PROGRESS.

The Life of the Land is Established in Righteousness.

HONOLULU, NOV. 9, 1893.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The Advertiser is hoping for a convention which will create a permanent government in Hawaii and secure perpetually the protection of the United States for us. That may be an excellent idea, but we would like to hear how the Advertiser intends to secure such a convention, of whom it should consist, by whom it should be called, and how far the People would be consulted in regard to the actions of such a convention. Those are interesting points and it will be necessary to enlighten the people of Hawaii on them before further discussion can take place.

We are inclined though to smell a rat in this convention business at least as far as the Advertiser and the party represented by it are concerned, because the Advertiser at the same time holds out its hand in friendship to the Hawaiian people and prattles about a government "representing the progressive and industrial interests of the islands, and loyal to the care and preservation of the aboriginal race of Hawaii." We suppose that the present government with its hired mercenaries, its guns and sandbags, its shooting expeditions to Kalalau, its insults and threats towards its opponents will in the Advertiser's estimation fill the billet. How this ideal government which shall be "loyal to the care and preservation of the aboriginal race of Hawaii" is supposed to treat the Hawaiians in regard to their civil political rights, we hear nothing about. Is such a government to be a self-government or is it to be a patriarchal oligarchy supported against the nation by bayonets, either in the hands of the present hired gang, or in the hands of U. S. soldiers? Because the Hawaiians will dispense with all the "loyal care" (God knows they have seen enough of what that means in the mouth of the missionaries) as long as they get their civil rights and their privileges of governing themselves. All that the Hawaiians desire, is the right to manage their own affairs on an equal footing and with equal rights with the foreign residents as they have done heretofore to the prosperity of the country and themselves and they will dispense with all the "loyal" "care" and the preservation and all the other humbug used for campaign purposes to deceive and cheat them.

But the Advertiser's magnanimity goes further this morning. Fearing that the prospects of the "loyal care" of the Reform Party will not prove a sufficient bait to catch the good-will of the Hawaiians, the morning organ offers each Hawaiian a homestead in a shape of a perpetuated fief under the government to which such homestead only shall revert in case of the extinction of the family to which the grant was made. The generous Advertiser says that such a step will only take about 100,000 acres and then each and every Hawaiian will have his own home and everything will be lovely. Because writes the Advertiser statesman no country can prosper except the common people have their homes. Great Scott! does the editor believe that the common people in any country can boast of their own homes? Even in that alleged paradise the United States of America, we have yet to learn that the people live in their own homes, and set up their penates under their own roofs. But why this gigantic bribe is offered at the present date is rather a puzzle to us. It can only mean one thing and that is that in spite of their repeated assertions to the contrary the annexationists are feeling uneasy and feeling that the Hawaiians may yet be heard in regard to the future of their country, and the destiny of Hawaii nei.

The Star excelled itself last night in its contemptible vituperation of the Queen and of everybody who is opposed to annexation. There is hardly any necessity to take any notice of the scandalous tone of that sheet. According to its own assertion the cowardly attacks are written for the special benefit of Minister Willis. It might be well to remind the Star that the Minister is perfectly well posted both as to the character of the persons attacked by the Star, and as to the character of the backers of that scurrilous sheet from Mr. Blount. Minister Willis spent five days in Washington with Mr. Blount and is in possession of the report made to the American Government by that gentleman in regard to Hawaii. When Mr. Blount was here the Star adopted the tone and tactics which were used in its last issue, and Mr. Blount thoroughly investigated all the slanders, little gossips and big lies published. We are perfectly satisfied to let Mr. Blount through his report answer the Star and set the Hawaiian nation and sovereign in the right light before Minister Willis.

