RETURN OF SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS.

The late King Kamehameha IV. in a public address, speaking of various Polynesian immigrants to these Islands, said: "Such immigrants, besides supplying the present demand for labor, would pave the way for a future population of native-born Hawaiians, between whom and those of aboriginal parents, no distinguishable difference would exist."

But the hope of this patriotic Sovereign has not been realized as regards the increase of Hawaii by Polynesian settlers. Several ventures have been made under Government auspices to procure South Sea Islanders to supply demands of labor and to promote increase of population. The Pomare and other vessels have been fitted out at considerable cost, and have brought a large number of Polynesians from various islands to our shores, but none of these people have shown a desire to expatriate themselves and remain with us, having invariably insisted upon a return to their native homes.

This return passage, when pledged by His Majesty's Government, has been invariably carried out. And there are in our opinion no immigrant Polynesians in the Kingdom desiring to return to their homes, to whom the Government is under obligation to provide a return passage. On the occasion of the last return shipment, per Elsinore, every South Sea Islander who had come here under contract to a Government Agent, was notified of the opportunity to go back to their country, which was availed of by many, but some of these people chose to enter into new engagements of labor and forego their claim for a return passage. At this time this remainder of contract Polynesian immigrants who had neglected their opportunity and forfeited their right to be returned, now present themselves at the Immigration Depot and beg to be sent home.

These people are simple and ignorant, and it is utterly impossible to converse with them freely. It is impossible to convince them that they have forfeited any right, and hence the Government feels under a moral obligation to send them back to their several islands.

But besides these people, who may have some pretense of claim on the Government in the absence of legal proofs to the contrary, there are a number of them at the Immigration Depot who have been brought here by private parties, who are under an obligation required by the Board of Immigration, that they should provide for the return home of Polynesian Islanders brought here as labor recruits for plantations.

The Government should not incur one dollar of expense for the return of these people, but again it will be regarded that the Government is under a moral obligation to see that these ignorant and helpless people are returned home as has been promised to them. The Government must do so, and at the same time insist that those who made such promises shall provide for the expense of return under Governmental supervision.

A MUD FLOW.

It is said of Daniel Webster, the great jurist, orator and statesman of the United States, that when remonstrated with by his friends for not replying to constant aspersions in the journals of his day, of his private and public life, he answered them, saying: "Wait till it quits snowing and then I will clear off my sidewalk."

Now, had he lived in a volcanic country, such as Hawaii or New Zealand, he would probably have used another simile, and said: "Wait till the mud flow is over, and then I will clear off my land."

But the moral snowfall according to his simile never ceased, and he never replied except by the actions of his life. And as the moral mud flow according to our simile, will never cease, the public men affected by it will find it in vain to reply, and must let the work of their lives speak for them. It is in vain to reply to men who have resolved, whose political interest makes them determined to invent, to distort, to misrepresent without any scruple of conscience whatever.

So, let the mud flow.

QUEEN KAPIOLANI IN BOSTON.

The Royal Visitors' Fourth Day in the City.

Brilliant Reception at Gov. Ames' Mansion.

Delightful Exercises at the Wellesley College—The Waltham Watch Works Inspected.

[From Boston Exchange, May 12th.]

Queen's weather favored Queen Kapiolani and the Royal party on Wednesday and gave unclouded pleasure to the excursions, which consisted principally of a visit to Wellesley College. When the Queen had expressed a desire to visit Wellesley, its officers and students responded with cordial preparations, and the more hearty because the Christian spirit of the college has always been in close sympathy with the missionary efforts on the Islands.

At 9:15 the Royal party started for Wellesley in a special car. There were Her Majesty Queen Kapiolani, Her Royal Highness Princess Liliuokalani, Colonel Boyd, Commodore Beckley, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Gilmore, Mr. James L. Hunnewell, the Hawaiian Consul; Mr. Lawrence Bond, and representing the city, Alderman Donovan and Mr. John F. Dever, Mayor's Clerk, Councilmen Sanger, Richard Sullivan, Murphy and McEnaney. The party was joined by ex-Gov. Claffin and ladies. The Queen wore a quiet costume of black wool and silk, a black bonnet trimmed with ostrich feathers, and the orange feather badge of Royalty around her neck. The Princess, who read the morning paper during the ride, was dressed in deep mourning.

