FRIDAY : : : : April 6th DISCOURTESY TO THE PRESS.

When members of the press receive special invitations to attend any social event they expect to be received by the host in a courteous manner, and not be scolded as were the representatives of this paper and our afternoon contemporary last evening.

"Courtesy is sooner found in lowly sheds, With smoky rafters, than in tapestry halls."

HAWAII ABROAD.

The number of people in various parts of the world, and even in the United States, to whom the Sandwich Islands are but a name is still very large, though recent events and enterprises have done much to disseminate information and promote inquiry.

Our Reliability Appreciated.

The "News Letter" has occasion to feel a certain amount of justifiable pride in its influence and effect. It will be remembered that we have continuously exposed the inner workings of that Hawaiian loan scheme, the illegal and exorbitant charges that were levied by the London Jews; the loose, to say the least, business methods of the Government financial agent; the outrageously disadvantageous terms to the Hawaiian taxpayers upon which this loan was floated; the general incompetence in finance and and greediness in grabbing at every cent that was displayed by the parties in power; the illegality of the bonds that were issued; the $75,000 bribe paid to certain London newspapers; in short, all the rottenness and corruption that expired from the alpha to the omega of the transaction.

"Gazette" receives their patronage and is handsomely paid therefor. It is our contemporary's custom now to publish a glaringly false statement of the condition of Hawaiian affairs, each month, for circulation abroad. This is prepared purposely to deceive, and it is as equally unreliable as were many of its windy vaporings published before its friends ran the roost. It seems, however, that the lies of the "Gazette" have not been able to offset the truths of the "News Letter," at least it says so. It states that our articles on the two latest Hawaiian financial transactions have been reproduced in several papers in London, and have been the direct cause of throwing almost insurmountable obstacles in the way of the ring that is trying to work the London money market. We thank our Kanaka friend for once speaking the truth and acknowledging our superiority, although it is expressed in the billingsgate that would bring the blush of shame to the cheek of any Kanaka fishmonger. We know that the London press looks to the "News Letter" for reliable information on commercial transactions in this direction, and it gets it, and appreciates it. It seems, however, that Kanaka coin has its influence still in the great metropolis, for the "Gazette" states that the effect produced by our truths have at length been overcome, and we presume in the same manner as the loan matter was worked. Will our friend kindly inform us if it cost $75,000 also to work these two little jobs into shape? The proposed railroad on Hawaii will not pay interest on the capital invested, and the land colonization scheme is only a job to dispose of certain unmarketable property at an enormous percentage of profit. There is another little affair under way in which the former financial agent has his finger, and that is the construction of a street railway. The fares collected from such a concern will barely pay the fodder bills of the mules that are to pull the cars, and by the time that the mules who are bossing it have had their forage there will be but slight sustenance for the investors except perhaps a little food for thought.—[S. F. News Letter, March 24th.]

WEDDING CAKE.

Ladies or gentlemen who contemplate giving orders for the above articles respectfully requested to call at the Honolulu Pioneer Steam Candy Factory Bakery, established 1863, before going to any other house, as my establishment POSITIVELY the only establishment in Honolulu, notwithstanding all the ulous, empty, and pompous newspaper blowing and puffing, where a cake is procured to give the greatest satisfaction to the most refined tastes, and the ornament of exquisite workmanship on your table which will not enable pieces when cut, but be a credit to the fine art of the Confectionery, which has only for twenty-five years, but still bids competition defiance to this day. Attempts in any other establishment are inferior to mine, and not worth the you pay. It is an indisputable fact that all over the world a good workman's productions are always cheaper than half-made ones are. Having had over half a century's practical experience, the undersigned is enabled to ornament Cakes and the highest styles of the art.

The Gaelic.

