KAPIOLANI PARK ASSOCIATION.

The election of directors for the Kapiolani Park Association, which is announced in today's ADVERTISER, raises more than one question in which the people at large are interested.

But the public love sport, and it is not a part of the functions of the Park Association to furnish it. The Association therefore leased to the Jockey Club a portion of the park to form a racing track.

When this was demonstrated the public refused to subscribe to support the races. And very naturally. Men can hardly be expected to put their hands into their pockets to provide a bonus for cheating and humbugging themselves.

What then was to be done? The people refused to subscribe for races which they supposed were not honestly run, and they could not be reached by compulsory assessment on the King's highway, where it was resolved to walk up the race track and prevent anyone who did not pay tribute from witnessing any racing events.

The Jockey Club, with an unexpired term of a few years, apparently did not care for this. They wanted money for their "purses" and "plates," and took all chances. From a sporting association this was to be expected, but we have now to deal with the Kapiolani Park Association, which is responsible to the public, being the recipient of public money, and therefore a public trustee.

fence in question. And most properly so. What element of right or justice is there in taxing a man to make a road to a point which he cannot see with his family without an additional expenditure of $5 or $6 for every look? Yet this is precisely what is being done, and it is just such a state of things as would not be tolerated in any other country.

The newly elected directors of the Kapiolani Park Association have therefore a duty imposed upon them for which the public will hold them to strict account. They are all men of honor and prudence, and may be trusted to do that which is right in the premises.

It follows from these remarks that the public will expect the newly-elected Board of Directors of the Kapiolani Park Association to consider this question in all its bearings. This is the only possible drive and recreation ground the people of Honolulu can have, and they should be enabled to enjoy every inch of it.

The Estate of the Late Mrs. Bishop.

The Master's report in the matter of the estate of Bernice Pauahi Bishop, deceased, which was confirmed by the Chief Justice yesterday, was upon the trustees' first annual statement for the year 1886, filed in pursuance of the terms of the will of the testatrix. The trustees charge themselves with $42,525.70, and ask to be allowed $30,399.54, leaving a surplus of receipts amounting to $12,126.16.

Mr. Booth's Temperance Mission. A largely attended meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening, the Rev. J. A. Cruzan presiding. Some high-class vocal music was rendered, among which were the solos, "She only touched the hem of his garment," and "Sancta Maria," by Mrs. Hanford.

Serious Damage by Floods at and Near Koolan.

Captain McGregor, Master of the schooner Manuokawai, which arrived yesterday from Koolan, brings the following news: The roads are in a frightful state. Punaluu bridge was greatly damaged by a freshet Thursday night, sixty feet or more of the bridge being washed away. Three horses and a number of hogs were carried to sea by the flood. Only one of the animals, a horse, was saved. A two-story house at Punaluu was undermined by the rain and came near going over. Chulan's flames were buried about two miles by dirt and rocks washed down from the mountains. The mill has stopped work for a few days. Rice fields were washed away. Several fields were made into one with the water, standing three or four feet deep. Wednesday night a heavy freshet occurred at Hanula. Banks were carried away, and the roads made impassable in some places. The late rains at Koolan, the natives say, were the heaviest they have ever known there. The weather moderated at 12 o'clock Friday night, and up to the latest report it was favorable. A huge water-spout was seen about five miles to sea, between Punaluu and Hanula, last Wednesday morning.—Bulletin.

Chloroform Sniffers.

These few facts I have learned from a druggist who in a lifetime has known many victims. He says that the fatal dose of the morphia slave, however, is not more than a few drops of the fluid, and that of chloroform. The taste for this anesthetic is becoming as great as that for morphia. Disipation and nervous tension both produce sleepless nights. To the sleepless, however, the use of chloroform in our large cities, said the druggist, "saturate napkins and handkerchiefs with chloroform at night and fall asleep in breathing the fumes. It was thus that George H. Halpin after a week's haunch, and it was thus that the son and heir of a once prominent millionaire congressman from Boston passed away. The habit produces palpitation of the heart, and in time the victim is sure to be found dead in bed.—Philadelphian Press.

Burying the Dead.

