CONVENTION ENDORSES WHARF FOR LAHAINA

Also Backs Plan for Nawiliwili Breakwater and Demands Better Steamer Service for Kauai.

Next Meeting at Hilo

Kauai Folk Prove Delightful Hosts—Delegates and Guests See Beauties of the Garden Isle.

A resolution pledging the support of the convention for a breakwater at Nawiliwili; another backing up the demand of Maui for a steamer wharf at Lahaina; and a third urging upon the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company the importance of providing a better vessel to ply between Kauai and Honolulu, were the expressed results of the Fourth Annual Civic Convention, which held sessions last Sunday and Monday at Lihue.

Besides this the convention listened to a number of good addresses on various phases of "Civic Righteousness," the general topic of the meeting, messages from Governor Pinkham, Superintendent of Public Works Charles R. Forbes, and an address by Hon. Wade Warren Thayer, Secretary of Hawaii; and wound up with a banquet in the Lihue Social Hall, at which the Honolulu Ad Club and the Maui delegation of fourteen, joined in contributing a program that made a big hit with a very large audience. Sunday afternoon and Monday forenoon were given up to sightseeing, the Kauai chamber of commerce providing automobiles in large number and its members acting as guides to the various points of interest.

Hilo Next Year.

The proposition to hold all the meetings of the convention hereafter in Honolulu, did not come up, as had been generally expected, and there was no opposition made to giving Hilo the honor of entertaining the next meeting, in accordance with her expressed wish.

However there was some discussion over the suggestion that the convention adopt a constitution and by-laws, and a committee was appointed to draft a suitable instrument for permanent organization to be submitted to the next convention for consideration. This action was taken on a motion offered by S. S. Paxson, and the chief argument offered in favor of it was that heretofore the results of the civic convention meetings have been allowed to be forgotten with nobody responsible for keeping them alive and presenting them before the legislature and working for their realization. D. H. Case, of Maui opposed a formal organization, but would have a board of trustees, of directors to hold from year to year, whose duty it would be to handle such hold over work. This idea seemed to express the general feeling, and Paxson declared that the organization he proposed need not go further than Case had outlined.

A Great Reception.

The Kauai people certainly did themselves proud in taking care of the 175 or more delegates and guests, who reached Nawiliwili in a not overly happy frame of mind about seven o'clock on Sunday morning by the steamer Kinau. The trip was rather rough from Honolulu, and the landing was very choppy. The Kinau was able to furnish berths to scarcely half of the crowd, the remainder occupying settees and mattresses spread on the decks. The Maui crowd was practically all accommodated in this manner, though on account of the congestion the decks were perhaps more comfortable than the staterooms. General Manager J. A. Kennedy, of the Inter-Island, who accompanied the party, explained that the Kinau was not substituted for the Kinou on account of the expense of operating the larger vessel.

Greeted By Band

But when once the landing had been effected, the visitors were soon made to forget the discomforts of the passage by their most generous and solicitous hosts. Kauai has a very excellent band which was massed on the wharf at Nawiliwili, and rendered a concert as the visitors landed. As soon as the first greetings were over, a long line of automobiles were called into service, and the party whisked away to the Fairview hotel and homes of nearby residents for breakfast.

Honolulu Band Disgrace

Speaking of bands, the Hawaiian band of Honolulu accompanied the Honolulu delegation, but reflected no honor on itself or its party. The new bandmaster, Peter Kalani, seems to have no control over his organization. On the steamer from Honolulu a considerable number of the men were disgracefully drunk. One man had to be tied to a stanchion, where he should have been gagged on account of the horrible language he used. On shore the band scattered, and was only gotten together in part on two brief occasions.

"Civic Righteousness."

The convention got down to business about 9:30 o'clock at the Lihue Social Hall, where an organization was effected, following an address of welcome by W. C. Avery, president of the Kauai Chamber of Commerce, and a response by Charles R. Frazier, of the Honolulu Ad. Club and Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Avery was

Say Homesteads Are Not Being Abandoned

Farmers' Association Has Faith In Future—Outlook Bright—Krauss Elected President of Association.

That the Kula homesteaders are "abandoning" their holdings and that there is a possibility that the homesteading experiment in the district is to prove a failure, is emphatically denied by the homesteaders themselves. At a meeting of the Haiku Farmers' Association held last Saturday evening at the Kula school house, the matter was discussed at considerable length. It is declared that the fact of the matter is that a few have left temporarily in order to earn a living, but that the majority are still on their lands and have no idea of giving them up or of moving from them.

Want Road Work Started.

The homesteaders are also getting impatient to have the work started on the road construction, for which there is now about $45,000 available through appropriations made by the last legislature. A committee was appointed to take up the matter with the Loan Fund Commission.

F. G. Krass was elected president of the association to succeed H. M. Wells, who recently resigned on account of press of other duties. Mr. Krauss, who besides being one of the homesteaders himself is superintendent of the extension work of the Hawaii experiment station, spoke enthusiastically of the results of the past year on the experimental farm which he has been conducting.

Five Crops of Proven Worth.

Mr. Krauss stated that five crops have successfully passed the experimental tests in the district, and that bulletins on these will be published early in November. These crops are: the jack bean, san hemp, cow peas, violet bean, and a new variety of sweet potato which is in much demand in the California trade. Seed of these crops will soon be ready for distribution. Mr. Krauss also has a number of other crops which he believes will be eminently suited to local conditions, but which he is not yet ready to announce. He is entirely confident that the problem of farming at a profit in the Kula district is very near its solution.

It was announced at the meeting that a large number of seedling eucalyptus trees for planting are to be had from W. Hannestad, of Makawao, and most of the homesteaders are preparing to plant many of these for windbreaks and for fuel purposes.

Poker Now In Favor By Chinese Gamblers

Poker isn't generally associated in the public mind with Chinese gamblers, but that is what Deputy Sheriff Ferreira says he discovered a double quartet of Wailuku Orientals engaged in when he and a police officer rushed the door-keeper at the entrance of rooms over the Euders' auto supply shop on Market street, on Thursday night. The place, according to the police, was heavily barricaded, but entrance was effected by rushing through the door when it was opened to admit a patron. The men arrested were: Ah Sing, Aloha, Ah Kau, Ah Tick, Ah Chee, and Ma Chin.