ARRIVAL AT WELLESLEY. Upon arriving at the Wellesley College, they entered carriages and were driven to the main building, where the reception was to be held. Thronged with people were in attendance at the depot, and flags were flying from every flagstaff in the village. The main entrance to the college was draped with the American flag, and festoons of red and blue bunting were wound around the pillars. Upon the balcony and at all the windows were clustered groups of young ladies, and upon alighting from the carriages the party was escorted through the building by 50 maids of honor each bearing a bouquet as a badge. Refreshments were served by the young ladies in the Browning room, and the Queen, the Princess and suite held a brief reception. The company then adjourned to the chapel. As the party moved up the aisles, a chorus of 600 voices sang "Glorious things of thee are spoken, Zion, city of our God." The Royal party and the officers of the college assembled on the platform, which was handsomely decorated with plants and flowers.

MISS ALICE FREEMAN'S ADDRESS. Miss Alice Freeman, President of the College, then addressed the Royal visitors as follows:

Your Majesty and Your Royal Highness: We give you this welcome to our halls and hills and valleys with all our hearts. We welcome you to Wellesley, not only for our own sake, but because we remember gratefully and gladly all you have done, and will, in many gracious years to come, do out of your Royal bounty, in behalf of the Christian culture of your beautiful and fortunate islands, which are no longer far away from Wellesley. And not only Wellesley welcomes you on this Royal festival and in this Queen's weather, but 700 homes greet you in the voices of their daughters, who have gathered here from all around the world. We are glad to give you honor in the name of our Christian homes, to whose uncrowned Queens these halls were dedicated, and to pray for blessings on you, as you go on your Royal journey to the great Queen of stormier lands and seas than your Pacific islands. Long life to Queen Kapiolani! And to Her Royal Highness the Princess Liliuokalani a long and happy life!

To add to the welcome, Miss Freeman called upon one who had lived in Hawaii and could greet the Queen in her native language, and Miss L. C. Andrews, a professor in the college, then repeated the following poem:

"Maemae ikakai ka pua O ka hana ua maewa Wale ka pali o Kahiwa He hiwa hiwa O Kapiolani na makou." (As the spray of the ocean refreshes and purifies the halla tree, so does your presence, O Kapiolani, refresh us.)

THE QUEEN'S REPLY. The Queen was visibly affected by this sentiment in her native tongue, and replied that she extended her love with all her heart to the students of the college, and would carry back to her island home the memory of the faces before her. After the students sang the national hymn, the Princess made a short address in English. She said that the Queen's kindly expressions are only echoed by herself. There are small institutions for girls in Hawaii, only small ones, and the Queen and herself never dreamed when they left their island home that they should see such a great scene. As the Queen said, knowledge is power. We hope that our institutions may grow in power as this one has, and we will go to our island home with hearts full of love to all, ever remembering the great opportunity of to-day.

ADDRESS OF PROF. HORSFORD. Prof. Horsford having extended an invitation to the tree planting, the party was conducted to the part of the lawn in front of Stone Hall. On her way the Queen reviewed from her carriage the long line of students as they filed across the lawn, a long, gay column, singing college songs as they went. The ceremony began, after the introduction of singing, with an address delivered by Prof. E. N. Horsford, as follows:

We have great pleasure, your Majesty, in this gathering to a memorial service. It is a pretty conceit that every breath of springtime, not less than every season of drouth and every blast of autumn are all recorded in the tissues of every living tree. If we may accept this as true, we cannot help feeling that each leaf now setting on the tree which is to commemorate a Royal visit to Wellesley will have a sweet service intrusted to it. Not only each leaf of this year's growth, but all the leaves that will in future give glory to the foliage of this tree, will possess to the sense subtle enough to perceive it the written story of the event in which a Princess and a Queen from beyond the sea took part.

It was a welcome announcement that your Majesty desired to visit Wellesley College. It is in a locality in which Hawaii and Massachusetts meet, and it is a happy circumstance that we have some associations in common. An officer of the College was born in Honolulu. The late Minister from the King of Hawaii to the Government at Washington, Elisha Allen, was a genial friend of many among us. We are near the spot hallowed by the presence and labors of the apostle Eliot, one of the earliest of the teachers sent out by Englishmen, the herald of a Christian civilization to the new world. It was the descendants of the same Englishmen, moved by the same philanthropic spirit, who nearly one hundred years ago began, in the education of Henry Obokiah, the work which has given to his people and their rulers a place among the Christian powers of the world.