The steamship Gaelic, 4,209 tons, Captain W. G. Pearne, arrived early Thursday morning from Yokohama, and anchored off port. She left Hongkong March 14th at 3:15 p. m.; had variable winds and arrived at Yokohama on the 20th at 7:30 a. m. Sailed from the latter place March 24th at 10:55 a. m. To the 28th had southerly gales and high sea. Thence to Honolulu light variable winds and fine weather. The Gaelic brought for this port 488 Chinese and 26 Japanese steerage passengers, and had in transit for San Francisco 30 cabin and 17 steerage. The latter were Japanese.

The steamer had a clean bill of health. Her 514 passengers for this port were landed at the quarantine grounds, and 40 tons of freight was fumigated before being landed. The Gaelic left last evening for San Francisco, taking a mail from here.

England in the North Pacific.

Admiral Porter thinks that England is preparing for war with the United States. He says:

"I do not hesitate to say that the late rapid movements of the British Government in strengthening its naval depot at Esquimalt, building heavy works commanding the Strait of Fuca, indicate a policy antagonistic to the United States, viz., to obtain possession of that territory which they claimed in 1858.

"At that time the British contended for the Strait of Rosario as a boundary instead of the Strait of De Haro, which would have given them the command of our entire northwestern coast.

"No doubt the British will eventually fortify the islands on the southeastern point of Vancouver Island, so that the Straits of Fuca and De Haro will be hermetically sealed by British guns. Today a line of railroad all along the boundary of our territory is in operation capable of supplying any number of British posts, and at the end of it is a great naval depot that dominates our whole northwestern coast.

"The nation with which we would be most likely to go to war with is Great Britain, for the boundary between the two nations is of such vast extent; and a mere geographical line marked with piles of stones which time soon obliterates."

And he precedes and follows by an elaborate argument on the necessity of defences. Every sensible man will endorse his views.

THE WHITE CZAR'S LAND.

AN AMERICAN TRAVELER'S IMPRESSIONS OF RUSSIA.

The Gates Wide to Those Who Enter, but Narrow to Those Who Seek to Go Out—Scenes at the Custom House Swarms of Officials.

When, a few weeks ago in New York, I determined to visit Russia, and called upon some acquaintances for information on the subject I was to investigate, I was told that my trip would certainly be one of great pleasure and supreme delight; that the stories concerning the despotism in Russia were false; that I need have no fear of dungeon horrors and Siberia, and that I should proceed with the same deliberation and uninterrupted I would traverse any other portion of the continent. At London my English friends looked aghast, and declared that I took my life in my hands when I entered Russia, and remonstrated against it. The English know more of the country, the customs and the alleged laws, I find, than the Americans; but being more excitable and prejudiced, they are less likely to do justice to the subject. The English have said and done so much against Russia that, as a general rule, they do not receive the few civilities and privileges granted strangers.

I thought it quite exacting to have my passport vided by the Russian minister at Washington, or the consul at the point where I entered the country, before I could see Russian soil, when a passport, plain and simple, is required in no other country a man visits in all Europe; but when I learned that even the natives of Russia must take out a passport every year and have it regularly vided by the local officer before they are exempt from contempt of the emperor, I concluded that strangers were quite as well favored as the czar's own subjects. The object in requiring natives to have passports is revenue, while aliens are put to this trouble and expense for the purpose of inducing them to stay out of Russia. All Russians must be naturalized if they remain in the country, and their passports, which cost them ten roubles a year (about $4.50), is evidence of their naturalization.

At the frontier the stranger encounters little in the forms different from other countries. The modes of inspecting baggage and withstanding personal scrutiny do not vary greatly from the usual. But as everything in Russia is distinctly Russian, and therefore exceedingly strange, the most experienced traveler is possessed of a sense of concern, if not fear. The through trains from Vienna, Berlin and other popular points of departure for Russia land one on the frontier at night. The place is small, and the station swarms with Russian officers, big, burly fellows, with swarthy, unintelligent faces covered with long, flowing beards, and all dressed in the most elaborate uniforms. There is a clanking of swords, a rattle of spurs, a din of voices and a rushing hither and thither that is appalling. Timid women traveling alone have been overcome with fear or lost their heads in this bustle.

