THE CULTURE OF OPIUM.

The Industry in Malwa and Bengal—Gathering the Poppy's Juice.

It is probable that very few owners of flower-gardens are aware that the poppies cultivated merely for ornament will produce opium.

Although the plant will grow in almost any climate, it is in India that it is most satisfactorily cultivated, the opium revenue of that country being derived from two sources, those of Malwa and those of Bengal.

When the land has been plowed and sown, the poppy seed is sown at the end of October, or the beginning of November.

As soon as it begins to germinate, as it does in a week after sowing, the land is divided by furrows into rectangular beds, about eight feet in length by four in breadth.

In the course of eight or ten days, the capsules are lanced at night, and the juice which has exuded from the incisions is scraped off in the morning, with a small scoop, and transferred to a metal or earthen vessel.

At the end of March, or the beginning of April, when the weather is furiously hot in Bengal, the cultivators, carrying their opium, obey a summons calling them to meet the deputy agent of their village.

Finally the opium paste is made into cakes, dried, packed in boxes, and removed to Calcutta, for sale by auction.—Youth's Companion.

Regulate the Diet of the Aged. As we increase in age, when we have spent, say, our first half-century, less energy and activity remain, and less expenditure can be made; less power to eliminate is possible at 50 than at 30, still less at 60 and upward.

A Novel Method of Ornamentation. A simple method of ornamenting wood or sized paper is to brush over it a thin coating of a very concentrated cold solution of some salt mixed with dextrine, which gives to the surface a beautiful mother-of-pearl appearance.

SAMOAN AFFAIRS.

Contrary to expectations, the news from Samoa by the Zealandia was very scant. In another column will be found a brief interview with a Mr. Moore, who came up from Apia, and also an extract from the New York "Herald," which is of much importance. In the New Zealand "Herald" of October 10th we find the following: "A few weeks ago we narrated what had been done by the Germans at Samoa, in landing at Apia, taking possession of the place, and declaring that Malietoa—who for a number of years has been recognized as King by England and America—was deposed, and proclaiming Tamasese in his place. Since then the Germans have taken complete control of Samoa. Malietoa surrendered to the Germans, and was put on board the German man-of-war Adler. He was taken to Cooktown, where he was put on board the German man-of-war Albatross, which is to take him to Europe. Great surprise and indignation exists throughout the Colonies that all this should have been allowed to be done without any interference by the British Government. We have recognized Malietoa as King of Samoa, and it is said that but for our interference in keeping the peace, he would have destroyed Tamasese's power long ago. It was supposed by the German's that Malietoa was not favorably inclined to them, and that he was rather disposed to be friendly to England. The Germans have taken a step which is fitted to destroy our influence and our commerce in these seas, and apparently England looks on with perfect complacency. These Colonies regard these transactions with deep apprehension. A considerable trade is carried on between these islands and Colonial ports, and it was hoped that that might be largely increased. But this growing commerce will infallibly be destroyed if Germany is allowed to take possession of the different groups as it suits her under the most flimsy pretexts."

A Minister Sues an Editor.

At the latter end of June the Rev. Chas. L. Miel, Rector of St. Peter's Church, arrived in Honolulu as special correspondent for the San Francisco "Examiner." He remained here a week. The S. F. "Alta California" of October 7th says that Mr. Miel has sued W. R. Hearst, proprietor of the "Daily Examiner," for breach of contract. The complaint states that Miel was engaged by Mr. Hearst on the 10th of last August as an editorial writer on the "Examiner" at a salary of $25 per week, and that on the 26th of the same month he was assured that his work was satisfactory and that his position would be permanent. Under this assurance he released the church of which he is pastor from the payment of $50 per month until April 19, 1888; and that on September 19th, without any cause or reason, was discharged from his position and has suffered pecuniary damages, and damage to his reputation to the amount of $1,000, for which he brings suit.

For San Francisco.

