HAWAII'S FOES.

The real enemies of Hawaii are to be found within and not without the Kingdom. The direct injury done our reputation and commerce by the revolution of '87 and the riot of '89 has been mostly overcome; but in certain quarters attempts are continued to prolong the evil effects of these two unfortunate periods in our late history. There are two extreme elements in Hawaii, the immediate result of recent disturbances, which, as disappointed and opposing political elements, are a unit on one point only, viz.: to carry out the personal ambitions of one or two men in each faction, who probably have less than a hundred political adherents respectively in the entire Kingdom. The Advertiser faction represents one of these poles of the Hawaiian Magnet which has attracted within the radius of its evil influence a portion of that political element willing to become a foe to Hawaiian interests abroad in order to satiate political disappointment and personal spite.

As far as local politics go the Advertiser, chief foe of Hawaiian interests, is making an effective fight against itself and its party. It is unwittingly undermining the strongest tower of its political stronghold; but at the same time it is building up barriers to Hawaiian commerce abroad and our general interests at home. It is perfectly safe to warn the Advertiser and its faction they are working their own undoing, and the friends of normal conditions of peace and good government need not think we go too far. The truth is this extreme political faction of '87 has too much egotism and too little political penetration to judge of the results of its actions. The usual Thurston-like blunder is again being committed and in this instance it looks exceedingly life-like. It is needless to say the blunder will not be detected by the Advertiser until it is too late. The same political faction were beaten at the last election by being unable to see, through their dense haze of egotism, that their defense was tardy and their counter attack at the eleventh hour was worse than useless. They have now swung to the other extreme and will discover too late the results of being "too previous."

The evil influence of the Advertiser faction at home and abroad may be aptly illustrated by its latest malicious utterances. For instance, the newspaper which excuses its extreme personal attack made in one column upon a candidate for a public office, by pleading that "Christian charity demands that the public voice be raised" in behalf of the inmates of the Insane Asylum (before an appointment has been made) is open to the charge of venting political prejudice or personal spite. When, however, there appears an article in another column of the same issue, wherein a deliberate and malicious attempt is made to libel an opposing political party by willful misrepresentations, the conclusion is reached that the Advertiser and its supporting political faction are entirely devoid of either "Christian" or profane charity. This fact becomes especially evident, and despicable to the public generally, when it is noted these willful and malicious misrepresentations are deliberately concocted or republished on steamer day, for distribution abroad. In the present instance the "batch" of lies and misrepresentations for their steamer edition consisted of the republication of a lot of the silly utterances of those who, like the Advertiser's faction, represent one of the extremes of Hawaiian politics. The fact is the journalistic scavengers of the Advertiser purposely rake up, for foreign distribution through their steamer edition, the political garbage deposited during Legislative and newspaper wranglings, indulged in by the Advertiser faction and other equally insensate and unscrupulous extremists. The Hawaiian public meanwhile holds its nose. Every merchant, every hotel and every planter feels the immediate injury done Hawaii by this internal foe, in purposely injuring the country to uphold an evil political faction, which has already shaken the Government to its foundation. The abuse has now reached a point where prominent merchants are attempting self-protection by sending out private advices to correct the public abuses practised by political extremists.

Nor is this all. As usual inconsistency crops out. The day after the steamer sailed with the Advertiser's batch of lies and misrepresentations, that detestable journal came out and bitterly denounced Mr. E. A. Phillips, of the S. F. Post, for doing the very same dirty work as a correspondent that the Advertiser and its faction are accomplishing editorially. When, therefore, this Advertiser crowd prates of "Christian charity" they talk of that they know little or nothing about. Thus far, in fact, these fellows have not been disposed to grant the usual political charity of the world. Their sole object is to rule or to injure Hawaii; and this they hope to accomplish by unscrupulous means, as it is impossible for them to do so at present by fair means.