We arrived at Sulo in time for me to be detailed to help bury the dead. That is a duty in connection with army work seldom described. The mind disfigures itself upon it. The killing of the man is an exciting work. There is some excitement even in being in line with shot and bullets—in seeing who gets hit—in feeling that you are yet whole—but there is no redeeming feature in going out to the field of the dead and gathering the men like sheaves in a harvest-field and arranging them in a trench and covering them with earth. There is no other form of death so killed by the accidents of battle.

H. R. H. Princess Likelike.

The public will regret to learn that Her Royal Highness Princess Likelike is seriously ill at her Waikiki residence. Drs. Troussaint and McKibbin have been in attendance on Her Royal Highness. Their Majesties the King and Queen, H. R. Highness Princess Liliuokalani and Lieutenant General the Hon. John O. Dominis visited her yesterday.

REJUVENATION OF OLD HATS.

An Hour in a Shop on the Bowery—Good for Fair Weather. "What becomes of all the old hats?" a hatter on Park street was asked. "Oh, they go to the skinner, who do them up again and then ship them to the country. Of course, you don't know what a skinner is? There is one right across the way, and you can find any number of them on the Bowery, on Hester, and Baxter streets. Go there if you want to find out something about old hats."

One of the best known establishments in which old hats undergo the rejuvenating process is to be found on the Bowery. It is an old, narrow, and frowsy shop, filled to overflowing with old, misshapen things once appendages to the seat of human reason in the years of its existence the old shop and its proprietors have seen numerous changes in masculine headgear. The owner of the establishment, for some mysterious reason, is deeper than many of his brothers on Hester street and Park street, and he has the charge of the old clothes dealer, the rest is for labor, embellishment, and fair profit. At $1.00 the pretty and brilliant thing seems cheap. It bears fine weather well, and may figure creditably on Broadway for three consecutive Saturdays hereafter. But at the first downpour of rain, glue and gum and paint, silk and brown paper resolve themselves into their original constituents, and the whole fabric collapses like a dissolving view.

Lawrence Barrett at Colosseum.

Mr. Barrett kindly led the way to what he called his "den." No term could better fail to describe his orderly and elegant study. Upon the walls hung a perfect constellation of "stars," nearly all of which were portraits of celebrities. There was Henry Irving as Hamlet, Forrest, Jefferson, Herr Barnay, an exquisite portrait of Helen Terry, Bernhardt, John and Charles Kemble, and over the mantel a life-size portrait of the veteran comedian, William Warren. "Here," calling attention to a small profile portrait is the only likeness of David Garrick without a wig that I have ever seen. It is very old and very rare. Mr. Booth, of course, was conspicuous in the study, and in every reference to Mr. Booth the younger tragedian's noble and unselfish devotion to his friend was made ingeniously apparent.

"Here," continued Mr. Barrett, is the Chandos bust of Shakespeare, and this is a George worn by Edmund Keen in 'Richard III.' and presented to me on my last night in London by Henry Irving, with the request that I should sometimes wear it." The lower part of the study was a room gave unmistakable and ample evidence of the scholarly tastes of our cultured actor. About two hundred volumes are devoted to the drama; the rest embrace a wide range of subjects and attested both the catholicity and healthfulness of the owner's mind.

Engineers Dread Moonlight Nights.

"Moonlight nights—they are the bane of railroad engineers," said a head official of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. "All engineers dread moonlight nights. They try the nerves to their utmost. Engineer like to run on dark nights. On a moonlight night the trouble with them is not trouble at all—shadows. An engineer looking out from his engine sees before him all manner of shadows. He is sure that the dark shadow across the track is a man or a rock, or some kind of an obstruction. He doesn't know, and he is kept in a state of nervous excitement all the time. Going around curves, along hillsides, many curious shadows are outlined on the track, and very often an engineer is so worked up over a night's run that he is scarcely able to perform his duties.—Exchange.

The Potato Centennial.

One hundred years ago the potato was introduced into Montenegro, and all the Montenegrians celebrated the potato centennial by keeping holiday and eating potatoes prepared in every conceivable way.—New York Sun.

Joys and Sorrows of Journalism.