The following passengers are booked to leave on the Australia on Tuesday for San Francisco: Paul Isenberg, F. S. Rotmage, E. F. Wright, Signor Roselli, Mrs. Joran, Misses Lula, Pauline and Elise Joran, Mrs. G. J. Emmes and daughter, Dr. G. H. Martin, A. Engelbrecht, Henry Grube Marchant, Captain G. E. G. Jackson and family, and W. H. Morse.

SAMOA.

Malietoa Carried Away by the Germans.

Tamasese Still King, but Upheld Only by the Germans—Everything Quiet—Interesting Facts from the N. Y. "Herald."

The Zealandia arrived last evening from Auckland. She called off Tutuila and took on board the mails and one steerage passenger, a Mr. Moore. A representative of the ADVERTISER interviewed him before the steamer touched her dock, but he could not give any later news. In fact, we had later news on the Australia last Tuesday. The Samoans new that Malietoa had been carried away from Apia on the German man-of-war Adler, but had no idea where they had taken him to. A dispatch by the Australia stated, it will be remembered, that the Adler had transferred Malietoa to the Albatross at Cookstown, and that the latter vessel intended taking him to German New Guinea. This latter bit of news the Samoans were ignorant of.

Mr. Moore stated he had letters to the King and other people from J. E. Bush, who, he says, is pretty hard up. The German flagship Bismarck was off Tutuila when the Zealandia arrived there. The U. S. S. Adams was daily expected at Apia when Moore left. The Germans upheld Tamasese as King, but he is totally ignored by the American and British Consuls. Everything was quiet at Apia when the mail cutter left there to catch the Zealandia.

MALIELOA'S FAREWELL TO SAMOA.

The following is a translation of the King's parting message to his people: "To all Samoa. On account of my great love to my country, and my great affection to all Samoa, that is the reason that I deliver up my body to the German Government. That Government may do as they wish to me. The meaning of this is that I do not desire that again shall the blood of Samoa be spilt for me. But I do not know what is my offense which has caused their anger to arise to me and my country. Tuamaseanga, farewell! Manono, and my family, farewell! So, also, Salafai, Tutuila, Aana and Atua, farewell! If we do not again see one another in this world, pray that we may be again together above. May you be blessed! I am Malietoa, the King."

THE N. Y. "HERALD" ON SAMOA.

The following is from the New York "Herald" of October 3d, and is full of interest at the present time: "Some essential historical facts in the history of our peculiar relations with Samoa have never reached the public because they have been locked up with other secrets jealously guarded in our Department of State. The "Herald," however, is enabled to publish the substance of that interesting and important history, which is obtained from public and secret records of the Government. It will be remembered that in 1872 Commander (now Captain) Meade, of the United States Navy, made a treaty with Maunga, the Great Chief of the Island of Tutuila, one of the Samoan group in the South Pacific, by which the port of Pango-Pango was given up to the American Government on condition that a friendly alliance existed between that island and the United States.

TAKING POSSESSION.

The treaty having been satisfactory to both Governments, President Hayes sent a naval vessel to the Samoan Islands "to make surveys and take possession of the privileges ceded to the United States by Samoa in the harbor of Pango-Pango," and a United States coaling station was established there for the convenience and use of the United States.

Germany was very much chagrined at these acts of the United States Government in thus securing the cession to it of special privileges in Samoa, and Great Britain was scarcely less mortified than Germany in this respect. In the German Reichstag Herr Von Bulow and Prince Bismarck commented upon the "beat" the United States had made upon Germany, and from time to time the covetousness of Germany toward Samoa and the envy of the United States have been evinced in the Reichstag and in the newspapers of the Empire.

GERMAN AND BRITISH CLAIMS.

According to the Edinburgh "Review" of July, 1886, (approvingly-quoted by our Department of State at Washington) "at present the German land claims in Samoa comprise 232,000 acres. British subjects claim not less than 357,000. There is, however, this important difference between the positions of the German and the British claimants—the former have so far made their claims effective that they occupy and cultivate just as much soil as they can work, while the latter exist only on paper and are not insisted on by the British Government."