But this injury is not done at home; here the journalistic position of the Advertiser and its faction is "state, flat and unprofitable." Abroad it is different, as was evident from the late misapprehension and excitement caused at the Coast about impending and transpiring disturbances here, and which the last steamer edition of the Advertiser will tend to unjustly and untruthfully keep alive. It is also a fact that most of our injury comes from a few Hawaiian-born foreigners, who have mouthed the loudest about patriotism, decent Government, and their own political virtues, while in truth they have been foremost and continuously the political traitors who have stabbed Hawaii's reputation abroad and have shown a willingness to sacrifice her internal peace and commercial prosperity to their personal spite and political disappointment.

In the mean time, as before stated, local political good will come out of this general evil. The ripening of certain reforms is being hastened in political and other departments of the Government and in the law, which will soon be demanded by the people as an antidote for the political abuses of the extremists. The object of the Advertiser and its faction is not good Government, as the record of the past three years shows; their object is either to rule Hawaii as they see fit or to ruin it in the hopes of again establishing a factional dictatorship when the desolation is complete.

The Daily Bulletin is by public choice as well as by circulation the leading paper of the Kingdom.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Referring to the special dispatch from Salvador saying that Minister Mizner had been instructed by the State Department to recognize Ezeta's election to the Presidency acting Secretary of State Wharton said this evening that no such instructions had been given, but they undoubtedly soon would be. The State Department has received from Mizner a full report of the Barrundia incident, but is not prepared to make it public.

City of Mexico, Sept. 19.—A terrible accident happened to-day on the Mexican Railroad, near Rinconada. Two passenger trains collided. Ten persons were killed and several others injured.

POOR HAWAII!

Hawaii is a neat little, tight little island Kingdom that might be happy if only people who are alien to it in blood, race and interests would let it alone. The natives are a singularly goodnatured and well-behaved people, who, if they were allowed the unalienable right of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in their own way, would be about the most sunny and cheerful people on the face of the globe. In an unfortunate moment for them the American Sugar planter discovered that a few of the Hawaiian valleys would yield an immense profit if only a reciprocity treaty with the United States could be negotiated. Corrupt ways secured a corrupt measure, which has corrupted all else. Money became plentiful in the islands, debauchery abounded, leprosy extended and even attacked the whites, certain of whom became the victims of their own undoing, whisky and opium became articles of trade, and soon the white man's cupidity and vices turned a paradise into an inferno. All this has been taking place within hail of our free and independent press without so much as the utterance of a word of advice. At last there is restiveness in Hawaii, and revolution is in the air. There are educated and ambitious natives who think these things can be bettered, and that it would improve the island government if it were conducted upon the principle of "Hawaii for the Hawaiians." Admiral Brown, of the Charleston, says that is awfully wicked, and has caused himself to be sent back to Honolulu to see that the natives do not sign "a Declaration of Independence." Uncle Sam should either govern the natives or leave them alone to govern themselves. The middle man should be got rid of at all hazards.—[S. F. News Letter.

Infallible for renewing, invigorating and beautifying the hair, removing scurf, dandruff, and all affections of the scalp, and curing eruptions of the skin, diseases of the glands, muscles and integuments, and relieving stings, cuts, bruises, sprains, etc. The affinity between the membranes which constitute the skin and the hair which draws its sustenance from this triple envelope is very close. All diseases of the hair originate in the skin of the head. If the pores of the scalp are clogged, or if the blood or other fluids do not circulate freely through the small vessels which feed the roots with moisture and impart life to the fibres, the result is scurf, dandruff, shedding of the hair, grayness, dryness and hardness of the ligaments, and entire baldness, as the case may be. Stimulate the skin to healthy action with Barry's Tricopherous, and the torpid vessels, recovering their activity, will annihilate the disease. In all affections of the skin and of the substrata of muscles and integuments the process and the effect are the same. It is upon the skin, the muscular fibre, and the glands that Barry's Tricopherous has its specific action, and in all affections and injuries of these organs it is a sovereign remedy. Beware of Counterfeits. From the Greatest Living Prima Donna, Madame Adeline Patti-Nicolini. Moved to Honolulu, July 26th, 1888. Messrs. BARCLAY & Co., New York. Dear Sirs:—I like pleasure in announcing to you that Barry's Florida Water is one of the few articles always to be found on my dressing case. In my conception it is one of the best of toilet waters, and for the both it is not only delicious, but refreshing and invigorating. I recommend it without reserve. Adeline Patti-Nicolini

THE LEGISLATURE

EIGHTY-NINTH DAY.