The gendarme in charge is the first officer who approaches the incomer. This is the highest ranking military official, and he takes up the passports. He is arrayed like a Napoleon—a broad topped cap of red, white and black; dark green frock coat, trimmed with white and decked with brass epaulets weighing pounds; a huge belt and a sword, which is hung to strike the ground at every step and rattle like musketry; pantaloons with a deep white stripe and tucked up knee top boots; spurs of enormous proportions, and a revolver of sufficient size to gun for buffalo. The passports and gendarme disappear in the direction of the office of the Russian consul, where the documents are examined.

On the heels of this diplomatic officer come the customs lackeys, who, without ceremony or invitation, pick up the satchels, bags and bundles, exclaim in Russian, "Custom house!" and put out. The traveler follows. He finds his trunks already on the counters inside the station, and if they are unlocked they are open and the contents are being dumped on the floor. The terror to the Russian government is printed matter. Every newspaper, circular or book found is taken out and sent to the gendarme and the consul. If anything about free government, free schools, or other free institutions, criticism of Russia or her government is found it is retained; and should it appear among the possibilities that the bearer has any design upon the Russian way of doing things he or she is detained for examination. It does not appear in history or tradition that persons "detained" have ever proven their missions clear. They simply have been heard of no more.

Trains entering or emerging from Russia do not pretend to respect their time card, for the reason that they are often detained on the frontier. Two hours are always taken, however, being the time required for examining baggage and passports, long or short. On this occasion the train was light and the baggage was soon inspected. But the passengers were not permitted to resume their place in the train. As soon as they escaped the customs officers they were led into the adjoining restaurant, men, women and children, where were all classes of people in every condition. All outer doors were locked, and were guarded by officers. Timid, delicate women hovered in the corners and waited for the end of the two hours, while half intoxicated Russians crowded about, smoking nasty cigars or drinking steaming tea at the tables. In all the multitude of Greeks, Slavs, Persians, Swedes, Russians, Germans, not an English voice was heard; and seldom did one see a man who could interpret even a sign. The women were more ready and bright and divined the wishes of travelers more readily.

Finally a Russian rushed like mad from the station and began ringing a bell. There was commotion inside. The bell ringer moved up and down the long platform and made much unnecessary noise. The doors were unlocked and the passengers passed out, an officer being ready to see that each parcel bore the stamp of the custom house. An hour and a half of unnecessary, disagreeable waiting made one appreciate the atmosphere, chilly even in August. Just before the train started a jingle of spurs and sabers was heard and two gendarmes appeared. They entered the carriages and handed out the passengers. Each passport bore a simple and short signature—that of the consul or governor—and the seal of the office. Two or three passengers did not receive their passports because the documents were not vided and they were obliged to remain and explain. As the train rolled on from the frontier toward Warsaw and St. Petersburg the proverb, "The gates of Russia are wide to those who enter, but narrow to those who go out," lingered in my mind.—St. Petersburg Cor. New York Sun.

The Ear Trumpet Was Missing.
An honored guest at one of the uptown hotels recently was a portly and dignified old lady. She was dressed in rustling black silk and a stiff white cap, and even the clerk was awed by her presence and conversation. It was a highly edifying sight at meal hours to watch the head waiter obsequiously conveying this piece of ancient respectability across the dining hall to a seat. Increasing deafness led the old lady always to carry an ear trumpet with her, but the presence of that implement did not detract from the impressiveness of the scene. The ceremony of seating having been duly performed, she would order her meal, and the waiter having humbly dropped a few words of explanation or suggestion into the business end of the trumpet, would depart on his mission. It happened, however, a few mornings ago that the old lady reached the breakfast table without her trumpet. She did not seem troubled at forgetting it, but adjusting her glasses inspected the bill of fare and ordered breakfast, concluding with a request for some fishballs.