Judge McKay Sustained In An Important Case

By a decision of the supreme court, handed down on Monday, Judge McKay, of the Wailuku district court is sustained in his decision in the case of David Palakiko vs. County of Maui, for the recovery of $30 paid as cash bail, and declared forfeited. Judge McKay decided the case in favor of the county, and it was appealed. While the higher court sustains Judge McKay in that the money forfeited to the county cannot be recovered, it however holds that the practice of taking cash bail is not countenanced by law, and such security cannot therefore be considered as satisfactory bond for the appearance of persons accused of crime. The decision seems likely to overturn the practice of years in this territory of police releasing persons arrested on deposit of cash as security. Hereafter will probably be necessary for such persons to call upon their friends to go their bail, which will not be nearly so convenient as it was to put up $5 with the police and then forget about the matter.

SANITARIUM TENDERS CALLED FOR.

At a meeting of the Maui Loan Fund Commission, held on Wednesday, tenders were called for for the construction of the new addition to the Kula Sanitarium. This is the first of the loan fund projects to reach this stage, though others will be forthcoming shortly. Among these are the Kula and Kihel homestead roads, the Olinda reservoir, the Wailuku water works, etc.

Maui Made Big Hit With Song and Yell

Shared with Ad Club Honors at Civic Convention Banquet.—C. G. White's Composition was Chief Feature.

Maui! Maui!
Maui no ka oi!
M-A-U-I
Maui! Maui!
Oh, You Kauai!

This is the yell that the Maui delegation carried to the Kauai convention, and which did its full part in keeping Maui in the foreground of all that was going on. With Dave Lindsay as yell leader, and "Dean" Jack Walsh watching the decorum of the bunch with eagle eye, Maui's fourteen could not well help acquitting themselves in creditable manner.

Maui had her full quota of delegates present, numbering in all fourteen, while Hawaii had eight. In the Maui party were—Dean J. Walsh, D. C. Lindsay, Hugh Howell, George O. Cooper, D. H. Case, W. A. Baldwin, Will J. Cooper, W. H. Field, W. O. Aiken, George Dunn and J. N. Keola, representing the chamber of commerce; Philip Pali and Joel S. Cox, representing the county of Maui; and H. Washburn Baldwin, who went as a guest, and had charge of the vocal exercises, other than the yells and the speech-making.

Maui's delegation took a prominent place in the big parade from the Young Hotel to the wharf, on Saturday night. Led by the Hawaiian band, the Mauiites made quite a sensation by marching with a huge sword, some 10 feet long, covered with leaves from the silver sword plant. They were followed by the Ad Club with a zoko band and dressed in hula skirts and other weird regalia. A very large crowd gathered about the Young Hotel to see the party off, and although a steady drizzle was falling it failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the crusaders.

Trip Strenuous.

The trip for the Maui party was rather strenuous. Leaving Wailuku at 9 o'clock Friday night for Lahaina, the Mauna Kea was boarded for Honolulu about 1 o'clock the following morning. Honolulu was reached at 7 o'clock. The following night sleep was little for anybody, owing Ad Club enthusiasm and enthusiasm of another kind on part of some of the band, and to a bumpy passage. The landing at Nawiliwili was also very rough, though it was accomplished without

Promotion Committee to Meet Here in November

In accordance with the decision made some months ago, at the time of the reorganization of the Hawaii Promotion Committee, to hold several meetings each year on the various islands besides Oahu, the committee will meet on Maui early in November. It is probable that the meeting will occupy several days time, during which the members will visit Haleakala, and possibly other points of interest to tourists and others. The members believe that by these outside meetings, to which an effort will be made to obtain the attendance of the people generally, much benefit will be derived.

Verdict of Accident In Death of Mrs. Cockett

As a result of the inquest held last evening in the case of the death of Mrs. William E. Cockett, who was killed last week by falling from an automobile near her home at Waikapu, the coroner's jury found that the death was due to the deceased's having accidentally fallen from an automobile, thereby fracturing the base of the skull. The jury was composed of Manuel Ross, Antonio Faustino, L. B. Kaumohiwa, Joe DoRogio, Ricardo Silva, and Manuel Dutro.

Mrs. Dodge's Father Dies in Massachusetts

When Rev. and Mrs. Rowland B. Dodge of Wailuku, landed at San Francisco on September 20, on their way east to visit Mrs. Dodge's father, the news awaited them that her father, Professor John E. Sinclair, had died at his home at Worcester, Mass., on September 12. Heart failure was the cause of death. Professor Sinclair, who during the last 10 years had paid three different visits to the Hawaiian Islands, was emeritus professor of Mathematics at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute in which he had taught the same subject for 40 years. Professor Sinclair, who was 77 years of age, was graduated from Dartmouth in 1858, and in 1882 was given the degree of Ph. D. by his alma mater.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—Assistant Secretary Newton returned from Honolulu today. Choice of federal site will be largely a matter of price.

LONDON, September 30.—Allies and Teutons engaged in a terrific battle today which may result in the recapture of Lille from Germans. The struggle for the possession of Lens offers possibility for retaking Lens and Allies have taken and held high ground where their cannon dominate town. War observers are speculating on the probability that the Germans are shifting reinforcements from eastern front to hard-pressed troops on west.

PARIS, September 30.—Big offensive movement of Allies continues steadily to gain ground, according to announcement based on dispatches from French and British commanders at front. South of Ripont, Allies made a smashing attack and captured important defensive work in Champagne. Airmen of Allies bombed railway stations, German column reported marching to reinforce Teutons.

British onslaught is directed at German salients northeast of Lens, makes steady but slow progress. Germans are disputing every foot of ground. Should Germans be outflanked at Lens and compelled to evacuate that point, the retirement will carry with it evacuation of Lille.

In connection with land operations yesterday, naval and air forces of Allies assumed offensive tactics in cooperation with heavy batteries of French in Flanders. British monitors again bombarded Belgian coast positions at Beauvais. French sappers blew up a German trench consolidating it with French trench line.