The Aurora (Ill.) Blade boasts over the fact that while only five years ago it started with three regular subscribers and one fellow who said he would talk with his wife about it, now the subscription book is running over with names, and the editor is compelled to chalk the balance down on the back of the stove pipe.

A Terrible Warning.

It has been predicted that tight lacing will in time produce a red nose.—Town Topics.

THE FIRE OF HOME.

I hear them tell in far-off climes, And treasures grand they hold—Of Minster walls where stained light falls On canvass rare and old. My hands fall down, my breath comes fast. But ah, how can I roam? My task I know; to spin and sew, And light the fire of home. Sometimes I hear of noble deeds; Of words that move mankind; Of willing hands that to other lands Bring light to the poor and blind. I dare not preach, I dare not write, I fear to cross the line. Who, if I go, will spin and sew, And light the fire at home?—George Worster.

Capacity for Book-Reading.

The capacity for reading a book—that is, for keeping the mind fixed on one argument or narrative for a period more or less prolonged—has always in modern times been much more widespread than the capacity for listening, owing to the fact that we all get our earliest mental training through books. As long, too, as books were the only source of entertainment, and large numbers of more or less cultivated people lived in this country, and there were no newspapers or other periodicals, and few amusements, and travel was rare and expensive, the habit of reading was kept up. But there is great reason to fear that, what with the newspapers and magazines, and the theatres, and the facilities with which we can get our people to gossip with us when we are both idle and lazy, the number of those who can and do read a book—even a novel, even a poor novel—is rapidly declining. In fact, we fear that any one who inquired among his friends, outside the professors and professional men, would find that the number of those who now read a serious book of any kind is exceedingly small, and those who even read novels is growing smaller. Most men who have not kept up the habit of reading, in fact, throw down a novel after a few pages if the plot does not thicken rapidly, or the incidents are few. The thoughtful novel, such as George Eliot's, filled with reflection and speculation, would fare much worse now, even coming from an author of her powers, than it did thirty years ago. The newspaper is fast forming the mental habit of this generation, and, in truth, even this is getting to be heavy, unless the articles or extracts are very short. The reader begins more and more to resent being asked to keep his attention fixed on any one object for more than five minutes. In short, any one who flatters himself during the busy years of an active career, when he does no reading but newspaper reading, that he is going to become a reader of books at a later period when he gets more leisure, may rest assured that he is greatly mistaken. When leisure comes he will find that a serious book will tire him or send him asleep in ten minutes. Just as a dumb-bell would tire a long arm. To be able to read continuously for long periods, at any time of life, just as to be able to row, or walk, or ride, one must keep in practice year after year. The man who finds that he shrinks from a book and longs for a newspaper, may feel sure that he is mentally "out of condition" as the athlete who can not bear to leave his easy-chair without a cocktail.—Nation.

The Storming of Chapultepec.

In this country they speak of our storming of Chapultepec as a "massacre" and such, indeed, it was, the youthful cadets being literally butchered by the Americans. For many years that celebrated castle—where Montezuma held his bar-bare court in the surrounding grove of cypresses, where, during nearly three centuries, lived the successive vice kings of Spain, and where Maximilian made his imperial home—has been the West End of Mexico for the training of her youths in the arts of war. After Gen. Scott had taken the place by storm and Gen. Bravo had surrendered, a Mexican cadet, seeing the flag of his country in peril, and most of his comrades already slain, sprang up on a flagstaff, tore the banner from its place, and wound it around his body, and slid down, intending to plunge over the precipice in order to save the colors from falling into the hands of the enemy. That act of heroism being frustrated, the brave boy, with the beloved banner still wrapped around him, fought till his sword was taken and himself actually cut in pieces by the Americans.

Our historical accounts of the storming of Chapultepec make no mention of this and similar incidents, nor does the word "massacre" occur; but they admit our officers found great difficulty in restraining our valorous soldiers from slaughtering the garrison. Forty-eight of these school boys, ranging in age from 14 to 20 years, sons of the proudest and wealthiest families in Mexico, lie buried in one grave at the foot of the hill. Year by year the cadets of Chapultepec strew flowers upon this saddest of sepulchres, and it is not to be wondered that little love for the United States is harbored among relatives and friends of the slain.—Fannie B. Ward's Letter.