As to how these lands were acquired, there is equally high authority for the following explanation: "The people of that group belong to the first of the Polynesian races. They are all nominally Christians, and have never deserved the title of 'savage' except in its acceptance of not civilized. Unhappily tribal animosities and the machinations of interested and unscrupulous white men led to a series of wars."

ally Christians, and have never deserved the title of 'savage' except in its acceptance of not civilized. Unhappily tribal animosities and the machinations of interested and unscrupulous white men led to a series of wars."

FIREARMS TRADED FOR LAND.

"The combatants were anxious to procure firearms, and the traders declined to sell them except for land. The result was that between 1869 and 1872 not less than one hundred thousand acres passed into German owners' hands at a virtual cost of a few pence per acre. For much not even this consideration was given. The ignorant natives were deluded into signing documents which they could not in the least understand, and which were held to give the white occupiers a sure title."

It was at this time (February, 1872) that the Great Chief of Tutuila, "being desirous—in the interest and welfare of himself, his successors and people—to have the friendship and protection of the great government of the United States of America," made a treaty with Commander Meade, and thereby escaped the further rapacity of "unscrupulous white men."

PRESIDENT GRANT'S OPINION.

President Grant, in his confidential message transmitting to the Senate the treaty made by Commander Meade, "conferring upon the government of the United States the exclusive privilege of establishing a naval station in the dominions of the Great Chief of the island of Tutuila for the equivalent of protecting those dominions," said:

"The advantages of the concession which it proposes to make are so great, in view of the advantageous position of Tutuila, especially as a coaling station for steamers between San Francisco and Australia, that I should not hesitate to recommend its approval, but for the protection on the part of the United States which it seems to imply. With some modification of the obligation of protection which the agreement imparts, it is recommended to the favorable consideration of the Senate."

The Senate did slightly modify the "obligation of protection," and ratified the treaty, which is now a law for the United States and Samoa.

WHAT WE GAIN UNDER THE TREATY.

By the treaty the great chief, Maunga, besides granting to the United States "the exclusive privilege of granting a naval station, further agreed that he would 'not grant a like privilege to any other foreign power or potentate.' It is that 'further agreement' which 'friled' the German and English statesmen, and they have never ceased their machinations to break up or overcome the advantage which the United States has over Germany and Great Britain in Samoa.

During the present administration the State Department at Washington has made its position plain enough to our Ministers at Berlin and London.

HUNDREDS OF BOYS RUINED

Morally and Physically by the Requirements of the Telegraph Service.
(See Howard in Philadelphia Press.)

One of our chief city industries is the district telegraph service, employing thousands of boys. Has it ever occurred to you what the future of those little chaps must be? Taken at a tender age from school they are huddled together like sheep in a pen, compelled to wear a uniform which may be over warm or under warm, sent out in all manner of weather, compelled to visit the low as well as the high places of earth, introduced in their impressionable years to society of the very existence of which they ought never to know.

They are summoned at all hours of the day and night to brothels as well as to churches, and gambling houses as well as counting-rooms, and scenes of debauchery as well as symposia of pleasure. They are asked to take drunken men to saddened homes as well as to lead little children to school. Snow to their knees is as familiar to them as the bright sunshine of an October morning. Through drenching showers they are supposed to hurry as well as along the attractive surface of a crowded highway on a pleasant shopping afternoon.

They are underpaid, they are over-fined, their wits are sharpened by constant endeavor to add something to their meager pittance, they look for fees, they serve quickly and adroitly the whim and caprice of a dissolute woman in the hope of extra compensation, and they shirk honest labor done for reputable people who pay according to the indications of the tariff book, and all for what? Are they learning anything except tricks and devices? Do they extend their observation in any field save that of human nature?