LONDON, October 1.—Greece is preparing for eventualities. Government of Athens considers itself at war with Turks and ready to cooperate with Serbia against Bulgaria in event of Bulgarian aggression. Bulgaria's intention not plain. Turkey is still suspicious of mobilization in that country. It may be intended for cooperation with quadruple entente. Martial law has been proclaimed by Greece.

Reported that Russians lose on two fronts. Progress towards goal being made by von Hindenburg. Germans heavily reinforced. Petrograd reports are direct contradiction of those from Berlin.

LONDON, October 1.—Germans heavily reinforced their threatened lines and in some places regained by bloody counter attacks. Allies are advancing persistently along greater part of sections on the western front. French are now within two and half miles of main objective, the railroad triangle, and the Massignes battlefield are being resisted by crown princes army. Attack extended last night along a 12-mile front from Aubert to Ville sur Tourbe, almost within sight of LONDON, September 30.—Three distinct battles are now raging along western front. Anglo-French offensive to such an extent that a series of events carried on in a large number of places appear to be no longer of value and the whole attention is now centered on main fighting south of the LaBasse canal to village Hulluc. Southeast of Loos, British are engaged and have made great headway gradually extending front and beating back numerous and desperate counter attacks. South of this line the French are consolidating positions they held east of Souchez and the ridge towards Viny, bringing up guns to shell way to further advance. Attacks for possession of ridge raged all day Wednesday with night finding the French in full possession, but subject to a hail of projectiles from German guns.

Throughout the Artois region, losses on both sides have been very heavy, while Germans have lost many prisoners. French are driving way towards railway lines at Massigne. Germans are resisting but cannot wholly stem tide that has set strong against them. Violent artillery duels on extreme French right.

Berlin denies gains and continues to minimize claims of Allies, announcing offensive of French and British has broken down.

Japanese Held For Assault on Children

Terrible Story Comes to Police From Hospital—One Little Victim Loses Eye From Disease Induced by Brute.

Accused of a most dastardly offense against three little Japanese girls, Tokutaru Yamashita, a cane contractor of Puunene Camp 6, is now in the Wailuku jail awaiting the action of the grand jury in the coming term of criminal court. He was held before the district magistrate on Wednesday but waived examination through his attorney, Eugene Murphy. As a result of Yamashita's criminal abuse of the little children, the police claim that one of his little victims, Omaso Takamori by name, has entirely lost the sight of her left eye through a loathsome disease which he communicated to her. The other two girls, 8 and 11 years of age respectively, are also said to be diseased from their contact with Yamashita, and are now undergoing medical treatment.

The facts in this horrible case came to light when the child with the infected eye was finally taken by her parents to the Puunene Hospital for treatment. When the nature of the child's ailment was discovered the police were notified, with the result that the children's story of how they had been lured to Yamashita's room by bribes of candy and fruit, was brought out. Yamashita is about 40 years of age, and unmarried. The police say he is in bad condition owing to his disease. The charge against him is an assault upon a female child under the age of 12 years, with intent to commit rape. The penalty is five years imprisonment, or a fine of $1900 or both.

A transfer of government lease, No. 793, Honouliuli, Maui, by A. M. Brown, was authorized by the Governor this week.

Is Mrs. J. Peterson A Maui Resident?

Report From Hilo That the Widow of Former Hilo Man Lives Here and Was Not Notified of His Death.

On June 13, this year, a man named J. Peterson, an engineer employed by the Hilo Electric Light Company, dropped dead while seated in a coffee shop in Hilo, and his body was buried four hours later in a pauper's grave by the Hilo authorities. Quite a stir was caused in Hilo at the time on account of the haste with which he remains were buried by the county, it being claimed that the man's friends had been given no opportunity to make arrangements of caring for the body. The cause of the death was given as heart failure, though no autopsy was held.

Word reached Maui this week that Peterson is survived by a wife who lives in Wailuku or some other place on Maui, and who has never been advised of her husband's death. Thus far, however, the widow has not been located, if she really exists. It was claimed that Peterson had a small amount of personal property, and it was also claimed that he carried some life insurance.

TOURISTS INTERESTED IN MAUI.

There is a noticeable increase in inquiries about Maui at the Hawaii Promotion Committee. Many more tourists are going there than previously, according to Director Taylor. He credits the increase to completion of the concrete rest house on Haleakala and the new Koolau miles long. Tourists have found much favor with the latter. F. E. Pierce of Boston, a tourist, has made inquiries about Maui with a view to taking a party over there.—Advertiser.

JUSTICE THAT BREEDS CONTEMPT.

A few months ago a young Portuguese clerk in a Honolulu hotel was found short in his accounts some $1300. He had become involved in a gambling hui and had used money not his own in an attempt to recoup his losses. He has since been able to make good to his employers the entire amount, it is reported, and upon this showing his friends are now besieging the governor's office for a pardon. And what a position the governor finds himself in. Cases are cited of more flagrant violation of the law for which not even an arrest is made and in which the wheels of justice appear to be blocked. A bank clerk steals thousands, makes partial restitution when caught and although he had deliberately thrown suspicion on, and caused financial loss and misery to innocent fellow employes for a long period of time, is permitted to leave the territory. Even when outraged public sentiment finally forces reluctant officials to act, a grand jury fails to find an indictment. The protest of a judge against this travesty on justice brings no result.

A trusted trust company official is now accused of diverting to his own use over $26,000 worth of bonds belonging to a trust estate. He is now nominally under arrest, but he is said to have been able through aid of his friends to replace the shortage, and is assisting in straightening out the muddle he caused. A cynical public is freely predicting that he will never suffer any penalty that the law provides for such breach of trust.

The case of the brewery official, who looted the funds of his company, and coolly departed for the coast, with only the most half-hearted efforts subsequently made to locate him, is fresh in public minds.