Dividing the Estate. "Ah, good morning Mr. Skineur," remarked Lawyer Fleece as he met his fellow lawyer on the street. "I heard old Richfield died last night."

"Yes," responded the other: "I am the attorney for his daughter, and I'm just going up to see her."

"Indeed! Well, I'm the attorney for his son. Can't we make a little something out of this?"

Lawyer Skineur stroked his chin reflectively. "I think you might," he said. "I'll advise Miss Richfield to contest the will. I'll tell her that her brother has no right to half the estate, and that if she will only go to court she might as well have it all."

"Um—yes, and I'll defend it for her brother. But suppose I am defeated?"

"Then appeal it."

"And if you're defeated?"

ONLY ONE OF HIS KIND.

A Queer Little Old Man Who Gets Along by Following a Queer Business.

On a much-traveled uptown thoroughfare a little half-story wooden shop stands between two big business blocks, for all the world like a diminutive chunk of ham between the abnormally thick slices of bread in a railroad sandwich.

Within the little shop are shelves and counters covered with pasteboard trays containing a larger collection of buttons, probably than can be found anywhere else in New York.

There is every sort of button known to civilization, from the plain white shirt button whose absence has caused untold misery in many a family circle, to the bold-faced metallic military button which saves a life every now and then in war stories by turning a bullet from its deadly course; buttons of jet, gilt, ivory, bone, glass and wood, plain buttons, parti-colored buttons, enamelled buttons, plush-covered buttons, buttons with shanks and without shanks, rough buttons and smooth buttons, buttons that were invented yesterday and buttons that were made half a century ago.

In the back of the shop there is a bench like a cobbler's, where the old man sits all day cross-legged. A pretty-faced little girl, who looks old for her size, waits upon customers. She is the little old man's granddaughter. Neither the old man nor his granddaughter is inclined to talk freely about their business.

To a reporter, however, the little girl said: "We match buttons and sew them on the coats or vests of gentlemen and on the dresses of ladies. Oh, yes, we have a good many customers, principally young men, who have lost a button or two and haven't any one to sew them on or can't match the buttons in the regular stores. We often have calls from seamstresses also, who need a few buttons they can't find elsewhere. You see our collection is so large that we can supply the missing buttons in almost any set. Where did we get such a large collection? Grandpa has been gathering it for years. He has a number of tailor shops and dressmaking establishments which he visits regularly. From these he gets odd buttons by the hundreds, very cheap. We charge only 10 cents for any button that may be desired. Of course, some of them are worth a good deal more than that, but as the demand is greatest for the cheap kind, we give the fair profit in the long run.—New York Mail and Express.

Glimpse of German Social Life. Compared with an American watering place life is exceedingly simple. There are no great balls, no splendid, no brilliant life, no Anglo-manias. More than this, there are no gambling halls, and if the devil is here in any shape he keeps so secluded that he can do no harm.

The best sides and the most refined figures of German society are seen here to advantage, and one is continually struck with their increasing resemblance to the people of the greater outer world in manners, instincts, and appearance, which is fair proof in the long run.—New York Mail and Express.

Let Me Have a Mild CIGAR!

THE ABOVE REQUEST IS HEARD DAILY IN cigar stores, saloons and other places where cigars are sold, for it is an undisputed fact that most smokers prefer a mild cigar, and that those who have for a long time smoked strong cigars, principally imported Manila, will, after having thoroughly injured the stomach and impaired the nervous system, surely want a mild cigar if they could find the right kind.

How many thousands of smokers who suffer from loss of appetite, headache, nervous irritability, asthma, etc., and who have tried all possible remedies without success, might be cured if they knew that their sufferings were caused by the intemperate use of strong cigars, and that they should only smoke mild and properly prepared ones.

It is a fact that not all mild cigars agree well with smokers, for in most cases there is a lack of care in the selection of the tobacco, and often there is one brand which suits the most fastidious smoker, and that is

ENGELBRECHT'S "Sampler" Health Cigar.