It is a great satisfaction to us all that your Majesty takes part in the planting of this tree. We will hope that it may grow to enrich by its shade the attractiveness of these grounds, devoted, with all these halls and cottages, to the education of women; and that, however ample the shelter it may give, it will be at the best only a type of the gracious protection which kindred institutions of whatever order will enjoy under the sway of the Royal family of the Sandwich Islands.

THE GOVERNOR Requests the pleasure of Company, on Wednesday evening, May 11th, from 9 until 11 o'clock.

TO MEET HER MAJESTY QUEEN KAPIOLANI and Her Royal Highness Princess Liliuokalani, Of the Hawaiian Islands, 353 Commonwealth av., Boston. Please reply.

ROSES EVERYWHERE. It was a "rose reception," for the floral decorations for which Doyle had been given "carte blanche," were mostly of that matchless flower. They were everywhere in dozens of vases scattered about on tables, cabinets, brackets and every other available nook; in the big silver epergnes on the supper table and sideboard, while the costly, great jars from the Governor's valuable collection, which the flower-loving Japanese stand in the corners of their rooms to hold great bouquets from blossoming trees and shrubs, were heaped to the brim with these soft masses of color and fragrance. They were all there, all the roses one ever knew; besides some which, like new-comers in "the rosebud garden of girls," were "just out."

GREETING HER MAJESTY. The Royal party arrived at 9:30, and at the entrance were met by Adjutant-General Dalton, who led the way up the massive stone steps and through the great halls of the reception room, where the Governor was in waiting to welcome them. After a few words of cordial greeting from His Excellency to Her Royal Highness and suite, the guests began to come in from the adjoining parlors, and were presented in turn to the representatives of royalty. Mayor O'Brien stood on the extreme right, and was the first to receive the guests. Next to him was Governor Ames, then Her Majesty the Queen, Mrs. Oliver Ames, Princess Liliuokalani, Mrs. Hugh O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Beckley and Consul Bond.

During the reception Governor Lauka and Colonel Boyd of the Royal party, and Colonel Edmunds of the Cadets, stood as a guard of honor just behind and on either side of the Queen. The Queen received standing, and with a pleasant smile and a stately bow greeted all who were presented to her.

At the end of the reception the Queen, leaning on the arm of the Governor, and the Princess with Mayor O'Brien as escort, made a tour of the elegant house. The Royal party then repaired to the breakfast room, where they were joined by the Governor's Aids, and were entertained with a repast upon which caterer Dooling had expended his best efforts.

The collation for the general guests was served in the dining-room down stairs, where long tables extended the length of the room, loaded down with all manner of good things to eat, and a profusion of lovely roses. Throughout the evening Baldwin's orchestra furnished delightful music.

OF COURSE THE GOVERNOR'S Staff were there to a man, and lent valuable aid to their chief in entertaining so many guests. They were in full uniform, as were also a number of other military gentlemen. There were present representatives of nearly every leading interest in the city—the controlling spirits of political circles, the brightest lights of the legal profession, brainy men and women who have won fame with their pens, and others whose eloquence has made their names known far beyond the city's boundaries, as well as solid business men whose enterprise and wealth have made the city what it is. All these assembled to pay their respects to the Queen of the island kingdom between which and this great republic has so long existed the most friendly relations.