Of course it isn't really the Star editor who publishes that batch of vilification which appears in last night Star. He has only resided here a few months. He personally knows very few people of the opponents to annexation and he is consequently not in a position to judge them. From his own knowledge he is of course as ignorant of the history of Hawaii as any man living abroad, and when he dishes up the lowest kind of rumors and slanders he simply does so from hear say. There is no excuse for him to do so, but we suppose that he is paid for it and considers his action a matter of his profession. But the men—alleged Christian at that—who furnish and manufacture all the lying rumors and vile gossip are deserving of the utmost contempt. We know of men who sport the cloth of the church calling on Mr. Blount while he was here and filling that gentleman's ear with exactly the kind of filth which the Star publishes until Mr. Blount found it nauseating and being a thorough gentleman felt like kicking the old gossiping fools out of his door. That the annexation cause didn't gain anything by the silly actions of those old fools has been proven. That the same cause will be only further hurt by the shameless attitude of the Star, the men who really believe in and hope for annexation will learn to their cost.

The furious bombast in which the Star indulges when it tells us what they, whoever that may be, will do if the Queen is restored—and the United States should withdraw its protecting hand—is a nice little play to the gallery. We will hang, shoot, murder, burn, plunder, and then deport howls the Star man slinging his ink around him like a squid—and when the atmosphere is all clouded with ink and bombast he quickly disappears, takes the train for Aiea and enjoys his dinner, his cigar, the mosquitoes and a good nap. The play to the gallery is good Mr. Star—but we are not in the gallery.

THE LIBEL.

The case of criminal libel against the editor of the HOLONUA at the complaint of Mr. T. W. Hobron, was called this morning in the District Court. Mr. Kinney appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Neumann for the defendant. The prosecution called Messrs Hobron, Oscar White, C. F. Smith, and Martin who all thought that Mr. Hobron was referred to in the article criticizing the Honolulu correspondent to the San Francisco Chronicle. No defense was offered whereupon the court committed the defendant for trial before the Circuit Court. The case will probably be heard at the February Term.

Mixed Drinks.

In this warm weather where people get dry in their throats, we often hear a person say, "I'm so dry, but I don't know what to drink." For the benefit of mankind in general and our dry fellow-citizens in special, we will from time to time furnish a recipe for mixed drinks which have been prepared by one of the most famous "artists" in New York. We will begin to day with

A NEW YORK MORNING DREAM

"In a large mixing tumbler place a fresh egg, the juice of half a lemon, one barspoonful of sugar, half a glass of broken ice, a small drink of Old Tom gin, one dash of maraschino and one dash of vanilla. Shake thoroughly, strain into a thin glass, fill the rest of this glass with seltzer and imbibe: 't will flatter your senses and warm the cockles of your heart."

HOME RULE.

Home rule is the latest remedy proposed for the settlement of affairs in Hawaii, under American protection. (Japan Mail).

The ten dollars that you borrow never seems nearly so large as the dollar that you lend.

FRICITION OF SHIPS AND WATER.

Mr. Edison is experimenting with a view to reducing the friction between the sides of ships and water. He finds that "a ship drags a lot of water with her," and gives the following illustration:—"Say the vessel is going 20 miles an hour, two feet from her side the water is going 10 miles an hour; four feet away 5 miles an hour, eight feet away 2 miles an hour, nine feet off 1 mile an hour, and so on in diminishing ratio. All this water the vessel is dragging with her. This is what the engine has got to do—not force the ship through the water, but carry the water along. This all comes from the fact that the water sticks, as it were, to the sides of the ship." Mr. Edison wants to do away with this "sticking." In certain experiments, made in a tank, he sought "to produce hydrogen by electricity along the sides of the ship, eliminating the salt in the water." He succeeded, and, "using a current through the sides of the ship, reduced the friction of the water to a minimum." I thought," he remarks, "that I had one of the biggest things of the century till I tried it in genuine salt water." He had been making his salt water in the tank by emptying the salt into fresh water, but when he tried genuine sea-water from Sandy Hook the invention would not work, "because the ocean contains other things than salt." He claims that if he were able to apply his invention successfully to the Campania, "she could cross easily in four days." In the meantime, he suggests "forcing some cheap oil through the pores of the sides of the ship under the water-line. She would then slip across the ocean on a bed of oil like greased lightning."

Fears for Dr. Nansen.