MONDAY, Sept. 29.

The House was opened at 10 a. m. with prayer by Rev. J. Waiman, chaplain. Minutes were read by Secretary Chas. Wilcox and Interpreter W. Lu her Wilcox.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Noble Cornwell presented the report of the select committee on the resolution to appropriate $76,461.11 for paying the King's debts. They report a bill instead of the resolution, which was ordered to be printed.

Rep. Marques presented the minority report of the select committee on constitutional revision and amendment. They had agreed to some of the conclusions of the majority, but could not assent to all the sentiments expressed in the majority report. As, however, they did not desire to occupy the time of the House with a discussion of all the points of divergence, they preferred to leave the entire question to the judgment of the House. Signed by H. A. Widenmann and A. Marques.

Rep. Hookoo had already expressed his views of the majority report, but, as he did not coincide with the minority, he read a statement of his opinions on the matter. His view was that a constitutional convention should only be called on the request of the whole people, whereas the petitions received only represented a small portion of the people. He finally concluded that the matter should be referred to the Supreme Court for an opinion.

Both reports were laid on the table to be considered with the majority report.

Noble Baldwin asked, as a matter of privilege, what had become of the minority report of the select committee on postal matters, which had been ordered to be translated and printed.

The Interpreter and Rep. Marques gave explanations of the delay, and the matter dropped.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

Rep. Brown, to bring the special order before the House, moved that the majority report of the constitutional committee be adopted.

Rep. Bush moved that the House go into committee of the whole. Ten minutes was not enough time for orations on such an important matter.

Noble Baldwin saw no necessity for going into committee. The ten minutes' rule had not been generally enforced and certainly not been made oppressive.

Rep. R. W. Wilcox held that it was no use talking about the rule being oppressive. While it was there the House should not violate it. The hon. Noble knew that constitutions in some countries were only changed by revolution, and had taken part in one himself in 1887. The importance of the matter called for the free discussion of committee.

Noble Walbridge moved in amendment to Rep. Bush's motion, that the committee of the whole adopt the rules of the House.

Rep. Nawahi said the amendment was out of order. It was none of the hon. Noble's business how much time was taken.

President Walker ruled the amendment out of order, but rebuked the last speaker for his language.

Rep. Kanealii agreed with members who spoke of the importance of the matter. He hoped it would be discussed with calmness and decorum. There should be a full discussion in committee, and speakers should be temperate in their remarks. He hoped that on the outbreak of any intemperate language, the chair would bring the offending member to his senses.

Noble Cornwell was in favor of full discussion, but, instead of committee of the whole, he would move that the ten minutes' rule be suspended.

Rep. Bush conceded the good motive of the hon. Noble, but held that there was still the disadvantage, in the House, of the previous question.

Noble Baldwin withdrew his motion for the House to consider the matter, as he had no intention of checking freedom of discussion.

The President wished to inform the Sergeant-at-Arms and the audience that, although this would be a political discussion it would not be a political meeting. Any demonstrations of assent or dissent from outsiders would result in the offenders being removed. He also wished members would remember the counsel of the hon. member for Wailuku (Kanealii) and be temperate in their language.

Noble Marsden was called to the chair. He asked members to exercise moderation and promised to be fair in rulings.

Rep. Brown moved that when the committee rise it recommend the indefinite postponement of the bill to authorize a constitutional convention.

Noble Cornwell, as one of the majority of the select committee, said he was sure that every member desired the welfare of the country. He felt convinced that the welfare of the country would be endangered by an entire change of the Constitution. Whatever grievances the natives had could be removed by legislative enactments, and he was prepared to vote for judicious measures to that end. He believed that this House would pass such amendments as were required, and that it would be easy to elect the next House so that it would ratify the amendments.