SOME OF THOSE PRESENT. To present a complete list of all the prominent people present would be impracticable, but the following few out of many well-known names are given: Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. J. Q. A. Brackett, Hon. H. J. Boardman, Speaker Noyes, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Dr. C. A. Bartoll, Judge Devens, ex-Governor Claffin, ex-Governor Gaston, ex-Governor and Mrs. Long, Hon. Robert Treat Pease, Jr., Henry D. Hyde, Hon. Leopold Morse and wife, General P. A. Collins, Thomas Mack, Attorney General Sherman, Rev. Brooke Herford, Mr. and Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, General N. P. Banks, Hon. Robert M. Moore, Jr., and wife, Rev. David Gregg, Hon. Frank Ames, Colonel Austin C. Wellington, General Nat Wales, Mr. and Mrs. Asa P. Potter, Roland M. Worthington, Hon. C. M. Clapp, Hon. A. W. Beard, Rev. and Mrs. H. Bernard Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Prince, Hon. A. E. Whiting, General B. F. Peach, Jr., Colonel T. F. Edmunds, Hon. F. D. Allen, Hon. Ezra Farnsworth, Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D. D., Judge W. A. Field, Hon. W. E. Locke, W. E. Barrett, Hon. E. M. McPherson, General A. P. Martin, Colonel R. M. Pulsifer, E. B. Haskell, Hon. Rufus S. Frost, Rev. A. P. Peabody, D. D., Oliver Ditson, Uriel Crocker, Hon. Lev C. Wade, Hon. L. J. Logan, Dr. I. T. Tallot, N. J. Rust, Hon. S. N. Aldrich, Curtis Guild, Rev. A. A. Miner, D. D., Clement K. Fay, General Francis A. Walker, Alderman Allen, Dr. H. W. Williams, Hon. Albert Palmer, Hon. E. C. Fitz, Thomas N. Hart, Hon. A. A. Ranney, John H. Holmes, Samuel Johnson, R. M. Morse, Jr., Hon. A. E. Pillsbury, B. J. Lang, Rev. R. G. Seymour, D. D., Judge Charles Devens, Dr. B. F. Jeffries, Hon. John C. Ropes, Hon. F. M. Ames, S. J. Menard, C. M. Clapp.

THE GOWNS THEY WORE. Exceedingly pretty, and elegant as well, were the costumes displayed by the ladies. The Queen looked regal indeed in a gown of softest creamy white crepe, made in what we should call the Princess shape, which is a modification of the national costume, it is said. The front of the dress was close fitting, and from neck to hem was one heavy mass of the most exquisite embroidery of gold thread and white silk.

Her hair was combed in its customary style, a high French twist, which was surrounded by "lei," or necklace-like twists of scarlet and yellow "o-o" feathers; and her other ornaments were a necklace of rare shells, a magnificent diamond ring, wore outside her glove, and a large star form of a handsomely engraved card of invitation, which read as follows: THE GOVERNOR Requests the pleasure of Company, on Wednesday evening, May 11th, from 9 until 11 o'clock.

TO MEET HER MAJESTY QUEEN KAPIOLANI and Her Royal Highness Princess Liliuokalani, Of the Hawaiian Islands, 353 Commonwealth av., Boston. Please reply.

blazing with diamonds, worn on the left breast, the insignia of Royalty. The Princess looked stately and magnificent in her severely simple black silk gown, cut with short elbow sleeves and a square neck, which was bordered with folds of soft lace. She wore no ornaments, and carried a bouquet and fan.

Mrs. Ames, fair and gracious, had a lovely costume of pale blue satin, with low cut corsage and long train, the side draperies being caught up at the back in handsome fan shapes. The front was covered with handsome point lace, and the same costly decoration bordered the neck and revers on the side draperies.

Mrs. O'Brien, who assisted Mrs. Ames in receiving, wore a lovely gown of heliotrope moire silk, with plain bodice and long train, the under petticoat being covered with lace.

The Royal party returned to the Parker House shortly after 11 o'clock, and were no doubt glad to hasten to their rooms, after the long day of receptions and entertainments.

St. Croix Sugar Dutiable.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—In the Supreme Court to-day there came up case No. 275—Thomas W. Bartram and others against William R. Robertson, Collector, in error to the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. This was a suit brought by certain importers to recover back $35,000 duties exacted by the Collector on sugars and molasses imported from the Island of St. Croix, which is a part of the dominions of the King of Denmark. The importers maintained that the goods should be admitted free of duty under the treaty with Denmark concluded April 26, 1826, because like articles produced in the Sandwich Islands were under the treaty with their King admitted free of duty. The Court holds that the treaty with Denmark does not bind the United States to extend to that country, without compensation, privileges which they have conceded to the Hawaiian Islands in exchange for valuable concessions. On the contrary, the treaty provides that like compensation shall be given for such special favors. When such compensation is made it will be time to consider whether sugar from her dominions shall be admitted free from duty. The judgment is affirmed. Opinion by Justice Field.