London, October 27.—The Pall Mall Gazette publishes a story to the effect that a Norwegian returning from Northern Russia brings news to the effect that the Fram, the Arctic explorer Nansen's ship, was sighted outside Kara river, working heavily and awkwardly in the ice. It was the opinion that the Fram could not withstand the buffetings and pinching of the ice; that Nansen's temperament had greatly changed; that he had become vacillating, restless and melancholy. Fears are expressed that he is lost and that if he returned news from him would have been received ere now.

THE FRENCHMAN.

A french gentleman says he cannot get the hang of the English language. "Look at zis," he says. Here is one story about a boy. It says: 'His mother kissed him and he kissed her back.' What for he kissed her back? And here is one sentence worse and worse: 'He went fishing and his mother whipped him on his return.' My, my! Zat is such a funny language?"

"Mrs. Mulhooly—The paper is full o' crimes, an' all th' names is Oirish."

Mr. Hulhooly.—"Sure don't yez know th' Amirikin press is soobsidized by British gold?"

A COSTLY "PUNCHING" FOR THE TRAM CONDUCTOR.

Higgins, the tramcar conductor, went home last Monday night, and being very tired fell asleep in the arm-chair.

When he woke up from his much-needed rest his industrious little wife held up for his administration a lamp-shade made of coloured tissue paper. She had made it with her own pretty hands whilst he had been sleeping, and its scalloped border was perforated with innumerable little holes, through which the light of the parlour lamp would fall on the table.

"Tell me if you think it is pretty," demanded Mrs. Higgins, holding the shade out for her husband to inspect it.

"It looks lovely," began the man; but as his eye fell on it more closely he turned pale, and said in a hoarse whisper, "You made those holes with my bell-punch?"

"Yes, dear, while you were sleep. But what makes you speak that way?" asked the little woman, greatly alarmed at the sudden change that had come over the unfortunate Higgins.

"Oh, nothing," he said; "only you've rung up enough fares on that lamp-shade to use up a year's salary. Every one of those holes will cost me a penny each, that's all."

And the unhappy man groaned.—Tit Bits.

SIAMESE CANNON.

The Liberte says:—Is it generally known that before the French cannon menaced Bangkok and the palace of the King of Siam, Siamese cannon had bombarded Paris? In 1684 the King of Siam sent to Louis XIV. an embassy, the pomp of which has remained famous. The King received it with proper eclat and accepted the presents sent to him. Amongst them were two small cannons inlaid with silver which were placed in the Garde Meuble, which then occupied the site now occupied by the Ministry of Marine. On the 14th July, 1789, the people, before running to the Bastille, pillaged the Garde Meuble, taking away the Siamese cannon; and it was these that principally contributed to the forcing of the doors of the State prison.

Her Own.

They stood beneath the stars, and, silent as the heart-beats of the night, looked far away into the diamond studded shirt front of the sky.

'Is that Mars?' he whispered, as he slipped his arm around her waist and gazed upon a glittering orb in that distant blue.

'No, it isn't,' she exclaimed, jerking away; 'it's mine, and if you think you are embracing mother you are mistaken.'

Telephones Again.

Persons using telephones, should make sure of the correctness of the number to which they wish to communicate. Ringing up the wrong number sometimes occasions great confusion, and possibly may be the cause of unnecessary ill-feeling between persons.

An instance of that nature happened in this city the other day.

A married lady residing on Beretania street was desirous of speaking to a gentleman friend. She went to the telephone and called up number—(we withhold the number), the call was answered, "Is that you so and so," "Yes," came the reply from the gentleman at the other end, whose name was very similar to that of the person wanted. The lady delivered her message, which was the cause of a short conversation, finally as it was taking a somewhat serious turn, the lady asked the gentleman where she could see him, he told her; she immediately hung up the 'phone, she had been talking to the wrong person.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Councils are sitting this afternoon.

In Shanghai, China, a pony is called a "moke."

Mr. John Maguire arrived this morning from Hawaii by the steamer Hawaii.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Irwin give a ball to-night at their beautiful residence at Waikiki.

Correspondents are reminded, that the mail to be dispatched by the steamer Australia on Saturday will close at 10 o'clock a. m.

We learn that the Maj-ab, has a seat in the Choi-ah, of one of our churches. What's the attraction—ah? It is not—ah, is it?