"There ain't any fishballs, ma'am," said the waiter, respectfully.
"I prefer them done brown," she said.
"There ain't any fishballs this morning."
"And I wish you would tell the cook not to fry them in lard. Use a little piece of salt pork."
"There ain't any."
"And wait a moment. Tell her to be very careful not to use halibut for fishballs instead of codfish. I understand it is frequently done."
"There ain't any fishballs today," repeated the waiter in loud tones.
"You really ought not to serve fishballs every day, John," she said, pleasantly. "The old New England way was to have them for Sunday breakfasts."
"There ain't any fishballs," shouted the waiter.
"Yes, serve them with parsley."
The unfortunate waiter glanced helplessly about, and then bending down to the old lady's ear, in tones that proclaimed to the entire dining room, he roared out again, "There ain't no fishballs today."
"Why didn't you say so, then, John?" she added, gazing at the flushed waiter over her spectacles. "I think you have been drinking. You have been muttering to yourself there for the last five minutes. Never mind about the fishballs, but I shall report you to the clerk."—New York Tribune.

Punctilious.
A gentleman in a suburban town went to call upon a lady whose family occupied one-half of a double house. The front door of the two parts opened upon the same stoop. At one of the doors the gentleman pulled the bell. The door was opened by a servant, who answered the inquiry for Mrs. S.—by directing the caller to the other door.
The visitor then turned to the bell pull on the adjacent door post, and in a few moments that door was opened by the same servant, who solemnly replied to the second inquiry regarding Mrs. S.—by saying that the lady was not at home.

This incident is matched by another that took place in Vienna; rather more than matched, in fact, for the person who played two parts in the comedy had a special mood and temper for each part.
"My friend was in Vienna," said a traveler. "He had taken from here a letter of credit on one of the best known banks and he wanted to draw on it. So he sought the agency of the bank in Vienna. He walked into an office which had a big barricade in front of a long desk and two small holes cut for the convenience of customers. He walked up to the first of them. A man came up. He handed the letter of credit to him. The man looked at it and said very gruffly: 'Next window!'
"My friend went to the next window. A man came up, took his letter of credit, looked at it, smiled pleasantly and said: 'That's all right. How much do you wish to draw, sir?' 'It was the same man.'—San Francisco Chronicle.

Barking on the Back Seats.
A story comes from Algimig to the effect that once upon a time a dog found his way into the chamber of deputies just as a prolix member was boring the house with a harangue. The tediousness of the speech was soon appreciated by Carlo, who gave vent to his feelings in barks. And on the morrow the stenographers' report of the speech had at various points the interpolation (Barking on the back seats).—Boston Transcript.

A Remarkable Case.
Under the above heading the "Doncaster Reporter" of July 6, 1887, publishes the following in its editorial columns:
Our readers may recall the circumstance of a young clerk, named Arthur Richold, falling insensible on the Wheatley Lane in this town some time ago, and being picked up, as he continued perfectly helpless, and taken in a cab by two gentlemen to the office of F. W. Fisher, Esq., the solicitor who employed him. On restoring him to consciousness it was ascertained that he was afflicted with what seemed to be an incurable disease. When he was able to speak he said he had been to his dinner and was on his way back to his work, when suddenly his head was in a whirl and he fell in the street like a man who is knocked down. On coming to his senses in the solicitor's office he thought what this might mean, and feared he was going to have a fit of illness, which we all know is a very dreadful thing for a poor man with a family to care for.