As they go along the highway of life, their stature increasing and their years piling up, they want more money, but the company can supply the places of what are now young men by another influx of baby boys. And so the work goes on year after year hundreds of these little fellows are ruined in physique, undermined in their morals, made dirty, thieving rascals and then thrown broadcast upon the earth, with no trade, with no fixed habits of industry, with nothing under heaven between them and starvation but a few acute wits and a disposition to take advantage of the world, and with a past whose memory is anything but fragrant.

A New Telegraphic Code.
(St. James' Gazette.)

The telegraphic code published by Mr. Labouchere in this week's Truth shows the member for Northampton only half awake. By making use of the abbreviations he suggests you can certainly get a good deal into a 6-penny telegram. Thus: "Jones, agony antidote borage archangel," if sent by a husband in the city to his wife, means "Our old friend Jones is coming out with me to dinner. As he is a bit of an epicure, do your best in the time, and let us have a good glass of wine. He will probably stay the night."

All this in a few words is perhaps very creditable, but the wife's answer would improve on it. In one word not included in Mr. Labouchere's list she would send her husband the following message: "What on earth made you invite the man to day? For goodness sake don't bring him here. Chops only. You know there is no decent wine in the house. Mother has the spare bedroom to night." Then, without referring to Mr. Labouchere's code, the husband would see the thing clearly, and take Jones round to his club.

The Largest Nugget of Gold.
(Grass Valley Union.)

Louis Blanding says the generally accepted statement that the largest nugget ever found in California was worth a little more than $21,000 is an erroneous one. He says that J. J. Finney, "Old Virginia," found a piece of gold about six miles from Downieville, Sierra county, on the 21st day of August, 1851, that weighed 5,000 ounces. The gold of that vicinity was worth $18 an ounce, which would make the value of the nugget some $90,000. This would make the Finney nugget the largest piece of pure gold ever discovered, so far as accounts go. Heretofore the Australian nugget found in the Ballarat gold fields, has been considered the largest. It was valued at $40,000.

Finney, or "Old Virginia," as he was familiarly called in those days, afterward went to Washoe when the great silver discoveries were first made there, and from him the town of Virginia took its name. The man who discovered the largest nugget in the California mines and gave his name to the richest mining camp in the world, died in extreme poverty.

Iron Railroad Ties.
(The Current.)

A railroad track is to be laid in New York for the purpose of testing iron sleepers made according to a new principle, as a substitute for wooden ties. If they should prove sufficiently cheap and serviceable to be generally adopted their use would do more to insure the preservation of our forests than almost anything else. The inventor of an adequate substitute for wooden railroad ties will deserve a very high monument as a public benefactor.

Statistics of the Inevitable.
(Exchange.)

Some statistician, who wants to make people feel dreadfully blue, figures it all out thus: "Select 100,000 healthy boys and girls from the public schools of our country. Let each be 10 years old. At 23, 10,000 will be dead; at 50, 30,000; at 65, 50,000; at 75, 60,000; at 85, 90,000; at 93, 99,900; at 95, 99,990—only ten alive, and in 100 years 99,999 will be dead."

The Masses Underestimated.
(Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.)

The aggregate common sense of the masses is often underestimated by scholarly people. In reality, there are few questions outside of the most difficult problems in science that are not constantly discussed by plain working people, carpenters, mechanics, sailors, farmers, and the general run of distinguished folks.

Costly living is given as the cause of the loss of students at Yale college.

SUMACH GATHERING IN VIRGINIA.

A Profitable Industry for Hardy Mountaineers—Crops and Prices.
(Millwood (Va.) Cor. Chicago Journal.)

Sumach gathering has grown into an industry of considerable magnitude in the Virginia mountains of late years. The bush is most abundant on the rocky and uncultivated mountain side, where no crop of grain could be grown. Providence, it would seem, has especially designed that the mountaineer should not be forgotten in the universal economy of nature, and that he should find subsistence ready at his cabin door. The season for picking the leaf lasts about three months in the year, beginning in the latter part of June. The first frost renders the leaves unfit for use.

