

Hawaiian Honolulu

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1893

Vol. 11, No. 1

TOPICS OF THE DAY

It is a well known fact that the Hawaiian Kingdom was a sovereign and independent nation, and that the Hawaiian people were entitled to the same rights and privileges as the people of any other nation. The Hawaiian Kingdom was a member of the United States Union, and the Hawaiian people were entitled to the same rights and privileges as the people of any other nation.

and replace the Hawaiian dynasty on the throne. The manner which may be used are immaterial. Whether it be done through a revolution or by a simple demand on the present revolutionary government to surrender is of no moment. That it will be done every well-informed man knows, and in spite of the organized associations and attitude the revolutionists themselves don't doubt the fact. We cannot see how any thinking man can believe that a country like the United States could allow its representatives to march troops in a friendly land, deprive the lawful sovereign of his means of defense by disarming her forces and landing troops on the Hawaiian subjects' soil, and annexation and say, "oh, our representative was wrong about it, but what can we do in the matter, as a good and old citizen?" The United States are not built that way. It was a great consolation to the Star because the American public to Senator knew all about the Hawaiian affairs. Especially was the club organ worked up about Mr. Chambers whose wife, we were told, was some kind of relation to Mrs. Blount, and consequently ought to be initiated in all the secret transactions of the State Department. When we remember that Mrs. Blount lives in Georgia, and Mrs. Chambers in Alabama, the probability is that the two ladies have not had much opportunity to exchange confidences. Another interesting fact is that Mrs. Blount used to tell her friends here that the "Hawaiian revolt" was as serious to her as all political matters as to any outsider, a matter by the way which some of our "abolitionists" might not be a great deal of advantage to themselves and to the country. But with the Star and the other small fry across at every step and here against here the work goes on and the big boys will then be sure, moreover their heads and skip the country. And here is the secret sign of coming disaster to a ship then the departure of the big, fat covered ones.

The advertiser editor this morning has gathered sufficient strength to write a quarter-column editorial in which we are assured that Hawaii has a very stable government. Of course the departure of the Warrington has nothing to do with this latest burning of incense in the altar of the P. G. Her stable government is which finds it necessary to barter rights with behind subsidies and bayonets against the people might be worth looking into. How stable the government can be called when it is being controlled and controlled by a political organization and which is being directed by its own soldiers, might be a matter of opinion. When the Government is a government, sufficient strength and courage to meet the opinion of the people of the United States, we can talk about its stability and other good qualities. A government by bayonets and for bayonets is not a very popular institution in this line is stable.

The position of an Attorney at law is very specific, and the men holding licenses to practice law before the Courts are entitled to certain privileges with the tacit understanding that they should not abuse them. In California lately there has been a general crusade by the Judges as well as by the newspapers against the conduct of the Attorneys-at-law towards witnesses and opponents, and the prospects are that the lawyers will be "toned down" and "sation." Mr. W. Kinney who recently returned to Honolulu from a protracted stay at Salt Lake, tried to adopt the tone of the California browbeaters and gave an exhibition of vulgarity and abuse against the editor of the HONOLULU, and the HONOLULU this morning when he appeared as prosecutor in the Bohron-Norris libel-suit. The privileges extended to Attorneys are mainly based on the supposition that only gentlemen are admitted to the bar. Abuse of such privileges are only committed by the few exceptions who can lay no claim to that acknowledged distinction. It is a pity that Mr. Kinney's experience in a foreign land has changed him from a promising young attorney, as we were used to consider him, into—well into what he now appears to be.

By the way does Mr. Kinney remember a political campaign sheet called the Honolulu Times? His fine remarks against personal journalism and scurrilous newspapers should have been made when that sheet was issued some years ago under the formal editorship of Mr. Godfrey, and the personal supervision and inspiration of Messrs. Kinney and Thurston.

When Mr. Kinney calls the Honolulu a "two bit" paper he flatters us. We suppose that he means that the Honolulu is worth "two bits" in comparison with the Star and the Advertiser for which Mr. Kinney only pays five cents and we fully agree with him.