With this in his mind he at once sought the best medical advice, telling the doctors how he had been attacked. They questioned him, and found that his present malady was exhaustion of the nervous system, resulting from general debility, indigestion and dyspepsia of a chronic nature. This in turn had been caused by confinement to his desk and grief at the loss of dear friends by death. The coming on of this strange disease, as described by Mr. Richold, must be of interest both to sick and well. He had noticed for several years previously, in fact, that his eyes and face began to have a yellow look; there was a sticky and unpleasant slime on the gums and teeth in the morning; the tongue coated; and the bowels so bound and costive that it induced that most painful and troublesome ailment—the piles. He says there was some pain in the sides and back and a sense of fullness on the right side, as though the liver were enlarging, which proved to be a terrible fact. The secretions from the kidneys would be scanty and high-colored with a kind of gritty or sandy deposit after standing.

These things had troubled Mr. Richold a long time, and after his fall in the street he clearly perceived that his fit of giddiness was nothing more than a sign of the steady and deadly advance of the complaint, which began in indigestion and dyspepsia. His story of how he went from one physician to another in search of a cure that his wife and little ones might not come to want is very pathetic and touching. Finally he became too ill to keep his situation and had to give it up. This was a sad calamity. He was appalled to think of how he should be able to live. But God raised up friends who helped to keep the wolf from the door. He then went to the seaside at Walton-on-the-Naze, but neither the change, nor the physicians who treated him there, did any good. All being without avail he visited London, with a sort of vague hope that some advantage might happen to him in the metropolis. This was in October, 1885.

How wonderful, indeed, are the ways of Providence, which dashes down our highest hopes and then helps us when we least expect it.

While in London he stated his condition to a friend, who strongly advised him to try a medicine which he called Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, saying it was genuine and honest, and often cured when everything else had failed. He bought a bottle of a chemist in Picnic, and began using it according to the directions. He did this without any faith or hope, and the public may, therefore, judge of his surprise and pleasure when after taking a few doses he felt great relief. He could eat better, his food distressed him less, the symptoms we have named abated, the dark spots which had floated before his eyes like smuts of soot gradually disappeared, and his strength increased. Before this time his knees would knock together whenever he tried to walk. So encouraged was he now that he kept on using Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup until it ended in completely curing him.

In speaking of his wonderful recovery Mr. Richold says it made him think of poor Robinson Crusoe, and his deliverance from captivity on his island in the sea; and added, "But for Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup the grass would now be growing over my grave."

Our readers can rest assured of the strict truth of all the statements in this most remarkable case, as Mr. Richold (now residing at Swiss Cottage, Walton-on-the-Naze,) belongs to one of the oldest and most respected families in the beautiful village of Long Melford, Suffolk, and his personal character is attested by so high an authority as the Rev. C. J. Martyn. We have deemed the case of such importance to the public as to justify us in giving this short account of it in our columns.

MOTHER SEIGEL'S OPERATING PILLS
—FOR—CONSTIPATION
Sluggish Liver,
ETC., ETC., ETC.

UNLIKE many kinds of cathartic medicines, do not make you feel worse before you feel better. Their operation is gentle, but thorough, and unattended with disagreeable effects, such as nausea, griping pains, etc.

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition. The best remedy extant for the bane of our lives—constipation and sluggish liver. These Pills prevent fevers and all kinds of sickness, by removing all poisonous matter from the bowels. They operate briskly, yet mildly, without any pain. If you take a severe cold, and are threatened with a fever, with pains in the head, back, and limbs, one or two doses of Seigel's Operating Pills will break up the cold and prevent the fever. A coated tongue, with a brackish taste, is caused by foul matter in the stomach. A few doses of Seigel's Operating Pills will cleanse the stomach, remove the bad taste, and restore the appetite, and with it bring good health.

Often times disease, or partially decayed food, causes sickness, nausea and diarrhoea. If the bowels are cleansed from this impurity with a dose of Seigel's Operating Pills, these disagreeable effects will vanish, and good health will result. Seigel's Operating Pills prevent ill-effects from excess in eating or drinking. A good dose at bedtime renders a person fit for business in the morning. These Pills, being sugar-coated, are pleasant to take. The disagreeable taste common to most pills is obviated.

For Sale by all Chemists, Druggists and Medicine Vendors.