Rep. R. W. Wilcox moved that when the committee rise it recommend the indefinite postponement of the majority report and the passage of the bill to enable a constitutional convention to be held. This was one of the most important questions that ever came before the Legislature. Kaneahimela V. held a constitutional convention. The present Constitution was forced on the King at the point of the bayonet. He was given twenty-four hours to sign it, under the alternative of being forced to abdicate, with the probability of a republic being declared. If it was true that the Constitution was promulgated by His Majesty under compulsion, then it ought to be abolished anyway as being null and void. In a good many European countries new constitutions had been got by force, but that was what was done in this country in 1887, when the Constitution was obtained by a handful of foreigners. The local press, particularly the P. C. Advertiser, had said that he was advocating bloodshed. That was all idle talk. He had never shed any blood. It was only the foreigners on the 30th of July, 1889, who had shed blood. The question was whether the natives should get their rights in the peaceable manner proposed, or be compelled to seek redress as in other countries by force. He would like to ask the foreigners who favored the majority report how they would like to have the ruler in the country of any of them reduced to the position of a figurehead. Coming to plain language the way to deal with a king who was going wrong was, first, to remonstrate with him, and, if that was unavailing, then ask him to step down and out. It was no use comparing this little country with the monarchy of Great Britain. They said that the President of the United States held almost absolute authority, while the Hawaiian King was only a menial to the Ministers. When they asked him to sign a bill he had to do it. This was not right and he hoped the committee would pass his motion.

Rep. Waipulani said every member had taken an oath to support the present Constitution. That oath meant more than the oaths of their ancestors to Pele and to the shark god. The bill before them provided for the election of delegates to a convention to frame a new Constitution. It was doubted if they had the power to enact such a law, after swearing to support the present Constitution. This Constitution provided the mode for its own amendment. If it was all true what had been said about the manner of obtaining this Constitution, he did not approve of it but doubted if all those things took place. But after it was promulgated they all took the oath to support it, and it did not lie in the mouths of any who had done so then to object now. The time to have opposed the Constitution was when it was promulgated. It was not true that the King acted entirely under compulsion. Shortly after the Constitution was promulgated a deputation of natives called on His Majesty to ask him to abdicate it, but he told them it was like shoes compared with the sandals worn by their ancestors, and that the new Constitution was more in keeping with the advanced condition of the nation than the old one. There was not sufficient evidence that the Hawaiians as a whole wanted a change now. The petitions for a convention were signed by only 4800 people out of a population of 40,000 natives, and 16,000 qualified voters. He had examined a petition from Kona, and found that many who had signed it were not voters. Both political parties promised at the election to forward certain amendments to the Constitution. He was elected on one of those platforms but was not prepared to wipe out the Constitution at one stroke. Whatever other members thought he said on the street corner, he as the representative of Kona would vote against the bill.

Minister Brown said that shortly after this Government took office, they had promised a deputation of the National Reform Party that they would support the independence of the country. The time had now arrived for them to redeem that pledge. If they looked at the map of the Pacific they would see that these Islands were almost the only group that had not been taken possession of by one or other of the great Powers. We were being watched by the Powers perhaps with a jealous eye, and it behooved us to guard our conduct carefully, so that by no breach of public order would the independence of the country be imperiled. It had been started on the floor of the House that representatives of the Powers had unduly interfered with the Executive in this matter. The statement was entirely unwarranted. Those representatives had certain rights here under treaties and the law of nations. It was true that they regarded us with a watchful eye, as they had the right to do. After the incendiary speeches and demagogic utterances made in the House and elsewhere, those foreign representatives were compelled to be watchful. They were here to protect the lives and property of their citizens, and they would protect them under all circumstances. That was what they were here for.