But there does not seem to have been the slightest difficulty on the parts of prosecutors, courts, or juries in vindicting the law in the case of the Portuguese clerk, though his crime was less flagrant probably, than any of the others just mentioned. Is it any wonder that he now feels that he should be released? And if justice in this territory is to be so lop-sided as this, he deserves to be free. Should Governor Pinkham exercise the clemency prerogative in his case tomorrow, he could scarcely be censured for it, notwithstanding he might be violating his oath. But how about the oaths of the the First Circuit Court grand jurymen? Has justice in Hawaii broken down completely? Are only the weak and uninfluential to be subject to the rigors of the law? It would seem so—but what are we going to do about it?

THE FOURTH CIVIC CONVENTION.

The Fourth Civic Convention was a delightful affair. The citizens of Kauai proved themselves ideal hosts. Their homes were thrown open to the delegates, and the best they had was none too good for their guests. Their beauty-island was in perfect setting and the weather was at its best. The visitors were made to feel at home, and every facility for enjoying themselves was placed at their convenience. Kauai's reputation for hospitality was upheld in no uncertain manner, and all who were fortunate enough to have been of the visiting party, will not soon forget their pleasant experience. From the standpoint of results accomplished, the Kauai convention probably does not measure up to the standard set at any of the other conventions. Three resolutions backing up projects already well defined form practically the sum total of the tangible accomplishments of the meeting. There were addresses that were inspiring, and no one who heard them but must have carried away a higher ideal of his duties as a citizen. But they opened no line of argument—their pronouncements were beyond dispute.

Perhaps this was an off year. The next legislature is two years off, and had any definite constructive work been wrought it must have waited all too long for legislative action. Perhaps for this reason also some of the most vigorous and forceful men of previous conventions were not present this year, and their absence was very evident. There was a distinct lack of "steam" that has characterized previous sessions of the body. Nobody is probably to blame for this. But the significant thing to note is that while all felt the absence of some essential, not altogether tangible, there was no disposition evident to minimize the importance of the Civic Convention idea. That next year will retrieve any lost ground is the firm belief. Nor will Hilo be able to claim the credit for this, simply because she happens to have the honor of entertaining the convention. No one community is responsible for success or failure in such organization—it is up to the people of the whole territory. And since the idea of the civic convention is sound, there is no doubt about the future.

THE ROAD'S THE NEXT THING.

"During the months of July and August more people visited the crater (Haleakala) than during any year, and perhaps any two years in the past, the number being about 150."—From W. O. Aiken's report to the Civic Convention.

This is a striking demonstration of what getting ready for the tourist will do, for there is no other explanation than that the completion of the new rest house on the summit of the mountain was responsible for the big increase of visitors. Moreover these visitors more than paid for the maintenance of the place, including the cost of a caretaker. There isn't a doubt that an auto road to the top of the mountain would also pay a good rate of interest on the investment almost from the start. This is one of the most important projects to be undertaken by the county, but it is also the one that will reflect more credit on the board of supervisors that puts it through, than anything else they can do. It will rank as a monument of usefulness and profit to the county and to the men that make it a reality.

We share with the Haiku Farmers' Association the belief that the Kuiuha homesteads will eventually prove successful. We believe that the federal experiment station, through the unremitting efforts of Prof. Krauss, has already demonstrated that an immense amount of the best kinds of stock feed may be raised on these lands, and that there is no more reason why the diversified farm, with high grade live stock as a component factor, such as is to be found in the middlewest, is not entirely feasible. About one more year should settle this point very definitely, but the outlook right now is certainly most encouraging. Also we hope that the Association is right in declaring that those who have "temporarily left their lands in order to make a living" will return. Whether they do or not is immaterial so long as their places are eventually filled by men who have the ability and energy and imagination to profit by the lessons of others, and by what the government is doing to make the way smoother.

Whether this can be accomplished or not is the real problem the homesteaders should face squarely and bend their united efforts towards solving.

The Hilo Tribune suggests that the coastwise navigation act be amended to permit passengers to travel on foreign vessels without penalty at such times as they are unable to secure booking on American ships. This is certainly a most reasonable proposition, though it will doubtless be vigorously opposed by the dog-in-the-manger American shipping companies.

Southerners Sore At Prof. McCluskey

Resent Interview He Gave Regarding Educational and Other Conditions In North Carolina.

Prof. William McCluskey, supervising principal of Maui, has come in for a series of warm roasts from the newspapers of the section of North Carolina, where he spent the last two years, on account of an interview he gave with a Honolulu newspaper upon his return. In that interview Prof. McCluskey was not particularly complimentary to the section of the south in which he had been living, describing a lynching he had witnessed in part, and asserting that North Carolina is far behind Hawaii in matters educational.

The Charlotte Daily Observer, of Maeklenburg County, North Carolina, has the following to say editorially concerning Prof. McCluskey's statements: "Prof. William McCluskey of Honolulu, former superintendent of education of Maeklenburg county, has a number of friends in this community who are grievously disappointed at the representations he has been pleased to make of the people of Mecklenburg. His interview in the Honolulu paper, copied in The Observer, yesterday, was the subject of a good deal of talk and none of it of a complimentary kind. Those who followed with Mr. McCluskey would not have supposed that he would be guilty of slurring a people among whom he has resided and had worked. He had formed a mighty good opinion of the people of Mecklenburg during the fifteen days of his residence here up to the time of the Farmers' Institute held at Carolina School House on August 14, 1913. The eulogy he pronounced on them at the time is still fresh in the minds of those who were thrilled by his eloquence. The matter may be presented most pointedly through the aid of the 'deadly parallel,' and we shall give what he said at the school house on the date mentioned, with what he is quoted as having said in Honolulu."

McCLUSKEY THEN

I want to express my appreciation of the hearty and cordial cooperation that the intelligent people of Mecklenburg have given me and the cordial reception extended me. Mecklenburg is a great county and I believe her people are the best in the world. Your teachers are progressive, your people are enterprising and your young boys and girls as bright as any I ever saw anywhere. I am glad my lot has been cast among them. You are advancing along progressive educational ideas.

McCLUSKEY NOW

The Mecklenburg people are stranded on the rocks of the ancient classics. They still possess to a large degree the old English idea of an education, yet their teaching staffs are not educationally equipped to teach classics. That country is forty years, yes, half a century behind Hawaii in education. It has not taken to modern teaching much yet, though the idea is germinating. They have an agricultural school at Raleigh, the State Capitol, but from what I learned it is not given much serious attention yet, the people have not awakened to up-to-date farming.