The Honolulu libel case was opened this morning in the District Court before Judge Robertson. Messrs. Creighton and Neumann appeared for the defense and objected to the charge as being insufficient. Considerable authorities were quoted and the learned Judge finally ruled that the charge was sufficient whereupon the case was postponed till Tuesday. It is noteworthy that his honor in this instance did not need time to consider his ruling or look up authorities, but was ready with his opinion off-handed.

We understand that the annexation club has appointed Mr. Sam Mouskrat to be clerk to the Consul-General at San Francisco. While we are very pleased that this young "town-boy" has been appointed to the position we still fail to see the good reasons and benefits to be derived by having the "club" controlling offices even under the Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Star says triumphantly that Minister Damon's candidate for the office came in too late. The club and the Star ought to realize soon that the P. G. with the club, and without Damon is nothing, while with Damon, and without the club it is something.

Not a Case For Secrecy.

It was just at the close of the last administration, discredited and rejected by the people, and on the eve of retiring from office, that the project of Hawaiian annexation was suddenly sprung upon the people of this country. A conspiracy rather than a revolution, aided by the moral support of certain Americans, and the more material backing of the sailors and marines of the United States warship Boston, in the twinkling of an eye overthrew the native dynasty and sovereignty of Queen Liliuokalani, and substituted the rule of a provisional government composed of Americans and other foreign settlers in the islands. Not a breath of rumor even had reached the United States that any such movement was in contemplation, until, together with the news there came envoys, commissioners so-called from the provisional government with plenipotentiary powers to negotiate and conclude with the government of the United States, a treaty of annexation with the islands, over which the American Minister had already raised our flag and declared a protectorate.

The suddenness of the thing, of the whole business, was calculated to take one's breath away. It did not deter, however, President Harrison and his advisers from receiving the envoys, settling on an annexation treaty of some sort with them, and sending it to the Senate for ratification. Such "precipitousness" is a matter of such importance aside the breath of the American people some still shorter and quicker, but, as soon as they recovered breath, the people gave the President and Senate to understand that they were not quite prepared for annexation to Hawaii at such short notice or in such summary fashion.

In all the events we have narrated, there had not been the least thought, apparently, of consulting the wishes of the sixty millions of people of the United States or of the native Hawaiians. Resident Americans had started the job, the crew of the Boston had "boosted" it, and it was only necessary for President Harrison and the Senate to complete it. Luckily, the inauguration of President Cleveland called a halt in the whole business. The crude, half-baked treaty, intended to commit the United States to the most radical departure from the ideas and policy of the fathers of the republic and of the American people from their day to this, was withdrawn from the Senate. A judicious and well-qualified commissioner was sent to Hawaii, to study and investigate the subject on the spot, and to communicate the result of his observations to his government. He has done so.

Commissioner Blount's report has been in the possession of the government for some time, and through the enterprise and good offices of THE STAR, the substance of it is now in the possession of the people. This is just as it should be. Secret, back-stairs and hole-in-the-corner diplomacy is foreign not only to all American ideas and customs, but to the spirit of the age in which we live. Above all things, upon a question so important as the annexation of a foreign country,

2,000 miles distant, involving the ultimate introduction of a new member into the Union, with two votes in the Senate and at least three in the electoral college, the American people have a right to know everything. Neither President nor Senate, nor both together, had any right to conclude by their action the will of the people, or to forestall the opposition which any project of annexation, or of an armed protectorate, was bound to call forth.

It was the fault of Mr. Harrison's administration that he undertook to act in this matter over the heads of and without the consent of the people. The publication of Mr. Blount's report will put the public in possession of the facts, and in a position to judge whether it is desirable to add either the State or the Territory of Hawaii to the Union. It is the people, after all, of the two countries who should be consulted, and who should be permitted to decide. Hawaii has rights equal to those of the United States. In the family of nations and between independent States, questions of right are not affected by considerations of relative size, wealth, power or population. All are equal, and it is this fundamental principle of international justice, as well as law, that, as we understand, Commissioner Blount in his report fully recognizes, and upon which he bases his recommendations.—Baltimore Sun.