Two or three hundred people went on the special train for Honolulu. The Amateur Baseball League party was on board, also the Royal Hawaiian Band. The ball players and many others got off at Raymond Grove, while the band kept on to Ewa Plantation. As the weather was fine, men, women, and children were able to clamber up the bluffs to see the water rushing from the pumps. The band played selections at the head of the conduit. This made a very striking scene to those who realized that a year ago the whole seaward landscape, from Mr. James Campbell's residence, was a dreary cattle run, in dry seasons a barren waste. Now the rows of laborers' houses, the extensive stables, the waterworks, and the railway train on the lower level; with the manager's handsome residence, scores of laborers planting sugar cane on the vast plain, the sight and sound of rushing waters in the wholen thirsty desert, and the well-brought tower at the mill site on the upper level—make a magnificent illustration of the transforming power of modern enterprise.

On the return trip the band and many of the passengers joined the pleasure seekers at the Grove, where an interesting baseball match was nearing the decisive point. The contest was between the Aliiolani and the Iwilei clubs, the latter rapidly overhauling big odds. The Aliiolani consisted of Archie, Job, Pryce, Cummins, Herman, Samson, Stephen, Manuel, and Fernandez; the Iwileis of Akana, Cypher, Carter, Uunahale, Kono, Wicke, Macy, Self, and Sylvia. The Aliiolanis had made 14 runs at the end of the sixth inning, then took three goose eggs. The Iwileis, with only eight at the end of the sixth, got even at the end of the eighth, making the situation decidedly critical. Both teams were white-washed in the ninth, and the Iwileis did no better in the tenth, when Pryce after a three-bagger scored the winning run for the Aliiolanis. Robert Parker was umpire at bases, Dan behind the bat, and E. Lazarus was scorer. The batting on both sides was prodigious, but the errors in fielding were, like the "various other articles" of an auctioneer's advertisement, "too numerous to mention."

It took two trains of five or six cars each, all fully loaded, to carry the afternoon's excursionists home. The Oahu Railway Company do an acceptable service to the public, as well as a profitable one to themselves, in these Saturday excursions.

The members of the P. H. Brooks Division will meet at Oahu Lodge Hall on Fort street, in full dress uniform, this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Each member is notified to bring his official receipt for lodge dues. This meeting is called for the purpose of instituting the Division here.

An KAU, alias Hang Choy, the escapee prisoner for whose capture a reward, increased from $50 to $200, has been outstanding since before the new Marshal took office, was caught at Wailuku by two natives on Saturday. He tried to get a revolver in action on being discovered, but the natives disarmed him. The fellow had enough ammunition on his person to make him a walking arsenal. He was brought to town Sunday.

W. S. MALIBU'S bicycle exhibition at the Hotel Saturday evening delighted a good-sized company. Millie Emilia opened the performance with a graceful epim. Mr. Malibuy made lots of fun for the youngsters in his comical acts. His balancing feats seemed to be in utter contempt of the law of gravitation. The greatest enthusiasm of the evening was caused by the performer riding round on the large wheel alone with the little son of Hon. S. M. Damon on his shoulders.

He would not impute sinister motives to those who had uttered those violent sentiments, but the melancholy fact remained and it was due the presence of naval vessels in our harbor to police the country. This state of affairs was due to an insane agitation against the present Constitution. While it was impossible that any Constitution should be perfect, yet this one gave the people more power than they ever had before. If it was not for this Constitution many gentlemen now in the Legislature would never have got there. A good deal of objection was heard to Article 20, forbidding office-holders from holding seats in the Legislature. Coming from the sources it did this objection was good. Somebody had said he liked President Cleveland for the enemies he made and on this view the present Constitution demanded admiration. The call for a new Constitution was no part of the battle cry in the general election.

Rep. R. W. Wilcox said he advocated it all the time.

Minister Brown proceeded to say that there had been another election since this Ministry took office, in which there was a similar total absence of popular feeling in behalf of a constitutional convention. It was safe to conclude that the agitation originated in the breasts of certain persons with an uncontrollable desire for office and an insatiable appetite for the leaves and fishes. Even now the bargaining for votes to effect a change of Ministry was proceeding. As it was 12 o'clock he moved that the committee take recess.

Recess from 12 to 1:30.

The large and spacious dining room and parlor were thrown into one, and comfortably filled with a merry and social gathering.