Disappointed in Professor

"Mr. McCluskey recounts his personal observations of a mob in Charlotte and also tells of his narrow escape from being treated likewise by an angry gathering of several hundred 'Crackers' as further evidence of benighted condition in this part of the country. The fact that Mr. McCluskey is a man of intelligence makes the disappointment in him the greater. It is just as well that he was not given opportunity for a longer stay among a people whose civilization he appears to have been working for unaware to them."

Dr. Burt Hears of Record Flight of Carrier Pigeon

Dr. F. Burt, the well known government physician of Lahaina, has handed the "Maui News" a newspaper account of a 2200 mile flight of a messenger pigeon, which is believed to establish a record. Dr. Burt was aware that the test was to be made, and is especially interested in it for that reason. He believes that the accomplishment of the little bird in question will also be of interest to others and especially to school children. The article in question follows: "C. D. Miles, who is on the coast favors the Reflector-Herald with a recent copy of the Los Angeles Express, containing an account, on its first page, of the remarkable flight of the homing pigeon released from the factory of the A. B. Chase company, on the morning of Aug. 25. The article reads as follows: "After winging its way 2200 miles Ben Bolt, a pigeon belonging to George H. Skolfield, 4610 South Gramercy place, now is the champion homer of the world. "The bird flew from Norwalk, O., to Los Angeles in 5 days and 9 hours. It arrived at its pen in the rear of the Skolfield home yesterday and will be inspected today by representatives of the Los Angeles Messenger Pigeon association.

Ben Bolt's performance in all probability will be put down as the official world's record."

Relief.

On the Other Islands

Johannes Eckardt, for 36 years superintendent of the Queen's Hospital, Honolulu, has resigned on account of ill health. He sailed this week for the coast where he goes to consult medical specialists regarding his condition.

D. S. Dowman, chief sanitary inspector of the island of Hawaii, was seriously injured last week by being thrown from a fractious horse. The animal stepped on his chest fracturing three ribs and inflicting other injuries.

Last Pacific Mail Ship Sails.

With the sailing of the Manchuria for the coast on Wednesday, the last vessel of the Pacific Mail Company has visited these islands. The vessel with others of the fleet, have been sold and will go to the Atlantic.

Weekly Market Letter

HONOLULU, September 27.—There has been very little change in the condition of the market during the past week.

There are many bananas in the market due to the fact that only small shipments are being made to the Coast. Several growers on Hawaii and Maui who would like to ship bananas cannot secure space.

Pineapples have been scarce for two or three weeks but it is thought that from now on the Division will be able to get enough to fill its orders on the mainland.

The price of pork has dropped a little due to heavy receipts. It appears as though the price would stay fixed for sometime to come.

The Division has received two lots of specially fattened Muscovy ducks from Mokapu. They are selling readily to people who appreciate good poultry. The man who is raising these ducks is doing everything in his power to put an excellent article on the market, and he should have the patronage of all poultry buyers.

By a recent boat from Kauai we received a large consignment of sweet corn which sold quickly at a good price. The man who can produce good sweet corn all the year around is sure of a ready market and good profit. It must not be grown too near field corn.

Island potatoes are selling at a good price considering the price of California potatoes. The demand is fairly good.

There is good demand for fat Island poultry but poor stock a drag on the market. When sending poor poultry, a farmer should not expect to get high prices.

Work on the marketing building is progressing satisfactorily and it is hoped that the contractor will have it completed before the time limit expires.

A. T. LONGLEY,
Supt. Territorial Marketing Division.

Maui Theaters

The theatre goes of Wailuku have been favored with several big features of a very high order this week, among them being "The Lone Star Rush," "The Adventures of Kathlyn," one of the great serial pictures of the day; "The Wizard of Oz," "What Happened to Jones," and others. This evening, the third episode of "The Adventures of Kathlyn" and five other reels will be played. Next week, the Valley Isle Theatre will have, among other great five act features, "Jack Chanty," "May Blossom" and the great serial known as "The Diamond from the Sky" are now being played in Honolulu. Also the great Annette Keilmann will be seen again on the screen as it has been returned to Honolulu from the coast.

Sixteen members of the Hawaiian band, under Mr. Amasu, are expected at Lahaina next week at the invitation of Lahaina residents. On the recent Kaula trip, they have assured the management of the Valley Isle Theatre that they would come to Wailuku. The sixteen who will come here are carefully selected from the leading members of the band and will be an added attraction for Wailuku during their sojourn here.

Lahaina Enterprise Gets Hawaiian Band

Lahaina is to be the goal of a large number of central Maui persons tomorrow and Sunday, and the reason is the visit of the Hawaiian band of Honolulu, which will arrive here by the Claudine tonight for an extended visit. There will be a concert for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and a dance in the armory in the evening, at which the Honolulu musicians will supply the music. On Sunday afternoon the Hawaii baseball team will again play the Lahaina team at Kanapali, and the band will be on hand to help the rooting. On Monday night the musicians will supplement the picture attractions at the Pioneer theatre.

The Hawaiian band began its vacation today, and will be at its own devices for one month. The whole band is not coming to Maui, but there will be sixteen musicians in the party, besides Mrs. Alapai, the well known vocalist. The visit was arranged by Lahaina people, who raised a fund to cover the expenses of the trip. There will probably be other concerts than above mentioned during next week, but the program has not been outlined further than Monday night.

The Oath of Office-- Theory and Practice

Principal Address by Maui Delegation At Kauai Civic Convention Made By D. H. Case.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: It is never very difficult for me to find something to say on a subject of my own choosing, but I confess to having experienced no slight difficulty in clearly expressing myself on the subject assigned to me, and feel that I may possibly be like the old negro preacher who began his sermon one Sunday morning by saying: "Brethren, I's gwine to divide my sermon this morn into three parts. The first part I'll understand, and you'n's won't. The second part you'n's 'll understand, and I won't understand, and the third part nobody aint gwine to understand."