The product is hauled sometimes as far as fifty miles, often over rough and stony roads, in the ancient vehicles of the mountaineers, to some mill or convenient shipping point. For the dry and cured leaf they receive $1 a hundred weight. At this rate, although it is smaller, the pickers allege, than the mill men could with justice give, the gathering of this wild leaf is much more profitable than raising grain in the rich valleys, where drought a fief the farmers. The wife and children of the mountaineer assist him in gathering the leaves, and a little girl of 10 becomes as dexterous in stripping the bushes as a grown man of 25. Each can earn $3 a day. Expert gatherers have been known to strip a bush of leaves, which when cured have weighed 500 pounds. One man living at the top of the Blue Ridge, near Manasses Gap, has picked this season twenty tons and realized $400. It is impossible to estimate the amount of comfort given these poor people by this source of revenue. Their fathers, in ignorance of the wealth at their doors, lived a precarious existence, chiefly by hunting and fishing, and partly by raising on the thin soil little patches of buckwheat.

Most of the sumach gathered in Virginia finds a market in the morocco factories of Wilmington, Del. It is used to retain the rich coloring of the leather imparted by the tanning properties of the black oak bark. The only rival of the Virginia sumach is that imported from Sicily. The American article is richer in tannic acid than the Sicilian, but the imported leaf commands the highest price for the reason that, as yet, the Virginia mountaineers have not learned the importance of keeping their leaves as free from sand and grit as do the careful Italians. The leather dealer says that the least speck of dirt or grit makes a flaw in the leather. The Italian leaf if used by the print cloth factories of New England. Print cloths soaked in a solution of sumach retain their dyes through all conditions of exposure to weather.

The bush in the Virginia mountains is known as the "stagbush sumach." It grows in great luxuriance until the leaves have been stripped off for several seasons, when the bush will die if left alone. In this emergency the mountaineer hitches his horse to a long, narrow-pointed shovel plow called a "bull-tongue," and plows about the roots, breaking and tearing them apart. From the torn roots fresh bushes spring up, and the next season a crop of leaves thicker and darker than ever amply rewards his homely toil.

Under Four Flags.
(The Current.)

A paragraph recently reprinted in these columns stated that Louisiana might be said to be the only state which has living citizens "who have seen their native state under four flags."

Mr. Edwin B. Smith, of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Gazette, writes to The Current as follows: "A few aged veterans of that gallant band which met and overcame Santa Anna's hordes on the immortal field of San Jacinto still linger in the land that they have seen emerge from a semi-barbaric state to a high pitch of prosperity and civilization. They knew the country first under Mexican dominion; then followed the republic; then annexation to the United States; and then that stormy era when the Lone Star state linked her fortunes with the Confederacy." Mr. Smith adds with truth that this showing, though in the barest outlines, "embodies enough of romance, action, and achievement" to engage the pens of the best bards and historians of the future.

Tomatoes as Food.
(Hall's Journal of Health.)

It is known that the essence of the tomato made into a pill acts on the liver, and to that extent must counteract biliousness and all forms of fever. The free use of figs is known to multitudes to obviate constipation in a great many cases; every intelligent druggist knows that a tablespoonful of white mustard seed swallowed without chewing is useful in the same direction, and for that reason is kept in every good drug store for sale. The seeds pass from the stomach unchanged, but are supposed "to act" on the bowels delicately. The seeds of the tomato act in the same manner; hence the fruit, while it is palatable to the taste and nutritious to the body, has a health-promoting effect on the liver and the whole digestive system.

Music from Gas.
(Chicago Herald.)

Music from gas is the latest English invention. It is called the pyrophone. Its compass is three octaves, with a keyboard, and it will be played in the same manner as an organ. It has thirty-seven glass tubes, in which a number of gas jets burn. These jets, placed in circles, contract and expand like the fingers of a hand. When the small burners separate the sound is produced; when they close together the sound ceases. The tone depends upon the number of the burners and the size of the pipes in which they burn, so that by a careful arrangement and selection all the notes of the musical scale may be produced in several octaves. Some of the glass tubes in which the jets burn are nearly eleven feet high.