Hawaiian Consul-General R. W. Irwin, a brother to Admiral Irwin is expected to arrive here by the next steamer from Yokohama.

Admiral Irwin and family are stopping at the Hawaiian Hotel. A number of friends have called and welcomed the Admiral to this country.

The amateur minstrels are getting on famously, and have received re-enforcement of several talented local celebrities. Their show promises to be the hit of the season.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. W. H. Rickard who has been ailing for some time is improving, and will soon be able to be around again.

Mr. Kinney has evidently got rid of his bilious attack and dropped the personal abuse indulged in by him when the latest libel suit was heard in the District Court the other day.

Mr. Eddy Giffard who is visiting at Waimea, Hawaii, had a narrow escape a few days ago. Mr. Giffard was out riding when his horse bolted. The bit broke and the horse continued its mad career into the forest where the rider was knocked off through a collision with a branch, and being unable to get his foot out of the stirrup was dragged along the ground. Fortunately the girth broke through the horse attempting to jump over a log, and Mr. Giffard was saved. We are glad to state that besides a severe shaking up she young gentleman received no serious injuries.

Messrs. Hopkins and White's Billiard Parlors which have been in running order for some weeks, are undoubtedly the most attractive in that line ever seen in the city. The handsome room in the Arlington building on Hotel street has been beautifully finished up, and the excellent tables which were used in the Brunswick Parlors refixed and put in first class order. Under the efficient management of two popular men like E. Hopkins and Arthur White, the success of their enterprise will be ensured. All friends of the cue should call around and try to become champions.

ART OF POISONING.

TWO CURIOUS CASES.

When John Lord Campbell sentenced Palmer, the murderer—the first poisoner by strychnine in England, I believe—the wise Judge expressed a hope that no morbid busybodies would strive to penetrate with prying eyes 'into the secrets of the murderer's cell.' This significant reminder to the prurient purveyors of sensational details did not bear immediate fruit; still, it has not been forgotten; and, on the whole, the English press at least, left Deeming in the condemned cell as severely alone as they have left the hideous monster Neill.

NONE LIKE NEILL.

Psychologically, of course, the peculiar form of iniquity which prevailed in Neill will continue for a long time to attract the earnest attention of scientists. I have been digging and delving in old books during the past week in the endeavor to ascertain whether Neill, the seemingly wanton and purposeless poisoner—the poisoner of poor girls 'for the mere pleasure of the thing—has had any predecessors. Hitherto my researches have been unavailing; and in the long and dismal chronicles of secret poisoning in ancient Rome, in medieval Italy, in France, and in Spain, I have been unable to find even a distant analogy of Neill. The nearest approach to the miscreant seems to have been Sainte Croix, the accomplice of the infamous Marquise de Brinvilliers, who learned the art of poisoning while a prisoner in the Bastille from a fellow captive, an Italian named Exili.

THE POISONED PEACH.

On two very curious items in toxicological lore I did, however, chance to light. One may be called the feat of poisoning by sleight of hand. You were jealous of a lady and wished to kill her. Well, you asked her to lunch and you caused a very nice peach to be served at dessert. You cut the fruit with a golden knife, one side of the blade of which was endued with a deadly poison. You presented the poisoned half of the peach to the lady, who ate it with much relish, and then dropped down dead. The wholesome half you ate yourself and laughed in your sleeve and went on slicing more peaches for ladies of whom you were jealous—till you were found out and got broken on the wheel. Ay, there's the rub. What high old times we might have, to be sure, but for that plaguey contingency of being found out!

A KEY OF DEATH.

Another diabolically ingenious trick of poisoning used to be practised by a Roman Prince, Savelli. When he wished to get rid of any one of his retainers he used to give him a key, in the centre of the handle of which was a tiny imperceptible steel point rubbed with a sure poison. The Prince would beg the foredoomed gentleman to fetch him a certain paper from a certain cabinet. The lock of this cabinet was somewhat stiff, and the gentleman was fain to press the key over and over again into the lock, which at last was opened; only, meanwhile, Prince Savelli's servant had scratched his hand with the poisoned point, and within twenty-four hours he was a dead man.