However let us all trust that, having concluded the reading of my paper, there may be some few things we can all understand.

An oath of office is defined as an oath taken by a person on assuming an office, and promising fidelity to its duties.

Theory is defined as a plan or scheme subsisting in the mind, based on principles verifiable by experiment or observation; and practice as doing or performance as distinguished from theory. That is, the putting into action and effect what one holds as a theory.

An oath, then, includes any form of attestation by which a person signifies that he is bound in conscience to perform some act, or series of acts, in good faith, with honest purpose, to the best of his ability.

Most men are honest, or mean to be; and, when accepting the honors and obligations of office, carry with them not only the desire but the intention to conscientiously perform its duties. I dare say the majority of such men, when elected or appointed to office, even though they may not fully appreciate, do recognize, such office as a public trust, created, not for the advantage of the one or the few, but for the benefit of the public in general, and for the greatest good to all.

The newly elected official, with the words of the oath of office ringing in his ears and the sense of its obligations perhaps still fresh in mind enters his sanctum, imbued with high ideals; at least we will presume with no bad intentions, to demonstrate to his fellow citizens to what extent he can or will put his theories into practice.

Now, duly installed in office, what ordinarily happens?

In many most unwelcome ways the gulf between theory and practice is at once forced upon his attention. Suggestions promptly come from the leaders of the party in power to make room for this or that applicant for position. Are these applications based on moral worth and mental efficiency? Well, hardly. Perhaps no merit other than the fact that the applicant has been of some service to the party, and there follows the political necessity of rewarding him for such service.

Mr. X, mildly perhaps, possibly arrogantly, insists that some protégé of his be appointed to office. Because the man is fitted for the position? Oh, no. But, because the newly elected official owes his election in part to Mr. X; and it would be the height of ingratitude now not to recognize his claim.

If the new office-holder is at the head of a department where many are employed, he will find the woods full of good fellows; each of whom was almost entirely responsible for his election, and for each of whom he holds the office in trust, even though his oath makes no mention of the fact, and though it be not enumerated among the duties of such office.

Again, if his duties relate, in part, to the administration of justice, there may be advanced reasons (political but good ones of course) why leniency should be shown to Black who has been indicted for an offense; and why no punishment at all should be meted out to Brown who has likewise been indicted. This need not, so he is advised, bear the earmarks of partiality, but such action can easily fall within his sworn duty to exercise sound discretion.

Times passes; and, unless the incumbent is blessed with a strong will of his own, and imbued with a fixed and steady purpose to perform his sworn duty, party, friends and enemies to the contrary notwithstanding, he gradually loses his moral grip, and though, not willingly drifting with the current, his conscience becomes deadened. He may become intellectually color-blind, and find himself unable to distinguish the white light of truth from the various shades of dishonesty; and gradually, imperceptibly, like one who fails to heed the alarm of the clock and soon sleeps on through its insistent warnings, he grows indifferent, and the theory of a public trust held for the public good, is supplanted by the obnoxious practice of "To the victor belongs the spoils." Unless he keeps his weather eye open he will, ere long be beyond speaking distance of that oath of office, and find it as different to recognize his better self as did the negro girl, Mandy, whose mistress, in remonstrating with her for wrong doing, concluded her remarks as follows, "don't you realize, that you have an immortal soul?" Mandy thought for a moment, and then, with a careless toss of the head, replied: "I don care; I reckon it ain't no worse than pendeckus, and I's had that."

The oath of office, my friends, will mean very little so long as the man taking that oath is looked upon by his constituents as a dispenser of political favors, and his office the source from which such favors flow. If, in some way, we could do away with the present prevailing idea, that, helping to elect a man to an office of public trust, was, not the privilege of each voter to be paid for by some political favor, but the duty of each voter as a citizen; if we could create a healthy public sentiment against such idea, and in favor of clean, honest politics because such would bring the best results, we would have less trouble with public officials recognizing their duties, and fewer of them going wrong.

It has been rightfully said that most of our political ills are due, not so much to bad or indifferent officials, to the wrong doings of our political parties and their leaders, or to the ignorant vote, but, to the fact that a great body of well-meaning men, who, without rhyme or reason, eternally vote the straight ticket; and to that considerable class of men who look upon their rights at the polls as only politics, and also to those who wholly shirk doing their political duty.

Clean government owes much to the thoroughly independent voters; those fellows who comes from Missouri, and who insist on knowing what political parties are, what they really intend to do, and who and what their candidates are.

Judge Ben Lindsey has referred to the running of our government as a "system of house-keeping on a large scale," but he also says the majority of the male citizens vote from a standpoint of business instead of from the standpoint of the home.

Is it not true that in the past we, as citizens, have, in a large measure, pursued a negative policy? That is, a policy of fault-finding. We have devoted a portion of one day of every two years in exercising the greatest privilege of an American citizen—that of choosing the men, who, for a term of years, are to represent us in public life. Having done this we comfortably settle back into our everyday existence, forgetful of the fact that we are stockholders, not for ourselves alone but for our families, in one of the biggest corporations in the Country.

Absorbed in our personal affairs, we leave our representatives to work out their salvation as well as our own.

Would not much greater and more satisfactory results follow the adoption of a positive line of action on the part of the ordinary citizen? That is, having once elected our representatives, to devote—not one but—three hundred and sixty-five days each year in studying and working with them; giving our influence for the public weal; and, together with them, taking an active, intelligent, constructive interest in all problems pertaining to the moral, intellectual, social and financial welfare of our community. I believe this course would go a long way towards insuring honest and efficient officials, and more wholesome living conditions for all.

We constantly make use of the expression that a stream will rise no higher than its source. Is this not equally true of a government or any political sub-division of a government? Our officers will, as a rule, hold no higher conception of official life than do those of us who place them in power. If by coercion, or in-action, or indifference to matters public on our part, we leave them the impression that the affairs of government do not particularly concern or interest us—at least only spasmodically—they may very easily, and many times do, drift into the belief that office holding is solely a political proposition, and the means of earning a living.

