World.

Heroic Treatment.

The cashier of a Chinese bank tried to leave with de funds for Japan or some place on de American plan de other day, but it is not believed dat de custom will become popular. The government walled up de cashier in a cell to starve to death and chopped off de heads of all his family. And next fall they are going to decapitate everybody in de empire bearing his name.—Dakota Beat.

An Optical Delusion.

British Naval Officer—I have heard a good deal about your American torpedoes, but I never saw one before.

American Naval Officer—You have better eyes than I have if you can see one now.

"There is one off starboard; you must be near-sighted."

"Great St. Perry! sir; dat's a man of war."—Omaha World.

A Fair Valuation.

Lawyer (to client)—You want to sue Robson for $500 for libel, you say?

Client—Yes; he has blasted my character forever.

Lawyer—You think $500 de proper amount.

Client—Well, make it $250. I only want what's right.—Harper's Bazar.

Repentance for a Wasted Youth.

M. Renan has been telling de youth of Paris, in his charmingly candid manner, dat he never played enough when he was young. He is making up for it, is dis light-hearted savant, now dat he is old. De time when other young men amused themselves "wag to me," says M. Renan, "is a time of ardent study," and he wishes it had not been so. "There is," as de St. James' Gazette reflects, "something peculiarly native and Renaissance in dis late repentance for wasted youth—wasted over books and Oriental texts, when it might have been profitably devoted to de serious occupation of de cafe, de fencing school, de navigation of de silvery Seine Sunday beneath beauty's favoring smile, and de other occupations of brisk Parisian adolescence."—Chicago Tribune.

ECLIPSE

CHAMPAGNE!

EXTRA DRY.

WE ARE NOW PLACING ON THE market the ECLIPSE CUVEES of 1879 and 1880, which for dryness and bouquet are unsurpassed, and are pleased to inform you that our efforts in producing a Champagne competing with de best Foreign Wines, have been appreciated, dispelling, in a great measure, de prejudice against pure native wines. The ECLIPSE will not only be found in every city in de Union, but has also found a market in de Republic of Mexico and on de Continent of Europe, where it is much appreciated by connoisseurs for its purity, lightness of alcoholic strength and exquisite bouquet and flavor.

WE GUARANTEE OUR

SPARKLING WINES

As absolutely pure, and they are par excellence de SPARKLING JUICE OF DE GRAPE. They are produced precisely as de high-grade French Champagnes, by fermentation in de bottle, REQUIRING TWO YEARS' CURE AND RACKING TO PERFECT, but differing from deir foreign competitors in being neither strengthened with spirit nor flavored in any manner. We claim, and can substantiate our claim, dat our Champagnes are de purest Sparkling Wines in de world, and quote from de report to a comparative analysis made by de U. S. Department of Agriculture: "Of 200 samples of wines analyzed, nothing has been found on dis continent equal to de ECLIPSE. Containing only de normal percentage of alcoholic strength in dry wines 10 1/2 per cent., and only 6.51 of Saccharine, and no fictitious flavorings." As a stimulant de ECLIPSE bears de highest recommendation of de leading faculty of de United States, and wherever exhibited for competition with any other Champagnes, either foreign or native, its merits are attested by de highest awards.

We caution you against de impositions of parties East and on de Coast, who are foisting on de market a "gas" or charged wine, under de name of California Champagne. Remember, none are genuine except those bearing our name and brand, on both cork and label, and which are sold with de guarantee of absolute purity.

HONOLULU, May 7, 1887.

HAMILTON JOHNSON, Honolulu.

Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of de sample of Harashty "Eclipse" Champagne taken by me from your store, and find dat dis wine contains no adulteration whatever, de acid present being de natural acid of de grape, while de "bouquet" and gas present are such as would result from de natural fermentation of de wines. Yours very truly,

GEO. W. SMITH, Of Benson, Smith & Co., Druggist.