Which is made from mild, aromatic and particularly selected and prepared tobacco, and combines all the qualities which may be expected from a health cigar. It causes no bad effect of any kind, is agreeable to the taste, burns evenly to the end and possesses a fine aroma. No smoker should fail to give Engelbrecht's "Sampler" Cigar. A fair trial, and benefit himself at the same time.

FREDERICKSBURG BREWING COMPANY'S EXPORT LAGER BEER

SAN JOSE, CAL., U. S. A.

A CALIFORNIA PRODUCTION. The Fine Exhibit Made at the Fair by the Fredericksburg Brewing Co.

One of the most novel and unique exhibits of the Mechanics' Fair was that of the Fredericksburg Lager Brewing Co. It was in the form of a bower, the roof being formed of hop vines, while around the sides were arranged the various packages of the famous Fredericksburg beer. This company was the pioneer in the manufacture of lager on the Coast. After overcoming many obstacles they have succeeded in producing an export

Lager Not Surpassed. By any other made in the United States. A proof of this is seen in the fact that their goods are sold as far East as Chicago, despite Eastern competition. How can they do this after paying freight over 3,000 miles of railroad, it may be asked. In the first place hops are better and cheaper here than in the East; again, California barley is the best grown in the United States; but the chief reason is the superior quality of the brew. As they use only the finest, artesian water and the very best material, and have all the best and latest machinery, they are able to produce an article that

DEFIES COMPETITION. Their Export Lager is so perfect that it will keep any number of years in any climate, and is sold largely in Mexico, Australia, the Islands, South America, and in short, throughout the Western Hemisphere. In three years their output has quadrupled; last year it amounted to 33,000 barrels, and this year will exceed that amount.

Since writing the above we learn that the Fredericksburg Brewing Co. was awarded the first prize, a silver medal, for the "Export Lager," also the first prize, another silver medal, for the "best Key Lager Beer."—Journal of Commerce, San Francisco.

Having been appointed SOLE AGENTS for the Hawaiian Islands for the above celebrated Brewing Company, we are now prepared to fill all orders for the trade and family consumption at bedrock figures.

The Need of a Liberal Education. "I am soliciting funds," said the stranger, nervously buttoning his coat across the place where his necktie ought to show.

Trials of a Landlord. First Tourist (to summer hotel landlord)—Do you allow dogs in the house? Landlord (emphatically)—No, sir.

A Squeaky Machine. First Old Farmer (seeing the sight).—Some kind of a patent churn he's a-showin' up, I reckon.

Made a Match of It. There's a little bit of fun from the New York Sun: Visitor (at Castle Garden)—Are all those immigrants Norwegian? Official—No, sir. A few of them are Sveinborgians.

She (in the morning)—Tom, dear, I wish you'd stop at Johnson's on your way to the office and pay my bill for plants and seeds. It's just $3.

Stranger Than Fiction. Lemme see if my father hadn't died back in '86 he'd be a hundred an' four this mornin' at 97.

The Bible printed in Chicago have three blank pages for divorces and as many for elopements. The blank pages are so arranged that the newspaper articles on the family topics can be pasted in by the column.—Texas Siftings.

THREE DAILIES OF NEW YORK. Three Men of Strong Individuality as Journalists—Expanding News Items. The three great dailies in New York represented three great men, who in different ways had each impressed his personality upon his journal in an almost equal degree.

The first newspapers, small though they were, filled their miniature pages with moral aphorisms and pious sentiments. The news was crowded in a corner, briefly summarized, or neglected altogether, unless it found its way in the form of an advertisement.

Let me here say The Herald would never have lived and become a power, had Mr. Bennett been only, or chiefly, the mean, unscrupulous man he has been so often described in his way he was conscientious, ambitious only for his paper and his son—to found a name and a paper that would live.

Usefulness of the Lemon. Lemons are one of the most useful fruits in our domestic economy. The juice of half a lemon in a glass of water, without sugar, will frequently cure a sick headache.

Feccularities of a Pavement. The city fathers of Steubenville, Ohio, concluded to lay a new pavement two years ago, and they just dug one foot below the surface of the street, put in four inches of sand, four inches of gravel and then set four-inch fire-brick on edge.