Some years ago Mr. Gaynor, then mayor of New York City, delivered an address before the graduating class of the college of the city of New York; his main desire to create and develop in the young men present, a public sentiment that would not tolerate graft in any of its numerous forms. The address must have made a profound impression on its hearers, for, shortly after, the class drafted and subscribed to the following oath:

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice, nor even desert our suffering comrades in the ranks; that we will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many; that we will revere and obey the city's laws, and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in those who are prone to annul or set them at naught; that we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of public duty; that thus, in all of these ways, we will transmit this city not only not less, but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

To our political parties in Hawaii I would offer the suggestion that hereafter they require every candidate on their respective tickets to subscribe thereto, and religiously observe the same. I once heard a learned judge say: "There are stenographers and then, again, there are stenographers." This is also true as to oaths.

The oath just read is, in sentiment, quite different from that administered by an honest old justice of the peace back in Kansas, with whom I was acquainted years ago. He chewed tobacco incessantly, in fact, from the time he arose in the morning until he retired at night. I never knew him, however, to buy a plug of tobacco. Most, if not all of it he acquired during sessions of court by judicial process, in this way: A witness would be called to the stand, and the old justice, with a good natured smile, would say: "Hold up your fist, please." Up would go the hand of the witness. "You solemnly swear that you will testify to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God give me a chew of tobacco."

Friends, in my opinion, the oath of office has comparatively little to do with good government, territorial, county or municipal. What we need, here and elsewhere, is a higher, much higher sense of civic duty. In office, and out of office, we need men.

"Men with strong minds, great hearts, True faith, and ready hands; Men whom the lust of office does not kill; Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy; Men who possess opinions, and a will; Men who have honor, men who will not lie; Men who can stand before a demagogue,

OUR ISLAND CONTEMPORARIES

System is beginning to show itself in the county offices and it is possible now-a-days to see at a glance how far any job has been completed, how much money has been expended on that particular job and how much balance of money there is in hand for the work. All of which points hopefully to the future—when funds are available in sufficient amounts to do the very necessary jobs that are to be seen undone all over this country. The next thing needed is to see that public funds are not spent on work that is only undertaken for political purposes.—Hawaii Herald.

A committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of W. O. Aiken, (Maui) chairman; Rev. George Laughlin (Hilo); H. Rohrig (Kauai); A. P. Taylor (Honolulu); C. B. Gage (Honolulu); and M. M. Johnson (Honolulu). The report of this committee has been before noted.

A number of 20-minute addresses on different phases of the main topic "Civic Righteousness" were then listened to with much interest by a large audience. Dr. H. B. Elliott, of Hilo, was on the program for the first address on "Present Conditions"—A Diagnosis, but being unable to be present, the subject was handled in most able manner by the Rev. George Laughlin, of the First Foreign Church of Hilo.

Rev. J. E. Cowan was booked to talk on—"What To Do—A Remedy"—but Mr. Cowan was not present, and as through an oversight the Kohala Civic League had been omitted when the invitations to the convention were first sent out, Kohala was not represented, although the mistake had been quickly corrected.

"Need of a Civic Conscience" was the subject handled by Rev. W. H. Frye, of Honolulu; and "The Oath of Office—Theory and Practice" was the theme upon which D. H. Case, of Maui, spoke. (Mr. Case address is published in full in another column of this issue.)

"Politics and Civic Efficiency" was discussed by Hon. W. O. Smith, of Honolulu; while Rev. J. M. Lygate, of Kauai closed the discussion with an address on "What Are You Going To Do About It."

The addresses were all extremely interesting, emphasizing the responsibility of the citizen for good government, not only in the political conventions and at the polls, but from day to day in keeping in touch with public affairs and backing up the work of the government and county officials.

"Jack" Conroy's Luau. Shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the delegates and guests at the convention were taken by autos to Representative J. H. Conroy's beautiful beach place at Niumalu, near Lihue, where an elaborate luau was served.

Following this, the several hundred diners grouped themselves for the official photograph, and then took machines for a sightseeing trip. Many went as far as the Barking Sands, beyond Waimea, and others went to Hanalei where they were greatly impressed by the wonderful scenery. Monday afternoon was also devoted to sightseeing, though there was no regular itinerary, the guests being furnished with automobiles and permitted to go where they pleased.

Many visited the homestead section at Kalaeo and the newer one at Kapaa. Howell and Keola Speak. Sunday evening a series of short addresses were given by members of the convention on the topic—"What Progress Has Your Island Made During the Past Year: Material, Social, Moral?"

In these talks Hugh Howell told of Maui's material accomplishments. He described briefly the extensive development on the Maui plantations, in irrigation systems, sanitation, and mill improvements. In the matter of county roads and waterworks, he declared that much progress had been made in the past year, and he forecast great things for the future in these directions under the new county engineer (J. B. Cox). Mr. Howell believes that the work of the county will go forward with an efficiency that it has never before known.

J. N. K. Keola told the convention that D. C. Lindsay had sidestepped the duty of telling about Maui's moral progress, and loaded the job onto him. He told the meeting that he had been born on Kauai, but that Maui is home to him. He also declared that Haleakala is not an extinct crater, and promised that the big mountain will wake up some of these days and put Kilauea out of the running as a spectacle for tourists to marvel over. He said that Maui, during the year has not been troubled with scandals—to any great extent. He also provoked much mirth when he declared that Maui public officials are "abnormally efficient." He also urged that the people who desire good government, get behind their officials and help them with their support and interest.

No Waimea Rest House—Yet. Alexander Hume Ford launched an appeal for a rest house on the brink of Waimea canyon, and pledged the Trail & Mountain Club for $100 towards such a shelter. The Ad. Club promised $50, and then things stopped. It developed that the Waimea lands are under lease for some years yet to the Knudsen estate. Also that the Kauai people preferred to finance such a project themselves, if a rest house was to be built. No action was finally taken on the matter, except that Ford asked the Kauai Chamber of Commerce to get him a lease on one acre of land, promising that the trail and mountain club will build such a house themselves.

Maui Makes a Gift. In making a report to the convention on the Haleakala rest house, which last year's convention helped to launch, Worth O. Aiken, of the rest house committee told in an interesting address the story of the new building, described its construction, and closed by tendering to the Kauai Chamber of Commerce a handsomely framed photo enlargement of the rest house, about 2 by 2 1/2 feet in size. This report and representation was one of the features of the meeting.