Where is the Collector General's report for the quarter ending September 30th?

The Rev. H. E. Howland, will hold Spiritual Services, at the Arion Hall, on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings at 7:30 o'clock.

Rear Admiral J. S. Skerrett paid his farewell respects to the present Government this forenoon. He was accompanied by his Secretary Lieutenant Wilson, and Flag Lieutenant Fox.

It is reported, that on the list of those Hawaiians who favor annexation, is the name of a Hawaiian who owes "all that he knows" and also his present position to the kind influences of the late King, and to Queen Liliuokalani.

Although the hour for closing the foreign mails has been placed at two hours before the time of sailing of the steamers, they did not reach the steamer until nearly fifteen minutes after 8 o'clock this morning. The Warrimoo's whistle was blown several times, to hurry the Post Office officials up. The mail was not a large one.

The Aide-de-Camp, or Staff officer, or whoever the uniformed personage was, who received the Admiral at the front steps of the Palace Building this morning, either does not know anything of military rule, or the regulations must have been "very lately" changed. When receiving the Admiral this forenoon, he "took off" his helmet.

How the present governmental authorities dote on Military show. Why, it is worse than it used to be under the Monarchy. The Military, Band, and the rest of them, don their feathers &c. whenever the least possible excuse for so doing offers. They are donned even on occasions when it is not necessary which tends to make Military functions a howling farce.

Hawaii for Hawaiians.

Ex-Minister Blount's reported recommendation in regard to the Hawaiian Islands is strictly in accord with democratic ideas. He thinks that no action should be taken by the United States to annex the islands or establish a protectorate without the consent of all the inhabitants. A vote upon the questions of annexation and protection should precede, it is suggested, the definite adoption of a policy by the United States. It is but right that the natives should themselves determine their political future. They would, it is believed, if let alone, restore their Queen, whom a handful of foreigners, by a misuse of our name managed to depose. Our new Minister to Hawaii may be trusted to keep hands off and let the natives have fair play.

VISCOUNT ENOMOTO ON EMIGRATION.

A Representative of the Choyo Shimben has interviewed Viscount Enomoto on the subject of emigration. The Viscount did not, so far as we can discern, propound any new views. Having explained that the population of the empire is increasing at the rate of two hundred thousand annually, and that unless some means of relieving the inevitable congestion be provided, great distress must ultimately ensue. His Excellency went on to declare that in his opinion emigration for the purpose of forming colonies is the only resource. He dwelt upon the remarkable success achieved by Chinese colonists in various places, and spoke with satisfaction of the Japanese immigrants in Hawaii, though their condition as contract labourers left in his opinion, something to be desired. He did not underestimate the advantages offered by Hokkaido, but he maintained that where a choice was possible between a hot and cold climate, the former should be selected, since the return obtainable there by labour was so much larger than in a cold climate. On the whole, he considered Mexico to be the most promising field for Japanese colonization, inasmuch as marked physical differences were not observable between its people and the Japanese, and there was a great want of labour, and capital, so great, indeed, that large tracts of land were left uncultivated and could be purchased on very easy terms. As to the manner of managing colonization, the Viscount thought that a company should be formed with a capital of from 1 1/2 to 3 million yen, the objects to be pursued by the Company being the acquisition and distribution of land, the conveyance of emigrants, the purchase of food stuffs and other necessities, the building of houses, and the business of general administration. He believed that a profit of 20 per cent. might ultimately be realised on the capital, but inasmuch as nothing of the kind could be expected at the outset, the Government should be asked to guarantee five per cent. on the paid up capital for a period of from three to five years.

The Long and the Short of it. Dedicated to the Star. NOT YET SETTLED. City Nephew.—Uncle, do you think Hawaii will be annexed? Uncle Weyback.—Wa-al, I don't know. The Ryeville Debatin' Society hev' been arguin' the question, an' hev' n't decided yet.—Puck.