The programme, as prepared by the committee, consisted of nine numbers, and was opened by an address from the Rev. W. D. Westervelt.

He referred to the new home of the hosts in a very pleasing way, and advised the young unmarried people to marry and establish such a home as this for themselves.

He also wished it to be a royal home and a power to bring young people together that they might feel the influence of a truly homely home.

He contrasted this beautiful home with one he once saw in Central New York while travelling in that state, where poverty and squalor reigned supreme, and the poor mother with her child were the sole occupants at the time, the father being off in some grogging, and hoped that such a scene would never be witnessed here.

He concluded by wishing the occupants a long, prosperous, and happy life in their new home.

The next number was a duet on the piano by Miss Goodale and Mrs. Linder, which was very happily rendered, but the ladies were deaf to an encore, and the third number was called, a reading by Mr. F. W. Hardy of Makawao. As usual this gentleman's selection was excellent and "The Waiter Girl" was received with loud applause.

The next number was a Zither solo by Prof. Schmidt, "The Poet and Peasant."

This gentleman has appeared in public so often that the sight of his name on the programme always meets with a most hearty approval. He played with his usual brilliancy and was most heartily applauded and to a persistent encore responded by playing a medley. The next number was a recitation by Miss Nicholson which was very pathetic and beautiful and the elocution almost faultless. This was the first appearance of this young lady in public here, but we hope to hear from her again.

The next was a reading by Mr. J. W. Colville, depicting the trials and tribulations of a Scotch maiden in her vain attempt to capture a volunteer soldier for a husband. It was read in the Scotch dialect and was very amusing.

At this point the master of ceremonies announced that the next number could not be given by the party to whom it was assigned, but Prof. Schmidt had kindly volunteered to play another Zither solo in place of it, which he did, and was obliged to respond to a vociferous encore. The next number was a duet for violin and piano by Mr. Gilhus and Mrs. Palmer, which was beautifully rendered and brought forth loud and continued applause, but the performers thought they had given enough for the money, and could not be persuaded to play again. After this number refreshments were served and the programme closed with a violin, zither and piano duet, by Prof. Schmidt and Mrs. Linder. As before with the zither, the Prof. displayed remarkable skill in handling this beautiful instrument, and was obliged to play again before the audience could be satisfied. After a little time spent in social converse the guests began to depart, each and all declaring that this social was a most decided success.

MAUI NOTES.

A String of Social Events. Presentation, House Warming, Social.

On Tuesday evening last, at the prayer meeting at Mr. Baldwin's, Haiku, the Rev. W. S. Westervelt was presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain. Mr. Foster on behalf of the young men of Maui, made the presentation speech, which was feelingly responded to by the recipient. The watch is a Waltham, and on the inside case is engraved the name of the rev. gentleman in a quarter circle on top, and underneath, "from the young men of Maui as a token of respect and regard." This watch and chain, although beautiful, but very feebly expresses the very high respect and esteem in which the rev. gentleman is held not only by the young men, but all classes here.

The most brilliant social event for many a day was the party given by Mr. and Mrs. James Cowan of Hamakua, on Wednesday night last, on the occasion of occupying their new house. About one hundred people from all parts of Maui assembled to pay their respect to the genial host and hostess, and congratulate them upon this happy event. The house was thrown open to the guests and the untiring efforts of the host and hostess to entertain their many friends was most successful.

Dancing was indulged in until the summons came for refreshments. After a sumptuous lunch, consisting of salads, cold meats, sandwiches, ice cream, coffee and cake, dancing was again resumed and kept up with vigor until the "wee sma' hours," when the guests departed wishing their entertainers a long and happy life in their new home.

On Friday night the Ladies' Aid Society of Makawao held their regular monthly social at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Cowan, Hamakua.

The large and spacious dining room and parlor were thrown into one, and comfortably filled with a merry and social gathering.

The programme, as prepared by the committee, consisted of nine numbers, and was opened by an address from the Rev. W. D. Westervelt.

He referred to the new home of the hosts in a very pleasing way, and advised the young unmarried people to marry and establish such a home as this for themselves.