Thayer Changes Mind. At the last business session of the convention, Hon. Wade Warren Thayer, secretary of the Territory, presented the regrets of Governor Pinkham at not being able to be present, and read a letter from the Chief executive expressing his confidence in

Meiji Ball Team Passed Maui By—No Regrets

The Meiji base ball team, which was to have played a series of games on Maui, failed to connect, when the Maui promoters refused to guarantee more than the expenses of the team. No regret is expressed, however, especially since the Japanese players made a very poor showing in Hilo, being defeated in the first two games played there. Inasmuch as the expenses for the proposed Maui series, which the local Japanese sportsmen had offered to guarantee, would have amounted to perhaps $400, the enterprise would have probably been a loss without counting a part of the gate receipts also, which was demanded. The team passed down on the Mauna Kea last Monday night, on return from Hilo to Honolulu.

ADMINISTRATOR REMOVED AND ANOTHER APPOINTED.

In the Second Circuit Court, on Thursday, Nona Kaa was removed as administrator of the estate of Huihana, deceased, and D. H. Case appointed in his stead under bond of $1000. The court, however, refused to allow Kaa's petition for allowance of accounts. At the hearing, W. T. Rawlins, of Honolulu, attorney for Abraham Dudot, a creditor of the estate, appeared to contest the allowance of Kaa's discharge on the ground that he had filed a claim for $715 against the estate, but had not heard from the administrator whether the same had been allowed or not. He also charged the administrator and others with having fraudulently secured a conveyance of the property of the estate to Mary Kaa, wife of the administrator. A general denial was entered to these charges by Kaa, who claimed he never received the claim in question. The matter, in so far as Kaa is concerned, has not been finally settled. Kaa lives near Olowalu, near where the property of the estate is located.

Maui Made Big Hit With Song and Yell

accident. The weather remained so unfavorable, that the Kilauea was boarded for the return trip on Monday night, at Koloa. Honolulu was reached about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning after a rough passage, and most of the Maui party took the Mauna Loa at noon for home, arriving at Lahaina shortly before 8 p. m.

At the banquet, which closed the convention on Monday night, the Maui fourteen has a table to themselves, and they shared with the Honolulu Ad. Club the honors of the evening in the entertaining line. The chief piece de resistance was a new song, written for the occasion by C. G. White, of Haiku, and sung to the tune of "When You Wore a Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose," was one of the hits of the evening, the last verse and chorus, sung as an encore, capping the climax. The Maui bunch also sang a number of older Maui songs, with some changes to make them appropriate to the occasion.

The words of Mr. White's composition are as follows:

WHAT MAUI MEANS TO ME. (Air: When You Wore a Tulip and I Wore a Big Rose). I've met you often, big Hawaii, In this and other days. The sun was smiling down, You wore a rainbow gown. I love you, and I give great hearty tribute. You are fair! Upon my heart you leave a vision rare, Time has not changed your loveliness, You're sweet as you can be! I love you but I can't forget What Maui means to me.

First Chorus: For you may have craters, big stunning craters, But we have a crater, too!

the future of Kauai in the various problems that must be faced. Mr. Thayer, on his own behalf, extolled the Governor for his ability and energy, and pointed out lines of progress that are being worked out by the new administration. He appealed to the meeting for support on constructive work being undertaken, and in line with other speakers urged the benefit and duty of constructive criticism of governmental affairs. Mr. Thayer stated that he intended making some remarks about the disposition of the 69,600 odd acres of land at Waimea, now under lease to the Knudsen estate, which expires in about four years. He had understood that a considerable portion of this was suitable for homesteading, but since seeing the tract in company with Senator Knudsen, he had changed his mind. Unless water can be put on the land, which does not seem feasible, he doubts if it will ever be made to support homesteaders.

W. O. Smith on Woman Suffrage.

In a short address on "Politics and Civic Efficiency," W. O. Smith, of Honolulu stated that he was almost converted to woman suffrage, through his observations in New Zealand and other places that where women have the franchise it is much more difficult for a bad man to get into office than where the women have no voice in the matter.

Sweet heaven has blessed you, and fondly cared you, But I would not swap with you! You take life cheerily and I love you dearly, You live where the sunlight grows, Your smiles are sweeter than honey, You're free with your money, But a steamer to Maui goes.

I've met you often, Oahu, You are a fair and lovely isle, You have a polo team, To beat it is a dream. I love you and I give you hearty greetings! You are fair! Upon my heart you leave a vision rare, Time has not changed your loveliness, I love you but I can't forget What Maui means to me.

Second Chorus: For you have Oahu and far sounding Ewa, But we have our Puunene, Sweet heaven has blessed you and fondly cared you, But I would not swap today, You take life cheerily and I love you dearly, You live where the sunlight grows, Your smiles are sweeter than honey, You're free with your money, But a steamer to Maui goes.

I've come to see you, fair Kauai, I did not need a road, You have a lovely road, To carry off a load. I love you and I give hearty greetings! You are fair! Upon my heart you leave a vision rare, Time has not changed your loveliness, You're sweet as you can be! I love you but I can't forget What Maui means to me.

Third Chorus: For you may have boosters, big husky boosters, But we have some boosters, too, We've roads too many to pave with our penny, You take life cheerily and I love you dearly, You live where the sunlight grows, Your smiles are sweeter than honey, You're free with your money, But a steamer to Maui goes.

Whenever you come to Maui you will notice on our isle, We greet you with a smile, We're happy all the while, And if you chance to meet us when we're traveling far from home, We'll give you an "Aloha" just the same, But this is such an age of push, it brings so much unrest, That often times we wonder if the old days weren't the best.

Chorus: When you wore the malo, the cool breezy malo, And I wore a malo, too, A costume the sweetest, completest and neatest, That ever was put on view, Grass skirts were cunning, we kept in the running, For Maui is there, all the while! But now we long for the old days, When there were no work days, And smiles were the dominate style, By "KEOKEO."
